AN ALL-NIGHT TRIAL

Pastor Thompson Shows No Fear of His Accusers.

THE WOMAN IN THE CASE

Is Also On Hand to Protect Her Character.

BROCKTON, Mass., Aug. 1.—The trial of Rev. Napoleon Bonaparte Thompson, formerly pastor of the South Congregational church, for alleged indiscretions unbecoming a minister of the gospel, began last night in the church where for four years he preached. There was a large attendance, young and old being represented. There was one member present who is 92 years of age, so that the interest manifested in the affair is out of the ordinary.

Long before the meeting of the church there was a big crowd in the streets and in front of the church. About 7 o'clock the doors opened and three sentries stood at the door.

As each member of the church put in an appearance he or she was closely scrutinized. Among the first to enter the church was Rev. Mr. Thompson, accompanied by two gentlemen and two ladies. One of the men was a mystery to the church people. Somebody said he was a detective in the employ of Minister Thompson, but as soon as the trial began he proceeded to take notes. He was a stenographer, and every statement made against the ex-pastor was taken down for future reference.

There Was Great Consternation

in the church when Rev. Mr. Thompson walked down the aisle. One of the women who walked down the broad aisle was Mrs. Lillian M. Swift, the former Brockton school teacher, whose name is linked with that of Rev. Mr. Thompson in connection with this affair. Her appearance was a surprise to everybody, but she came many miles from her home in Maine to meet the men who are making such public property of her name.

Mrs. Swift does not look to be 35 years old, but she is said to have lived to that age. She is about five feet and eight inches tall, with a rather slim but very shapely figure. Her father was the pastor of a Baptist church, but he died while she was very young. Her mother afterward became the wife of Hiram Wyman, a deacon in the local Congregational church.

Miss Berry, as she was then known, went through the town schools and went to Farmington where she attended the normal school. Her school life was interrupted at 18 by what proved to be a most unfortunate step. She married C. G. Swift, a merchant, and later postmaster of New Sharon. They did not live happily and a few years later Mrs. Swift Secured a Divorce.

She became a teacher. For two years she taught in Brockton at what is known as Leyden Park. Then she was transferred to the Huntington avenue primary school, where she has been engaged six years. During all the time that she lived here she was a member of the family of Deacon Carey Howard. She resigned her position when the talk concerning Mr. Thompson and herself came about and returned to New Sharon. She is a member of the Congregational church and the Christian Endeavor society at New Sharon.

Promptly at 7:30 the trial began, and the church was well filled, principally by women. The sentries who were on guard performed their duties faithfully, and occasionally one would come outside the church and make a patrol of the edifice, so that no eavesdropper would listen to the proceedings, for they were secret. One reporter, who is an ex-minister, drew up a petition to the church, which was signed by himself and one or two others, but the church refusing by a unanimous vote to admit press representatives.

The Petition Was Ignored,

The pastor fought strenuously to make the affair public, using the argument that if the church wants fair reports the reporters should be admitted.

There were a score of witnesses examined, among whom were Detectives Porter and Wood. The two latter were on the witness stand nearly three hours, and the minister greatly puzzled them with his numerous questions. It appears that all the time while the pastor was being shadowed by detectives he had detectives of his own on their track.

The church has not submitted all of its case yet, but will resume it again this evening at 8 o'clock.

The prosecution witnesses failed to tell connected stories, and some were very badly rattled. The trial did not adjourn until nearly 3 o'clock this morning.

LET FACTS BE KNOWN!

Pertinent Suggestions Regarding Three Sensational Failures.

CONCORD, N. H., Aug. 1.—Senator Chandler in a leader on the Manchester failures says in The Monitor:

The People's Insurance company, Commonwealth bank and Berryfield Saving bank have been managed largely by the same persons. There are averments made that the assets of the savings bank and insurance company have been taken unlawfully to help the Commonwealth bank, which now suspends with the rest. It is freely stated that many of the securities of the insurance company are missing from their proper places and only empty envelopes remain.

In view of these statements we say let there be no secresy. There have been good and honest men brought into connection with these three failed institutions. They should not draw suspicion upon themselves by concealing facts, but these men should be foremost in proclaiming the truth, exonerating themselves and demanding the prompt punishment of all embezzlers. The investigation is in the hands of able and responsible officials. We call upon them to let the facts be known.

A LYNN GENIUS

Constructs a Carriage Which Promises to Do Great Work.

LYNN, Mass., Aug. 1.—C. L. Simonds has made a steam carriage for his own use that will make 10 miles an hour. The carriage weighs only 400 pounds and can carry two persons at a time. It has the appearance of an ordinary carriage in front, except there were no provisions made for a horse. The wheels are of cycle make and are four in number. The hind wheels are 48 inches, and the front wheels are 36 inches, with rubber tires. The boiler and engine sets just in the rear of the seat and gives the carriage the appearance of a fire engine. The steam generates in what is called a porcupine boiler, which weighs 100 pounds. The engine, which is upright, is 2x4, with a four-inch stroke.

The steam is made by naphtha flames from three jets. The naphtha is kept in a cylinder, enough to last for seven hours, and there is a water tank that will hold 10 gallons. There is a pump that is automatic in action directly connected with the engine. The steering part consists of a crank wheel on the footboard, so that the engineer can steer and attend to the engine at the same time. The body of the carriage rests on a cradle and three springs. It is easy riding and allowance has been made for every movement. The shafts are 1 1-4 inch steel, and can stand all of 1000 pounds.

Mr. Simonds has given the steam carriage a trial already and it has proven a success. It started off at a 10 mile gait; there was no noise, smoke or trouble whatever.

THEORY OF INSANITY

In Connection With the Suicide of Cashier Francis.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Aug. 1.—It is now said that the relatives of E. S. Francis will claim that he killed himself in a fit of insanity, brought on by threats of imprisonment for embezzlement. It is known that Mr. Francis was in the habit, when fatigued and suffering from cold and nervousness, of quieting himself with chloral tablets, and some think that he took an overdose of these on his way from Boston to Pittsfield, either by mistake or purposely, and the facts and his symptoms would seem to sustain this theory.

The full extent of the transactions of the late cashier will not be determined until his private "loan book" is found. This, with his other private papers, is supposed to be in his safe deposit drawer in the new vault of the Pittsfield National bank, which was built last year.

The insurance upon Mr. Francis' life is estimated at $30,000, of which $6000 is in the Berkshire Life company in favor of his first wife and her two children, which will be paid.

STARTS UP AGAIN.

The Employes of the United States Watch Company Agreeably Surprised.

WALTHAM, Mass., Aug. 1.—The United States Watch company resumed work at their factory yesterday with a full force, after two weeks' vacation. This was an agreeable surprise to the operatives and the community, as it was feared that the company would extend its vacation another week or make considerable discharge of help, as did the Waltham company. The operatives were notified of a reduction of 15 per cent in pay during the present stagnation only, with the promise that when times improved their old wages would be restored.

Appointed by the Mayor.

BOSTON, Aug. 1.—Hon. William S. McNary has been appointed by Mayor Matthews a member of the water board to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Judge Robert Grant. The appointment is for the term ending April 30, 1895.

Has Practically Recovered.

BOSTON, Aug. 1.—John L. Randall, who was assaulted and injured by John O. Marsh last week and who has since been at the Massachusetts general hospital, has recovered sufficiently to allow of his removal to his home in Arlington.

Invitation to Bellamy.

SALEM, Mass., Aug. 1.—The labor committee on Labor day celebration has secured Edward Bellamy, the author of "Looking Backward," to come to this city and address the laboring men on any subject he may see fit to.

Charged With Fraud.

BANGOR, Me., Aug. 1.—Colin McKenzie, a general trader of Ellsworth, was before the court on a charge of illegally obtaining goods, and cheating and defrauding creditors. He was held in the sum of $3000.

AGGRESSIVE FRANCE

Has Not Yet Completed Operations In Siam.

BANGKOK IS THREATENED.

France Has Triumphed Over England Thus Far.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—A dispatch to the Central News from Bangkok says: The uneasiness among the people here, far from lessening, is increasing. Seven more French gunboats have arrived at Ko-Si-Chang, making a total of 13 now there. Negotiations are still going on. The intentions of the French are awaited with fear and apprehension.

Rear Admiral Humann commanding the French squadron has issued a second blockade notice, to take effect three days from Saturday. He will order the British warships Pallas and Swift, now lying off Bangkok, to go outside the blockade limits. M. Pavie, the French minister, resident, has gone to Saigon, and Rear Admiral Humann is under direct orders from Paris. Unless the French government interposes quickly an attack on Bangkok seems certain. The trading community is surprised that Humann is still allowed a free hand.

French trade has recently declined heavily in Siam, in consequence of English and German enterprise and intrigues to destroy French influence. It is believed that the strong tone of the ultimatum would tend greatly to restore the influence of France in Siam. The general opinion here is that the issue of the controversy is a triumph for French over English diplomacy.

It is believed in the diplomatic circles that there will be no disagreement between France and England in the delimitation of the frontier. It is also believed that China will adopt her customary course of laissez faire and not meddle with the matter.

France Means Business.

PARIS, Aug. 1.—The ambiguous tone of Sunday's cabinet council in accepting Siam's surrender has excited much comment. It is generally understood that this tone was adopted for the purpose of soothing international susceptibilities. It is stated on high authority that France intends to take decisive steps to insure Siam's carrying out the terms of the ultimatum. The blockade of the Siamese coast will be continued, it is said, until France's demands are satisfied. The French force now present in Siamese waters is believed to be sufficient to make the blockade effective.

A Story From London.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—The Standard received the following dispatch from its Paris correspondent: Owing to the representations made to M. Develle, the foreign minister, by Lord Dufferin, the British ambassador to France, the question of a neutral zone between the French possessions in the Siamese peninsular and British Burmah and the Shan states has been settled satisfactorily. It has been agreed that the French blockade of the Siamese coast shall be raised immediately. No confirmation of the foregoing has been received.

A Sensational Editorial.

The Daily News says: The latest news from Bangkok is very serious. Siam having accepted the French terms, France's persistence in coercive measures will be equivalent to an unprovoked declaration of war, if not an open demand for the cession of Siam. The British foreign office has never been in abler or firmer hands than now. We have no desire to attack France, but while Lord Rosebery made up his mind from the first not to assist or encourage the Siamese, he was equally determined, with the full approval of his colleagues, to protect the commercial rights of his own countrymen.

He distinctly warned France that British vessels could not be stopped under a blockade avowedly pacific in character. It is quite impossible for Great Britain to withdraw the ships she sent to Bangkok for protective purposes. He cannot be accused of exciting public feeling against France, but moderation is one thing, weakness another.

Lawrence's Bad News.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Aug. 1.—Notices were posted in the Atlantic cotton mills yesterday stating that the mills will close down next Saturday for a month or until the market brightens. The Arlington mills will be closed next week for the remainder of August. They employ 3000 operatives. The Pemberton mills close the last two weeks in August.

Important to Pensioners.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—Assistant Secretary Reynolds of the interior department has issued a rule in which he gives notice that after Sept. 1 next not more than one motion for reconsideration of a decision adverse to a claim for a pension fee will be entertained by the department.

Shoe Company Assigns.

AMESBURY, Mass., Aug. 1.—The Amesbury Shoe company has made an assignment. The company, it is stated, is not insolvent, but takes this means to close up its business.

In a No-License Town.

LYNN, Mass., Aug. 1.—James Cahoon partook of liquor with strangers, and while he was sleeping off the effects in a vacant lot, some one of the party relieved him of $45.

Locomotive Exploded.

COTTAGE CITY, Mass., Aug. 1.—The boiler of the only locomotive on the Martha's Vineyard railroad burst yesterday and traffic with Edgartown is suspended.

Men and Steamers Idle.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Aug. 1.—The Church Bros.' fish and guano works at Portsmouth, R. I., ceased operations and 247 men and eight steamers are idle.

Has Not Shut Down.

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 1.—The report that William Tinkham & Co.'s mill in Burrillville had shut down is untrue. The mill is running five days a week.

Sunday Observance.

A committee of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor had a very pleasant conference with Mayor Fairbanks last evening relative to the enforcement of the Sunday laws.

They were pleased with the attempt made to prevent loafing about the First church last Sunday, but they wish to go further than this and close up some of the stores which do a Sunday business. The most radical would like to close them all, including the druggist, but the more conservative will be satisfied if the more objectionable are closed.

The Mayor agreed to do what he could. To keep crowds from congregating on the streets and to reasonably enforce the laws on Sundays.

A mass meeting under the auspices of the society has been called for tomorrow evening, when prominent speakers are expected from out of town who will protest against the desecration of the Sabbath.

☞ William S. McNary, the regular Democratic candidate for Congress in this district last fall who was defeated by Mr. McEttrick, is not out in the cold. He has been appointed on the water board of Boston.

The Award of the Supreme Court Commissioners

IN THE QUINCY WATER CASE.

Rumor That the Company is Not Satisfied and Will Ask to Set Aside.

The decision of the special commissioners of the Supreme court is, that the city of Quincy shall pay the Quincy Water Company for its works, franchise rights and privileges the sum of $515,147.00, with interest from the date the city obtained possession.

Tomorrow the LEDGER is in hopes to present the full text of the decision, showing how the award was reached. Today it can be briefly summarized as follows:

The principal items making up the award are:

Bonded indebtedness,	$250,000
Capital stock paid in,	125,000
Floating debt and interest,	90,000
Due city on rates collected,	10,000
Commissioners expenses,	3,800
Interest on bonds, etc.

It is already reported that the Quincy Water Company are not satisfied with the award and that they ask the Supreme court to set it aside as insufficient.

TODAY'S COURT.

Louis Cronin, for being drunk at Quincy, was fined $5

William R. Martin of Weymouth, arraigned for keeping an unlicensed dog, was fined $15.

Michael Gay of Quincy was arraigned for the larceny of $33 from Hannah Danahy, and held in $200 for his appearance Saturday.

Prompt Arrest.

The house of John Danahy on Water street was entered Monday afternoon and $33 taken from the room of his daughter. Suspicion rested on Michael Gay and Martin Turley, who were seen about the house and who left for Boston shortly after. Gay returned about 9 o'clock and was arrested at Walsh's boarding house on Water street by officer Nicol.

Gay did not allow himself to be arrested without a struggle, during which the officer lost his badge. When he arrived at the station he requested to be put into the second cell. It so happened that this was the cell where the bar had been partially sawed off and during the night he made an effort to free himself, but was prevented by the appearance of the officer.

Gay was arraigned in the District court this morning. Turley, the other party in the case, has not returned yet.

WEYMOUTH.

John Shaw has moved into Mrs. Bartlett's house near the store.

Mrs. Clapp has moved from Pearl street to W. T. Shaw's house on Shaw street.

Michael Haggarty has moved from Pearl street to Norton street.

Mrs. Oldham takes possession of the North Weymouth postoffice today.

The residence of Warren Weston, which has been closed during the absence of the family, was discovered Monday to have been entered by burglars. The house was ransacked but as far as can be learned nothing of value had been taken.

☞ D. H. Thompson of Marshfield accidentally shot and killed himself on Sunday.

Just the Thing.

Mrs. Murray Hill—How hideous Miss Blakely looked in that bonnet.

Mrs. Manhattan Beach—I thought it was very becoming. At least the trimming was very appropriate.

Mrs. Murray Hill—I didn't notice the trimming.

Mrs. Manhattan Beach—The bonnet was trimmed with ivy leaves. Ivy is very appropriate. It only clings to old ruins.—Texas Siftings

As You Like It,
Or what's to become of our silver dollars! If this is the question you wish to solve, here's the way out of the difficulty. Invest your money in good furniture, and like land it will not depreciate,—that's how it differs from the mighty silver dollar. Let us illustrate a feature of the business being done by Henry L. Kincaide & Co. A delightful antique finished chamber set, ten pieces complete, neat, attractive and durable, the kind that adds the charm of dignity to your home,—the price seems absurdly little, $18.75. You may look at it today, tomorrow, or in years to come. Your investment remains good value for the dollars invested, and you reap the benefit.

MANET BEACH.

The Observance of Sunday—Personals and The Contest.

Many of the beach people were highly amused at the cuts and accompanying matter in the Boston papers last evening. If Houghs Neck is to attract much attention it is time for the residents to wake up and do something. Several of the innholders are decidedly passive in a matter which needs the hearty co-operation of every individual of this now well-known resort. Greatly in error are some of the business men when they attribute to one or more persons the cause of all this trouble. It would seem to an uninterested party that strange and ludicrous assertions had been made. Our advice is to look deeper and talk less and watch for the final result.

The fire in Weymouth could be clearly seen from the beach last night, and the cries could be distinctly heard.

Miss Grace Cain is at the Furnald cottage.

Conductor Packard of the Whitman Street Railway, and his family, arrived Monday for two weeks.

One of John Cashman's large teams brought down today several families from West street, West Quincy.

Sea Bathing.

From Worthington's Magazine for August, we take quotations from a health talk by Dr. Starr which is interesting and valuable. He says:

"Sea bathing is a more powerful tonic than the ordinary cold bath. The stimulation of the cutaneous surface by the dissolved salt, the changing and cooler currents of air, the impact of the waves upon the body, and the mental effect of the unusual surroundings, combine to impress the system very forcibly. While such conditions may have a depressing effect upon one who is unaccustomed to them, they are highly bracing and stimulating to him who is strong enough to make sea bathing safe.

On entering the cold sea bath there is a sense of depression of greater or less degree, depending upon the nervous susceptibility of the bather and the degree of the temperature of the water below that of the body. The water looks very alluring as one stands on the hot sandy beach, but proves distressingly cold if one advances slowly into it; the skin becomes pale and shriveled, and presently the familiar goose-skin appearance, caused by a contraction of the skin and consequent protrusion of the hair follicles, spreads over the body. There is a general shivering, a blueness of the lips, nose, and extremities, as the blood recedes from the cutaneous vessels and masses about the internal organs. An involuntary sobbing breathing as the water rises to the ches', markes its impression upon the nervous system. If the advance into the water continues, or still quicker, if a plunge into its depths be taken, the system in a few seconds is aroused to meet and overcome these depressing effects and a sense of exhilaration follows. The skin now becomes ruddy, the whole body is in a glow, the pulse is stronger, the breathing is full and easy, and body and mind are invigorated.

This abrupt dilatation of the cutaneous vessels, the stimulation of the heart's action, and restoration of the body heat is the reaction which is sought for in the therapeutic use of the sea bath. One or two more plunges can now be taken, or two or three waves be allowed to pass over one, and then all the good that can be derived from the bath has been acquired. It may be prolonged for the sake of the pleasure to be derived from sporting in the cool water or from the profit to be attained in learning to swim, but no further constitutional benefit will be secured by an extension of the five or eight minutes already passed in the water. If the bath is further prolonged the bather must be in the best of condition, and should exercise in swimming or otherwise, for the more hurried circulation of the blood during the bath causes it to cool rapidly as it comes to the surface, the temperature of the whole body is soon lowered, and there follows a second contraction of the cutaneous vessels and a chilliness more protracted than the first."

Popularity Contest.

Less than a week now in which to poll all the five-vote coupons. As usual before closing the polls in a contest the vote is held back until the last day, and on Monday next we expect a deluge. Gains today are made by Mrs. Macomber, Mr. Leonard and others.

THE OTHER SIDE.

An Old Resident Talks on the Flying Horse Question.

Editors of the Ledger:

With all due respect to your editorial opinion, ably expressed as it was in your issue of Monday, concerning the present excitement at Houghs Neck, I must beg to take exception to one or two statements which you make, and which I think are hardly borne out by the facts. To begin with, no one not actually on the ground can form any fair opinion of the situation, and such views as are expressed in the editorial referred to represent only one side of a question which, like every other, unquestionably has two.

You are quite right in saying that the Boston papers "flop over" in their account of Sunday's proceedings, but the point which seems to escape your attention as well as theirs is, that

This Whole Trouble Originated

Not from any desire on the part of your citizens to suppress "lawlessness and the desecration of the Sabbath," but rather was prompted by the petty jealousy and contemptible dog-in-the-manger policy of a lot of rival dealers in goods similar to the line carried by Mr. Taber.

I have no friends to favor in this matter, and do not care personally who wins, but I have watched the proceedings from the first from a purely disinterested standpoint. Have had unusual opportunities to note all the facts and circumstances bearing on the case, and I must say that I hope Mr. Taber will succeed in closing up all his competitors, as I think it will serve them right for their organized attempt to get business away from him by underhand tricks instead of by square and open methods of legitimate business competition.

It may not be generally known that the opposition had its inception in a petition started by and signed by them and their friends, which was forwarded to the authorities at Quincy, who would otherwise probably never have taken any action in the matter. Moreover I venture to say that a systematic canvass of all the residents of the beach would reveal the fact that a very large majority favor running the horses "every day in the week and twice on Sunday."

You say "the line must be drawn somewhere and it was drawn very properly at the horses." I cannot take issue with you on this question further than to say that it might be much more properly drawn at the owners and drivers of flesh-and-blood horses, including many of the law-abiding anti-flying-horse citizens of your city—among them some of your city officials and members of the city government—who drive poor suffering animals reeking with perspiration at break-neck speed up and down Sea street in front of Mr. Taber's establishment some of the hottest Sundays during the summer, than at the little wooden beasts which whirl harmlessly round a post, impelled by which drives the street cars all over your city, giving pleasure to hundreds of happy children who enjoy an innocent day's outing and get rest and recuperation from the sea breezes and fresh country air. A more absolutely harmless diversion or one involving less labor for man or beast than these same flying horses it would be difficult to conceive of, and if no more vicious amusements than this were indulged in. Houghs Neck would be a paradise on earth.

Not only this, but another fact which the public probably do not appreciate is that before building his new establishment. Mr. Taber took pains to ascertain if he would be allowed to run Sundays, and was assured, unofficially, I admit, but nevertheless by the proper authorities, that he would be unmolested. Now after going to an expense of several thousand dollars, he is persecuted and prosecuted through the malice and spite of a lot of little petty competitors who have

Opposed Every Improvement

Or reform ever proposed or suggested at Houghs Neck, and then reaped the benefits of the same after its accomplishment through the energy and enterprise of others.

This subject might be continued ad nauseam, but I think I have said enough to convince the uninformed that there are two sides to the question, and that Mr. Taber is "more sinned against than sinning." In conclusion, I can only say that it is no credit to the city of Quincy that she allows herself to become mixed up in a dirty personal row among a lot of little tradesmen, making herself like her sister cities of Somerville, Lynn, etc.—the laughing-stock of the State, and the sooner she wakes up to the fact and drops the whole matter, the sooner she will regain her lost dignity and prestige among the conservative cities of the Commonwealth.

Thanking you for so much of your valuable space as I have trespassed upon,

I remain, yours very truly,
AN OLD RESIDENT OF HOUGHS NECK.

An Electric Fire.

The alarm from Box 42 at 7.05 Monday evening, was rung in for a fire in the transformer on the outside of Frank Brewer's barn on Water street. The wires were immediately cut which extinguished the fire without doing any damage except to the transformer. The exact cause of the transformer burning out is hard to tell but it is a thing that very seldom happens. The fuses sometimes burn out and they are put on for the purpose of protecting buildings as when an extra heavy current is on the line the fuse burns off and prevents damage.

At the fire Monday evening the transformer in some way became short circuited possibly, by water getting into it, which caused the trouble the dense smoke being due to the insulation of the wire burning.

When the wires were cut they fell upon the trolly wire making them dangerous to handle. They were however removed out of danger but not before one young man, the motorman on the car, had received a sample of what it means to be electrocuted.

All at Work at Waltham.

The Advertiser reports the U. S. Watch Co. at Waltham to have resumed work at its factory on Monday with a full force, after two weeks vacation.

The operatives, both piece and day hands, were notified of a reduction of 15 per cent. in pay during the present stagnation only, with the promise that when times improved the old wages would be restored.

The reduction applies to foremen as well as others, and this shows evidence that the company proposes to treat all alike, which gives general satisfaction to the hands.

Manufacturers' Outing.

The party of Quincy granite manufacturers and invited guests will leave Boston for Barre, Vt., Thursday evening, at 10 o'clock, on a special train. A general invitation is extended to all gentlemen wishing to accompany them, and information may be obtained of the corresponding secretary of the Granite Manufacturers' Association.

Similar Action in Boston.

The Boston aldermen are also opposed to flying horses, as is shown by the adoption of the following resolve at the meeting on Monday:

RESOLVED,—That in the opinion of this board the operating of flying horses or other amusements should be prohibited in the public parks in the city of Boston on the Lord's day.

Modest Priced!
Have you ever seen in your travels a COOKING RANGE,—one that claims the title deservingly? There are such ranges in existence, few and far between. The Magee Mystic however, stands on its merits alone. It is the queen of bakers, tried and worthy, quick and responsive. Here is how it differs from some of the antediluvian makes. A direct heat on all sides of the oven. It is a wonderfully economical stove, not a particle of heat is wasted. It is the tip-top range on the market. Price it in Boston, then price it here; you look and wonder. Only a pinch of profit for us. the rest is all for you! Other ranges in great variety. HENRY L. KINCAIDE & Co.

A SEVERE BLOW.

The Only Shoe Factory at North Weymouth

COMPLETELY GUTTED BY FIRE.

A Financial Loss of From $5000 to $6000—Good Water Pressure.

North Weymouth received a severe blow Monday night when the shoe manufactory of John E. Holbrook & Co., the only factory in operation, was completely gutted by fire. The fire which evidently started on the second floor at the top of the stairs was discovered at 11.30 and at that time the flames were coming out of the windows. An alarm was immediately run in from Box 15, which brought Engineer Collyer and the local apparatus. As scon as Engineer Collyer saw that it was a large fire he immediately rung in a second alarm. This brought the Hose reel from Weymouth Heights and the Hose and Hook and Ladder from East Weymouth. By this time the roof had burned through and the illumination was such that it was as light as day throughout the village and the fire could be seen for miles.

The engineer at the pumping station had turned on the high pressure service as soon as the alarm sounded which gave a pressure at the scene of the fire of 105 pounds.

Five powerful streams of water were poured into the building, but owing to the dryness of the building and the inflammable matter of the contents, it proved a hard fire to fight.

The firemen under Chief Thayer and Engineer Collyer worked nobly however, and succeeded in saving the ends of the building, the centre being entirely gutted.

The loss on the building is placed at $1,500 and on stock and machinery at $4,000, upon which there is an insurance of $7500.

Messrs. Holbrook & Co. had three months orders on hand and employed about 40 hands who are thrown out of job.

The people of North Weymouth keenly feel the loss, as has been stated elsewhere it was the only industry in North Weymouth outside of Bradley's that was in operation.

It is not known whether Mr. Holbrook will immediately rebuild or not but it is presumed that he will.

The cause of the fire is unknown but is thought to have been incendiary.

Good Prospects.

"Six hundred dollars seem a great deal for you to spend on a bit of lace."

"But it is so becoming! And then Bob's salary will be nearly $2,000 next year."—Life

Jewish and Italian Immigration.

More than one-third of the 52,000 immigrants who landed at this port last month were Italian and Jewish. The inflow of these races this year surpasses that of every other year. It is evident that both the Italians and the Jews are pleased with this country, and that those of them who have been here for some time give encouragement to others to come. For a short time the Jews of Russia found some trouble in getting passage to this country, especially from Hamburg, but when excluded from German ports they go to Belgian, Dutch, British or French ports, where plenty of steamships are at their service, as can be seen by the arrival of so many of them here every week.—New York Sun.

Sixty-eight Years of Wedded Life.

George Gilbert and wife of Gilbertsville, Montgomery county, were married Nov. 8, 1825, and will celebrate their sixty-eighth marriage anniversary in November next. Mr. Gilbert will be 90 years of age on Nov. 8, 1893, and his wife will be 90 on March 9, 1894. Mr. Gilbert is still quite active and was seen in the field last week mowing and haymaking, but his wife has been bedfast 12 years, though her mental faculties are unimpaired. The couple have had 10 children, eight of whom are living.—Cor. Philadelphia Ledger.

The Future Postal Card.

Postmaster General Bissell has decided to abandon the three sizes of postal cards now in use and to substitute one size for single and reply cards. The specifications which have been sent to prospective bidders for the contract for furnishing the postal service with cards for the next four years call for single cards of the uniform size of 3½ by 5½ inches. This is what is known as the international size.

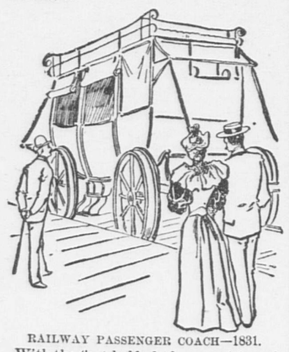

After All, Work Is Welcome.

Though it may seem hard to go back to the routine of household work or to the place in shop, office or schoolroom when vacation time is over, still if you are honest you will confess that occasional idleness is enchanting, but a continued period of it would drive you mad.—Philadelphia Times.

FAIR HALF OVER.

Unless the Attendance Increases the Debts Will Be Heavy.

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—When the guards and gatemen closed the gates of Jackson park last night one half of the World's fair period passed into history. Three months of the big show have elapsed, an only three months remain before exhibitors will begin to move out their displays and the work of tearing down the city will begin.

RAILWAY PASSENGER COACH—1831.

With the first half of the exposition th officials are satisfied except in one respect. The attendance has been small. For various reasons people have not come to the fair, as it was expected they would come, and, unless there is a wonderful increase in the attendance during the remaining period, the managers of the show will be troubled to pay its debts.

DISASTROUS PRAIRIE FIRE

Which Will Be a Heavy Blow to Cherokee Strip Boomers.

HENNESSY, O, T., Aug. 1.—The United States cavalry is supposed to have fired the Cherokee strip, and there is now a vast prairie fire, which will cause great loss. There was a thrilling scene when the cattlemen started their cattle on the dead run, as they flew before the rapid flames. Boomers put their horses to the gallop to get away. This will be a crushing blow to the boomers who intended to take claims in the strip, as it will destroy the forage. Farmers in the edge of the strip are back-firing as much as possible to prevent the fire from destroying their sacks of wheat and homes.

On the Geary Law.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 1.—Federal Judge Ross has delivered a lengthy decision on the Geary law in the case of Wong Dip Ken. He decided that section 4 of the Geary act, providing for the imprisonment at hard labor, was in contravention of the United States law and an unjust and infamous punishment where no crime was committed. The judge says the balance of the act was valid and ordered the China men deported. He denied a stay of execution asked for by the defense.

Thousands Are Idle.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Aug. 1.—The big Amoskeag mills are closed. This is the first suspension of these factories for many years. Eight thousand operatives are idle. The Jefferson mills started up again yesterday, thus giving employment to 1000 hands who had been idle for two weeks. All the remaining Amoskeag mills are certain to resume work Aug. 28, if not before, but it will be on the basis, it is stated of a reduction of wages to operatives.

Silver For State Taxes.

DENVER, Aug. 1. — Attorney General Engley has rendered an opinion to the effect that it is within the power of the legislature to enact appropriate legislation for the establishment of a state depository of silver bullion and the issuance thereon of certificates assignable by delivery and receivable by the state in payment of state taxes

Dana's Advice.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—The Sun publishes the following double-leaded editorial: Repeal the purchasing clause of the so-called Sherman act. Authorize the issue by national banks of circulation up to par of the United States bonds deposited with the treasury to secure the same. Issue no United States notes of a less denomination than five dollars.

The Sultan's Leniency.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 1.—The sentences of 10 of the Armenian prisoners recently condemned to death for taking part in the recent seditious uprising have been commuted to penal servitude for eight years. The death sentence will be carried out in the case of five others. The sentences of 24 other prisoners have been reduced.

Scandal In High Life.

AMESBURY, Mass., Aug. 1.—James A. Berry, one of the society leaders of the town, has instituted a suit for $10,000 damages against William Briggs, who is also one of the prominent men about town, on a charge of alienating his wife's affections. The case will come up for trial in September.

Pennsylvania Workers Idle.

PITTSBURG, Aug. 1.—Over 400 men were laid off at the Rankin wire works at Braddock yesterday. The Duquesne Forge laid off 200 men. Three freight train crews on the Pittsburg, McKeesport and Youghiogheny road were laid off on account of the dullness in freight traffic.

Editor Porter.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—The Press this morning contains a two-column article announcing the return to editorial charge of that paper of Robert P. Porter, late census superintendent, who was one of its founders and its first editor-in-chief.

Of Incendiary Origin.

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—A local paper prints a story to the effect that the recent fatal fire in the cold storage warehouse was of incendiary origin, the incentive being a desire to cover up wholesale thefts of goods stored in the warehouse.

Fall River Shutdowns.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Aug. 1.—The Robeson mill shut down last night for an indefinite period. It is stated the Omwa, Matawet and Fall River Manufacturing company will close Saturday night for two weeks.

Navahoe Was Last.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—In the regatta of the Royal London Yacht club at West Cowes, the Britannia was first, the Valkyrie second, and the Navahoe, the American yacht, third.

Catholic Mission Destroyed.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—A dispatch from Shanghai says that the Italian Catholic mission at Mien Yang, 90 miles from Hankow, has been destroyed by native rioters.

SPURT BY QUAKERS

Almost Caused Boston to Lose the Game In the Ninth.

BOSTON, Aug. 1. — Everything was smooth sailing for the champions until the ninth, when the Phillies threw off their inertia at the bat and made a gallant spurt. Though unavailing, it gave the Hub rooters palpitation of the heart. Up to this time the Phillies had made two hits, one a scratch two-bagger which Carroll missed on account of the sun. In the ninth, after Hamilton had flied out to Nichols, the onslaught began. Hallman hit safe. Thompson was hit by a pitched ball and the next four men lined out hits, which, with errors by Long and Lowe, yielded four runs with two men still on the bases. Allen then went out on a pop fly to Nash, and Taylor, who took Keefe's place at the bat, lost his chance by flying out to McCarthy. Clements retired at the end of the fourth on account of a wrenched leg.

FOR LITTLE FOLKS.

Little Willie's Great Sorrow.

One of the most pathetic incidents of the terrible storm which passed over Pomeroy, Ia., a short time ago was the great loss which fell to the lot of a little boy. The entire Maxwell family, consisting of father, mother and four children, were killed with the exception of Willie, aged 8.

Their home was torn to splinters, and also a portion of the stable, in which was kept a cow, a calf and a horse. Little Willie got away from those who had him in charge just after the storm and wandered over to the spot where once stood his home. There was nothing left of it but a small portion of the shed, the sole occupant of which was the calf. The cow and the horse had been killed.

Willie wound his arms around the calf's neck and wept. He refused to be comforted, and his guardians could only get him away from the animal by force.

Don't Overdo Pleasure.

It seems impossible to impress it upon the average small boy and girl that there is actually more enjoyment in eating slowly and taking small mouthfuls than in gulping down food in enormous "chunks" and omitting as far as possible the process of mastication; that there is more pleasure in playing ball at the rate of one game or two each day than in playing all day long for a week or two, going to bed cross and exhausted every night and wearying of the sport before the vacation is half gone, and that there is, generally speaking, more solid "fun" in not overdoing a pleasure than there is in rushing into it at such a rate that the young rioters "tear it to tatters," and themselves, too, in a painfully short time.—New York Times.

How a Boy Got Back His Ball.

Some boys playing baseball in the street knocked the ball against the window of a house and smashed a pane of glass. The ball fell into the yard, and one of the urchins started to recover it when a woman appeared and screamed:

"You boys can't have that ball. You've broken one of my windows."

The boy at the gate pulled off his hat and made a bow expressive of the most profound respect.

"We'se didn't do it, lady," he said. "It was de ball. See?"

They got their ball on the strength of this argument.—New York News.

How Grandma Hurt Edith's Feelings.

Edith took her grandmother, who has come on from Maine for a visit, into the parlor and showed her the head of a lion done in crayon. Edith made the picture and is proud of it.

Grandma adjusted her spectacles and gazed admiringly at the drawing.

"You don't know what it is, grandma," Edith said.

"Don't know what it is!" responded the old lady testily. "Lived on a farm 60 years and not know a calf's head when I see it. Guess you ain't got a very high opinion of your grandma, Edith."—New York Times.

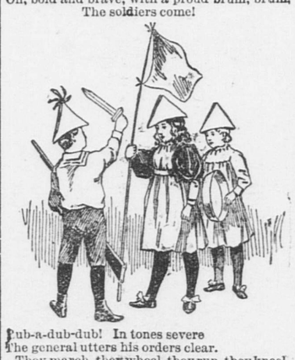

Names of Japanese Girls.

Many of the pretty and suggestive little words that serve as names for Japanese girls are as charming in English as in Japanese. It is not uncommon for a Jap girl to bear the name of a flower. On the other hand, however, many girls in Japan bear the names of some domestic utensils, as frying pan or dustbrush. Doubtless this results from the custom common among some peoples of naming a child for the first object that strikes the eye after the little one has come into the world.—Frank Harrison's Family Magazine.

The Soldiers.

Rub-a-dub-dub! The soldiers come,
With sword and banner and rattling drum;
With feet that tramp and heels that stamp,
They march in line from the nursery camp.
Oh, stiff and straight, with a rum-tiddy-um,
The soldiers come!

Rub-a-dub-dub! With stripe and star
Their beautiful banner shines afar.
Their bright eyes flash with courage rash.
Their general struts in a scarlet sash.
Oh, bold and brave, with a proud brum, brum,
The soldiers come!

Rub-a-dub-dub! In tones severe
The general utters his orders clear.
They march, they wheel, they run, they kneel,
With ring of pewter and clash of steel.
They aim, they fire—look out! Rum, bum!
The soldiers come!

Rub-a-dub-dub! The pattering rain
Beats aloud on the window pane.
Who cares for that? With a paper hat,
A stick, and a pan, and a rat-tat-tat.
In rain or shine, sword, banner and drum,
The soldiers come!

Be Patient While We May.

The hands are such dear hands;
They are so full; they turn at our demands
So often; they reach out,
With trifles scarcely thought about
So many times; they do
So many things for me, for you—
If their fond wills mistake,
We may well bend, not break.

They are such fond, frail lips
That speak to us. Pray, if love strips
Them of discretion many times,
Or if they speak too slow or quick, such crimes
We may pass by; for we may see
Days not far off when those small words may be Held not as slow or quick or out of place, but dear,
Because the lips are no more here.

They are such dear familiar feet that go
Along the path with ours—feet fast or slow,
And trying to keep pace—if they mistake
Or tread upon some flower that we would take
Upon our breast, or bruise some reed,
Or crush poor Hope until it bleed,
We may be mute,
Not turning quickly to impute
Grave fault, for they and we Have such a little way to go—can be Together such a little while along the way—
We will be patient while we may.

So many little faults we find.
We see them, for not blind
Is love. We see them, but if you and I
Perhaps remember them some by and by
They will not be
Faults then—grave faults—to you and me,
But just odd ways—mistakes, or even less—
Remembrances to bless.
Days change so many things—yes, hours—
We see so differently in suns and showers.
Mistaken words tonight
May be so cherished by tomorrow's light.
We may be patient, for we know
There's such a little way to go.

—New York Observer.

A Young Girl's Bravery.

Every summer's list of watering place calamities is partially relieved by the bright instances of bravery and self sacrifice and timely thoughtfulness which many of them produce.

The latest and the most unusual instance of seaside heroism occurred at Cottage park, near Winthrop, a point on Boston harbor about five miles from Boston. Mrs. Spencer, a young bride, while bathing was overcome with vertigo in somewhat deep water. Miss Millie, the 9-year-old daughter of Mr. Edwin B. Ide of Brooklyn, who was bathing beside her, instead of running away in terror, approached as near as the depth of the water would allow and held up the head of the nearly insensible lady until other aid came.

This display of presence of mind might be remembered and imitated with advantage by all persons whom the season is likely to make spectators of accidents in the water.—New York Telegram.

Quite a Shortage.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—For the first time since the passage of the Sherman silver law the treasury this month failed to buy the full quota of 4,500,000 ounces of silver. Two million three hundred and eighty-four thousand ounces was the total purchase, leaving a shortage of 2,116,000.

Feared Starvation.

ANTIGE, Wis., Aug. 1.—William Nunemacher, a farmer, killed his wife and babe and two boys aged 5 and 3 by dashing out their brains. He then plunged head first from a window in an attempt to kill himself. He is still alive but paralyzed. Fear of starvation caused the deeds.

The Miners' Exodus.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 1.—Over 300 members of the mining fraternity, en route from the mines in Kansas and Colorado to the east in the hope of securing work, spent the night in the station houses, and after breakfast, furnished by the officials, left in droves for the east.

Alleged Firebug Cremated.

LAPORTE, Ind., Aug. 1.—A barn on the farm of James Dunton was destroyed by fire, entailing a loss of $40,000. Nine horses were cremated. A tramp who is believed to have fired the building for revenge was smothered by the smoke and his body burned.

A Labor Riot.

ASHLAND, Wis., Aug. 1.—The trouble between the union and non-union men at the lumber docks in this city culminated in a fight in which a number of men were badly clubbed and one shot but not fatally.

CRISP IS STRONGER.

All Opposition to His Re-election Has Vanished.

VAIN HOPE OF SILVER MEN.

Rules Governing the House Will Be Much Stronger.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—The organization of the house of representatives for the time being is superseding all other topics of speculation in political circles. The speakership and the clerkship have aroused no antagonism, but there is a sharp contest over the election of a sergeant-at-arms and doorkeeper. The latter controls a large amount of patronage, and therefore is considered worth a contest. Mr. Turner, who is a Tammany man, has incurred the opposition of several influential members of his own delegation. They refuse to support his re-election. If they continue their antagonism, they may be able to defeat him.

The appearance of Mr. Crisp on the ground is the first evidence of the near approach of congress. His friends are much gratified that all opposition to his re-election has seemingly vanished. This condition greatly strengthens his position, and makes him in the business of the house than he was during the last congress. It is understood that while at his home, away from the intrigues of politicians and opposing interests, he mapped out many of the standing committees, and placed men whom he thought were best suited in positions on the leading committees. This preparation will enable him to make a much better announcement of the standing committees than has been customary.

The silverites of the Bland school, who are already on the ground, claim that Mr. Crisp will not allow the anti-silver wing to control him in the arrangement of the personnel of the committees which will have charge of financial legislation. They say that he proved himself their friend during the last congress by affording them every opportunity to present their views on the silver question. They have no reason to think that he will pursue a different course now. They forget, however, that the on silver during the past four or five months and that he and the southern representatives are disposed to accept the situation and act accordingly.

It is his purpose to stand by the president and the administration in the attitude which they take in bringing about an adjustment of the pending monetary troubles. He is strongly in favor of the repeal of the Sherman act, and has so informed his friends. He will, therefore, not permit any obstructive tactics on the part of a few hot-headed silverites to frustrate the will of the majority.

Mr. Crisp's friends say that he is a bimetallist, and will do all in his power to bring about a settlement of the silver question. The extremists of the Bland wing announce that if Mr. Crisp appoints a committee on rules who favor a cloture, and thus attempts to force any arbitrary methods for the purpose of suppressing the minority, and resort to every known parliamentary expedient to prevent the adoption of such a rule. They do not believe that the members of the Democratic party will place themselves on record in favor of proceedings which they all condemned in the Fifty-first congress under Reed and the Republicans.

They Will Resist

Speaker Crisp and the better element of the Democratic party were convinced in the last congress that some methods should be adopted to enable the majority to conduct the business of the house in an orderly manner and not permit a half-dozen hot-headed malcontents to obstruct and delay the proceedings of that body. This subject has already been fully considered and rules to meet the emergency will be agreed to and adopted by the house, Mr. Bland and his adherents to the contrary notwithstanding.

New Cunarder Ready For Trial.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—The new Cunard steamer Lucania, under easy steam and escorted by four tugs, left Glasgow yesterday afternoon for Greenock, where she will begin her speed trial. The builders of the steamer are confident that her specially strengthened hull will successfully resist the vibration from her engines and allow her to run continually at full speed.

Chicago's Unemployed.

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—The number of men now out of work in Chicago is larger probably than ever before. The work with building trades in the World's fair, as well as in the city auxiliary to the World's fair, has come to an end. Laborers are being thrown out of work daily. Factories are reducing their working force.

Congressman Chiplan Dying.

DETROIT, Aug. 1.—Congressman J. L. Chiplan of the first district is lying in a precarious condition at Harris hospital. He has been ill for several weeks. Pneumonia developed yesterday and he took a sudden turn for the worse. It is feared that he cannot live.

The Last Body Found.

SALEM, Mass., Aug. 1.—The body of James E. Dixon, which was found in the harbor yesterday by Diver Duncan, is the third and last of the party lost a week ago Sunday from the ill-fated Olin. Dixon was foreman of The Daily Gazette office and leaves a wife.

A Rockport Vessel Burned.

ROCKPORT, Me., Aug. 1.—The four-masted ship Frederick Billings of this port, Captain Williams, is reported as burned, and is a total loss. The Billings was of 2497 tons register. She was last reported at Taltal June 28, loading for New York.

Admits His Guilt.

TORONTO, Aug. 1.—Hermann H. Beneke, the New York embezzler, waived extradition proceedings and returned to New York in charge of a detective. He admits having doctored the books of the firm by whom he was employed.

Struck by Lightning.

WILMINGTON, N. C., Aug. 1.—During a thunder storm John Carter, colored, climbed a tree for the purpose of securing honey made by a swarm of wild bees in a hollow limb. Lightning struck the tree and killed him.

Expects to Have Arms Grafted to Him.

Theodore Lee, the armless newsdealer, who went east recently with a vague idea that he could get arms grafted on to his stumps, has been heard from. He has been inquiring among specialists regarding his case, and he finds that he may yet secure arms. First, the arms that are to be grafted on to his stumps must be taken from a healthy man or woman, and the hope is held out to Mr. Lee that he may find some person—condemned to be hanged, for instance—who would, for $1,000 say, to be given to relatives or charity, allow an arm to be amputated for grafting purposes. Mr. Lee has in substance been informed that the splice would have to be made just above the elbow joint.

When Mr. Lee has found a person who will submit to the operation, they will have to be brought together in such a position as to permit of the arms of both, which are to be operated upon, being placed in plaster of paris casts so that they cannot be moved. Then it is proposed to cut the back part of both the arms, also cutting through the bone. The arm that is to be grafted on to Mr. Lee's stump or that portion of it that is cut away at the first operation is to be adjusted and fastened to the stump and allowed to remain until it heals and there is evidence of circulation between the stump and the part that is grafted on. The second operation will be the cutting of the remainder of the inside portion of the arm, together with the artery and the nerve. This operation, it is proposed, however, is not to be undertaken until the surgeons are satisfied that the circulation through the part of the arm already grafted on is sufficient to nourish and support the new forearm. —St. Paul Pioneer Press.

How the Panic Was Stopped.

Horace McPhee, who is here as Riverside county commissioner, says there was no flurry whatever about the Bank of Elsinore. And then McPhee told a story which is particularly pat at these times.

He said there was a run on a bank in an iron mill town, and the depositors were being paid in silver dollars. The excitement increased, and the run became a fast one. The cashier was a young Irishman, and the work put upon him was more than he liked. He resolved to stop it. He sent the janitor with a bushel of silver dollars into a rear room where there was a stove, with instructions to "heat them silver dollars redhot." They were heated, and in that condition he handed them out with a ladle. The depositors first grabbed the coin, then kicked. "But you'll have to take them that way," said the cashier. "We are turning them out as fast as we can melt and mold them, and if you won't wait till they cool you'll have to take them hot."

That settled it. The run was stopped. McPhee says the story is true, but denies that he was the Irish cashier.—San Diego Sun.

Excursions For Women Students.

The New York association for sending young women, advanced students, artists, teachers and skilled artisans, in parties of 17 at a time, for eight days' stay at Chicago, has raised nearly $10,000 for its two months' house rent, maintenance and traveling expenses. The expense account is: Excursion tickets, with berths in sleeping car, $38; meals on train, $2.50 each way, $5; lodging in Chicago, $8; two admissions daily to fair, $8; meals in Chicago, $1.50 daily, $12; car fares, $2; extras, accident insurance, $2. Total, $75. In their house the travelers are cared for by a competent woman. Another, who is experienced in conducting parties of tourists, meets the strangers on their arrival, spends three days on the fair grounds with each party and sees that they are safely settled in their places in the cars on the return journey.—Exchange.

An Offer of 2,500 Sheep Refused.

An offer of 2,500 sheep for nothing being refused is recorded by a Sydney paper. This occurred in the Riverina, New South Wales, where, in consequence of the drought, the land is greatly overstocked. In the case mentioned the sheep had been shorn, and as the selector, to whom they were offered, had no spare feed or water for them, they were killed and their carcasses burned. In other cases sheep have been skinned, their carcasses having been burned, as the skins were worth more than the sheep were when alive. One lot, sent by rail some distance, did not realize enough to pay expenses.

The Sweetest Smelling Place on Earth.

The Prince and Princess of Bulgaria are now on their way to Kezanlik, which is beyond all dispute the sweetest smelling place on earth. It lies on the upper Tundja, near the foot of the Shipka pass, in a valley full of rosefields. Kezanlik is the chief seat of the industry in attar of roses. It takes 20,000 of the roses that grow in that valley to yield, by distillation, as much genuine attar or otto of roses as equals in weight a 2 shilling piece. Now is the time that the roses are in full bloom, and the prince and princess are going there to see and to smell.

A World's Fair Excursion.

A novel World's fair excursion passed through Delaware county yesterday, en route from Cincinnati to Chicago. It consisted of a party of five young men in a covered wagon. Underneath the vehicle tramped five dogs. On the wagon was inscribed: "In God we trust. Chicago or bust!"

The excursionists seemed happy and expect to sell the dogs for enough to pay the expenses of the party.—Indianapolis Journal.

Steve Brodie Going on the Stage.

Steve Brodie, pugilist, bridge jumper, saloon keeper and philanthropist, is going to try his wings on the histrionic atmosphere. R. V. Stevens has written a play for him called "On the Bowery," and the redoubtable Brodie is making preparations for a starring tour. He will begin active operations early in the autumn. His New York debut will be made in a Bowery theater.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

ENGLISH JUSTICE TO OUR GIRLS.

Sir Edwin Arnold Tells Englishmen Their Ideas of American Women Are Absurd.

In England men of letters and humorous artists are accustomed to treat the American girl from two widely differing, but in either case unjust, points of view. "Mr. Punch's" artists confess graphically that the American girl is often sumptuously beautiful, but they rarely present her to public admiration without putting in her mouth utterances which are either grotesquely "outre" or downright vulgar. If she is asked to partake of refreshments, she declines on the score that she is "pretty well crowded already," and if the Chicago exhibition is alluded to in her presence she incidentally remarks that the World's fair is "too big a chunk to be chewed" without difficulty. As for the English novelists, the American girls they depict are in most instances handsome and more or less unscrupulous young persons, who complete their education by the intense study of Burke and Debrett, and who embark on board the ocean steamship which is to bring them to Europe with a firm resolution to marry very high up indeed in the English peerage.

We shall never have a thoroughly artistic series of studies of the American girl from English pens and pencils until our countrymen recognize the fact that American girls differ physically and characteristically among themselves quite as widely, if not even more widely, than English girls do. In the Union multitudes of girls may be met with who are almost Germans or almost Irish in blood. Half Swedish, half Spanish South Americans, half Italian types of femininity are also continually met with, and indeed there are skillful students of American character who declare that the genuine American girl is only to be met with in New England—that is to say, in the states of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut. In those states the original English blood has, with scarcely any foreign strain in it, descended from the time of the immigration of the Pilgrim Fathers to our own days. They are the true Yankees, and yet unobservant writers are ready to typify the New York, or the Philadelphian, or the Baltimore, or the Virginian young lady as a Yankee girl.

New York city is perhaps one of the most cosmopolitan cities in the world, and the French, the German and the Irish types have been freely mingled with the Anglo-Saxon ones, while some account must be taken of the Knickerbocker aristocracy—that is to say, of the descendants of the old Dutch settlers. The expert in character will at once be able to distinguish between a young lady from Manhattan and one who hails from Pennsylvania or Maryland, while journeying farther west another type of American girlhood makes herself manifest in Ohio and Michigan, and so soon as the Rocky mountains are crossed and the descent of the Pacific slope is begun yet another wholly independent type of the feminine American makes its appearance. Nor would the study of the American daughter of Eve be complete by even the minutest observation of the girls of the eastern, the middle and the western states. There remains the southern girl to be dealt with, and when we approach that charming type of feminine humanity it will be found that the girls of Kentucky, those of the Carolinas and the belles of Louisiana, Alabama and Georgia differ among themselves quite as widely as does a Parisienne from a Provencale.

On the whole, if the American girl is to be thoroughly studied, the European students should live long in the States or make many recurring visits thereto. The existing and most current types of the American female are either stupidly conventional or wildly exaggerated and in most cases are altogether misunderstood. —Edwin Arnold in London Telegraph.

BIG FIRMS GO DOWN

Through the Collapse of the Chicago Pork Combination.

WILD SCENES ON 'CHANGE.

Mess Pork Drops $8.50 Inside Forty-Five Minutes.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—Yesterday was one of the most disastrous in the history of the board of trade in this city. Wealthy firms and individuals were bowled over like ninepins, and the prices of hog products went tumbling like an avalanche. Dealers on the Chicago board are accustomed to scenes and changes in value, for this market seems to be the storm center, where both the upward and downward push in the price of the world's food products is most severely felt. But old-timers stood aghast at the rapidity with which the price of mess pork went down.

A sheer drop of $8.50 per barrel inside of three-quarters of an hour is enough to take away the breath of old Stentor. There was a hush, however, near the opening in the morning, when Secretary Stone appeared on the balcony of the trading room and notified all concerned that those having trades with the well known provision brokerage firms of J. C. Stever & Co., E. W. Bailey & Co. and Ahelmhols & Co. should proceed to close them out.

The Excitement Begins.

The silence lasted for a second after the close of the announcement and then a mighty roar went up from the provision pit. As early as last March it became apparent to the trade that mess pork was being bulled through these houses and i soon became noised about in the provisi trade that A. M. Wright was behind t deal.

A year before he started a corner in rib and with the help of John Cudahy carried it through to success, making a large amount of money. Apparently according to the general opinion on the board, he had started to run a similar deal in mess pork. The collapse has been looked for for some weeks, and, as the monetary situation became more and more strained, and the borrowing of money to put up in margins more and more difficult, everybody not interested in the deal drew out, leaving the market so dull that there was scarcely enough business to establish quotations. When the bubble finally bursted the prices were so small that it was next to impossible to find them.

A Soaker.

Things were moving along smoothly when another and heavier shock came, in the announcement by the secretary in quick succession of the failures of the North American Provision company, with a capital of $250,000, in which Jack Cudahy was largely interested; of Wright & Haughey, a respectable firm, chiefly engaged in the receiving and shipping of wheat, but who who were understood to be interested with Cudahy in his deals in the provision pits, and finally of Cudahy himself, the great packer and daring operator in provisions, a man interested in the packing trade in a half dozen states, a man whose wealth had recently been estimated at not less than $18,000,000. He could not raise before he "laid down." But the financial noose was drawn tighter and tighter; he had a big deal on in lard and was interested in ribs and the strain became too great to bear.

Worse and Worse.

The announcement of his failure had scarcely died on the secretary's lips before the storm broke out again, this time in the lard crowd. That commodity had held extremely steady throughout the slump in pork, but it in turn mounted the toboggan and went down as if self-lubricated.

It was said by one close to Mr. Cudahy that his private affairs were entirely separate from his partnership matters, and that the various companies which he controls and in which he is interested with his two brothers, Mike and Pat, are not directly affected by the failure.

No one pretends to estimate Cudahy's loss, and "Charlie" Wright declares that Cudahy and H. H. Fairbank, the lard king, were interested with him in his deal and that the trouble came about because they would not put up any more margins. So far as the trade is concerned, Mr. Fairbank is not known in connection with the deal at all.

New York Not Affected.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—The failures in the Chicago provision trade, including the big one of John Cudahy, had but little effect upon the produce exchange in this city. There is no trading here in futures in provisions.

Lynching Too Good For Them.

GALVESTON, Aug. 2.—Near Montgomery three negroes attacked the house of M. Marsh, killed him, ravished his wife, murdered his infant and cut out the tongue of his 7-year-old child. His wife is believed to be dying. One negro was caught and lynched. The sheriff and posse are searching for the others.

Democrats Carry Portsmouth.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Aug. 2.—The city's election passed off very quietly, a light vote being cast in all wards. Colonel Charles P. Berry (Democrat) is elected mayor over William D. Grace (Republican) by 1249 majority. The Democrats were successful in every ward and elected their entire ticket.

Swindled Out of $4000.

KALAMAZOO, Mich., Aug. 2.—Dr. William Wolsey and wife of St. Paul, who came here two weeks ago, claim to have been victimized by a man named Tillerton to the extent of $4000. Wolsey's story is to the effect that he formed a partnership with Tillerton to practice medicine.

A PILLSBURY BOOM.

Friends of the Popular Lawyer Want Him to Be Governor.

BOSTON, Aug. 2.—The candidacy of Attorney General Pillsbury for governor was given an impetus yesterday at an informal conference of his supporters which took place at the Parker House.

Those who were in at the meeting stated that reports from all directions indicated a degree of strength in Mr. Pillsbury's candidacy, which was highly satisfactory and confirmed the belief of his friends that he has at present a long lead over any other candidate. They said that the meeting was enthusiastic and that the general feeling was that Mr. Pillsbury's candidacy is safe if public sentiment is left free to develop on natural lines.

A. E. PILLSBURY.

THE THOMPSON TRIAL.

Church Folks Allow Reporters to Listen to the Testimony.

BROCKTON, Mass., Aug. 2.—Instead of doors bolted and barred, with three sentries on guard, the portals of the South Congregational church swung wide open last night, and reporters were finally admitted. The interior of the church presented the appearance of an old-fashioned town meeting, with its moderator and its secretary. The audience was composed mostly of women, who laughed until they were severely rebuked by the ex-pastor.

The witnesses called testified as follows: Rev. Adelbert Keith said experts were employed to look up the Preble House, Portland, register, and the committee were satisfied the signatures resembled that of Rev N. B. Thompson. C. H. French testified on expert handwriting as to the formation of letters, and Pastor Thompson asked the difference between a man who wrote standing up or sitting. While the ex-pastor was asking questions he advanced toward witness, but was requested by Moderator Keith to move farther away.

David W. Alden said he saw Thompson on the Portland boat Forest City on April 6 in company with Mrs. Swift. He asked his wife if she knew Thompson. She did not. Soon after he saw Mrs. Swift go into stateroom No. 60, staying there 20 minutes. He saw Thompson come from the stateroom the next morning, step up to the porter and ask him to brush his clothes. Alden noticed at the arrival of the boat at Portland that Thompson had two trunks. When he arrived home he told his employer, the Pratt Express company, about seeing Thompson on the boat. Thompson subjected witness to a rigid cross-examination, and was frequently ruled out of order by the chairman.

The trial closed after 11 o'clock to be continued again tonight.

A Visit From Secretary Carlisle.

BUZZARD'S BAY, Mass., Aug. 2.—The president remained at home yesterday. Secretary Carlisle arrived today. Mr. Carlisle will remain several days and accompany the president back to Washington. Mr. Cleveland has not decided the exact time of his returning to Washington, but it is understood it will be the last of the week.

It Wasn't Human Blood.

WORCESTER, Mass., Aug. 2.—Two boys found an axe covered with blood hidden in some brush in Shrewsbury. It was thought that the blood was human and some white hairs on the blade from a man's head. A farmer has claimed the axe, saying that he had killed some ducks with it and left it in the bushes.

To Close For Two Weeks.

DOVER, N. H., Aug. 2.—The Cocheco mills will shut down Aug. 12 for at least two weeks. The shutdown means the throwing out of work of nearly 1200 people; it is expected that the print works, which employ 500 hands and are operated by the same corporation, will also be closed.

Will Give an Annuity.

BOSTON, Aug. 2.—Rev. P. S. Moxom says regarding the matter of the will of Mrs. Goodwin, in which she left him $3000, that he has decided to retain his rights, and offered to give Mrs. Williams the utmost the principal would yield yearly, which he is under no obligation to do.

Mo Runs Anticipated.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Aug. 2.—The bankers of this city have determined, after consultation, not to enforce the time limit on withdrawing money, unless such action should become absolutely necessary. It is the general opinion that none of the banks here will suffer from a run.

Working Time Reduced.

BENNINGTON, Vt., Aug. 2.—The Bennington woolen mills, the largest in Vermont, have reduced their working time to eight hours, four days a week. These mills manufacture ladies' dress goods, cloakings and men's wear. This action affects about 250 operatives.

In His Wife's Presence.

HAVERHILL, Mass., Aug. 2.—Paul Cleveland, aged 20, a shoe packer, attempted suicide by shooting at his boarding house. He was married a few months ago and his wife was in the room when the shot was fired. No cause is assigned for the act. He may recover.

Big Guns Will Be There.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Governors Stone of Mississippi, Pattison of Pennsylvania, Brown of Maryland, Matthews of Indiana, Foster of Louisiana and Brown of Rhode Island will be present at the centennial celebration of the laying of the cornerstone of the national capitol on Sept. 18 next.

THE POPE'S OPINION

Will Be Acked In the Case of Dr. Burtsell.

MGR. SATOLLI IS OFFENDED

Because Archbishop Corrigan Has Disobeyed Orders.

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 2.—The Journal prints a sensational article on recent developments in American Catholic politics which it declares comes from the highest authority. Mgr. Satolli has left for Washington after having spent several weeks in the northwest and The Journal declares that the rebellion of Archbishop Corrigan of New York is to be punished, and in a very diplomatic way.

The chief affront of the offending archbishop of New York has been his refusal to reinstate Dr. Burtsell in his original parish or one just as good, in spite of the fact that he had been

Admonished to Do So

by the apostolic delegate. The Journal says that Satolli, after consultation with his close friend, Archbishop Ireland of St. Paul, the leader of the liberal wing of the American Catholic church, has determined to go to Rome soon and lay the matter before the pope, with the recommendation that a coadjutor be appointed to "assist the archbishop of New York in the management of so large a diocese."

This action, if it is approved by the pope, as there seems every reason to suppose it will be, would be equivalent to the removal of Corrigan from the active management of the archdiocese.

THE CLOUDS LIFTING.

Evidence That the Financial Outlook Is Becoming Brighter.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—A new and unexpected element of relief has been injected into the financial situation. United States bonds have reached such a low figure that the national banks see their way clear to make a profit by issuing circulation against them.

Arrangements have therefore been made by some of the more prominent banks to increase their circulation from the minimum limit at which it now stands to such an amount as will materially relieve the present tension. It is estimated that $8,000,000 or $10,000,000 will be so added to New York's supply of currency within a very short time.

Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co. are advised of the shipment of $500,000 gold from London; and Kuhn, Loeb & Co. expect to import $500,000 more on the steamship Majestic, sailing from Liverpool today. J. W. Seligman & Co. will also receive $500,000, and Heidelbach, Ickelheimer & Co. $620,000 gold by the steamer Majestic.

A London special gives the exports by the steamers leaving Liverpool and Southampton today at $4,150,000. An altogether more confident tone has characterized Wall street affairs.

The heavy shipments of grain to Europe and the knowledge that over $7,000,000 in gold will soon be received from Europe have allayed apprehension.

As London prices came above the parity of our closing there was an advance all along the line.

Inventor Commits Suicide.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 2.—Colonel William Frishmuth, 70 years of age, committed suicide by shooting himself. Death was instantaneous. Frishmuth commanded the Fourth cavalry during the war of the rebellion. He was the inventor of the patented process of making aluminum. It originally sold for $5 per pound. By his method the price has been reduced to 18 cents.

Bank Officials Indicted.

NASHVILLE, Aug. 2.—The United States grand jury has indicted W. H. Scoggins of the defunct Commercial National bank of this city for wrongfully certifying checks. A new indictment was found against F. Porterfield and one against G. A. Dazey, charging conspiracy. George Childress, cashier of the defunct Second National bank of Columbia, was also indicted.

Lost a Foot.

BOSTON, Aug. 2.—John Nugent had his foot cut off below the ankle, while crossing the tracks of the Fitchburg railroad at Prison Point. An eye witness states that he was crossing back and forth and appeared to be waiting for a train and finally stepped in front of a moving freight train. The engine and one car passed over the limb.

A Successful Experiment.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—The success of the special single fare excursion from New York to the World's fair has far exceeded the expectations of the railroads. The regular passenger service does not seem to have suffered at all from the special trains. A new schedule is being made to go into operation when the old one expires on Aug. 19.

Killed and Cremated.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 2.—By the explosion of the boiler of a farm engine on the farm of Louis Pierson, near Newark, five men were killed. Four others were badly hurt, two, it is feared, fatally. A straw stack was set on fire and the bodies of the men were horribly burned. The cause of the explosion was low water in the boiler.

Soldiers Killed In Practice.

VIENNA, Aug. 2.—While soldiers were firing projectiles with ecrastite, the new Austian army explosive, in the military committee building an explosion occurred. Two soldiers were killed and several were injured.

The Silverites.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—The silver convention has formally opened. General Warner made a breezy address and Allen W. Thurman, son of the "Old Roman," was elected chairman.

Navahoe Wins.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—The regatta of the Royal Southampton Yacht club was held yesterday. The Navahoe maintained her lead to the end.

With the only complete bicycle plant in the world, where every part of the machine is made from A to Z, is it any wonder that Victor Bicycles are acknowledged leaders?

There's no bicycle like a Victor, and no plant so grandly complete as the one devoted exclusively to the manufacture of this king of wheels.

TELEPHONE, 213-3 QUINCY.

THE JOURNAL says:

A well known Quincy citizen when interviewed on the water award, declared that the amount awarded is remarkably small, as the city will undoubtedly collect $40,000 this year for water rates. This will be 5 per cent. on $800,000 besides allowing $10,000 for operating expenses.

The city would indeed be fortunate if the figures were correct and it has not made a bad bargain as it is. The income of $40,000 is large however. The gross amount is about $34,000 and this includes charges for repairs and putting in of new services. Enough may be realized at present to pay the interest, and under good management it will become a good paying property.

TWO MORE cities report an increased tax rate. That of Newburyport being $17, or 30 cents larger, while that of Taunton is practically 52 cents larger. The latter needs a little explanation: On the rate of $18.40 per $1000 last year there was a discount of five per cent. or 92 cents per $1000, which made the net rate $17.48, against $18 without discount this year. Taunton's valuation is only about two million more than Quincy, while that of Newburyport, a city for 42 years, has a valuation about seven million smaller.

The average tax rate of the twelve cities that have thus far announced their valuation this year, is $16.60, where last year the average was $16.08, and that of Quincy was $16.

COMPLAINTS ARE becoming more frequent because of delays in securing warrants for the arrest of criminals in this city. We refer to times when the court is not in session. True one of the associates justices is a resident of this city, but he is in Boston most of the day and frequently out of town evenings and nights. Only Monday the police thought they could have overtaken the parties who robbed the poor woman on Water street in time to recover some of the money stolen. But delay in getting the warrant allowed the thieves to spend the money before they were overhauled and the poor woman must suffer. There should either be a change in the associate justice or else some one else authorized to issue warrants.

THERE IS a possibility of overdoing the Sunday movement, especially if an attempt is made to enforce the law strictly. There is law enough to do most anything. Even the religious societies may be liable for not obtaining licenses for sociables, concerts, entertainments, etc., but who would think of enforcing it in such cases. A reasonable enforcement of the law is all that is required, and when public sentiment shows privileges are being abused it is time for a little stricter enforcement.

A large and powerful organization of Christian workers has called the attention of the city authorities to certain abuses, and the Mayor and Chief of Police have shown a willingness to reasonably enforce the laws, which we believe they will do. They do not promise to close druggists and common victuallers, and it is doubtful if public sentiment demands that they should, especially in case of the former. It is a convenience often times in cases of sickness to have the drug stores open on Sundays, and the proprietors should be allowed to do enough business to pay them for their trouble, providing of course that they do not cause a common nuisance.

It will do no hurt to restrict some of the Sunday business in other lines, and we believe it a reasonable demand, although we do not pose as a strict Sabbatarian.

Printers Remembered.

J. H. Wales, the popular caterer, appeared out Tuesday in his attractive delivery wagon which has been in the hands of the wheelwright and painter for a few weeks past. The body of the wagon has been enlarged and the whole turnout repainted and varnished. The running part is painted vermillion with black stripes. The body is painted yellow and across its face are the words "Quincy Cafe" in attractive letters. Along the top of the team is an oblong sign painted in lake, upon which are the silver letters "Ice Cream." The team arrived at Mr. Wales establishment on Chestnut street, Tuesday, about 4 o'clock, and was immediately loaded with ice cream, frozen pudding and cake to treat the LEDGER boys. As Mr. Wales with a smiling face entered the door the employes dropped their sticks and soon all from the editor in chief down to the devil were busy as bees, and how the cream and pudding did disappear. There was abundance of this delicious article and it is not necessary to say that the typos stayed with Mr. Wales until their capacity was fully tested and when he finally left it was with many thanks and an invitation to call again some other day.

THE WATER AWARD.

The Amount Must be Paid Within 30 Years.

COMPANY ACCEPT VERDICT.

A General Feeling Among the Citizens That Award Is About Right.

The LEDGER is unable to give the full text of the commissioners' award today, but doubtless will tomorrow.

The award of $515,640 includes the expenses of commissioners which amounts to $3850.

In addition, the city is called upon to pay interest from April 30, 1892, the date the city voted to take possession.

Chap. 373 of the Acts of 1892, it will be remembered, authorized the issue of notes, scrip or bonds, to be denominated on the face thereof, "Quincy Public Water Supply Loan," to an amount not exceeding $700,000, bearing interest not exceeding five per centum per annum payable semi-annually, for the purpose of paying the cost and expense of the franchise, corporate property and all the rights and privileges of the Quincy Water Company, and all necessary costs and expense incidental to and connected with the determination of the value thereof, and also for the purpose of paying the cost and expense of preserving, purifying and maintaining the same.

It is further provided that the Principal Shall be Payable

at periods of not more than thirty years from the issuing of such notes, scrip or bonds respectively. Said city may sell the same or any part thereof from time to time, or pledge the same for money borrowed for the above purposes; but the same shall not be sold or pledged for less than the par value thereof. Said city shall pay the interest as it accrues on said loan, and shall establish a sinking fund and shall contribute thereto annually a sum sufficient with its accumulations to pay the principal of said loan at maturity; and said sinking fund shall remain inviolate and pledged to the payment of said principal and shall be used for no other purpose.

The said city of Quincy, instead of establishing a sinking fund, may at time of authorizing said loan, including any loan under chapter one hundred and sixty-two of the acts of the year eighteen hundred and eighty-three, provide for the payment thereof in such annual proportionate payments as will extinguish the same within the time prescribed in this act; and when such vote has been passed by the city council and approved by the mayor of said city, the amount required thereby shall without further vote be assessed by the assessors of said city in each year thereafter until the debt incurred by said loan shall be extinguished, in the same manner as other taxes are assessed under the provisions of section thirty-four of chapter eleven of the Public Statutes.

The Water Company

Has signified its intention to accept the award without contest, and now comes the difficult problem of negotiating the bonds. It could have been done a year ago on much more favorable term. Where there would have been a large premium then, it will now be almost impossible to sell at par. There may be a great change in a few weeks in the money market.

There is a general feeling among the citizens that the award is a very reasonable one. About as low as it could be and do justice to the stockholders of the Quincy Water Company, and yet all the works are worth.

The Rivals.

—The peach crop is pronounced abundant and of excellent quality. Now that nature has done her part it is to be haped that no combination of shippers or wholesalers will be made to keep up the prices of this lucious fruit beyond the reach of the poor.

—Though the Maine hay crop is 12 per cent larger than last year, there will be an increase of hay in the barns; last year an immense quantity of old hay was carried over, this year hardly any was left.

—The Delaware peach crop is estimated at four million baskets this year.

Woodbine Lodge.

The annual summer outing of Woodbine Lodge, No. 277, K. and L. of Honor, took place Tuesday.

Twenty-six of the members left Wollaston at 3.30 P. M., in the four-horse barge General Washington, furnished by Mr. Abel Goss of Harrison Square, and were driven to Downer Landing, where an excellent clam bake dinner was partaken of, to which the company did ample justice. The Woodbine orchestra composed of Prof. Al. Williams, H. Taber Whitman, Dr. C. A. Tucker, W. J. Wellington, Frank Russell and John Roberts furnished instrumental music which was much appreciated. The return was made leaving the Landing at 9 P. M., and on the road home the lively company was kept in a most happy mood by the genial Will Pierce.

The outing was a pronounced success, and another bright memory is added to the many good times this lodge has enjoyed.

As You Like It,

Or what's to become of our silver dollars! If this is the question you wish to solve, here's the way out of the difficulty. Invest your money in good furniture, and like land it will not depreciate,—that's how it differs from the mighty silver dollar. Let us illustrate a feature of the business being done by Henry L. Kincaide & Co. A delightful antique finished chamber set, ten pieces complete, neat, attractive and durable, the kind that adds the charm of dignity to your home,—the price seems absurdly little, $18.75. You may look at it today, tomorrow, or in years to come. Your investment remains good value for the dollars invested, and you reap the benefit.

More on Sea Bathing.

Quoting further from the health talk of Pierre S. Starr, M. D., in the Worthington Magazine for August, he says:

"As regards the most appropriate time for the bath it may be inferred from what has been said that it is when the body is most refreshed and vigorous—in the morning at such time after breakfast that its digestion will not be interfered with. Everyone knows that any shock to the system, whether mental or bodily, will delay or arrest digestion, and nature seems to have interferred in behalf of the stomach in causing an indisposition to exertion after a hearty meal. About three hours after breakfast digestion should be about completed and the body fortified for any unusual effort.

Under any emotional excitement one should not enter the water. The nervous force being directed to other channels none remains to accomplish the reaction to make the bath refreshing and beneficial. A person who is naturally timid and unaccustomed to sea bathing, and children who, despite their fears and protestations, are dragged into the water, never profit from it—the former will by degrees overcome their timidity, and the latter by judicious coaxing will soon regard the bath as a delight.

"The idea is quite prevalent that it is harmful to enter the water when one is heated, and that, if perspiring, prudence counsels delay until evaporation is completed and the body is cooled. On the contrary, the heat in the system should be conserved. While no harm can come from plunging into the water when one is heated, much may ensue, especially to those who are not very strong, if they delay. In the former case there is a reserve of heat from which to draw to compensate for that lost, but if the bather cools off prior to undressing or shivers on the beach before taking his plunge, his temperature, still further reduced by the bath, is liable to sink to a point so low as to make subsequent reaction difficult to attain. Care should be taken that the body is warm before the bath, and if need be a brisk walk should ensure it.

"The bather is much less likely to become chilly if he keeps well covered with water, as evaporation goes on with greater rapidity when the dripping body is exposed to the air. Surf bathing is more exhilarating than that of the quiet sea, and, if the strength of the bather is equal to the greater demands made upon it, is to be preferred as the more powerful tonic; there is less danger, too, from becoming chilled, since the exertion of keeping one's feet and the impact of the waves on the body increases the stimulation."

—It is said that Hon. F. L. Ames is to stop the promiscuous travel through his extensive grounds at North Easton. On pleasant Sundays hundreds of carriages from the surrounding cities and towns are driven over them. It is a romantic and lovely drive, and has been greatly enjoyed every season by thousands of people. Some abuse the privilege by running the wheels of their vehicles over lawns and turning their teams where it causes much damage to the borders.

The Quincy Savings Bank.

Our citizens are to be congratulated on the solid condition of our Savings Bank. The deposits show a large increase over corresponding months of 1892, and are steadily increasing, plainly indicating the prosperity among our working people, as well as their confidence in what is one of the best savings institutions in New England.

Boys Wanted.

To sell the DAILY LEDGER. Apply in the afternoon between 3.30 and 4.30. Smart boys can easily earn more in three hours per day than clerks during their first year in Boston, who work for $2 a week and pay over $1 for car fares.

A MIDSUMMER WEDDING.

A Quincy Young Man Goes to the Granite State for a Wife.

Among the hills of the quiet town of Canterbury, N. H., on Tuesday, in the hospital home of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Morrill there assembled nearly fifty relatives and intimate friends to witness the marriage of their charming daughter, Miss Elmie M. Morrill, and Mr. J. Oliver Williams of Quincy, Mass. Rev. C. F. Roper of West Concord was the officiating clergyman and Miss Annie Morrill a sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid.

The ceremony was performed in one of the large parlors. The bride's gown was of white Henrietta, trimmed with white Duchesse lace and satin ribbon.

Friends were most generous in their remembrances, and many of the gifts were displayed. Among the more costly may be mentioned an elegant plush couch from the firm of W. H. Hervey & Co. of Boston, where Mr. Williams holds a responsible position; also a silver tea set and a pudding dish and salad dish of Haviland china, from employes of the same house.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams left the same day on a three weeks' trip, during which they will view the beauties of the Hudson, river, Lake George, Lake Champlain and other points of interest. Upon their return they will reside at 38 Canal street, this city, and will be at home on Wednesdays during September and October.

Band Concert Tonight.

The City band will give a concert this evening at the junction Brooks avenue and Liberty street. The programme:

March, "The Iron King,"	St. Clair

Galop, "At the Fair,"	Burrell
Hunting Scene (descriptive),	Bucalossi
Dance, "Aunt Dina's Surprise,"	Laurendau
Waltz, "Dream on the Ocean,"	Gungl
Clog, "Coon's Picnic,"	Laurendau
March, "America."	Brooks

A. C. Raleigh, Conductor.

Desecration of the Sabbath.

The mass meeting tonight is intended as much for women as for men, and their presence is as earnestly desired. In fact in all great reform the part played by woman has been particularly prominent. The history of the anti-slavery movement would be far from complete without the names of Harriet Beecher Stowe and her associates. The W. C. T. U. and its glorious work adds its testimony also to this fact.

The meeting will not take the form of a debate as some imagine. It is called "to protest against the desecration of the Christian Sabbath," and will be addressed principally by out-of-town speakers in sympathy with the movement.

WEYMOUTH.

The Monatiquot Yacht Club is holding its first championship regatta this afternoon. The start was at 2 o'clock off Fort Point. Cash prizes will be given to the second boats in each class.

Cyrus Loud was attacked by a mad cow Tuesday. The cow gave him an awful bunting, and would doubtless have killed him but for the workmen at Bicknell's shoe shop who saw his danger and drove the cow off.

Have you ever seen in your travels a COOKING RANGE,—one that claims the title deservingly? There are such ranges in existence, few and far between. The Magee Mystic however, stands on its merits alone. It is the queen of bakers, tried and worthy, quick and responsive. Here is how it differs from some of the antediluvian makes. A direct heat on all sides of the oven. It is a wonderfully economical stove, not a particle of heat is wasted. It is the tip-top range on the market. WORLD'S FAIR FINANCES

Will Be All Right In the Case of New England States.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2—The difficulty of planning any financial project in advance and having affairs turn out as planned is proved by the condition in money matters here at the fair.

The New England states seem to have kept their affairs on a solid basis. Commissioner Rollins of the New Hampshire board said in an interview that he thought from the financial report at the meeting that between $2000 and $3000 would remain after all bills were paid.

The Vermont finances are left chiefly in the hands of Dr. McIntyre, the executive commissioner. Superintendent Drew reports monthly to him. Mr. Drew said that he could not tell the exact condition of affairs, but thought there would be something left after the fair was over.

General Mattocks, executive commissioner of the Maine board, sends in a weekly statement to the commission, which in turn reports to the state legislature. General Mattocks thought there was no danger of the outlay exceeding the appropriation.

The Massachusetts commission reports monthly to the legislature, so that the state government knows the exact condition of affairs at all times. Commissioner Hovey said positively: "The Massachusetts commission will not overrun the appropriation made by the state for the fair."

MISS MELTON'S CASE

Will Be Thoroughly Investigated by the State Department.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—The Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian church yesterday received a reply to their communication to the state department relative to the attack on Miss Anna Melton, a missionary of the board, in the village of Duroc in the Koordish mountains in Turkey. The letter of the board asked that satisfaction and redress be demanded at once by this government for the brutal outrage upon an American citizen. In his reply the acting secretary of state says: "Your letter under acknowledgment, together with its enclosures, will be sent to Mr. Terrell for his instruction and guidance in reaching a thorough understanding of the particular case, which it is the department's desire to bring to a speedy and satisfactory settlement."

QUIET AT BANGKOK.

Defenses of the City Being Strengthened by Siamese.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—The New York Herald this morning has the following copyrighted dispatch:

BANGKOK, Aug. 2.—Admiral Humann's extension of the notice of the blockade ends today. As yet no settlement between France and Siam has been reached

Owing to the cutting of our communi- and the negotiations still continue. The French captured a local steamer which was entering this port. The passengers were released, as they were all British subjects. The crew, who were mostly natives, succeeded in getting away.

cations with the outer world, stores here are already getting low. Everything here is quiet, but the Siamese authorities are still at work strengthening the defenses of the city.

Stanford's Horses to Be Sold.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 2.—The managers of the Stanford estate are to dispose of over 1000 blooded horses from the celebrated Palo Alto and Vina ranches and retain only a nucleus with which to conduct the work of breeding fine horses, inaugurated by Senator Stanford.

A Dastardly Double Murder.

CADDO, I. T., Aug. 2.—Willis Corbett, a full-blood Chickasaw Indian, found his wife and little baby lying dead in the yard with one bullet hole in the head and three more in the body of each. There is no trace of the murderer nor is there any known motive for the deed.

A Duel to the Death.

Prices for northern and eastern beef cattle pr lb, dressed weight—Choice, 5½@5c; first quality, 5@5½c; second quality, 4½@4¾c; poorest grades of coarse oxen, cows, bulls, stags, etc, 2½@3c.

Northern and eastern beef cattle—There were none on the market all day. A few light store cattle were brought in and went for figures from 2 to 3½c pr lb, live weight.

Milch cows and springers—There was a big lot received, but the demand was not as lively as last week. There were some speculators and jobbers on the market, but were not inclined to buy, the prices demanded by drovers being unsatisfactory, as the market last week did not show any tendency towards an advance.

Veal calves—Arrivals through the week show a falling off. The demand was lively and it took only a short time to clear, at prices unchanged from those quoted last week. Extra choice fat veals were in demand, but only a few were brought in. Among the arrivals were some grass fed calves which drovers found some difficulty in selling at prices which they demanded, but they came down to prices offered by the slaughterers and the market was cleared.

Sheep and lambs—There was a fair demand. A number of carloads were sold to country slaughterers at prices the same as those of last week.

Western beef cattle—The receipts for the week were mostly for the export trade. Home slaughterers bought a few cattle at prices ranging from 4 to 4¾c pr lb, live weight.

Swine—Natives are quoted at ¼c less than last week. Western swine were quoted from 4¼ to 4½c per lb, live weight.

QUAKERS DOWNED.

A Decision by the Umpire Which Caused A Big Row.

BOSTON, Aug. 2.—Jack Stivetts played horse with the Phillies, their only run being a pure gift. In the fifth and seventh innings he performed the remarkable feat of striking out the three men at bat in each instance. Weyhing was wild and also a very easy mark in the first two innings, but only allowed the champions four hits in the remaining innings.

Emslie made a decision in the second inning that created a rumpus. With Duffy on third, McCarthy at first and Tucker at the bat, and two out, McCarthy made a bluff to steal second and Duffy ran home, and as Hallam threw five feet wild of the plate McCarthy also trotted in. Tucker, while the play was being made, stood perfectly still in the batters' box. A claim of interference was allowed in spite of the wild throw.

To Pitch For Quakers.

HANOVER, N. H., Aug. 2.—Frank O'Connor, Dartmouth's famous pitcher, has signed with Philadelphia. He left here last night and will play in Boston this afternoon.

The Marine Won.

GOSHEN, Ind., Aug. 2.—A hammer and tongs mill was fought here by LaBlanche the "marine" and Dwyer the middleweight of Cheyenne for a purse of $500. Dwyer led the fighting, which was fierce and hard up to the fifth round, when LaBlanche assumed the aggressive and severely punished Dwyer for three rounds, when he laid him out unconscious, winning the fight.

Gresham Non-Committal.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Secretary Gresham and Postmaster General Bissell have returned to the city from Glen Summit, Pa. Secretary Gresham was questioned regarding the report that Minister Blount would return from Honolulu without waiting for his successor to be appointed, but he declined to talk.

A Morphine Fiend's Crime.

PARIS, Tex., Aug. 2.—A young couple named Fisk quarrelled on the streets and the woman drew a pistol and shot her husband in the head, killing him almost instantly. They had been married but a week. The woman had previously led an abandoned life and was addicted to the use of morphine.

A Big Throw.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—At the annual games of the Timothy D. Sullivan association a world's record was broken. James Mitchell of the New York Athletic club threw the 56-pound weight three feet farther than the previous record. The actual distance for the throw was 38 feet 1 1-2 inches.

Maud McKibben Goes Free.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 2.—Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Estey has decided that the evidence against Maud McKibben was not sufficient, and no warrant would be issued against her charging the murder of her father, John McKibben, and sister, Mrs. Stewart.

TELEGRAPHIC BREVITIES.

The Waltham (Mass.) Dial company is not to start work for another week.

Great destitution has followed the recent earthquakes in Asiatic Turkey.

The West Virginia drought has been broken by a terrific rain and wind storm.

The Reading railroad paid its employes in checks because of the scarcity of small bills.

The Argentine Radicals were victorious at Rosario and are planning an attack on La Plata.

Secretary Sessions of the state board of agriculture will represent Massachusetts at the agricultural congress at the World's fair.

Governor Lewelling of Kansas is about to appoint a committee to confer with foreign representatives relative to transportation of grain for foreign commerce via Mississippi river.

Wholesale Vaccination.

A few weeks ago the sultan of Turkey had his wives vaccinated. As no female doctor had yet found her way to the Bosporus there was nothing for it but to admit a medical man to the apartments of the imperial ladies. The devotees of Mohammed need be under no apprehension. The laws of the prophet were not transgressed, nor were the odalisks exposed to the gaze of any other man except their august lord and master. A partition was erected in a room of the palace in which a hole was cut out. Through this hole 167 of the most beautiful arms in the world were thrust forth in succession. There were arms of snowy white and ebony black—in short, arms to suit all tastes—but the doctor, an Italian named Muracci, saw nothing beyond these arms.

The operation was effected in the presence of a crowd of eunuchs, including Manour Ali and Dsely Mar. The latter is a stalwart Abyssinian, who covered the head of the doctor with a black cloth at every change of the arms. Later advices from Constantinople inform us that 12 of the prettiest young ladies have suddenly died from blood poisoning consequent on the above operation.—Neue Freie Presse.

Heart Failure No Longer Accepted.

The registration and sanitary committee of the board of health has addressed the following notice to the physicians of the city:

"As the board of health is doing all in its power to prevent the spread of contagious diseases, you are requested not to place on any certificate 'heart failure' as the cause of death, but the disease of which the patient was suffering prior to the heart failure. This term has never been placed on the list of diseases adopted by this board, it being looked upon as a result of some other illness from which the patient was suffering. Furthermore, it furnishes an opportunity to conceal contagious diseases, and thus permits the ignoring of the rules of this board by the family and undertaker, either innocently or designedly.

"Hereafter a burial permit will not be issued on the certificate of death of 'heart failure' when unaccompanied with the disease from which the heart failure occurred."—Philadelphia Times.

Patchwork For Royalty.

An amusing episode occurred the other day in connection with the royal wedding. The Duke of York went with the Princess May to open a new town hall which has just been erected at Richmond. Just before the royal party drove up a very old woman laden with an enormous parcel pushed her way to the front and refused to pay any attention to the protests of either crowd or police. When threatened with "superior force," however, she admitted that her object was to present her wedding gift to the royal couple. On inquiry this proved to be a gigantic patchwork quilt of worsted stockings for the Duke of York. The old lady had made them and was determined to present them herself. It was, however, represented to her that this was an unsuitable occasion, and she retired with the intention of taking them to White lodge.—London Letter.

Summer Sundays In England.

One of the problems of our social life, says an English society journal, is "what to do on Sunday during the summer, and this year it is decreed that the right thing is to betake ourselves to the river. Paddington station on Sunday morning is almost as fashionable as a ball given by one of the upper ten thousand, and in the delightful sunshine which we had all been enjoying Father Thames, its locks and its banks have been bright with the gay coloring of the dresses which it is no longer considered bad taste to affect."

A Talking Donkey.

The secret of teaching donkeys to talk is said to have been bought from a Tunisian chief by a French impresario for the sum of $850, and at least in one case it has proved a success. The wonderful animal in question, which has not yet appeared in public, though it will shortly do so, does not indeed carry on connected conversations, but can clearly articulate a large number of phrases in both the French and English languages.

An Opinion of the Fair.

A young Bostonian who is now doing the Columbian fair writes home the opinion that it is Greece and Rome and all the oriental splendor and the ancient glory brought down to our time with all the modern improvements.

Mrs. Roxy Foss, an elderly resident of Willimantic, Conn., is superintending the digging of her grave. She is at present in good health, but fears she will die at any time.

The Treatment of Princesses.

Princesses in their own country, like the proverbial prophet, meet with scant honor when that country happens to be America. During all the festivities that welcomed the charming Princess Eulalie to these shores this was going on in New York at the Young Women's Christian home: It seems that four Indian women became guests there. There are about 90 young women in the house, and when Princess Viroqua of the Mohawks and Misses Carrie Blue Jacket, Daryorahcosa and Nacouchee of the Cherokee tribe arrived they were avoided and shunned. The princess overheard one of the women say that she would not eat at the same table with "those Indians." The princess, who is a well educated woman and a graduate of medicine, stood up in the dining room and read the entire crowd a lesson in politeness. Matron Marsh was unable to check her flow of speech. She pointed out that our government said all men were equal, and our civilization extended the hand of fellowship to her people. But these were only words of mouth and found no place in the hearts of the speakers. She extolled the purity of the blood in her veins, and when she sat down she had abashed all present by her arraignment. —Cor. Philadelphia Ledger.

There Is No Failure.

All things fulfill their purpose, low or high—
There is no failure. Death can never mar
The least or greatest of the things that are.
Until our work is done we cannot die.
When it is done, it matters not how nigh
May be the nighttime that is never far,
That long ere sunset lights the evening star
Throws its still shadow up into the sky.

Today shall end what yesterday begun;
What we are planning others yet may build;
The leaves may wither but the tree shall grow,
And though at last we leave our work undone
Our life will not the less be all fulfilled;
Our work will all be even finished so.

PROGRESSIVE LOVE.

I remember fair Florence, my very first love,
And all that I told her was true, every word,
But my love was as swift as the wings of a dove,
And ere she loved me in the distance I heard

The sweet voice of dear Blanche—she was best of them all,
And I keep her blest memory fresh in my heart,
But the roses of summer must fade in the fall,
As the night follows day, so we met but to part.

Then Emma and Isabelle, Mary and Mame,
Each in turn were loved lightly, and Agnes and May,
My song every summer would bear a new name,
But these, like the others, soon drifted away.

And then came a season of sadness for me,
A season in which I tried hard to forget
The marvelous musical voice of Marie
And the faraway, oceanlike eyes of Lizette.

E'en as the gay candle fly flirts with the flame
I played round the hearts of the maidens I knew,
My song every season would have a new name,
And others would fade from my mind like the dew.

Now I look at the past as 'twere all in a mist,
For my bosom's own queen is enthroned on my knee,
I remember one name, one alone in the list,
As I gaze in the beautiful eyes of Marie.

A VILLAGE KISS.

Jacqueline was a young country girl, who was 16 years old last apple harvest, and was a veritable model of sincerity. Every one who knew her loved her. Her skin was as white as the field daisy and as brilliant as the corn poppy.

On market days Jacqueline mounted her donkey, laden with fresh vegetables, the appetizing products of her mother's kitchen garden, and went to sell them in Blois. When she appeared in the square, every one welcomed her. Her eyes were so innocent, her voice so engaging that every one was attracted by her. Her carrots seemed better than her neighbors', her potatoes had not the least scar upon them, and her crisp lettuce or cresses from the brook, looking as fresh as herself, were quickly bought and at the highest price.

I ought not to forget to tell you that Jacqueline had no lovers.

At the village festival she made the old dance till they named her the daughter of miracles. Protected by the purity of her thoughts, she kept the young men at such a distance that they dared not even so much as press her finger tips in sign of friendship. Jacqueline had a friend in Blois who was going to marry one of the village boys. Suzanne was her name, and she was two years older than Jacqueline. She was pretty, but coquettish; attractive, but capricious. She had made her lover miserable by her changing and fanciful moods.

One day Jacqueline was about to set out for the village, when Blaisot, the lover of Suzanne, approached her and said:

"I suppose you will soon see my affianced."

"In an hour and a quarter from now," answered the courteous fruit seller.

"And you will speak to her?"

"As I am speaking to you."

"Oh, how happy you will be!"

"What prevents you from going and having the same happiness?"

"She is gentle and kind to me sometimes, and then she is cold and haughty, and I can do nothing to please her."

"Bah! my friend, you are too good to be worried like this. If I were in your place, I would have no fear—no more fear than of the house wolf, of which we are often told, but which we never see."

"While waiting, will you do me a kindness, Mlle. Jacqueline?"

"What is it?"

"Take a commission for Miss Suzanne."

"With much pleasure, M. Blaisot. Is it something to give her?"

"It is indeed," said Blaisot, rubbing his hands to give himself courage.

"And is it heavy to carry?"

"Light as a feather."

"Then I will take it," said the imprudent messenger.

Quick as a flash Blaisot leaned down and kissed the pure white forehead of Jacqueline.

"What are you doing?" cried the astonished girl.

"I have given you a commission."

"That kiss?"

"It is for Suzanne. You will carry it free of charge and not leave it to be called for. You know the address," and he disappeared, laughing, around a turn in the road.

It appeared as if the kiss of Blaisot was heavier than he said, for Jacqueline remained pensive and serious all the way to Blois, and her donkey even seemed to share her melancholy.

On her arrival at Blois she took care not to break her promise and ran quickly to Suzanne's house.

"I have a commission for you!" she said.

"Ah! An embroidered bonnet—some fresh nuts—a rosary blessed by the priest?"

"It is none of these things."

"Oh, hurry and tell me."

"It is a kiss from your betrothed."

"Oh, from him! He is no longer my betrothed."

"Ah, well, take the kiss all the same, even if you are having another quarrel! What, you refuse?"

"Absolutely!"

"You will not leave it upon my hands?"

"You need not feel it a burden."

"But I do not wish to keep a kiss that does not belong to me."

"That is your own affair. You should not load yourself with such merchandise. It may cost you a good deal before you are through."

Jacqueline returned to the village in a state of great perplexity. It seemed as if the kiss was visible upon her forehead, like the mark of a penitent in the church. She hurried as fast as she could, and as soon as she reached home she hastened to call upon Blaisot, to whom she related her lack of success.

"Oh, she is in one of her proud fits. It is all the same to me. I am rich. I am not ill looking. What is the old saying? If I find another girl that pleases me, I will drop Suzanne like a weight that is too heavy."

"But your kiss—what shall I do with it?"

"Whatever you wish!"

"Ah! well, if I had known"——

"But if you will please return it to me"——

The charming girl advanced, then quickly recoiled.

The remedy was worse than the disease—the restitution more difficult than the deposit.

"That cannot be," she said. "It is only our husbands that we kiss."

"Ah!" broke forth Blaisot, "there are coronets which crown heads not nearly as pretty as yours. I have never seen such pretty feet in any shoes, and you have a form and eyes to make a harvester dance when his day's work is done." And in his turn he began to sigh.

Meanwhile the pretty girl had reflected. She must avoid gossip. She accordingly ran to the house of the good priest to ask his advice. He was not at home, but Bertha, his housekeeper, received her.

"And this is all that troubles you?" said she when she had heard Jacqueline's story.

"And is it not enough?"

"Console yourself. There is near here a deposit of kisses, which contains plenty of room. Since I came to live with the priest more than a hundred thousand kisses have been put there."

"Truly?" exclaimed Jacqueline, overwhelmed.

"Yes, and there is still room for you to deposit yours." She conducted the young girl to the altar of the Virgin.

There Jacqueline freed herself from her load.

She felt herself lighter by many pounds after she had deposited the kiss upon the cold stones of the altar.

Two days after this she met Suzanne in the market clothed in gay apparel.

"See here, little one!" she cried mockingly. "I have reflected. Blaisot has a hundred acres of ground and a good mill. You may give me that kiss now."

"Oh, dear!" answered Jacqueline. "I can't walk round the world with other folks' goods. I no longer have it."

"Where is it, then?"

"Upon the first step of the altar of the Virgin Mary."

"That's good. It is not lost. I will go and get it the very first time I visit the hamlet."

But it was Suzanne who was snared this time, for that very evening Blaisot came to Jacqueline's mother's house in his Sunday clothes.

"Mademoiselle, I must have my kiss."

"It is in the chapel. Go get it there."

"That one does not belong to me. I gave you something to carry. You must either execute your commission or return the kiss to me. That is wholly just. I leave it to your mother."

"What should she have done with it?" asked her mother. "Jacqueline can kiss only her husband, and she is still too poor to find one."

"I will give her all that I have," said Blaisot.

"You!" exclaimed the two astonished women.

"Of course, when I give commissions, I pay for them. I will add to it my hand and my name. Will you accept them, beautiful messenger, and be my wife?"

Jacqueline, overwhelmed, nearly fell into her basket of salad.

When, several days afterward, Suzanne went to seek the kiss, the priest made her acquainted with what was going on. Shaking his white head and smiling, he said:

"You will never find it again."

"Somebody has taken it?" asked the coquette.

"No, but Blaisot and Jacqueline were married this morning. They kissed together the holy stone. The three kisses are now blended in a pious and chaste love. You can never recognize now, my dear, the one that was destined for you."

Etiquette of Letters of Introduction.

In the giving of letters of introduction permission should first be granted even in the case of intimate friends, as the introduction of a person whom you do not know thoroughly and well is attended with danger in many cases, and more particularly when the presentation is made by letter, as the written words always appear to carry more weight with them than the spoken ones, and the recipient of such an epistle feels in duty bound to show the newly introduced every courtesy that lies either in his or her power. Many unpleasant happenings have resulted from unthinking good heartedness that prompted the letter without inducing a careful study of the one to whom it was given.

Many letters of introduction are presented in person, but the more elegant way is to send them by messenger or post, accompanied by the card of the person conferring the introduction and your own with your address on it. A visit should be made within a week after the arrival of the letter by the person receiving it if the acquaintance is desired.

Smashed Idols.

What years and years of labor will men not go through in order to gain the esteem of their fellow man! Yet how uncertain the reward. A thousand successes, a single mistake, and all is lost. It is said now that if Admiral Tryon had lived he might have been shot for his great blunder. Only those who die or retire at the right moment can hope to retain what they have earned of fame.

Perhaps the cause of this smashing of idols for a first offense is that, feeling ourselves equal as a whole to the idol, we take advantage of the first error that shows the lack of supposed superiority to knock the idol down to the common level. Certain qualities may cause men to become famous, but it is doubtful if in the eyes of an all seeing Spirit we are not all about as evenly made up of what we call bad and good qualities as to make a claim for any superiority other than animal superiority ridiculous.—Jamestown All.

POLICE SUSPECT MURDER

And Have Placed the Woman's Husband Under Arrest.

BOSTON, Aug. 2.—Cold in death, the body of Mary Francis Thompson last night reposed in the morgue, while her husband fretfully paced a cell at station 16, held on suspicion of the murder of his helpmate.

Drink is the undoubted cause of the wife's death. Whether through an overindulgence in the liquid poison, or by violence caused by the work of the maddening liquor, is yet unknown.

George Thompson and his wife have for several months occupied a flat at 52 Dundee street. Both were addicted to the use of liquor, and differences, resulting in blows and kicks, were frequent. Last night the body of the wife was found upon the floor in her home, dead. The cause of her taking off was not apparent.

Thompson has been employed by Lally & Collins. For about a week past, however, he has done no work, and during the greater part of that time he has been in a State of Partial Intoxication.

Shortly after 7 o'clock last night he appeared at the office of Dr. William M. Warren on Falmouth street and told him that he wanted his attendance at his home immediately. Dr. Warren went to the house at once. Thompson ushered him into the dining room, and here the body of Mrs. Thompson was found lying upon the floor.

The woman was only partly clad. She wore a short skirt and an undergarment about her body. Her feet were bare. The floor about her was wet, having evidently been soaked by water.

The room had a look of confusion. Upon the table were some crackers and other food. In one corner was some broken crockery, and on a small table were the shattered remains of a porcelain lamp shade.

A quart bottle with a single spoonful of whisky in it gave a finishing touch to the room.

Dr. Warren at once had his suspicions aroused, and notified the police of division 16. Special Officer Cleary proceeded to the house and at once Placed Thompson Under Arrest.

Medical Examiner Stedman was sent for, and upon his arrival at the house made an examination. He was unable to find any marks of violence upon the body, and ordered its removal to the North Grove street morgue, where a post-mortem examination will be made.

During the examination at the house the aged mother of the dead woman, Mrs. Mary Murphy, rocked to and fro upon a sofa, crying and talking incoherently, presenting a most pitiful sight.

More than four score years have passed over her head. She hardly realized what had happened. She had been in her room all day, and did not know of her daughter's condition until the arrival of the officers.

Thompson's Story.

Thompson is a man of 40 years, and his wife's age was 35. They have been married since November last, only. Their life together was a rather troubled one. Both were fond of the flowing bowl, and, as a consequence, their neighbors say, wars of words and blows were continuous.

On Sunday last they had an unusually violent quarrel. The effects of these fallings out were shown by a pair of discolored eyes, which the unfortunate woman bore at the time of her death, and which she received several days since.

Thompson's story of the matter is that he went home in the evening and found his wife lying on the floor. He threw some water over her to revive her, but it had no effect. He then summoned Dr. Warren.

Early in the day he drew some money from a bank in the city. He Purchased Some Liquor

during the day. When arrested he was somewhat under its influence.

None of the immediate neighbors heard any noise or struggle during the afternoon or evening. Of course, the aged mother is so infirm, and her faculties are so impaired, that she would not have noticed any trouble.

The house was tightly closed last night. Old Mrs. Murphy is held as a witness

THE PORTLAND BOAT

Comes In For Frequent Mention In the Thompson Trial.

PASTOR SCORES A POINT.

He Refuses to Give the Names of His Witnesses.

BROCKTON, Mass., Aug. 3.—The third session of the trial of Minister Thompson began promptly last night at 7:30 o'clock, and there was a large attendance. Many young ladies were present. The trial, as in the two previous occasions, opened with prayer by George A. Howard. Charles King made a motion that when a vote was taken it be by ballot, and that the chair appoint a committee to count ballots. George E. Keith objected to this motion, and it was defeated by a vote of 22 to 43.

Rev. Adelbert Keith asked for the privilege of changing his testimony of Tuesday evening, when he testified regarding the employment of an expert on penmanship, thinking he and the church refused to allow him to make the desired change.

Prosecutor Copeland said he had heard that the stenographer employed by Thompson was a lawyer in disguise, and if so he wished he would retire. Thompson said the man was here for his own (Thompson's) private purpose. Copeland asked Stenographer John J. Toomey to stand up. He denied he was a lawyer, saying he was employed by Thompson, and the latter showed a receipted bill for his services.

Mrs. David Walden, who claims to have seen Thompson on the Portland boat April 6, said: "I was with my husband and saw Thompson and Mrs. Swift." On cross-examination she said she did not know Thompson, but her husband pointed him out; said she knew Mrs. Swift several or eight years, but had never spoken to her.

Quite an exciting scene took place, Thompson objecting to frequent interruptions by Copeland, but

He Was Overruled.

E. B. Baker said, "Horace Baker and I went to the Portland boat to find the colored porter who Alden said brushed Thompson's clothes on April 7 on the arrival of the boat in Portland. I showed the porter nine photographs, and he picked out one of Thompson's, saying, 'Dat is the man you'se looking for, sah.'"

Prosecutor Copeland here asked for the names of the witnesses Thompson would put on the stand, but the latter refused and the chair sustained the ex-pastor for the first time.

Preston B. Keith next testified as a member of the committee chosen by the church to investigate the rumors against Thompson in the early part of the affair:

Saw Thompson and told him what the rumors were and proceeded to investigate. Thompson was present at two meetings. Heard Alden say in Thompson's presence that he saw him on the boat. Alden said Thompson wanted him to make a statement denying the Portland boat affair. Dr. Berry wrote a statement and signed it, but Alden would not let it go out. The committee then employed Detective J. R. Wood, who reported to us facts that the committee

Thought Should Be Investigated.

Went to Portland, called at the Preble House and asked for the register, where I saw the name of H. C. Newton and wife. Said writing was compared with Thompson's letter of acceptance as pastor, and great resemblance was manifest. An expert on penmanship corroborated this fact. Received a letter from Rev. G. W. Hunt, saying that Thompson made an engagement to dine on Fast Day and wanted the service called early. Went to Holbrook to find H. C. Newton, but all efforts proved futile, as no such person lived there. Thought I had the matter all cleared up and it would be easy to find such a party, but could not.

On cross-examination Mr. Keith became confused as to the dates of the committee's meetings.

Bishop Says the Story Is Untrue.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—Speaking of the story published in Minneapolis that Mgr. Satolli would take steps to punish Archbishop Corrigan for his refusal to reinstate Rev. Dr. Burtsell, Bishop Kean said: "It is an absurd and shameful piece of newspaper gossip and I have nothing further to say about it."

Assets of Half a Million.

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—The North American Provision company has made an assignment. While roughly estimating its assets at $500,000, more than $75,000 of this amount is owed by John Cudahy.

Slight Earthquake Shock.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Aug. 3.—A slight but well-defined tremor of the earth was felt yesterday morning in the more elevated sections of this city. It was accompanied by a rumbling sound.

Brothers In Gray to Meet.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 3.—General J. B. Gordon has issued an order fixing the date for holding the United Confederate Veteran reunion at Birmingham, Ala., Oct. 2 and 3 and the unveiling of the Confedcrate monument at Chicago on Oct. 7.

Crushed by a Wagon Wheel.

BOSTON, Aug. 3.—Three-year-old Patrick Feeney, while at play on Ninth street, took hold of the spokes of one of the wheels of an ice wagon and was carried over the hub. He fell beneath one of the rear wheels, which passed over his body, crushing out his life.

ERROR OF SUPERVISOR

Responsible For the Recent Religious Squabble at Montreal.

BOSTON, Aug. 3.—It has just been found out here that the speech that made all the trouble at the Christian Endeavor convention in Montreal was not delivered.

When the convention was called to order the first business was the appointment of a supervisor over all press matter. This supervisor looked over all the copy and the abstracts of the speeches. This one was the only one of all that were delivered which he did not look over with great care. He thought that this man would not make any harsh statements.

But, as ill luck would have it, this was the only speech which contained any sharp sentences. After the speech had been nominally supervised the Hindoo scholar got hold of the abstract and thought that what he was made to say there was a bit sharp, so he changed it over in his own mind, but neglected to change it in the abstract or have it changed.

The result was that the anger of the mob was roused, not by what was really spoken at the convention, but by what appeared in the papers. If the supervisor had been as careful in this speech as he had been in the others the riots would never have occurred.

Vermont's Insurance Companies.

BELLOWS FALLS, Vt., Aug. 3.—The report of the insurance commissioners showed that companies of other states have lost here, including expenses, in 1891 and 1892, $1,211,598, while the premiums for the two years were but $993,709, or, for every $100 received by them they paid $122. Important advances in rates were made, but this year showing a probably larger ratio of loss thus far, a number have discontinued business here. Last year 45 foreign companies were licensed and three state companies.

A Little Scare.

SALEM, Mass., Aug. 3.—There was a rumor yesterday that the savings banks of this city had posted notices requiring 30 days' notice of all proposed withdrawals of deposits amounting to more than $50. An inquiry among the bank officials revealed the fact that the banks were all solid and were able to pay out almost any sum at a moment's notice. A few people became alarmed and began to draw out their deposits, but when they found that they had been unnecessarily alarmed they carried their money back.

In Cigarmakers' Interest.

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 3.—The New England Labor conference has begun a two-days' session in this city. The meeting represents more than 7500 members of the Cigarmakers' union. The reports of Secretary Eli Brumel, President Tracey and the executive council were read and referred to special committees. The object of the convention is to adopt ways and means of protecting the blue labels, the private mark of the society, which are placed on all union-made cigars.

Thompson Sent to Jail.

BOSTON, Aug. 3.—George Thompson, who was arrested on the charge of having caused his wife's death at his home, appeared before Judge Forsaith in the municipal criminal court. He was held on the charge of having, with malice aforethought, murdered his wife. His honor then ordered that Thompson be committed to the common jail without bail. A hearing will be given Aug. 7.

He Loves the Girls.

SAUGUS, Mass., Aug. 3.—A lunatic named Cullen, who recently escaped from the Worcester insane asylum, was captured here. Yesterday he got out of the jail where he was locked up for safe keeping until his keepers arrived from Worcester. He caused a great stir by trying to make love to every girl he met. He was finally captured again.

A Homeless Woman's Sudden Death.

BOSTON, Aug. 3.—At 7:30 o'clock last evening Jennie Fitzgerald, 55 years of age, entered the house of Michael Sullivan, 17 Elmwood street, Charlestown, and complained of not feeling well. She was invited to lie down on a lounge and at 8 o'clock she died. She had no fixed place of abode.

More Mills to Shut Down.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Aug. 3.—Wilson & Horton, proprietors of the Barkerville, Belair and Taconic mills, have given notice that the Barkerville mills will shut down Saturday night and the Belair a week later. The Taconic mills will be run as long as possible in the hope of better times.

Going Back to Washington.

BUZZARD'S BAY, Mass., Aug. 3.—Nothing occurred here yesterday worthy of especial note. All arrangements for the president's return to Washington have been perfected. The president, Secretary Carlisle, Secretary Lamont and possibly others, will leave here Friday afternoon.

Brief Mention.

The new union station at Boston will be completed by Sept. 1.

The farmers of Danbury, Conn., and adjacent towns are suffering from the work of potato thieves.

George Ibbs, 52 years old, a laborer living at Hartford, fell down stairs and died from his injuries.

Cyrus Loud, aged 68 years, of Weymouth, Mass., was attacked by a cow in a pasture and was badly gored.

An experiment is being made at a South Boston ladder house with a bicycle to be used in extinguishing slight blazes.

Rev. James Fagan, pastor of St. Francis church, in Naugatuck, Conn., is dead. Father Fagan was born in Providence in 1842.

A boat containing Mrs. Smith and her 17-year-old daughter was capsized in the river at Haddam, Conn., by a squall, and Miss Smith was drowned.

General Samuel Andrews died at Hillsboro Bridge, N. H., aged 80 years. He gained his title of major general in the state militia. He leaves a large property.

The first trip was run over the new Whitman, Abington and Rockland (Mass.) electric street railroad. The trip was made from the North Abington railroad station to the Rockland station.

FOR FREE COINAGE.

Free Silverites In Convention So Declare Themselves.

RICE'S POLITICAL STORIES

Not Received With Good Grace by His Auditors.

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—The silverites met yesterday at Central Music hall. The declaration that the convention was open was the signal for pandemonium to begin. J. S. Dougherty of Texas introduced a resolution for the appointment of one delegate from each state to devise a plan for the establishment of free coinage so as to save the people and country from utter ruin and to urge the measure upon congress. An avalanche of motions and resolutions was at once hurled at Chairman Thurman. Finally Mr. Dougherty's resolution was adopted. Ex-Senator Hill of Denver was introduced and read a long statistical paper, which seemed to arouse little enthusiasm.

Congressman Newlands of Nevada, Governor McKinley's double, then stepped to the platform. His speech was devoted to a general denunciation of English financial methods. United States Senator Allen of Nebraska, Populist, aroused the delegates to a high pitch of enthusiasm. Charles S. Thomas of Denver made the last speech of the morning session. When he finished a recess was taken.

The resumption of business was marked by the same spirit which characterized the morning sessions. Colin Limmons, a member of the executive committee of the American Federation of Labor, started the afternoon session off with the statement that the Federation of Labor, representing most of the trades unionists of this country, was for free silver on the ratio of 16 to 1.

Then Came Governor Waite.

The convention turned itself in shouts and cheers when he appeared on the platform.

In marked contrast with the spirit of enthusiasm aroused by Governor Waite was ex-Congressman Rice Pierce's speech. He started in to defend the Democratic party and score President Cleveland. The convention very soon began to show it had no desire to hear him. It would not listen to his stories. Finally, when he quit, they cheered. Chairman Thurman added: "I am almost afraid to call another speaker for fear he will feel it necessary to defend the Prohibition or some other party. This convention is here to seek bimetallism, not to defend parties or abuse them. And I hope there will be no more of it."

At this point the committee on resolutions was ready to report and the convention was ready to receive it. Ignatius Donnelly read the report. Then John Reagan explained that the committee had felt itself bound by the call and the rules adopted by the convention to confine itself strictly to

The Subject of Bimetallism.

Several telegrams were read, pledging different Knights of Labor organizations in the east to the free coinage of silver. After a long and heated debate, in which Ignatius Donnelly figured prominently, the resolutions were adopted by acclamation.

A committee on ways and means from the several state delegations was then appointed. On motion of General Warner of Ohio the convention then adjourned sine die.

DEPOSITS EQUAL DEMANDS.

Hub Savings Banks Not Worrying About Hard Times.

BOSTON, Aug. 3.—No sort of excitement prevailed at any of the savings banks in Boston yesterday. At all of them business went on in the ordinary every-day sort of way. Some people were depositing and others were drawing, and in about the usual proportions.

If there was anything like an exception to this rule it was at the Five Cents Savings bank, where in the morning about 75 persons, mostly Russians and Poles, gathered and asked for their money. President Evans said that the deposits of the day amounted to about as much as the withdrawals. One early deposit of the day was $1000 in gold.

The treasurer of the Provident Institution for Savings said: "We are paying without notice. The withdrawals are more than the deposits, but this is always the case after dividend day, for any one who wants to build a house or the like always waits until the dividend is declared before securing his money. Deposits, however, are numerous."

Treasurer Morrill of the Provident Institution for Savings says a gentleman just offered to pay interest on a note for $50,000 before due, and that a check paid Tuesday for $1000, payable through the clearing house, was redeposited yesterday morning.

At the Suffolk Savings bank nothing unusual occurred, and at the Franklin, Home and Union institutions everything was quiet.

The trustees of the Home Savings bank have found it unnecessary to require 60 days' notice.

Probably Lost Their Way.

LYNN, Mass., Aug. 3.—The members of the Lynn Homing club have given up all hopes of their seeing the carrier pigeons released from the World's fair grounds 14 days ago. They should have covered the 852 miles inside of a week.

Railroad Employes Paid Off.

HARTFORD, Aug. 3.—Fifty-three employes in the car repair shops of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railway company in this city were discharged yesterday. The men earned from $2 to $2.50 per day.

Still Hanging Fire.

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 3.—An effort is again being made to patch up the difference between the striking granite cutters and the quarry owners of Stony Creek, but nothing definite has yet been done.

Electric Car Accident.

The Globe reports Fannie Gallagher, 39 years old, of Wollaston Heights, while crossing Hanover street at Elm street, Boston, at 4.40 Wednesday afternoon, to have been struck on the shoulder by electric car 2042, knocking her down. She sustained an injury to her left knee, and Dr. Elliott ordered her removal to the city hospital.

BORN.

CARSON—In Quincy, July 29, a son to Mr. and Mrs. William D. Carson, of 142 Granite street.

DIED.

TRACEY—In Quincy, at Houghs Neck, Aug. 1, Mrs. Frances E., wife of Mr. Hugh P. Tracey of Boston, aged 32 years.

As You Like It,

Or what's to become of our silver dollars! If this is the question you wish to solve, here's the way out of the difficulty. Invest your money in good furniture, and like land it will not depreciate,—that's how it differs from the mighty silver dollar. Let us illustrate a feature of the business being done by Henry L. Kincaide & Co. A delightful antique finished chamber set, ten pieces complete, neat, attractive and durable, the kind that adds the charm of dignity to your home,—the price seems absurdly little, $18.75. You may look at it today, tomorrow, or in years to come. Your investment remains good value for the dollars invested, and you reap the benefit.

SUNDAY OBSERVANCE

The Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor

HOLD A LARGE MASS MEETING.

Speakers Would Mold Public Opinion Rather Than Force Matters.

Few subjects would have drawn a larger audience in these dog days than the mass meeting called by the Young People's Christian Endeavor in the chapel of the First church Wednesday evening, to protest against the desecration of the Sabbath. It was an audience largely made up of young ladies and gentlemen, but several of the prominent citizens were present including clergymen, councilmen, city officials and many Christain workers, filling the chapel.

Mr. Theophilus King

Called the meeting to order, and after prayer by Rev. W. W. Wilder of Wollaston, spoke in a happy way carrying conviction. He said he was pleased to act as chairman, first, because he loved the Sabbath day; and second, because the request comes from the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor. Anything of this nature coming from the young people was worthy of attention. He was glad to see in all the churches these young people's societies, what a royal blessing the Sabbath is. We should make the highest and best uses of it. It was made for man and should be used along its highest level. It was given as a blessing and we should use thoughtfully, not thoughtlessly.

We cannot all agree in the observance of the Sabbath, but we can strike along that line that makes the Sabbath a blessing. There is a great deal of truth in the statement that the Sabbath is not kept in this city as it should be. That some places are open for business as on other days. That at our beaches amusements have been provided. That is not moving in the safest and best way. We are not here to say people shall not ride bicycles on Sunday. There was no more objection to riding to church on a bicycle than in a carriage. We should lift the Sabbath into as high a position as possible. We don't wish to transport into this community the desecration of the Sabbath in the West. The question was, would not the 17,000 or 18,000 people of this city be better off with these places closed. It was not done in the spirit of antagonism, but after careful thought. The speaker closed with opinions on his stand that it was a great loss to one who fails to accept the Lord.

C. B. Botsford,

President of the Sunday Protective League of the State, was then introduced. We cannot, he said, violate the laws human or divine with impunity. It was often done for a while by those blinded by the love of money. He directed his attention to the Chicago directory of the World's Fair, who had at last learned that they had been working in the dark. The one who keeps the Sabbath is pretty sure to be among the best citizens. Suppose everyone continued business on Sunday as on the other days. No, he did not want a continental Sunday. Act wisely and judiciously to restrain those who do not keep the Sabbath.

Dr. Arthur Little

of Dorchester, thought it very encouraging that these young people should raise this inquiry at this time. It was expected that historic Quincy would keep the Sabbath. He spoke from an experience of 20 years in the West, where he had become familiar with the question in all its phases. Nothing was so sweet to him as the New England Sabbath. A place can be judged by the way it observes the Sabbath. Where it was observed there was thrift and riches. It had been found that it did not pay to open the World's Fair on Sunday. The pressure of Christian sentiment made it unprofitable. It was a fact that you can in the long run drive a horse more miles in six days than in seven. So it was that a man can do more work in six than in seven days per week. Laboring men should keep their eyes open or they will be doing seven days' work for six days' pay.

We are not going to compel people to keep the Sabbath, but the laws should be enforced so that people will not be compelled to work. If peace and rest of people are disturbed the civil authorities should act. People must have a chance to engage in religious worship undisturbed. There should be liberty and rest for all, and one or two should not be allowed to compel others to open to get their share of the trade. Sabbath breaking and intemperance go hand in hand. The trend is toward a better observance of the Sabbath. Men demand it.

H. L. Hasting,

Editor of the Christian, was the last speaker. We cannot, he said, make honest, sober or religious men by law. It was the duty of the civil authorities to look out for the laws. Laws are necessary. No one gets on well in fighting the laws of nature. If Sunday is needed as a day of rest, it must be observed and be quoted scientific facts to show it was needed. Those who observed the Sabbath were longer lived on the average. The constitution demanded rest on Sundays. There never was a country like this and it is because it has the Bible and the Sabbath.

Mr. King thought all were glad to have been present, and that they had been brought into unison. The committee announced another meeting in two weeks.

Resolutions

Were then offered by Mr. W. P. Bailey as follows:

Resolved: That we citizens and residents of Quincy in meeting assembled, do hereby earnestly protest against the desecration of the Christian Sunday as it now exists in our city.

Resolved: That it is the sense of this meeting that action should be taken toward requesting from the proper officials a strict enforcement of the Laws of the Commonwealth as given in Chapter 391, Section II. of the Act of 1887.

Resolved: That a copy of these resolutions be presented to the Mayor and also be forwarded to the several newspapers of the city.

The reading of the act was called for, and it was read. An opportunity was then given for discussion, but there was none, and the resolves were seconded and passed. The section of the law will be printed in full tomorrow.

Savings Bank Depositors.

There is no class of people who have a clearer title to repose of mind as to the security of their possessions in this time of uncertainties than those who have money deposited in Massachusetts savings banks. These institutions are under the closest official supervision. The character of their investments is rigidly prescribed by law. They may loan money on first mortgages of real estate, but not more than 60 per cent. of the assessed valuation, nor in the aggregate more than 70 per cent. of the amount of their deposits. They may hold, as an investment or as collateral, the shares of any New England bank, but the aggregate of such holdings must not be more than 35 per cent. of the deposits, nor can more than 3 per cent. of the deposits be invested in the shares of any one bank. They can invest in certain State and city bonds, but only in such as are specified by law, and these specifications are such as to insure solidity. They can invest in the first mortgage bonds of Massachusetts railroads, but only in those paying regular dividends. They can loan money on personal notes of citizens of the State, but only on notes secured by collateral such as would be permissible for investment. They may make deposits in national banks, but not more than five per cent. of their own deposits in any one bank.

We commend careful consideration of these and other restrictions upon the management of savings banks to depositors who may be in danger of becoming uneasy. They will perceive that they are of such a character as to insure not only gilt-edged investments for the money deposited, but such a distribution of investments that any unforeseen disaster to those of any one class can result in only a limited loss. We do not believe that there is a single savings bank in Massachusetts which is not today perfectly solvent, and its funds carefully and conservatively invested. But, if they are to pay interest to their depositors, it is obvious that they must keep their funds invested. They cannot hold considerable sums of ready money at hand without losing interest. They cannot realize instantly upon their securities, however sound and valuable they may be, without heavy sacrifice and disaster to all the interests of the community.

Savings bank depositors in Massachusetts, therefore, will simply be protecting their own interests by keeping a level head and refraining from drawing out any money which they do not need for immediate necessities. There is no place so safe for them to keep their money. If they take it out, they will lose interest already earned and the prospect of more, and may cause more serious losses. Our advice to people who have money in the savings banks is to be thankful it is in so good a place, and to leave it there.—Boston Journal.

Imprisonment For Snoring.

The club member who goes to sleep and snores in the reading room or library is a nuisance, but the punishment of his offense by a term of imprisonment has not yet been heard of. The magistrates at Aston police court, however, are, it would seem, in favor of such treatment. The London Truth calls attention to a case heard at Aston, where a laborer named John Groves was charged with vagrancy for having slept in a furniture van in the public street. A police constable on his rounds heard loud snores. He was not at first able to discover the origin of the sound, but on getting over a wall into a yard he found the prisoner asleep in a furniture van, snoring in such a manner as to make himself heard at a considerable distance from his hiding place.

The prisoner, in reply to the bench, said that he had been at work at Sutton, and on returning to his home to Aston he was unable to gain admission, so that he went and slept in the van. The deputy magistrate's clerk pointed out, however, that he was disturbing the neighborhood with his mighty snore, whereupon the magistrates, probably taking this heinous offense into consideration, for nothing else was alleged against the prisoner, positively sentenced the wretched man to six weeks' hard labor.

AT MANET BEACH.

The Monatiquot Regatta for the Championship—Canton Picnic Today.

The Weymouth race Wednesday presented a very pretty sight for the dwellers of the Riverside. The boats started off under all sail a slight easterly making their lee rails now and then lean down to meet the little waves alongside. The large boats in particular looked as if they were pictures cut from the Century.

Miss Annie L. Tolman is at Hotel Butler and expects to remain several weeks.

A large party of Sunday School children arrived today from Canton. Three large barges landed the Orthodox children at the Linden. Every one rushed for the flying horses.

Most of the boats sailed their best light air race yesterday. Result in another column.

The dance at Taber's Casino was largely attended.

A meeting is to be held this evening to make arrangements for the annual illumination.

Mrs. Hugh P. Tracey of Boston who was sojourning at this place died on Tuesday, and funeral services will be held from the St. Joseph Church, Boston, on Friday morning. She was 32 years of age.

A clam mine, full of live clams and of great breadth and depth, has been discovered at the mouth of the Delaware Bay, off the Flashing Creek shore. This, says the True American, has proved a valuable find, and recently about 100 boats, containing from three to five men each, were at work on the mine. The product of the great bed is shipped daily to Chicago, a speculator of that city agreeing to take the entire output of the mine at about 30 cents per hundred, delivered at Bennett's Station on the West Jersey Railroad. Every now and then a discovery something like this is made, but the present mine exceeds any previous find known on the Atlantic coast. About three years are required for clams to grow properly and obtain a marketable size and flavor. This bed is said by experts to be about three years old. One of the greatest shipments yet made was on July 6, when over 50,000 clams started on their journey west from Bennett's Station. The bags were piled so high as to almost hide the station house.

—The extensive European drouth, says the New England Farmer, will cause the immediate slaughter of a large number of cattle, and in a few months the foreign demand for American meat must assume large proportions. This in connection with the decreasing number of cattle and hogs in the west will give New England farmers some profit on beef in the near future, and pork is sure to bring a good price for months to come. The prospects for New England farmers are encouraging at the present time.

Clover hay is generally considered richest in lime and egg-forming material. We have found lawn clippings to fill the bill admirably. As a general thing, lawns contain more or less white clover, and the other varieties of grass used are tender and juicy, where long enough to be clipped with a lawn mower. Lawn clippings have some advantages over clover hay: First, they are always cut and ready to feed; second, all can be used, whereas clover hay has large stems which the hens cannot eat, and which are of no particular value. Each week our lawn is mown, and the clippings carefully dried and packed away in sacks. When cold weather comes, and the hens cannot go out of the houses, the clippings are soaked with boiling water, a little bran is sprinkled over them, and the hens relish them.

NORTH QUINCY CLAIMS

Considered at Public Meeting of Residents of Norfolk Downs and Wollaston Park.

Editors of the Ledger:

A largely attended meeting of the residents of Norfolk Downs and Wollaston Park was held on Tuesday evening in the waiting room of the Norfolk Downs station for the purpose of forming a municipal and social club. Several citizens of Atlantic and Wollaston Heights, whose interests lie along the same channel, were also present. A chairman was chosen and the meeting called to order at 8 o'clock. The chairman stated that the object for which they were called was:

First—Mutual protection and the obtaining of needed municipal rights.

Secondly—For social purposes.

On the first point the chairman cited several instances where efforts of a similar nature elsewhere had resulted successfully through organized effort, when individual effort had failed to excite anything but ridicule on the part of the authorities. It was shown that the amount of taxes contributed by the present owners, resident and non-resident, formed no inconsiderable portion of the annual tax levy of the city of Quincy, but that the residents of North Quincy received from the authorities nothing in return; that on the contrary, the expenditures which the residents of North Quincy had a right to expect from their city fathers were diverted into other channels.

It was shown that there is an entire absence of police and fire protection; comment being made on the recent report of a committee of the city government relative to the inefficiency of the fire department, and the lack of police protection was deplored.

The insufficiency of school accommodations was also forcibly brought out, and notwithstanding the recent assertions of Mayor Fairbanks that the accommodations were ample, it was shown that during the past year some seventeen children were deprived of all opportunities to attend school for the lack of accommodation. The city has showed itself extremely short sighted in this matter of the schools, because not long since Wood, Harmon & Co., the orignal owners, offered to donate to the city of Quincy between 30,000 and 40,000 feet of land for school purposes, the only stipulation being that the school be erected within one year. No notice has been taken of this offer.

The streets, as improved by the developers of these two properties, will compare very favorably with many of the other streets of the city, and in some respects they are superior in width, in grading and in sidewalk construction. It is felt that they should now be accepted by the city. Another point was in the matter of street lighting; but for the fact that Wood, Harmon & Co. have supplied Norfolk Downs and Wollaston Park with electric lights, the residents would be deprived of all illumination, save such as they might themselves supply.

The residents believe they have been neglected long enough, and as the vote of every resident of that portion of the city is as valuable as the vote of a citizen of the more favored parts of the city, they believe they should unite their interest and make common cause for obtaining what they have a right to expect, and what they are now satisfied they will never get unless they show their strength unitedly.

The meeting was an enthusiastic one and all who spoke were determined that they would insist upon a recognition of their rights. A committee of nine were appointed from the floor, consisting of Messrs. J. D. Blagdon, T. H. Kingston, T. C. Gram, F. W. Green, O. B. Saunders, J. D. Given and J. W. Woodward of Norfolk Downs and Wollaston Park, J. E. Alger of Atlantic and B. J. Emery of Wollaston Heights. This committee is to take into consideration the general plan of operation with a view to securing the best results politically and socially. The meeting adjourned to Labor day at such time and place as said committee may hereafter appoint. Due notification will be given, and, as feeling may be said to have reached boiling point, a large attendance and a definite line of action is assured. UNION.

WEYMOUTH.

The North Weymouths play with the Institutes at Weymouth Saturday.

Miss Lillian Gay of Quincy is visiting relatives at North Weymouth.

The members of Reynolds W. R. Corps held a rousing basket picnic Wednesday afternoon, at the residence of Mrs. Andrew Culley at North Weymouth. Boating and bathing occupied the greater part of the time.

The long screaching whistle that disturbed the slumbers of many at an early hour this morning, was caused by a steam launch going up Weymouth Fore river.

The post office at North Weymouth is to be moved to Jenkins' store on Athens street. The change will probably be made tonight.

The one topic of conversation is the burning of Holbrooks shoe factory Monday night. Mr. Holbrook's outlook for a prosperous season was never brighter than before the fire and the blow is keenly felt. Whether Mr. Holbrook will rebuild is not known as he himself cannot decide until the matter of insurance is adjusted, and then it all depends upon how much time will be required to do so.

As Good as a Seaside Cottage.

"Are you going to the seashore this summer?" Jones asked of Brown. "N-not exactly," said Brown, "but we're going to accomplish the same result without going from home at all." "What do you mean?" "Why, it's this way. You see, when a person of my means takes a cottage at the seashore he of course gets a poor sort of shanty, because we can't afford a large, finely finished and well furnished house. You know the sort of place the usual summer cottage is. Well, we've decided to accomplish the result in another way. We're going to move up into the attic for the summer." "Move into the attic?" "Why, certainly. It is unfinished, just like a seashore cottage. The sun beats down on the shingles and raises the temperature above 100 degrees every sunny summer day. That's just like a seashore cottage. There isn't by any means room enough in it for our large family, and that's like a seashore cottage too.

"When it rains, the water doesn't beat through our roof, to be sure, as it does through the roofs of seashore cottages, but we can remedy that by poking a few holes through the shingles here and there and getting the roof mended in the fall. It will smell a little stuffy, but that is eminently like a seashore cottage. We shall keep a clothesbasket full of unwashed shells standing in the corner to produce a realistic effect. On the whole, we shall be ever so much more comfortable in our own accustomed garret than we should be at the seaside, and we shall have this inestimable advantage that when we get sick of it we can simply move right down into our own comfortable home, whereas, if we were at the shore and paying a high price for a cottage, we should feel bound to stick it out to the bitter end. Oh, I tell you, it's a great scheme."—Boston Transcript.

Millions of Valueless Money.

Eighty million dollars in bills were received at Atlanta a day or two ago, the mammoth packages of money filling five large dry goods boxes and making in all a drayload. None of the bills was current, however, as they represent "nothing in God's earth now and naught in the waters below it." They were Confederate bills of the rarest type. The huge pile of genuine Confederate money was shipped from Richmond, the former capital of the Confederacy and is now the property of Charles D. Barker of Atlanta. The money is of every denomination issued by the departed nation, and in the big collection are bills of the rarest type. There are bills issued during every year of the war. Thousands of them are very valuable as relics, but the great number of them Mr. Barker has on hand will make them so common as to bring but little on the market. This $80,000,000 of Confederate money has been all along supposed to have been destroyed. This is undoubtedly the largest lot of Confederate money in the world.—Savannah News.

Bicycle Sulky Records.

The veteran reinsman, Budd Doble, who drove Dexter when he made his famous record years ago and piloted Nancy Hanks to the wire in 2:04 last season, agrees that the new records are not to be discounted because made with the pneumatic sulky.

"The progress of tracks, sulkies, rigging and horses is natural," he said. The conditions under which Dexter made his record were far more favorable to speed than prevailed in the day of Flora Temple, and Maud S trotted under still more favorable conditions than Dexter, yet in each case the latter record was accepted as standard.

Time and ingenuity may bring forth even greater aids to speed than the present bicycle sulky and kite shaped track have proved to be, but they must be accepted as legitimate means of lowering the trotting record.—New York Herald.

Uncle Peter's Circus Ticket.

On Saturday last Uncle Peter L. Scaggs of Louisa came down to see the circus and brought along a ticket purchased 12 years ago, when Robinson's circus exhibited at Louisa. Uncle Peter is a widower, and when the show was at Louisa he purchased two tickets, expecting to take his lady love to see the "animals." Before the show began they had one of those lovers' quarrels which so frequently turn anticipated pleasures into bitter disappointment, and as a result Uncle Peter went to the circus in single harness. He placed the extra ticket in his pocketbook, and for the 12 long succeeding years kept it as a reminder of a lost sweetheart. Last Saturday he presented this ticket to the gatekeeper, who demanded to know where he got it. "I paid my money for it 12 years ago, when this show was at Louisa," replied Uncle Peter. "Well, my old friend, you look like an honest man, and I guess the ticket is all right. Pass in," was the reply made, and Uncle Peter waltzed in, feeling that if he had lost the old girl he had saved the money paid out for her edification.—Catlettsburg (Ky.) Democrat.

The Chief Justice on the Geary Law.

The chief justice of the United States has filed his written opinion in the case of Yick Wo, unregistered Chinese laborer. It is very interesting reading. He holds that the provisions of the fifth and fourteenth amendments shelter all persons of whatever nationality, race or color within the territorial jurisdiction. He describes the punishment of deportation sought to be inflicted on Yick Wo under the provisions of the Geary act as in effect a legislative sentence of banishment, unknown to the organic law and in violation of it. Concerning the Geary act itself, the chief justice says that it "contains within it the germs of the assertion of an unlimited and arbitrary power in general incompatible with the immutable principles of justice, inconsistent with the nature of our government and in conflict with the written constitution by which that government was created and those principles secured."—Hartford Courant.

QUAKERS WIN A GAME

Through the Stupidity and Recklessness of the Champions.

BOSTON, Aug. 3.—In spite of the fact that the Phillies outbatted the champions two to one, the combination was such that but for stupid and reckless base running the Bostons had a good chance to win out. The home team discarded their practice of sacrificing at the proper time and hit in the air almost every time they tried to line out. The home team's errors were costly, but their remarkable fielding held the Phillies down. Reilly was fined $10 for disputing a decision.

Uncle Sam's Gold Reserve Is Once More Made Intact.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—For the first time since April 20, 1895, when the gold reserve fell below the $100,000,000 mark, the reserve had been made intact. The gold in the treasury today, exclusive of that held as a basis for gold certificates, amounts to $100,791,370, or $791,370 free gold. This gold has come into the United States from Europe, Mexico and the West Indies, much of it being the gold sent out from the United States during the late spring and early summer months. Information received here in treasury circles indicates that $10,000,000 in gold is now on its way from Europe to the United States, and most of this, it is expected, will find its way as usual into the treasury.

Will Push Matters.

BOSTON, Aug. 3.—United States District Attorney Sherman Hoar said yesterday that he intended to examine, as thoroughly as he was capable, not only the Maverick bank cases, but all cases in which his office was interested, and to have them either dismissed or tried before the court as soon as was possible with due regard to the interests of the government.

Have you ever seen in your travels a COOKING RANGE,—one that claims the title deservingly? There are such ranges in existence, few and far between. The Magee Mystic however, stands on its merits alone. It is the queen of bakers, tried and worthy, quick and responsive. Here is how it differs from some of the antediluvian makes. A direct heat on all sides of the oven. It is a wonderfully economical stove, not a particle of heat is wasted. It is the tip-top range on the market. Price it in Boston, then price it here; you look and wonder. Only a pinch of profit for us, the rest is all for you! Other ranges in great variety. HENRY L. KINCAIDE & Co.

THREE BULLET WOUNDS

Which May Cause the Death of the Wife of Benjamin Horsford.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Aug. 3.—What may prove to be a tragedy was enacted in a house near Green street, about midnight. Benjamin Horsford of Westfield fired three shots at his wife, all taking effect, one in the lungs, one in the mouth and another which broke the jaw. She came to Gloucester about two weeks ago, and was employed in the family of City Engineer Webber as nurse.

Last night her husband, who followed her here from Westfield, called at the house of Mr. Webber, and after some persuasion induced her to take a walk. They proceeded to a lonely place near the woods, where the man turned and fired. The report was heard by a family who occupy one of the three houses on the street.

Rushing out they took the woman into a house. The man flew into the woods. Captain McKenney detailed his entire force and surrounded the woods. In about 15 minutes he came out of the thicket and gave himself up. He appeared cool and collected, and expressed regret that he did not shoot the man who, he alleges, is in the case.

Horsford says he is a Missourian, and is tall, well dressed and appears like an intelligent mechanic. He married his wife three years ago.

Her maiden name was McPherson, and she was a native of Guysboro, N. S. He says that she has been unfaithful, and that he has left her nine times during their marriage.

FAIR DIRECTORS FINED

For Contempt of Court in Closing Gates on the Sabbath.

CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—Judge Stein of the superior court yesterday decided that the World's fair directors and officers who had been directly responsible for closing the exposition gates Sunday, July 23, had violated the injunction granted in the Clingman petition and were consequently guilty of contempt. He ordered that the directors, Gage, Hutchinson, Henrotin, McNally and Kerfoot, should be fined $1000 each and stand committed to jail until the fine was paid.

In the case of Director Victor F. Lawson the court held that the officer had voted in belief that the injunction had lapsed, and was not intentionally guilty. In view of this mitigating circumstance a fine of $100 was imposed. Director General George E. Davis was held less directly responsible, and was fined $25), with the same provision regarding payment.

Massey, Forbes, St. Clair and Higinbotham were regarded by Judge Stein as instruments for the execution of the directors' ruling and were discharged. Director Nathan was also discharged.

Attorney Eddy, representing the fair company, moved for an appeal from the court's ruling. At the close of arguments Judge Stein granted an appeal.

GIANT AGAINST GIANT.

Sanger Defeats Zimmerman In the Bicycle Races at Detroit.

DETROIT, Aug. 3.—About 1500 people saw the second day's bicycle racing at the Detroit driving park under the auspices of the Michigan division, L. A. W. The track was in fine condition, but a strong wind rendered fast time impossible. Zimmerman and Sanger came together in earnest for the first time, and it was their second meeting in the opening event, and the western man won.

The two giants met, and Zimmerman was vanished in the two-mile open by his rival. Sanger and Zimmerman both stayed in the bunch until the stretch was reached. Sanger turned into the stretch on the outside, and then the struggle began. They came down to the tape like a pair of whirlwinds. Sanger cut across and got the pole, a length ahead, and he came bowling along, while the easterner exerted every muscle to overtake his rival. The finish was terrific, and the Milwaukee man shot past the tape a length in advance, amid the yells of the crowd. It was the first real test between the two.

In all the other events in which both men were entered, one or the other failed to start.

SPRINGER AT THE HEAD

Probable Makeup of the Committee on Ways and Means.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—The names of the members of the ways and means committee in the Fifty-second congress who will probably represent the membership of the new committee are:

Democrats—William M. Springer of Illinois, chairman; Benton McMillen of Tennessee, Henry C. Turner of Georgia, William L. Wilson of West Virginia, Alexander B. Montgomery of Kentucky, Justin R. Whitney of Michigan, W. Bourke Cockran of New York, Moses B. Stevens of Massachusetts and William J. Bryant of Nebraska.

Republicans—Thomas B. Reed of Maine, Julius C. Burrows of Michigan, Sereno B. Payne of New York, John Dalzel of Pennsylvania and Albert J. Hopkins of Illinois. This is regarded as a representative committee of both parties on the different partisan and theoretical lines of protective and reform ideas. It is also composed of exceptionally strong men in parliamentary and legislative experience.

Harrison For 1894.

SHELBYVILLE, Ind., Aug. 3.—From some of L. T. Michener's friends here it is learned that he has taken charge of Harrison's campaign for the nomination for president in 1894 and will work systematically from Washington. Lodges or secret clubs are now being formed all over the state with Harrison in view.

Not a Bad Idea.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—To reduce expenses and at the same time obviate the necessity of discharging any of its Jersey City employes, the Pennsylvania railroad has issued an order laying off all shop hands and road workmen, outside of those employed in the running of trains, one day in each week.

Will Pay In Full.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Aug. 3.—The First National bank did not open its doors yesterday. A notice says all depositors will be paid in full. Inability to realize was the cause. All excitement was promptly allayed and a slight run on the other bank was over at noon.

Scotland vs. America.

CONEY ISLAND, N. Y., Aug. 3.—Lachie Thompson, champion of Scotland, and Johnny Reagan of New York were matched to meet before the Coney Island Athletic club in the first week of October at 145 pounds.

Charity.

Two trains crashed; then and there he was crushed in a moment and died,
But the new wedded wife was unharmed, tho' sitting close at his side.
She found my letter upon him, my wall of reproach and scorn;
I had cursed the woman he married, and him,
and the day I was born.
They put him aside forever, and after a week
—no more—
A stranger as welcome as satan, a widow, came to my door.
So I turned my face to the wall; I was mad; I was raving wild;
I was close on that hour of dishonor, the birth of a baseborn child.
I had cursed her as woman and wife, and in wife and woman I found
The tenderest Christlike creature that ever stepped on the ground.
She watch'd me; she nursed me; she fed me;
she sat night and day by my bed
Till the joyless birthday came of a boy born happily dead.
And we prayed together for him, for him who had given her the name.
She had left me enough to live on—I need no wages of shame.
She died of a fever caught when a nurse in a hospital ward.
She is high in the heaven of heavens—she is face to face with her Lord.
And he sees not her like anywhere in this pitiless world of ours!
I have told you my tale. Get you gone. I am dressing her grave with flowers.

Monuments For the Boundary.

There have recently been received at the Mexican border two carloads of government freight consisting of the new line monuments and other necessaries for the work of definitely marking the boundary line between the United States and Mexico. On the old monuments iron plates are to be affixed by means of bolts, on which is inscribed in raised letters: "Repaired by the boundary commission, created by the treaties of 1882-1889. The destruction or displacement of this monument is a misdemeanor punishable by the United States or Mexico."

The new monuments are of iron, 6 feet high from base to top of square, and 6 feet 6 inches high from base to apex. The shafts are tapering, being about 12 inches square at the base and 10 inches at the top of square, the crown tapering to a point. On one side of the shaft in raised letters is the following: "Boundary of the United State (under which an American eagle appears), treaty of 1853, re-established by treaties 1882-9. The destruction or displacement of this monument is a misdemeanor punishable by the United States or Mexico." These latter monuments will be bolted on the concrete base, 2 feet thick by 3 feet square and placed about two miles and four-tenths apart.—Dallas News.

INTERESTING FIGURES

Concerning the Progress of Temperance Among Catholics.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Aug. 3.—The second day's business of the Catholic Total Abstinence union was opened in City hall with prayer by Rev. William McMahon of Cleveland. Secretary Nolan submitted his general report, which follows in brief:

There are now affiliated to the general union 26 subordinate unions and 35 detached societies. During the year 51 societies were admitted and 63 were dropped, leaving now on the roll 727 societies with a membership of 54,676, an increase this year of 2248 members. The union now has 454 men's societies with 33,334 members; 172 cadet societies with 13,723 members; 80 ladies' societies with 6749 members; 21 girls' societies with 1890 members, making a total of 727 societies and a total membership of 54,676.

He would suggest that the formation of boys' and girls' societies and women's societies be pushed by the delegates when they return to their homes wherever there is a men's society, there should also be branches for boys, girls and women. Albany and Connecticut have done great work this year. Albany union shows an increase of 500 members and Connecticut over 1000 members. Vice President Logus also submitted his report.

TOM JOHNSON'S PLAN

For Helping the Country Out of Financial Difficulties.

BONDS TO BE DEPOSITED.

United States to Pay Currency Therefor, Without Interest.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—The following communication has been furnished to the press:

To the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce: Gentlemen—Believing that the financial pressure now existing demands prompt and adequate relief, I propose on the first day of the coming session to introduce in the house of representatives the following bill:

An act to permit the exchange of United States bonds for treasury notes.

Be it enacted by the senate and house of representatives of the United States of America, in congress assembled, that any holder of bonds of the United States may after the passage of this act deposit such bonds at the treasury of the United States or at the office of any assistant treasurer of the United States and receive therefor their face value in treasury notes of the United States as described in the act of July 14, 1890. Such bonds shall be held as a special deposit to the credit of the party proposing them, and during the time they are so held shall draw no interest, and shall be returned on the order of the party depositing them on the payment of their face value in United States currency.

Sect. 2. The secretary of the treasury shall make such regulations as may be necessary to save to the government the payment of interest on such bonds during the time they are held as a special deposit, and he is hereby authorized to issue treasury notes to the amount needed and to provide for the cancellation of an equal amount of cash notes on the return of said bonds to their owners, and a sum sufficient to carry into effect the provisions of this act is hereby appropriated out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated.

Sect. 3. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed.

Johnson's Comment.

Whatever be the primary causes of the financial difficulties now paralyzing business and stopping industry, it is clear that their first appearance was largely due to the impairment of confidence through fear of an impending change in the measure of values. But the main and pressing difficulty now is the scarcity of the medium of exchange. While the shrinkage of credits has increased the need for money, its available volume has been greatly lessened by the strengthening of reserves by banks and saving institutions and by the hoarding of individuals under fear of or the desire to bring about a still greater scarcity.

The repeal of the Sherman act, which I confidently anticipate, while it will allay fears of any change in the measure of values, will do nothing directly to increase the medium of exchange. On the contrary, by stopping the issue of treasury notes for silver, it will lessen the supply. The only measure looking to relief of the need for money yet proposed with any hope of the necessary consent is that of permitting the national banks to extend their issue to the face value of their deposited bonds.

A Question of Interest.

But this, while certain to arouse dispute and consequently cause delay, would increase the currency only some $17,000,000. The bill I send you, allowing all holders of United States bonds to turn them into money for such time as they may be willing to forego interest, affords a simple, safe, immediate and sufficient remedy for the abnormal scarcity of money. Beyond the bonds deposited to secure the national bank circulation, there are in existence $400,000,000 of government bonds, largely held by financial institutions.

For instance, "The Society for Savings" of our own city, the largest and strongest financial institution in Ohio, holds today $2,000,000 of these bonds. Yet, though undoubted security, these bonds cannot at present be converted into money with which to meet any demand of its depositors without loss to the society and increase in the general financial pressure. It could only sell them at present at a great sacrifice of their normal value and could only borrow on them at a rate much exceeding what they yield. Either course would increase the general demand for money while actually decreasing the general supply, for the fact that such a bank was sacrificing its securities to get money would increase the feeling of panic which grows by what it feeds on.

A Logical Argument.

Now this is precisely the situation of similar institutions not only throughout our city and state but over the whole Union. So much is human action governed by imagination, so strong is the impulse to do whatever we see our neighbors doing, or even think that they are about to do, that it is entirely possible, with an abundance of money in the country to meet all usual demands, for financial stringency to grow to a point that would reduce us almost to a state of barter, all but stop production and beggar all but the very rich.

The possibility of at once converting United States bonds into money would entirely do away with such danger and at once end the financial stringency. It is not so much the amount that would be converted that would tell, but the amount that could be converted if there was need. The government would run no risk. It would merely exchange interest-bearing obligations into non-interest-bearing obligations, with a saving, for the time, of interest.

Both Sides Benefited.

There would be no loss of the selling value of bonds to the holders and no permanent expansion of the currency, for as soon as money, ceasing to be hoarded, became normally abundant again, borrowing rates would fall, the price of bonds would rise, and it would be to the interest of the holders of the deposited bonds to reclaim them and return to the treasury the money issued on them.

I introduced into the last congress a bill intended to add to our currency system the elastic feature of an interconvertibility of bonds and treasury notes. The bill I now propose puts the same principle in a way better adapted to meet the exigency that has now risen and to avoid matters over which there might be dispute.

Believing that it offers a simple, prompt and unobjectionable remedy for the most pressing evils, and desiring its consideration by my constituents and the general public, I thus lay it before you in advance of presentation.

Yours very truly,

TOM L. JOHNSON.

NEW YORK, Aug. 3.—Business at all the savings banks was going on as usual yesterday. The excitement is all over. Depositors feel assured that their money is perfectly safe.

WOMAN'S WORLD.

AN EMPRESS WHO IS A MODEL MOTHER AND HOUSEKEEPER.

Gladstone's Views on French Gowns—Women Draw the Line at Cranky Cranks. Sweet Pickled Watermelon Rinds—Care of Food In Summer.

The Princess Augusta of Augustenburg was a fine looking blond girl with pink and white complexion, splendid physique, a cheerful, unaffected manner and trained in the frugal habits of the ducal court of Dolzig. She was chosen as a possible bride in view of healing the breach between the Holsteiners and the Prussians. After a brief courtship the couple were married in February, 1881, in the Schloss chapel of Berlin. The princess had a difficult part to play between her English mother-in-law and her headstrong young husband, and both Bismarck and the old emperor expected her to take an active part in all their schemes. The emperor became very fond of her, as did all those who were about her during those early years. She possessed a winning, gentle dignity, great powers of self control and an art of healing all quarrels by a word in the right place. She was the mother of five boys when she became empress, and notwithstanding her royal position she remains an ideal domestic housewife, who stays at home and looks after the house and children in true German fashion. She does not lead in the social world and has no female friends, the emperor being her only confidant.

The empress rises early and breakfasts with the emperor every morning at 8 o'clock. At 9 she is in the nursery superintending the baby's toilet, arranging with the nurse for the walks or drives to be taken by the children, and always decides what clothes are to be worn by the young princess. Her one extravagance is in baby clothes, and all the little garments, with few exceptions, are made by German needlewomen under her supervision. At 10 o'clock the empress receives her housekeeper and attends to the luncheon and dinner menus, always including one or two favorite dishes of her husband's. A few moments every morning are spent in the linen room, and not a sheet or a duster is given out except under her direction. At 11 she goes riding with the emperor or walking with two of her boys.

Luncheon comes at 1, and all the children except the last baby are present at this meal, which is conducted without much ceremony. After luncheon the emperor and empress play with the children for an hour. The present ruler is the only kaiser to whom six sons have been born in uninterrupted succession. This last comer is a girl and about 6 months old. The system on which the four eldest sons are being brought up was arranged without reference to their mother's wishes, but she sees that everything is carried out and superintends their studies, is always present at their violin lessons when they are practicing, and all their little troubles are poured into her ears. The empress receives from 3 until 5 and in this time considers charitable cases.

There are sometimes as many as 50 guests invited to dinner, which is at 6 o'clock and lasts an hour. Beside each plate is a menu printed in German and containing no foreign dishes; also a printed programme of 24 pieces of music about to be played. One servant waits upon two persons, and every little detail of the service is closely watched by the empress. She goes every night with the emperor to see the children, and if there is the slightest illness among them she sits up all night and sees that the doctor's directions are carried out. In the nursery she wears a soft, white flannel wrapper and a large apron. Her taste in dress is for bright colors and glossy materials. The empress' early education was very simple, and although she understands French and English she does not care for foreign fashions or literature.

Until her marriage she had not read a novel. She retains an early habit of writing a few lines every day in a diary which no one sees, and at the end of each year it is locked and put away in the safe with her jewels, and another one is commenced. Her bedroom and sitting room are simply furnished in blue. A large allowance is made to her for personal expenses, yet she makes with her own hands all the birthday gifts for her own and the emperor's numerous family. It is said that the emperor has developed into an affectionate and devoted husband, won by his wife's sweetness and submission.—Pall Mall Budget.

Gladstone's Views on French Gowns.

The second day of the congress of representative women at Chicago there were meetings in full blast in five halls of the great Memorial Art palace on the lake front. But not one of these, nor all of them combined, drew one-sixth of the audience which flocked to Hall III to hear a talk upon dress reform. It was packed to the doors and way beyond.

On this occasion all the leaders of advanced dress reform were present and had something to say. Henrietta Russell was there in a funny dove colored dress, which seemed to fall entirely from the shoulders, but which was becoming to the wearer, although, as a woman who stood just behind the reporters' table remarked, it did make her look as though she had hung a bedspread upon her back and a tablespread upon her front. Mrs. Russell had talked with Mr. Gladstone about dress.

Mr. Gladstone told Mrs. Russell that he had for years approved of long lines and Grecian draperies, but had only lately ventured to say so.

"The love for French gowns," said he, "with their tight waists and distorted shoulders, is so deeply implanted in the breasts of English women that it is like making a personal attack upon their lives to say that such gowns are not beautiful. For myself I see nothing lovely about them, and I should be glad to see all women dressed in an art robe without a belt or a collar.

"Men's clothes are all wrong too. But I shall talk about that at some other time. Let us now go on with our crusade against woman's dress—corsets, French heels, tight gloves and tight collars."

Mr. Gladstone promised at some future time to give his ideas more fully.—Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

Women Draw the Line at Cranky Cranks.

The Woman's Federation of Philanthropic and Christian Societies of the city held its first meeting since its permanent organization yesterday afternoon. A letter from Miss Ada C. Sweet, president of the Municipal league of Chicago, was read. The writer told the women to "particularly avoid putting cranks in the foreground of this work."

This letter was listened to in complete silence and had evidently put some of the equal suffragists who were present to thinking, for at its conclusion one of them arose and asked what a crank was.

"I want to know what a crank is," said she. "I am called a crank."

Mrs. Byron Sherry arose and explained that a crank, according to her theory, was one who was ridiculous in the judgment of another person. "It is a test," she said, "of a person's moral and intellectual strength. The saloon keeper considers the temperance woman a crank, the frivolous woman thinks the woman who belongs to a sewing society a crank, and the society woman considers the equal suffragist a crank. All who inaugurate great reforms are called cranks. If you are afraid of being called a crank, you don't belong here, where people want to do earnest work and fight time honored evils."

Many offered their definitions of the word crank. A hardworking suffragist and zealous W. C. T. U. woman considered it an honor to be called a crank because it was a synonym for makings things go.

It was finally decided that a "cranky crank" should be avoided by the federation, and by this title was meant a person who had a superabundance of zeal without judgment.—Kansas City Times.

Sweet Pickled Watermelon Rinds.

Peel the rinds with a sharp knife that will take off the green skin evenly. Trim off also every trace of the pink flesh of the fruit, because it is too juicy to make a firm, crisp pickle. Then cut the strips of rind into small pieces 2 to 3 inches long, and placing them in a large earthen dish sprinkle them lightly and evenly with salt. Cover the dish and let it stand overnight. In the morning drain off the water that will have formed, rinse the rinds in cold water and cook them in a steamer until a broom splint will readily pierce them. Cooking the rinds by steam is an easy method, as they are less liable to burn than when they are cooked in spiced vinegar. When the rinds are tender, take them out carefully with a skimmer and put them into a stone jar.

Take good cider vinegar for the basis of the pickle. Allow a pound of sugar to a pint of vinegar and add also half an ounce of stick cinnamon broken into inch pieces and a half teaspoonful each of whole cloves and blades of mace. The whole amount of vinegar, sugar and spices used must of course depend on the quantity of rinds to be pickled, but a quart of vinegar is usually sufficient for the rinds of a medium sized melon. Boil the vinegar, sugar and spices together vigorously half an hour, skimming off the froth, and pour the pickle boiling hot over the rinds. Press the rinds down under the pickle by means of an earthen plate or saucer, fasten the cover on and tie a cloth over the whole. These pickles will be ready for use in two weeks.—Harper's Bazar.

Care of Food In Summer.

The food question is often a serious one to the country housekeeper. It is usually within her power to get a good supply of fresh vegetables, milk, butter and eggs, but one cannot be sure of even these things unless they are produced on one's own farm. If the housekeeper must depend upon the marketman's cart for her meat supply, and she is without an icehouse, she must resort to many expedients to provide her family with the necessary variety of animal food. The marketman may bring fresh beef, lamb, veal, poultry, corned beef, salt pork, tongue and sometimes fresh fish. If there is an icehouse on the place, it is an easy matter to lay in a supply which shall last until the next visit, but if not other means must be used.

Charcoal is of great value in keeping ice chests, storerooms and food sweet. Place a shallow dish of fine charcoal in the ice chest. In milkrooms and other rooms where food is kept set dishes of charcoal. If poultry or birds are to be hung in a cool room for a few days, remove the internal organs and partially fill the body with charcoal. Now wrap the birds in paper and hang up. If the outside of the poultry is rubbed with black pepper before being covered with the paper, it will be still further protected from the flies. Small birds, livers, kidneys, sweetbreads, etc., may be wrapped in paraffin paper and then be buried in a bed of charcoal.—Maria Parloa in Ladies' Home Journal.

Women who can afford it, and who are unhappy if they do not dream upon the latest fashion, are sending their brass bedsteads to be plated with silver.

THE COMING OF GOLD

Will Greatly Relieve the Present Financial Stringency.

THE DEARTH OF CURRENCY

Likely to Be at an End at the Close of the Week.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—The overshadowing question yesterday in financial circles was the scarcity of currency. At many banks it was admitted that cash payments for large checks over the counter have been suspended for some days, except in cases where it was known the actual cash was necessary. In other words, it was said the banks used discrimination, and where it was thought the demand for actual cash "currency" was made for the purpose of hoarding, the bank insisted upon a certified check being taken. The clearing house committee issued $2,000,000 more loan certificates.

In the very general collapse of the machinery of domestic exchange the collection of drafts on bonds in other towns and cities has been managed on An Unusual System.

Ordinarily, when a New York bank depositor turns in a check drawn to his order on an out-of-town bank, the New York bank remits to its own correspondent in the same place for collection or else sends direct to the bank drawn upon. In both cases out-of-town banks have either delayed in remitting or else have remitted in New York exchange, charging up to the New York bank the cost of exchange.

The city banks have therefore resorted, i unusually large measure of late, to direc collection through the express compani which make a specialty of presentin drafts direct at distant points, drawin out the money and shipping it to Ne York. The cost of this transaction has for a long time been materially below the rate charged for interior exchange.

Many Curious Incidents

are related by bankers as to the workings of such collections. Some outside banks have taken pains to pay such drafts in inconvenient currency, notably standard silver dollars. One case is mentioned of a country bank on which a draft of several thousand dollars was collected by express. In the money returned were several hundred dollars in gold, $400 in standard silver dollars and $600 in subsidiary coin, almost entirely dimes, with a liberal sprinkling of Canadian pieces.

Frederick D. Tappen, president of the Gallatin National bank and chairman of the clearing house loan committee, said that the cry about the scarcity of currency would be all over by the end of the week, by which time the first of the gold importations would be here. The receipt of $10,000,000 of gold, the amount now on the way, would, Mr. Tappen said, effectually put a stop to it. Mr. Tappen said he did not know anything about a premium being offered for currency.

So far as the Gallatin bank was concerned it had shovelled out the cash without discriminating and

Would Continue to Do So.

He believed one or two banks up town were a little short of currency, but it was probable that arrangements would at once be made to relieve their necessities in that respect.

Another prominent bank president, discussing the scarcity of currency, said: "The situation now is very different from what it was in 1873. Then, when cash payments were suspended, all the banks of this city on the worst day had only $600,000 of cash all told, and now they have $100,000,000 in cash, and a suspension of cash payments is impossible. The present scarcity of currency is due to hoarding. There are vast sums in the vaults of savings banks throughout the country."

A TRIP TO DETROIT

And What Mrs. Meyer's Counsel Have to Say Regarding It.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Dr. W. J. O'Sullivan and Lewis Stuyvesant Chanler, attorneys for Dr. C. W. Meyer and his wife, the alleged poisoners, have returned from Detroit, where they have been for the purpose of talking to the accused woman. Dr. O'Sullivan said:

"I went to the Harper hospital to see Mrs. Meyer. She was very confused. The woman had heard nothing of Dr. Meyer, save that he had pleaded guilty and implicated her. The detectives who were in charge of her had misrepresented all that had occurred and threatened even to remove both her children if she did not make a confession. She said that she had been tortured by questions and threats. The house physician of the hospital said she could easily make the trip to this city. He admitted as much that he had given her drugs."

Corbett at Asbury Park.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Aug. 4.—James J. Corbett arrived at the Brunswick hotel here last night. Corbett will take it easy for two weeks and will then go into training here for his fight with Mitchell. Corbett says the fight will be at Coney Island. The champion was given a big reception.

Miners Making Trouble.

DENVER, Aug. 4.—There was trouble at the Arkansas Valley smelter at Leadville when the reduction of 10 per cent in wages was announced. The captain of the Leadville militia has asked the adjutant general at Denver for arms and ammunition for use in case of necessity.

Cut to Pieces by a Reaper.

SUSQUEHANNA, Pa., Aug. 4.—Harry Tompkins was cut to pieces at Lawrenceville Center by falling under a reaping machine.

DR. GRAVES AGAIN.

One More Effort to Arrive at Conclusions Concerning Another Trial.

DENVER, Aug 4.—County Commissioner John Twombly has gone east to make an investigation of the case of Dr. Graves. He will probably interview the witness and report results to the board. On his determination rests the questions as to whether Dr. T. Thacher Graves will ever again be placed on trial for his li.

DR. GRAVES.

The board recently passed a resolution to appropriate a sum not to exceed $3000 for the second trial of the doctor, but this is coupled with a provision that the county supervisors should be first convinced that a conviction could be secured.

Before his return Mr. Twombly will go to Providence and Boston, and will also see about the witnesses who know the facts in regard to the stamps on the bottle which bore the deadly poison from the "friend in the woods."

THE CHOLERA SCOURGE.

Reports Indicate a Rapid Increase in Many Foreign Cities.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—The Rome correspondent of The Central News says: Since the outbreak of cholera in Naples more than 100,000 residents have fled from that city. The official reports greatly understate the facts. The report for Sunday last said that there were 10 new cases and nine deaths. Reliable advices declare that there were 52 new cases and 28 deaths on that day and 49 new cases and 27 deaths on Monday. The official figures for Tuesday are 18 new cases and six deaths. Several cases of cholera have occurred in Rome.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—According to The Lancet, cholera has been epidemic in Marseilles for the last three months. The local officials have led the government astray in regard to the real state of affairs. The prefecture now admits that there have been 601 deaths from cholera in Marseilles since the middle of May.

ODESSA, Aug. 4.—The government is closing all schools in the south of Russia on account of the prevalence of cholera. Twenty doctors have gone to the Caucasus, 14 to Kieff and 10 to Podolia.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—There have been 6666 deaths from cholera in Mecca and 2318 in Jedda since the present epidemic broke out.

DUGGAN'S ADMISSION.

He Implicates 150 Men In the Cold Storage Warehouse Sensation.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—Evidence of a startling nature, concerning the cold storage warehouse fire, was taken by the grand jury yesterday. The witness who gave this startling testimony was John Joseph Duggan, formerly a Stony Island avenue saloon keeper and the man who first told of the looting of the cold storage warehouse and its firing by a gang of robbers. He was flushed and excited with the inquisition he had undergone, but said he had made a clean breast of it all.

According to Duggan there were 150 men concerned in the conspiracy, and he declared that he had given the names to the grand jury. He said that from the opening of the exposition, right up to the time of the fire, goods were stolen, or at least removed from the cold storage warehouse, by the wagonload. The wagons used were express wagons generally, though he had known of water carts going out of the gates with tanks filled with hams, bottles of wine and other stock. He said that employes of the cold storage warehouse removed the goods.

Two Bad Girls.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—For some weeks past the police have received complaints of robberies committed in the neighborhood of Third avenue and Seventy-fifth street in broad daylight. Over $900 has been stolen within the space of three days. The police were astounded to find that the thieves were two young girls, 15 and 13 years old, respectively.

Judgments Piling Up.

NEW YORK, Aug 4.—Another judgment for $31,212 has been entered against Mayor David C. Robinson of Elmira in favor of the Western National bank on two notes of the Elmira Gas and Illuminating company, which he endorsed. This makes seven judgments entered against him by the above bank, aggregating $136,000.

De Lesseps' Brief Respite.

PARIS, Aug. 4.—Charles De Lesseps, escorted by three detectives, was taken from prison and allowed to visit his wife, who is lying dangerously ill at her residence in the Rue Montaigne. After an interview of brief duration he was taken back to the prison hospital.

A Little Fellow's Error.

GLOVERSVILLE, N. Y., Aug. 4.—Several children were playing together in a room and found a gun. While it was being examined by Stuart Fairbanks, aged 5, it was discharged. The charge struck a little girl named Kincaid, aged 7, killing her instantly.

Crushed by Wheels.

BOSTON, Aug. 4.—Patrick Fallon, a laborer, was driving a wagon on South street, West Roxbury, when he accidentally fell from the seat of the wagon to the ground. The wheels passed over his body and killed him almost instantly.

A Carnegie Plant Closes.

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Aug. 4.—Word was received from Pittsburg by officials of the Carnegie steel plant in this place to discharge all employes here, except six watchmen. The shutdown is for an indefinite period.

THE TARIFF SYSTEM

Will Soon Receive a Thorough Overhauling.

REPEAL OF SHERMAN LAW.

Opinions Expressed by Oates, Squire and Bland.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Chairman W. M. Springer was interviewed yesterday, and, touching the course of the ways and means committee in dealing with the tariff, said it would doubtless report one general tariff bill instead of a series of specific bills. That policy had done good service last congress, but the time was now at hand when the Democratic party must redeem its pledges and reform the entire tariff system.

To do this would not involve any radical change in the rules of the house, for Mr. Springer believes that the majority can always reach an expression of its will through the committee on rules, which can bring in a special rule to fit each case as it arises.

Mr. Springer had not seen Mr. Crisp, so he did not say anything respecting the composition of the committees or his own place upon them.

Oates' Opinion.

"If the president parts company with the Chicago platform, I believe his party will part company with him," were the significant words uttered by Representative Oates as he discussed the situation. "The Chicago platform upon which he was nominated, and which the people endorsed in such thundering tones last November, calls for the repeal of the Sherman law and the maintenance of gold and silver as money upon a parity. Any scheme which contemplates the abandonment of the use of silver is antagonistic to that declaration of principles and will not be supported by the congress that is to convene next week."

Mr. Oates looks for the repeal of the Sherman law with a condition that will provide for the free coinage of silver at an increased ratio.

Senator Squire of Washington is one of the few western senators who takes the ground that the president should be allowed to deal with the silver question in his own discretion. He believes that it would be good policy for congress to pass a joint resolution permitting the president to suspend the operation of the silver purchase section of the Sherman law in his discretion.

Mr. Bland, the champion of free coinage, arrived yesterday and was soon in consultation with three members of his faith who are in the city. He said the friends of silver had agreed upon no plan of campaign other than that they were opposed to the repeal of the Sherman law unless they were first given free coinage of silver.

HORACE GREELEY'S MAXIM

Has Been Reversed by the Silver Kings of the Sierras.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—The World today has a long article indicating that the metropolis will soon be overrun by an army of idle men. Statistics from 57 trades in New York city are given to show that in these trades alone over 36,000 men are out of work, and it is declared that this represents only a portion of the city's unemployed. It is stated that thousands are coming here from the west in search of employment and that immigrants are tarrying in New York because of business stagnation in western states.

It is also pointed out that the host of idlers is being daily increased by the shutting down of factories, and the claim is made that manufacturers who do not close their mill doors are importing pauper labor. Western cities, it is claimed, feed and forward the tramps to New York free of cost, and it is hinted that the statistics may point out bread riots in the near future. The statement is made that Horace Greeley's maxim, "Go west, young man," has been reversed by the silver kings of the Sierras.

Quick Work.

NORRISTOWN, Pa., Aug. 4.—At 11:55 yesterday notice was posted throughout the Woodstock yarn mills of J. Morton Brown & Co. to the effect that the mills would suspend operations at noon. On five minutes' notice nearly 200 operatives were thrown out of employment. Soon afterward a levy was made on the property under execution on a judgment for $151,000.

Does France Want More?

LONDON, Aug. 4.—A dispatch from Bangkok says: Nothing has been done yet to carry out the presumed instructions to the French officials to raise the blockade. Residents are still very anxious. The opinion is that Rear Admiral Hamann is delaying in the hope that events may enable France to increase her demands.

After the Fair Is Over.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—The bonds of the World's fair officials, found guilty by Judge Stein of contempt of court in violating the closing injunction by closing the fair to the public Sunday, July 23, were filed yesterday. The case will not be called before the end of next October.

THE ADDRESSES of the speakers at the mass meeting on Wednesday evening, are generally commended by all law-abiding citizens who attended, but we find among some of our most respected citizens who take pride in the good name of the city, a feeling that the charges in the call for the meeting were not sustained. They were rather sweeping: "To protest against the desecration of the Christian Sunday as it is now being openly carried on throughout the length and breadth of our city, contrary both to to the civil laws of the Commonwealth and to the higher laws of of God. * * * the greatest evil which now threatens the welfare and good name of the city of Quincy."

The speakers, with the exception of the chairman, acknowledged that they "did not know what the trouble was here." The addresses were not local but general, and as stated above were profitable, interesting and will doubtless result in good. To quote from our report of yesterday, about the only local charge was that of Mr. King, that "there is a great deal of truth in the statement that the Sabbath is is not kept in this city as it should be. That some places are open for business as on other days. That at our beaches amusements have beenprovided."

The above is doubtless a fact, and yet Quincy is one of the quietest, most peaceful and best governed cities in the country. There is remarkably little disturbance, drunkeness or rowdyism, and it should not be claimed in such a sweeping manner that the Christian Sunday is being desecrated throughout the length and breadth of the city.

IN AN item published in the LEDGER of July 24, it was stated that the Stoughton Water Company had offered to sell its works to the town for $59,500. We are now informed that the above was not true, and that the company has made no such offer.

AWARD OF COMMISSIONERS.

City of Quincy Against the Quincy Water Company.

We the undersigned Commissioners appointed by this Honorable Court in the above entitled cause to determine the compensation to be paid by the said City of Quincy to the said Quincy Water Company for the franchise, corporate property and all the rights and privileges of said corporation, as by the warrant of this Honorable Court herewith returned, will appear have met and viewed the premises and heard the parties and their counsel and witnesses on sundry days between Dec. 31, 1892 and July 18th, 1893, and have duly considered the proofs and arguments, and we do award and finally determine concerning all the matters submitted to us that the compensation to be paid by said City to said Corporation for said franchise, corporate property and rights and privileges is the sum of five hundred and fifteen thousand, six hundred and forty dollars and seven cents ($515,640.07) with interest from April 30, 1892.

Said sum is the amount of our valuation, to wit:—$525,427.60 after adding the sum of $1,121.69 collected by said City for account of said Corporation and deducting the sum of $10,909.22 collected by said Corporation for account of said City as requested and agreed by the parties. It appeared in evidence before us that said property of said corporation is subject to a mortgage to secure bonds amounting to $250,000, and this award contemplates the giving of a clear title to said franchise, corporate property and rights and privileges, free of all encumbrances, liens and charges.

The fees and expenses of the Commissioners are thirty-eight hundred and fifty dollars ($3850). The Commissioners award that this sum be paid by the said city of Quincy, the parties having left this subject to our decision.

JOHN LOWELL,
EDWARD H. BENNETT,
CHARLES W. CLIFFORD,
Commissioners.

Dated Boston, July 26, 1893.

THE SUNDAY LAWS.

Full Text of the Section on the Resolution with the Amendment.

The Sunday laws which the mass meeting desire enforced are contained in the following:

Section 2 of Chapter 98 of the Public Statutes reads:

"Whoever on the Lord's day keeps open his shop, warehouse, or workhouse, or does any manner of labor, business, or work, except works of necessity and charity, or takes part in any sport, game, or play, or, except as allowed or prohibited in the preceding section, is present at any dancing or public diversion, show, game or entertainment, shall be punished by fine not exceeding $50 for each offence."

Chapter 391 of the Acts of 1887 amended the above section as follows:

But nothing in this section shall be held to prohibit the manufacture and distribution of steam, gas or electricity for illuminating purposes, heat or motive power.

Nor the distribution of water for fire or domestic purposes.

Nor the use of the telegraph or the telephone.

Nor the retail sale of drugs and medicines, nor articles ordered by the prescription of a physician, nor mechanical appliances used by physicians or surgeons.

Nor the letting of horses and carriages.

Nor the letting of yachts and boats.

Nor the running of steam ferryboats on established routes.

Of street railway cars.

Nor the preparation, printing and publishing of newspapers.

Nor the sale and delivery of newspapers.

Nor the retail sale and delivery of milk.

Nor the transportation of milk.

Nor the making of butter and cheese.

Nor the keeping open of public bath houses.

Nor the making or selling by bakers or their employes of bread, or other food usually dealt in by them before ten of the clock in the morning and between the hours of four of the clock and half past six of the clock in the evening.

The Professional Women's League.

The greatest woman's club in the world, as the professional women call their league, met Wednesday afternoon at 29 West Thirtieth street. Well known actresses in pretty summer gowns sat side by side with women whose faces perhaps were not quite so familiar to the public, but whose gowns were quite as pretty. There was a freemasonry about the assemblage which would have been a revelation to people who think that actresses systematically slander and criticise each other.

It might also have been a surprise to these people to see several scores of women, who are not expected to know anything but their art in its narrowest sense, listen with close interest and attention to a thoughtful and serious paper on music and then discuss it intelligently and critically. The paper was read by Miss Marie Merrick, who selected the piano stool as her point of delivery, so that at any time she could turn to the keyboard to illustrate her words. In this manner she gave examples of the way to produce certain varieties of tone and then excited a good deal of laughter by showing how not to do it.

At the close of the reading her listeners plied her with questions, and little impromptu talks were given by Miss Fannie Gillette and Miss Grace Addison. Miss Katharine Stagg, who was the presiding officer, closed the discussion, and then the company separated into groups, and for an hour conversation flowed at high tide. A reporter found that almost every group was engaged in the discussion of dramatic art, a mighty intelligent discussion, too, with a startling abundance of polysyllables.—New York Letter.

The sounding-board of piano, the most important part of the instrument, is made of American spruce and is as carefully chosen as the wood for a violin.

MANET BEACH.

Many enjoyed the music furnished by the Houghs Neck symphony in Mr. J. L. Harvey's Concert hall.

Ladies' day at the Quincy Yacht Club today.

A spread was given to lady friends by the residents of Saint's Rest last evening. A musical treat was enjoyed and then refreshments were served. Mr. W. F. Macy acted as master of ceremonies. Among the invited guests were Mr. and Mrs. Whitemore, Mrs. Whitemore, Miss Hattie E. Pierce, Mrs. Pierce, Mrs. Holly, Miss Holly, Miss Cushman, Mr. Harry Martin.

The meeting which was held at Mears' pavilion last evening for the purpose of deciding when and how the illumination of '93 should be celebrated proved in some respects to be a very stormy one. The rupture was caused, as usual by the feeling of rivalry between the two factions of the beach. Fireworks caused the discussion, and fireworks in rhetoric was the result.

The illumination business was dropped and the speakers drifted very foolishly into the realms of flying horses and the Sunday law. A heated discussion ensued which so disgusted Mr. Downey and the other members of the committee that they resigned in a body. This feud if carried to any further extent will kill (like the Kilkenney cats) both factions.

After the first few business transactions had been settled, the question of ice cream and the like were dropped and the "Old Resident" sat upon. The meeting was adjourned at 9 o'clock with nothing definite determined except the date of August 30, as the date of the illumination. The tremendous applause of Mr. Souther added greatly to the enthusiasm of the meeting.

The "Bird's Nest" Cottage owned by Webster Tileston of Dorchester was entered by burglars this week and a quantity of clothing and bedding stolen.

Another Doctor

Has written on sea bathing. Dr. W. M. Powell says in the Ladies' Home Journal:

It is not wise to allow children to remain in the water over five minutes and they should be at once taken to the bath house and not permitted to play in the wet bathing clothes on the beach. Before entering the water always wet the head, and if the sun is very hot the head should be protected by a light straw bathing hat. If children are afraid of the water they should not be forced.

The proper way is to get them gradually accustomed to it; have them dressed in their bathing clothes, and allow them to play on the beach, when they will, of their own accord, go to the water's edge and gradually find their way in. Many children do not dread the water, and they may do much in allaying the fears of the more timid. Three or four sea baths a week are quite sufficient for even the strongest of children. After the bath a thorough rubbing down should be given, and the child quickly dressed, then allowing him to resume his play in a warm spot.

There is no advantage derived from taking an infant into the sea, and the practice which is frequently seen upon our beach of taking babies of only a few months old, screaming with terror, and dipping them time after time under the waves, seems almost inhuman. It is neither necessary or practicable to take children under two years of age into the surf; for these the heated salt water bath is an excellent substitute. The temperature of the water of this bath should be between 75 degrees and 85 degrees F., and should be followed, as after the surf bath, by a thorough and vigorous rubbing with a coarse towel, especially in the region of the spine.

Mrs. Annie E. Faxon, Secretary,

DEAR MADAM: I noticed in last week's Quincy PATRIOT a request from you to send some reading matter to the Quincy Hospital. As mention is made of the Ladies' Home Journal, I take pleasure in complying with the request, so far as that publication is concerned, and have given instructions to have fifty copies mailed at once.

Very truly yours,
The Ladies' Home Journal,

BALCONY GAVE WAY.

An Entertainment at Chelsea Has a Tragic Ending.

FOUR PERSONS ARE KILLED

And Many Injured by Falling a Distance of Forty Feet.

CHELSEA, Mass., Aug. 4.—Four people were killed and many more painfully injured by the falling of the second balcony of the Chelsea Yacht clubhouse at Chelsea at 8:15 o'clock last evening. The killed are:

John P. Warren, 40 years old, leader of Warren's militia band, married, who lived at the corner of Pearl street and Congress avenue, this city.

A. L. Pemberton, member of Warren's band, 24 years old, single; lived at Melrose.

Mrs. Augustus P. Schuman, 40 years old, of 11 George street, this city.

Mrs. Frank R. Putnam, 25, of 139 Walnut street, this city.

The injured thus far reported are; Thomas Mitten, a member of the band, compound fracture of the left arm; Mrs. Lizzie E. Barnes of West Third street, Chelsea, right eye badly bruised; Miss Josie Grimes, left arm broken, head cut and injured internally; Miss Sadie Davis, internal injuries, not dangerous; Miss Georgie Davis, compressed fracture of the frontal bone, fracture at base of skull, broken arm and bad lacerations; Mrs. Mortimer, bad bruises; Miss Annie Farley, extremities injured; Charles Foy, back and left leg sprained; Jeremiah McCarthy, numerous injuries; Fannie Newman, slight injuries; Mary Billman, slightly injured; Mrs. Mary Van Varce, injured internally. Jeremiah McCarthy received his injuries in attempting to save Miss Grimes and to protect Band Master Warren's body.

An Excited City.

Occurring as it did in the middle of the evening, the streets were well filled with people and in half an hour the wildest rumors had gained circulation.

Some said that 100 people had been carried to the naval and marine hospital close by injured, and others said that several hundred were hurt and that more than a dozen were dead.

The greatest excitement prevailed all over the city. Scores rushed to the hospitals and hundreds to the clubhouse and the police station to learn if relatives or friends who were known to be present were killed or injured.

The occasion at the clubhouse was the second annual examination of the club's new building. It was hung with Chinese lanterns, the yachts about it were decorated and all was festivity.

About 200 people were strolling about the spacious boathouse. Warren's band of 12 musicians was stationed at one end of the second balcony, and besides these persons there were probably 50 ladies and gentlemen on the balcony.

Suddenly and without a second's warning

Floor of the Piazza Dropped Out

and down went almost everyone on it 40 feet to the floating raft, the boathouse being on Chelsea bridge.

The victims did not scream and there was scarcely a sound beside the cracking of boards. Everyone seemed as if paralyzed by the awful sight till it was over, then the awful scramble began.

Some who had caught the railing and other things within their reach held on a few seconds and then fell. One by one, almost, it seemed, more and more tumbled headlong from the building on the heads of those below.

Some one ran to box 15 and rang in a fire alarm. Then the police alarm was rung, summoning the whole police department.

Everybody who was not hurt took hold to help care for the injured.

Last night the Rufus S. Frost general hospital

Proved a Godsend to Chelsea and it took the best of care of all its patients.

Nearly all the physicians in the city were on hand. Several went to the boathouse immediately after the catastrophe and rendered aid to the sufferers, though all four of those who afterward died were beyond assistance.

The balcony which was the cause of the accident was 60 feet long and 10 feet wide. It is the second piazza and is over the water, about 40 feet above it.

Fred F. Tufts was out in a canoe, and at the time of the accident was idly paddling about. When the crash came he, in his excitement, overturned his canoe, and found himself struggling in the water. When he looked up he saw hanging by one hand from the railing, with no other support in reach, 40 feet above the water. She bravely clung to her support while he made frantic efforts to reach her. One man, less excited than the rest, helped her out of her perilous position and she was not seriously injured.

Mrs. Alexander Geary, with her baby in arms, and Mrs. Beattie were sitting on the balcony. They fell to the raft below, and remarkable as it may seem, both women and child escaped unhurt.

What Caused It.

An examination of the fatal veranda after the accident gives cause for surprise, not that it happened, but that it had not happened long ago. The affair was weak and frail, and by no means fitted to hold a crowd of any size. It appeared dry, and the timbers were splintered like laths.

The veranda is about 60 feet long. It was supported by several studs, held by outer posts and the building. One of these studs, 15 feet from the left end, caused the disaster. When the weight of the crowd settled upon the stud it proved incapable of supporting it and gave way. As a result, the flooring on both sides, from the end rail on one side and to the next stud on the other, dropped in until it touched the balcony below.

The stud was pulled completely out of the socket, where it was mortised to the post, and the floor planking at either end was drawn out in a similar manner. The lower balcony was uninjured, save for the destruction of the rail where the upper one struck it.

A Visit From Dr. Walker.

SOMERVILLE, Mass., Aug. 4.—Dr. Mary Walker yesterday called on Mrs. Norcross, the mother of Norcross, who threw the bomb at Russell Sage. Later in the day she visited the glass works on Webster avenue. She was dressed in her customary Prince Albert coat and trousers.

VACATION ENDED.

President Cleveland Leaves Gray Gables Today For Washington.

BUZZARD'S BAY, Mass., Aug. 4.—The presidential party leaves here this afternoon by way of the Fall River line for Washington. Secretary Lamont arrived here from Sorrento and joined the party.

Mr. Cleveland remained home all day yesterday with his guest, Secretary Carlisle. It is presumed that the president read his message over to the secretary and the latter profferred whatever suggestions that appeared necessary. The president, it is understood, sent for Mr. Carlisle to come to Gray Gables before the message was read to his cabinet.

Attorney General Olney slipped off yesterday afternoon for an hour's chat with the president. He will return to Washington with the president.

The president, Mrs. Cleveland and Mr. Carlisle drove over to the village last evening. The local correspondents here went to the Gables last night for their last routine call. The president would not see them. Mr. Carlisle was asked for, and he sent out his regrets.

Accidentally Shot Himself.

BOSTON, Aug. 4.—Little Johnny Kelly, who fell a distance of 65 feet from the City Press association rooms a short time ago without seriously injuring himself, is again in bad luck. He had no sooner recovered from his injuries and removed to the house of Mrs. M. D. Frazar of Somerville when he found a revolver belonging to Mrs. Frazar's son, and not knowing that it was loaded shot a bullet through his left hand,

Lawrence Feels Easier.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Aug. 4.—The city of Lawrence has had no difficulty in borrowing $140,000 from local parties, and yesterday borrowed $20,000 at 6 per cent. Depositors in savings banks do not feel any uneasiness and there are but few calls for money. In all the banks it is stated that the outlook is brighter.

Sadly Afflicted.

BOSTON, Aug. 4.—Walter W. Morse, 33 years of age, married, the foreman of a granite quarry at Marlboro, N. H., lost both of his eyes and had his face badly burned by the premature explosion of a blast at the quarry. He was brought to the Massachusetts general hospital last evening.

Alleged Forger Goes Free.

BOSTON, Aug. 4.—Judge Nelson of the United States district court discharged Morissette, the man who was wanted by the Canadian government on a charge of forgery. Ex-District Attorney Allen appeared for the Canadian government with the crown prosecutor.

Dragging Along.

BROCKTON, Mass., Aug. 4.—At the fourth evening's trial of Rev. Mr. Thompson the most interesting testimony was that of the church committee who visited the Hotel Clifford at Boston, and corroborated the pastor's statement that it was a good boarding place.

Sold at a Big Discount.

LEOMINSTER, Mass., Aug. 4.—The H. M. Richardson carpet factory was sold under a foreclosure by the Leominster Savings bank, the bank's claim being $14,000. The plant cost $75,000. It brought $14,750. It is reported that Tilton & Cook will have the property.

Burns Caused His Death.

BOSTON, Aug. 4.—Joseph Hankard, 2 years old, was terribly burned by playing with live coals from the kitchen fire at his home, 265 Paris street, yesterday, and died from the effects of his injuries.

Long Walk Ended.

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 4.—George Lavery, a Brooklyn man who walked from New London, Conn., to Portland, completed his 300-mile journey yesterday. He has averaged 30 miles a day.

THE WATER AWARD.

Boston Advertiser in Editorial Terms It a Suggestive Precedent.

The following editorial is from the Boston Advertiser and will be of interest:

"The award to the Quincy Water Co., requiring the city of Quincy to pay the company $515,000 for the plant with its rights and privileges, is of unusual interest because so many cities and towns of the Commonwealth are endeavoring to effect a like transfer from water corporations. The commissioners' decision in the case is the first to be rendered in the State, and therefore ought to be a valuable precedent.

The Quincy Water Co. had been in possession of the property in working order for eight years when the city asked that the plant be turned over to itself, the charter under which the company worked providing that the city might assume possession at any time. The company set a price of $1,300,000 on the property and litigation at once began. In the course of this litigation lasting, at various hearings before the commissioners, from December of last year to the middle of July, it appeared from the books of the company that

Of construction was $856,000 and that a floating debt, incurrred for contingent expenses to perfect the system, amounted to $95,000, making the total cost $451,000.

Bonds to the amount of $250,000 were issued, and the nominal amount of stock out was first placed by the company at $250,000. This was at once scaled down to $125,000, when an officer of the company admitted that one-half the stock was issued back to the original stockholders as a legal fiction—in other words, was simply watered stock. It further appeared from the books that $25,000 in cash had really been paid in to cover the $125,000 issue, so that the stock of $250,000 really represented only $25,000 paid in cash.

The commission appointed by the supreme court had then the question of reimbursement. These men were Hons. John Lowell, E. H. Bennett and C. W. Clifford. It is to be regretted that none of them are now in town to

Explain the Method

Of arriving at the reward of $515,000, but the following items must be included: Bonds to the amount of $250,000, a floating debt of $95,000, water rent collected by the city, $10,000, interest on bonds since the city took possession, $18,750, owed by the city on account of supply, $1100—a total of $374,850. Then came the problem of reimbursing the stockholders for their cash paid in on the stock account. The commissioners did not evidently place any reliance upon the company's figures of $125,000, as in that case the award would have shown only $16,000 profit to the stockholders as reimbursement for their franchise, corporate, rights and hazard. Evidently the only figures upon which reliance could be implicitly placed were the $25,000 in cash, appearing on the books.

Taking upon this, then, as the actual cash paid in the reimbursement clearly due the company was the total of the bonds, the floating debt, water rentals, interest on bonds, etc., $374,850, together with the cash payment of $25,000—a total of $399,850. In round numbers, then, the award being $515,640 the company receives

A Profit of $116,000

For its eight years' tenancy of a privilege granted by this Commonwealth and, leaving aside the grave questions of the illegality of the issue of the company's stock, an enormous profit from a cash expenditure in the first instance of $25,000.

The books of the company were kept in such a fashion that it was with difficulty that experts could arrive at any decision regarding the stock issue. This fact only emphasizes the necessity of a law applying to the peculiar methods of bookkeeping employed by corporations which sooner or later are to be turned over to the municipal control. Such a law should be enacted.

As a precedent for the cases of other towns which are asking for arbitration by commissioners, the award in the Quincy case is instructive; yet so exorbitant were the demands of the Quincy Water Co., both for their property and by the appraisals of their experts, who testified on the stand, that the city of Quincy is Said to be Satisfied.

We hope that the commissioners will see fit to add a supplementary report to the one now filed, giving the items of which the $515,000 award is made up. How much went to actually reimburse the water company for expenditure, how much as interest on the $25,000 which the stock represented, how much as a general salve to the company. The latter item ought to be small, if taken in connection with the terribly blind way in which the company's books were kept, and the gross illegality of the issue of watered stock,—even though it was approved by the officer appointed to prevent just such acts,—but it ought to be large if intended as a warning to other cities and towns not to avail themselves of the law which is supposed to give them the option to take possession of private water companies upon a reasonable compensation to the owners thereof.

As You Like It,

Or what's to become of our silver dollars! If this is the question you wish to solve, here's the way out of the difficulty. Invest your money in good furniture, and like land it will not depreciate,—that's how it differs from the mighty silver dollar. Let us illustrate a feature of the business being done by Henry L. Kincaide & Co. A delightful antique finished chamber set, ten pieces complete, neat, attractive and durable, the kind that adds the charm of dignity to your home,—the price seems absurdly little, $18.75. You may look at it today, tomorrow, or in years to come. Your investment remains good value for the dollars invested, and you reap the benefit.

Common Things.

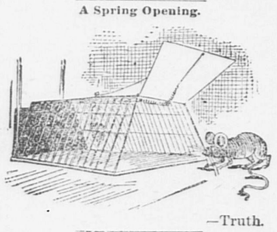

Give me, dear Lord, thy magic common things,
Which all can see, which all may share—
Sunlight and dewdrops, grass and stars and sea—
Nothing unique or new and nothing rare.

Just daisies, knapweed, wind among the thorns;
Some clouds to cross the blue old sky above;
Rain, winter fires, a useful hand, a heart,
The common glory of a woman's love.

Then, when my feet no longer tread old paths—
Keep them from fouling sweet things anywhere—
Write one old epitaph in grace-lit words,
"Such things look fairer that he sojourned here."

Rooms Banked In Flowers.

A London weekly notes the growth in extravagance of floral decorations and cites an instance of a ball recently given by an Australian lady where the ballroom was a mass of mauve and white orchids, while another room was draped in white and yellow orchids. Bowers of roses were in abundance. The stairs were festooned with roses, stephanotis and smilax, tied up with pink and yellow satin ribbons. Even the electric lights peeped bewitchingly from between sprays of yellow and white flowers, and the hostess was dressed to match in white satin and yellow velvet. Flower baskets hung everywhere, and draperies of art silk were looped up with flowers. Two halls, a large staircase and six or seven rooms in all were decorated, and the whole must have cost a small fortune.

Southern Colleges Open to Women.

The cause of woman's education receives new stimulus in the south by the action of the trustees of the University of Alabama at Tuscaloosa and of the Tennessee State university in Knoxville in voting to throw open their doors to the daughters as well as the sons of the two states. In the former they must be at least 18 years old. In Tennessee it will be sufficient for them to have reached the age of 17. The women of Knoxville are raising a fund to build a dormitory for the girls.

Booth's Carefulness.

A Boston jeweler who had occasion from time to time to manufacture jewels for Edwin Booth, the tragedian, to be worn in different characters, says he was extremely conscientious in having them made not only of the best material, but as near as possible historically correct. In having a costly crown of gold and precious stones made for the character of Richard III he sent to London to get the correct design. So in the jewels for the character of Richelieu he took great pains to consult the best authorities. It did not satisfy him to be told that the real could not be distinguished from the imitation on the stage; hence he bought the costliest laces and materials for his costumes.—New York Tribune.

Burge and Dempsey Matched.

ST. PAUL, Aug. 4.—Jack Dempsey is matched to battle with Dick Barge for $10,000 a side and the lightweight championship of the world. The match is to come off between Nov. 1, 1893, and Jan. 1, 1894. Dempsey will go into training at once.

British Discount Rate Goes Up.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—The directors of the Bank of England have decided to advance the rate of discount to 3 per cent. The advance is attributed to the further large withdrawal of gold and the probability of fresh shipments.

St. Paul Bank Closes.

ST. PAUL, Aug. 4.—The National German-American bank of St. Paul, with a capital of $200,000, did not open its doors this morning.

Assets of Two Millions.

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 4.—The assignees of the Kansas City Safe Deposit and Savings bank, which suspended payment three weeks ago, has filed an inventory of the institution's assets. The total assets are given at $2,044 217.

Lots of Gold In California.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 4.—During the past three months $3,800,000 worth of fine gold has been received by the Bank of California as the product of California gold mines and smelters.

Killed by Rebels.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—A dispatch from Buenos Ayres says that the vice governor of Santa Fe has been killed by the rebels.

HADDOCK PITCHED.

Boston Got on to Him In the Seventh Inning and Won.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Haddock was all right for six long innings and during those the Bostons got but one hit—that made by Nash in the fifth. In the seventh the visiting batsmen fell upon George and smote him hard. Four hits, counting a home run, were made, and these, with two vile errors by the usually reliable Keeler, netted the Bostons five runs. They won the game right there. Sharrott replaced Haddock in the eighth and Boston got two more hits, sharp fielding alone keeping them from scoring. Nichols pitched for Boston and was as effective as ever. It was only now and then that the Brooklyns got in a hit. In the last inning Nichols was hit just enough to make Brooklyn think of tying the score, but they did not even come near doing so.

OHIO POLITICS.

Baker and Others Willing to Become the Successor of Governor McKinley.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 4.—The withdrawal of Walter B. Richie as a possible candidate for nomination for governor by the Ohio Democratic convention, and ex-Governor Campbell's reported refusal to be a candidate, gives rise to great mystery as to the probable choice of the convention.

Colonel W. A. Taylor, who made a gallant fight for the office of secretary of state two years ago, is a pronounced candidate. Hon. Charles W. Baker of this city has openly declared his willingness to wear the honor, and the friends of Hon. John Farley of Cleveland are urging his claims. Altogether it is not possible at this time to name the winning men.

A Spotted Spotter.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 4.—Roderick S. Burbon, aged 58 years, who has been a railway postal clerk for 29 years, was arrested at Lynchburg, Va., for robbing the mails. He confessed his guilt. Burbon was a trusted man and was frequently employed on detecting dishonest railway employes.

To Enjoy Her Wealth.

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 4.—Sister Francis Antoinette, of the Order of St. Joseph, daughter of the late Patrick Brennan, a retired capitalist who died last May, leaving an estate of about $75,000, has laid aside the nun's habit and henceforth will live beyond convent walls.

'Twas a Big One.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 4.—An iceberg 300 feet high and 450 feet long by actual measurement was passed by the steamship Fonar. There was a hole drilled directly through its center, through which the wind was making a noise like thunder.

Five of the condemned Armenians were executed in spite of the intercession of the British government.

HEPATICAS.

Shiest of nature's brood,
Retreating to the wood,
Just at its edge a refuge have ye found;
Like partridge chicks in fright,
Keeping yourselves from sight
Under the dry leaves covering the ground.

Ye would not shrink so much
From our fond sight and touch
If only our hearts' feelings could be known:
We wait with watching eyes
To mark your mild surprise
That, coming early, ye come not alone.

The bluebird yesterday
Came flying home this way.
He piped his very sweetest song of you;
In fullest faith and love
We are now here to prove
That bluebird's prophecy shall turn out true.

We push the leaves away,
And there in silken gray
Has nature tenderly wrapped up your forms:
Open for us your eyes,
Look to the April skies,
Blue as in summer after heavy storms.

Within the opening lid
A thought of blue is hid,
A memory of heavens watched long ago;
A dream ye fondly kept
All that long night ye slept
Beneath the downy coverlets of snow.

A WHISTLING GIRL.

Gimptown was an old fashioned burg full of old fashioned people, not one of whom pretended to deny that Mellie Rose was the prettiest, liveliest girl in the place.

Now, although Gimptown folk had reluctantly succumbed to the inroads of progress insomuch that they admitted there were no witches they still clung persistently to wise old saws. Why not call them the wornout old saws and relegate them to the rubbish heap of other bygone misconceptions?

Thus it happened that while other girls were "spoke for" as soon as they came of age sweet Mellie Rose wasted her sweetness upon transient lovers.

Joshua Jones, the most appreciative of these, had remarked to his mother: "Now, mammy, I don't believe there's a thing wrong with Mellie. I like her mighty well."

"Gracious, Josh!" said she, holding up her hands in horror. "If you're a-gettin stuck on that gal, you had just better get over it as quick as possible. My grief! A whistling gal in the Jones family! Ugh!"

So honest Josh put aside his sentiment by muttering, "Yes, I suppose 'whistling gals and crowing hens' is as true today as it ever was."

Josh was right. This old saw is just as true today as it was when the lunatic of long ago manufactured it. Accordingly he married a "good housekeeper" who never whistled, and Mellie seemed destined to be an old maid.

In Gimptown a girl became an old maid if she was not "keeping regular company" by the time she was 21.

"I can't see why Mell can't be like other girls," said her Aunt Dorothy, who didn't believe in old maids. "Can't you stop this whistling, Mellie?" she asked her one day.

"I'll try, auntie," replied the innocent girl.

So for a week or so she went about looking as demure as possible, but it was uphill work.

"Got a new minister. They say he's a young man. I'll invite him in. No telling in he might—but no, of course not! Well, I'll invite him anyhow," said Aunt Dorothy.

A week or two after this she was busying herself making the little parlor look tidy, when a knock sounded on the door. She ushered in a fine looking young man, with a decided clerical air, but pleasant and kindly withal.

The pastor and his hostess were soon talking quietly on parish matters. In the next room there was a rattle as of some one washing dishes.

"I'll call Mellie as soon as she finishes her work," Aunt Dorothy was saying, when, horrors! there arose in that young lady's clear, piccololike whistle the familiar notes of "Old Hundred." Poor Mellie had kept her mouth in its normal position for two whole weeks, but now, to the time of rattling crockery, the notes rose and fell with startling distinctness.

Aunt Dorothy turned red and then white, fidgeted about and finally, when the assortment of noises stopped, went into the kitchen saying as she went, "Excuse me, Mr. Haviland, and I'll tell Mellie to come in."

With blood curdling coolness she said to her niece: "The new minister is here. Come in and be introduced." That was what her mouth uttered, but her eyes said: "Now you've done it with that whistle of yours! Let's see how you'll get out of it."

Mellie followed the irate lady.

"Mr. Haviland, my niece, Miss Rose."

One would have supposed that a real rose could not be much redder, but when Mr. Haviland said in an amused tone, "Your brother is a fine whistler," then one knew that Mellie's first blush was a mere tinge of color.

"I—I have no brother," she replied honestly, so the evidently painful subject was dropped.

"A remarkably fine young lady," thought the young minister as he was returning to his boarding place, "and evidently as innocent as her name. It's so dull here. I really must cultivate her acquaintance."

So the fleeting summer days found the Rev. Mr. Haviland often at Aunt Dorothy's house or in Mellie's company wandering upon the rocky banks of the river.

To the young lady these bits of sunshine in her life were snatches from dreamland. To hear the educated young man discourse upon the people and things of the big, big world was so different from the humdrum talk and gossip of Gimptown.

Her aunt thought: "Fancy! I do believe the parson's a-getting interested in Mell. Now, if she'll only keep that whistle o' her's quiet who knows?—something may come of it!"

Gimptown in general said it was almost scandalous that so fine a young man should be "took in" by a pretty face, when everyone knew that face was disfigured by a whistling mouth.

Miss Smith, whose age was an unknown quantity between 20 and 40, and who had set her cap so often that that article was badly frayed around its figurative edges, said, "No, he shan't be bamboozled, not if I have to warn him myself!"

And it is on record that she did warn the daring man.

In spite of all this opposing element in his flock, Mr. Haviland could not help thinking how dull life would be without a certain flower whose perfume he alone seemed to have discovered.

One bright September day he walked over to Aunt Dorothy's little cottage, intending to invite Mellie to accompany him upon an errand of mercy. As he reached the gate he stopped a moment. The front door was wide open. Mellie, dressed in pink calico, with a cap of the same material only partly concealing her fluffy brown hair, was busily engaged with broom and duster in the hall. There was a happy look upon her innocent face. When, as if birdlike, she could not restrain her joy, the ruby lips puckered bewitchingly, and the notes of a hymn trilled forth with startling clearness and truth.

Suddenly the unconscious warbler was electrified into silence by the sharp words, "Perfectly shocking, isn't it?"

Glancing up, she saw Aunt Dorothy standing with watering can in hand as if preparing to water her own feet, which seemed rooted to the ground.

She was staring at Mr. Haviland, who leaned upon the gate with a puzzled expression upon his face.

Not waiting to hear his answer Mellie fled to her own room, where she indulged in that which seldom spoiled her happy face—a good "cry." For she doubted not that she had forfeited her place in the minister's esteem.

She was not surprised, then, when Aunt Dorothy met her with: "Now you have done it! My goodness. I don't know what to do with you! You're enough to try a saint's patience!"

But Mellie was surprised when her aunt handed her a note from Mr. Haviland containing his request to accompany him to the house of some poor people who lived several miles away.

"Shall I go?" she asked her aunt.

"Of course? No use making matters worse by refusing."

So Mellie said she would accompany the minister, though her sensitive nature rebelled against the trial.

After packing a basket of food for the poor people, Mellie waited in nervous anxiety for her escort. When he arrived, she quietly allowed him to assist her into the trap, where she sat almost dumb, a pained expression upon her face.

"What is the matter with you today?" asked the minister as they trundled through the green fields.

Mellie trembled at his kindly tones, but she would not be drawn into conversation until——

But there, no matter! What right have we to intrude? Suffice it to say that the next day Mr. Haviland asked Aunt Dorothy for Mellie's hand.

That worthy dame could not help saying, "But, Mr. Haviland, she is a whistling girl, and you know"——

"There, there, don't say a word against the future mistress of the parsonage!" he interrupted.

And so, amid shocked Gimptown's surprised talk, the doomed old maid of 20 winters was converted into a happy bride of 20 summers.

Rumor has it that Miss Smith is practicing the much abused art of whistling. But heartless rumor also says that she whistles in vain.—Exchange.

Wine and Water.

The expert glanced along the list on the wine card as he sat at his table in the restaurant. "There is a pure wine," he said, putting his finger on a name. "It is really made in France and is made from grapes. Now here," passing to another name, "is precisely the same wine, but weaker, because it has been watered a little. Here it is in another disguise at a different price, and here it is watered to the third degree and cheapest of all. It isn't bad; only thin. Sometimes the watering has been done in France, sometimes it is done by bottlers in this country. Too often the adulterations are logwood and harsh spirits or raw alcohol. The kirschwasser of most of the New York restaurants would burn a hole through most stomachs in a week."—New York Sun.

Meeting of a Brother and Sister.

While H. M. S. Tourmaline was paying an official visit at Montreal a privileged company of citizens accepted an invitation to dine on board the stately vessel. Among these folks was a charming young lady, who, while inspecting the ship under the guidance of a smart bluejacket, entered into conversation with him and presently made the interesting discovery that they were brother and sister. During early childhood they lost their parents and were placed in an orphan asylum in London, from which institution the boy was sent to a training ship and the girl to a home in Canada. Eleven years then elapsed, during which they lost all trace of one another, until the strange coincidence described brought about their happy reunion.—London Tit-Bits.

—The town of Marlboro seemed to be awfully stuck-up and particular in its early days. In 1821 it passed a vote forbidding the school marms from bringing straw to school, probably for making baskets and straw hats, and they were not allowed to cut garments during school hours. They could knit and sew to their heart's content, but the line was drawn at that. It was also voted the same year that no child be admitted under the age of three. Just think of the hardships mothers were obliged to undergo in keeping their children at home until they were three years of age before they could start them out on an educational training!—Hudson Independent.

BLAND'S VIEW OF IT.

Will Fight Any Increase In Ratio of Silver Coinage.

HENDERSON'S NEW SCHEME

Which Democrats Could Adopt Without a Division.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—As soon after congress meets as it become practicable, Mr. Bland, the leader of the silver forces in the house, will introduce a bill embodying the views of the silver men. It will provide for the repeal of the Sherman purchasing act and substitute therefor the free coinage of silver at the present ratio of 16 to 1. "That," said Mr. Bland, "will be the ground upon which we will make the fight, although there has been no definite plan agreed upon."

He recognized that men could honestly differ as to the ratio, but that was a matter that should be settled in the party itself. Upon the use of both gold and silver as money at a parity, the Democratic party could not differ. If a compromise measure increasing the ratio was reached, he said he saw no reason why the present dollar should not be kept in circulation, as it was now. He proposed, however, with all his power to resist any increase in the ratio.

If the United States, Mexican and South American countries, together with the countries of Asia on our west, were to agree upon a common ratio, Mr. Bland thought we would have all the trade we wanted and would thereby force Europe to come to the use of silver as a money.

How Henderson Would Have It.

Representative Henderson of North Carolina has a plan for the adjustment of the silver question that he holds out to be satisfactory to the persons who wish to see the Democratic platform declarations carried into effect without creating a division in the party. As the platform calls for equal treatment of gold and silver, and as some Democrats do not deem it safe to provide for the free coinage of silver, he would withdraw that privilege from gold and provide for the coinage of bimetals on account of the government exclusively. This might be accomplished, he thinks, by presenting a bill requiring the absolute purchase of a certain proportion of each metal every month and the coinage of all the metal purchased. Congress might from time to time change these proportions as the needs of the country seemed to require and thus adjust the circulation to the demands of business.

Congressman Outhwaite of Ohio is one of the few western men who declares himself in favor of an immediate and unconditional repeal of the silver purchase section of the Sherman law. One point upon which Mr. Outhwaite takes strong ground is that the silver bullion now in the treasury should be coined at once and put into circulation and thus relieve the money stringency.

Bayard's Opinion.

WILMINGTON, Del., Aug. 5.—The Every Evening printed the following: In a private letter just received, Ambassador Bayard says: "I am looking somewhat anxiously to the meeting of congress and hope there will be no faltering in the resolve to maintain the gold unit of value. So far from depreciating the intrinsic value of silver bullion, I believe the cessation of storage and accumulation of stock will help the market price for this commodity as it would help any other commodity. Whatever future steps should be taken, a present step ending the purchase of silver bullion under the Sherman act is of the plainest duty and necessity."

Dockery's Position.

Dockery of Missouri, a leading member of the committee on appropriations, has planted himself squarely upon the Democratic platform and says he proposes to be guided by that document. He is, he said, an advocate of a double standard and paper money convertible into either gold or silver. Mr. Dockery would not state just how he stood on the proposition to repeal the Sherman law.

Fighting the Geary Act.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—The department of justice has ordered an appeal from the decision of Judge Davis in southern California that the deporting section of the Geary act is unconstitutional. This appeal may cause the whole matter to be again brought before the supreme court with a full bench.

Malietoa's Warriors Parade With Heads of Mataafa's Followers.

APIA, Samoa, via San Francisco, Aug. 5.—War broke out between Malietoa's and Mataafa's forces, but the warships of the three powers intervened and stopped the fighting. Mataafa and his chiefs surrendered. His loss was 30 killed and 20 wounded. Malietoa's army consisted of about 1000 fighting men, armed with rifles and axes. This army started on the morning of July 8 toward the seat of war.

Malietoa's army was far more powerful than Mataafa's, having plenty of arms and ammunition and many more warriors. When the attack came Mataafa's forces, being short of ammunition, retreated. Mataafa, seeing no hope of success and having lost his nephew, who was killed, ordered 19 boats to lie off Mulund, Malietoa's residence and stronghold, for the purpose of drawing Malietoa's attention, while, in the meantime, darkness setting in, he lowered his ensign, cut his flag pole and set fire to Maile.

This town was formerly the king's residence and was beautifully laid out in Samoan style. Mataafa's strategy with the boats being successful in keeping the army off, he departed with his followers for the island of Savia, another of the Samoan group.

That afternoon the conquerors, Malietoa's warriors, returned to Apia with the spoils of victory. These spoils consisted of the heads of human beings. Each man who had the luck to cut the head off an enemy marched through the streets of Apia with it.

HUNDREDS SLAUGHTERED

In an Engagement Between Revolutionists and Provincials.

VALPARAISO, Aug. 5.—Hard fighting is accompanying the siege of La Plata, where Governor Costa of the province of Buenos Ayres is practically cut off from communication with the capital by the revolutionary troops, who are infesting the city. The provincial forces have made repeated efforts to cut their way through the lines of the Civico Nacionales, but have failed.

During these engagements 400 men have been slaughtered. The siege has not yet been raised and the situation at La Plata has not changed. It is expected that there will be a great deal more fighting around that city before the trouble is ended.

Another revolution has been started in the province of Corrientes against the governor. It is reported that there have been fights in various towns between the police and the citizens who oppose the governor. The revolutionists have appealed to the national government to aid them in getting rid of the provincial executive. In the province of Santa Fe, where the Radicals and Civico Nacionales succeeded in overthrowing Governor Cafferata, a provisional government has been fully organized, with Calisto at its head.

RIOTOUS STRIKERS

Attack Non-Union Men at Work In Kansas Coal Mines.

PITTSBURG, Kan., Aug. 5.—Seventy-five striking miners yesterday laid in wait for the men at work in shaft No. 17 of the Kansas and Texas Coal company and made an assault upon them as they were going to work. All of them ran but one, Henry Smith, an American. He stood his ground and was brutally assaulted. He finally got out of the mob and made his way home, where he procured a revolver and started again for the mine. In the meantime a few deputy sheriffs had put in an appearance, and the mob dispersed. The mine is being operated with a full force. It is the intention of the company to enjoin all of the striking miners in the neighborhood of the mines in the federal courts. New men are coming in daily, and but few of the strikers will be given work, even if the strike is declared off.

Three Banks Close.

MANKATO, Minn., Aug. 5.—The First National bank closed its doors yesterday. The bank is solvent and depositors will be paid in full. The National Citizens' bank closed its doors also, and 15 minutes later the Mankato National bank closed its doors, giving the closing of the First National as the cause. This bank is perfectly solvent and claims that all depositors are safe.

Lumber Camp Ablaze.

BRADFORD, Pa., Aug. 5.—The lumber camp of Keshuqua is burning. Kane's big saw mill and boarding house and several tenements have already been destroyed and the fire has communicated to the lumber yards, which contain millions of feet of lumber.

Dainty Dish For Hogs.

WABASH, Ind., Aug. 5.—Farmers in this vicinity have begun to feed their new wheat to hogs. They claim that with corn at 50 cents a bushel it is cheaper to fatten swine on the wheat than take the chances of a possible advance in wheat.

Capitalist Commits Suicide.

SCRANTON, Pa., Aug. 5.—It is reported that President E. S. Moffett of the Lackawanna Iron and Steel company, who went abroad about six weeks ago for the benefit of his health, committed suicide in London yesterday by shooting himself.

Detectives Have Mrs. Meyer.

NEW YORK, Aug 5.—Detectives Von Gerichen and Trainor are on their way to New York with Mrs. Mary Meyer, wife of the alleged poisoner. They will arrive this afternoon. Mrs. Meyer is accompanied by her little son and her newly born babe.

Counterfeit $5 Bills.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—John P. Brooks, chief of the United States secret service in this city, is much alarmed over the circulation in this city of a number of $5 bills. Ciro Rainer and William Kuehne have been arrested, charged with offering the bills.

Schenectady's Conflagration.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Aug. 5.—Fire broke out at 11 o'clock last night in the office of Eugene Veeder, coal dealer, and burned over nearly an acre of space. The fire is supposed to be the work of incendiaries.

Free Once More.

SING SING, Aug. 5.—Official papers were received here for the pardon of Ishmael Freeman, colored, a life convict in Sing Sing prison, for murdering his wife in 1861. He has been imprisoned 32 years.

A SENSE OF RELIEF

Begins to Prevail Throughout the Financial World.

VOLUME OF DOMESTIC TRADE

Is but Very Little Below That of Last Year.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—R. G. Dun's Review of Trade says: Demoralization in speculative markets has been followed by a more healthy tone, and heavy imports of gold inspire hope that monetary troubles may abate. The week has been one of surprises. Enormous liquidation in wheat brought the lowest price ever known on Tuesday. The crash of the pork ring took out 5 per cent from the nominal price of that product in an hour and caused several failures for millions each. Extraordinary depression in stocks, and a slaughter which included some of the best, were quickly followed by a bear panic and sensational advances.

Meanwhile in money markets there has come a singular sense of relief, notwithstanding actual increase in present embarrassments almost amounting to paralysis of exchange between the chief commercial cities, and of many industrial works, because even 2 per cent premium for currency fails to secure what is needed for payment of wages. Hopes are nevertheless fixed on the ships bringing over $11,000,000 gold across the sea and on an extra session of congress which will begin on Monday.

'Tis an Ill Wind, Etc.

Some of the largest and boldest operators at Chicago have been crushed under pork barrels, but the instant increase of foreign purchases convinces the markets that the disaster has brought a certain measure of relief. The monetary stringency, which at last crushed speculations in wheat and hog products, had been caused in part by their prevention of exports and their absorption of enormous capital in carrying unprecedented stocks of products which, if sold in time to foreign consumers, would have brought gold enough to prevent much evil. Wheat has recovered about 4 cents, and pork $2 or more at Chicago, and orders for exports have caused a sudden advance in ocean freights.

The West Suffered Most.

Bank failures have been almost as numerous this week as for either of the two preceding weeks, but fewer have been of more than local importance. The western states show greater distrust or weakness than other sections; out of 169 banks failed since last March, five were in eastern states, four in southern and 151 in western states. Failures of national banks numbered 58, of state banks 79 and of private banks 67.

Closing of shops and works for lack of orders is the overshadowing fact, yet many stoppages are only for a few weeks, unless circumstances should lead managers to extend them, and it is believed that the consuming demand has not been reduced in proportion to the present decrease of production, so that better orders may presently enable many works to resume.

The Carnegie and some other iron works have almost ceased production, and as yet the demand brings no further stimulus, though prices in this line also are so low that most makers prefer to stop than to take lower. In boot and shoeshops, the situation is nearly the same, eastern shipments falling off about a quarter.

Better Than Expected.

The volume of domestic trade, indicated by railway earnings, is but 6 per cent smaller than last year, and clearings at the chief cities show a decrease of 15 per cent outside New York.

Failures during the week number 436 in the United States against 160 last year, and 34 in Canada against 24 last year. The west contributed most largely to the number of failures, 237 being reported from that section. In the east there were 155 and in the south 46. There were three failures of $1,000,000 or more, two at Chicago, due to the break in the pork deal, and one in New York city.

Backed by Labor Men.

ROCKLAND, Me., Aug. 5.—The American Federation of Labor, which has worked to secure the pardon of Clark and Miller, serving life sentences at Thomaston state prison for mutiny and murder on the schooner Jefferson Borden, has a delegate here in the person of Edward Cogan of Brockton, Mass., who will be engaged several months in exciting public sympathy for the prisoners.

Knocked Out For Good.

DENVER, Aug. 5.—As the result of a brutal prize fight at the rooms of the Ramblers' Cycling club Bobby Taylor, the sailor kid, is dead. The fight lasted 22 rounds and was decided a draw. Taylor's opponent was Kid Robinson, a negro. The men fought at 121 pounds, and when the fight was over both were badly used up and disfigured.

Flower Can't Act.

ALBANY, Aug. 5.—Correspondence has passed between Governor Flower and the officials of the reformatory in Elmira regarding an investigation into the management of that institution, in which the governor says he has no authority to order such an investigation.

Figures Show Up Well.

ST. PAUL, Aug. 5.—An approximate estimate of the figures showing the condition of the National German American bank gives the assets at $4,577,702.59 and the liabilities at $2,549,664. Daniel W. Lawler has been appointed receiver.

Judgment For Nearly $100,000.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—A judgment for $97,800 was entered against James Grange, bookbinder, who fled the city two months ago, in favor of George R. Sutherland, who was victimized by Grange on numerous forged notes.

More Currency.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Since Aug. 1 the comptroller of the currency has ordered currency printed, for issue on the security of United States bonds for national bank circulation, to the amount of $8,632,000.

Items of Interest from All Parts of Quincy.

Frederick Hardwick of South Quincy is on the sick list.

John Shea of Troy, N. Y., is the guest of James Dunn.

Albert Keating leaves today for a visit to Charlottetown, P. E. I.

Miss Florence Weeks of Exeter, N. H., is the guest of B. J. Weeks.

The weekly dances at the Pine Point house commence this evening.

Awnings have been placed in front of all the stores in the new Faxon block.

Will the Sunday laws be strictly enforced tomorrow is the question many are asking.

Miss Mary Moynihan of Water street is spending her vacation at Worcester and Jeffersonville.

Granite street is receiving a coat of stone dressing, which is being rolled down by the steam rollers.

A new life saving device is being placed on one of the cars of the Quincy and Boston street railway and will be tried next week.

The storm today will be a disappointment to many ball cranks, but will prove a blessing to the farmers, whose crops need the rain.

The Universalist church will be closed during the present month. Last Sunday the pastor gave notice that he would be ready to respond to all calls made upon him for services.

The Jordan & Marsh band of Boston, who are to go to the World's Fair will give a concert this evening if pleasant, in the Square from 7 to 7.30 o'clock, after which they will give a concert at Houghs Neck. Sunday afternoon and evening the same band will give a sacred concert at Houghs Neck.

The Stone Crusher.

We had the pleasure one day this week of visiting the new stone crushing plant erected the past winter and spring off South street, on land in the rear of Terrance Keenan's.

The city has leased of Mr. Keenan for ten years an old rusty granite quarry which is full of seams and the land near to the same on which the superintendent of streets has had erected an excellent granite crushing plant. In the engine house a 35-horse power boiler and a 30-horse power engine has been erected. A track of iron rails has been laid from the crusher, which is near the engine house, to the ledge, some four to six rods away, and into small open box cars the granite chips are loaded and pushed along to within some thirty feet of the crusher, the car is then drawn by the engine up an incline, even with the top of the crusher and dumped; the stone is then easily shoved into the hopper and ground.

The crushed granite is then carried by an endless chain up some thirty feet, and sorted and dropped in bins, all ready to be carted on to the streets where needed. By simply moving a slide in the bottom of the bin the broken stone runs down and in a few seconds fills a cart, so that there is no shoveling or waste of time for the horses or drivers.

This new plant will crush 125 tons of stone a day, and in so easy and perfect a manner that it costs the city not one-half what the old plant did, a few years ago, to do the same work. It will consequently be a great saving to the city, where so much crushed stone is needed in repairing our streets.

There was considerable ability shown by Mr. Ewell, the Commissioner of Public Works, in having the plant so well arranged as to make the cost of crushed stone very light.

Electric Railway.

The hearing before the selectmen of Randolph for a franchise in that town, thus completing the entire belt, was held Monday evening. F. A. Hobart appeared for the Braintree company and presented the case in their behalf. The selectmen after hearing the parties immediately voted to grant the franchise.

The corporation now known as the Braintree, Randolph and Holbrook Street Railroad Company held a meeting on Monday and permanently organized by election of F. A. Hobart, Elisha Thayer, J. T. Stevens, Geo. D. Willis and H. M. White of Braintree; A. L. Chase, R. A. Thayer of Randolph, and George A. Beaty of Boston, as directors. W. A. Kane, clerk; Geo. A. Beaty, treasurer. Subsequently F. A. Hobart was chosen as president. Subscription papers will be at once opened and an opportunity given to any of the citizens who desire to subscribe to the stock. Active operations will begin at once.

ADAMS ACADEMY.

Dr. William Everett finally gave up the charge of Adams Academy to Mr. William R. Tyler on the first day of this month. We publish the following letters received by him from the managers and supervisors of the Academy.

QUINCY, Mass., June 26th, 1893.

DR. WILLIAM EVERETT:

My Dear Sir:

Your letter resigning the position of Master of Adams Academy has been presented to the Board of Managers, and recognizing that the fact which called for that resignation was your election to the Congress of the United States, we feel that there is no action for us to take other than to accept it.

We cannot take that action, however, without expressing the deep obligation which they and the citizens of Quincy are under for your services to the school during the fifteen years in which you have had charge of it. For your labors and sacrifices in its behalf we are profoundly grateful.

For this earnest service of these past years; service in which you have never wearied; service unparalleled in generosity; service that has awakened the slumbering thoughts in so many a boy and started him on his life work; that has helped so many to find their way to the higher collegiate education; in behalf of the Board of Managers of years past; in behalf of parents and sons; in behalf of the city of Quincy and of all beyond its limits interested in, and profited by, the school, we express to you our hearty thanks.

We acknowledge the obligation which all are under to you for the financial assistance which you have been to the school. The past fifteen years are full of occasions where your money has been at the service of the school, for its sports, its attractions, its prizes.

We recognize the attachment which you have for the school as expressed in the fact that for all these years you have labored without salary, and have moreover freely paid in great part the salaries of your assistant teachers.

We desire to express our appreciation of the high qualities of mind and intellect which have been at the service of the school during your connection with it. That your rare scholarship has been to its immense advantage none can question, and whatever its future may be, none will ever hope to excel in laying the foundations of a classical education beyond the record which the past fifteen years have made.

We wish to express to you the testimony of admiration and regard for these qualities of mind and heart which have come to us from so many of the alumni. We also wish to express to you the regret of many citizens that your connection with the school as its master is about to close.

Above all we wish to express to you the appreciation which all have of your deep love for the pupils which from time to time have been under your care. That you carried them as treasures of your heart, rejoicing as you saw them catch glimpses of the higher beauties and powers of life, and only impatient when they failed to rouse themselves to their great privileges, all can bear witness.

We wish to express on our part the pleasure which we have had as together we have conferred on this trust committed to our care.

Rest assured that while your official connection with the school may cease, all connected with it will gladly welcome you at all times to its service, for memory will again and again, and yet again, unbidden testify to what you have been and done to and for it in the years gone by, and whoever may be its principal in the future, certain are we that none will ever carry it nearer their heart than you have done.

With the sincerest wish that the choicest of the blessings of God may be yours, and the hope expressed that the coming years may bring you deep and abiding satisfaction in the results of your labor in life, we are

The Board of Managers,
J. O. HALL, Clerk.

BOSTON, June 24, 1893.

At a meeting of the supervisors it was:

Voted,—That the supervisors of the Adams Temple and School Fund have received with profound regret the notification from the managers of the Adams academy that William Everett has resigned the mastership of the school.

Voted,—That the occasion seems appropriate for them to record their deep obligation to him for his singularly stimulating and brilliant service as a teacher, for his serious moral influence in favor of manly Christianity, and in general for his unwearied efforts to promote the general welfare of his pupils and of the academy.

Voted,—That the supervisors feel most peculiarly indebted to him for having for fifteen years rendered these very valuable services, not only without fee or price, but at a large pecuniary sacrifice.

Voted,—That the secretary be instructed to send a copy of the above resolutions to Mr. William Everett and to the managers of the academy.

H. T. WHITMAN, Secretary.

There are eighty-two cruciform pillars that go to support the awnings that shade the platforms at South Braintree railroad station, all of which have been nicely painted, making a fine appearance.

As You Like It,

Or what's to become of our silver dollars! If this is the question you wish to solve, here's the way out of the difficulty. Invest your money in good furniture, and like land it will not depreciate,—that's how it differs from the mighty silver dollar. Let us illustrate a feature of the business being done by Henry L. Kincaide & Co. A delightful antique finished chamber set, ten pieces complete, neat, attractive and durable, the kind that adds the charm of dignity to your home,—the price seems absurdly little, $18.75. You may look at it today, tomorrow, or in years to come. Your investment remains good value for the dollars invested, and you reap the benefit.

GRANITE MEN'S OUTING.

Nearly One Hundred Manufacturers Off for the Green Mountain State.

[Special to the DAILY LEDGER.]

CONCORD, N. H., Aug. 4.—Nearly one hundred granite manufacturers of the city of Quincy, Mass., passed through this city in a special train shortly after midnight. They were en route for Montpelier and Barre, Vt., on their annual outing, and will not return until Saturday afternoon.

It is said that Quincy granite men never sleep, and such would seem to be the fact, for they were a wide-awake and enterprising crowd. Among the few who had retired were Messrs. Swingle and Craig, but it is said that they couldn't sleep, for they were thinking of the dear ones at home.

Much of the enjoyments are due to the perfect arrangements of the committee, Messrs. F. L. Badger and John L. Miller, who had provided first-class cars, and looked after all the minute details. In the party are:

Temperance Reunion.

A grand temperance reunion, under the auspices of a committee representing the various State organizations, will be held at the Point of Pines, Revere Beach, commencing Monday afternoon next and continuing through the week, three sessions daily, except Monday. The committee have had about a week in which to make their plans and prepare a programme, but the results have been of a most gratifying character. Everywhere the plan has been received with great favor and enthusiasm by temperance organizations, and many societies have voted to go in a body. The Germania band will furnish music for the week, and will be assisted by Liberatti, the world famous cornet soloist.

Many of the leading temperance workers and speakers in New England will co-operate to make the occasion a success, and many of them are men and women of national reputation in the work.

This is the first reunion of the kind ever attempted in Massachusetts, and the committee feel that if it is a success, as it probably will be, it will be the inauguration of a series of meetings on a larger scale for succeeding years.

—Congress will begin its sessions again next Monday. All Massachusetts, says the Somerville Journal, will look with interest to see what Dr. William Everett will do.

MANET BEACH.

The Q. Y. C. members are again congratulating themselves on their luck. A more perfect ladies' day could not have well been chosen. At about 1 o'clock the cars began to come down crowded with people eager to witness the beautiful picture which was soon to be presented off the club house. Boats of all builds and rigs began to flit about on the waters near Houghs Neck. A south wind was blowing, causing just enough of a swell to make sailing exciting. There came the land girl, the timid girl and the yachting girl. Little feminine shrieks could now and then be heard as an unwonted swell wet one or two tiny slippers.

The members of the club and other gentlemen friends sported about with a very contented air. Dressed in natty suits of blue, with now and then a duck working jacket, they did present a very imposing appearance.

Commodore Faxon was early on the scene of action, and after carefully overseeing all the different affairs and having many short conferences with Mr. Murray of the house committee, boarded the steam yacht Miriam and started.

In another column will be found a full list of the yachts participating; also their occupants.

It is rumored that, not to be outdone by the other end of the beach, Mr. Taber has made arrangements with the celebrated Jordan, Marsh & Co.'s band, C. E. Brown, director, to give a concert at the Casino Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon. If it should be stormy, the concert will be postponed one week. When the band arrives in Quincy a short concert will be given in the Square.

Modest Priced!

Have you ever seen in your travels a COOKING RANGE,—one that claims the title deservingly? There are such ranges in existence, few and far between. The Magee Mystic however, stands on its merits alone. It is the queen of bakers, tried and worthy, quick and responsive. Here is how it differs from some of the antediluvian makes. A direct heat on all sides of the oven. It is a wonderfully economical stove, not a particle of heat is wasted. It is the tip-top range on the market. Price it in Boston, then price it here; you look and wonder. Only a pinch of profit for us, the rest is all for you! Other ranges in great variety. HENRY L. KINCAIDE & CO.

BRAINTREE.

Mrs. George W. Arnold is seriously sick.

Joseph S. Miller is building a one and one-half story cottage on Dyer hill. The main part is 20 by 28 feet.

Rev. G. M. Boynton, D. D., will occupy pulpit of First Parish church next Sunday at 10.30 A. M. All invited.

Mrs. J. Francis White of East Braintree is recovering from her sickness.

Rev. Mr. Ellis and wife are at the camp meeting at Yarmouth.

Frank P. Hill, foreman in the Patriot office, Quincy, having his residence on Shaw street, East Braintree, is taking a two weeks' vacation.

Last month (July) the town paid bills to the amount of $10,000. This was doing pretty well, and there was no "run" either upon the town treasury.

The new Post office looks fine and will look finer when every thing is in its proper place. The furniture is all of the most modern and improved sort.

The furniture of the Selectmen's office has been further enhanced in beauty by the addition of four Louis XVI chairs! Miles Standish is not "in it" this time.

Thursday morning Hon. F. A. Hobart and wife accompanied by their son, Mr. John F. Hobart, left for the White Mountains. They will be gone until the first of September.

Engineer Preston E. Foss' new house on French's avenue is rapidly advancing to completion. It has been painted a new and rather an attractive color. It looks fine.

The children of William Pittendragh of Whitenville, formerly well known and still remembered in Braintree, are visiting their aunt, Mrs. William May, a fine woman.

The illustrated lecture delivered last Tuesday evening in the M. E. church, of East Braintree, netted for the society $32.50. It was a good lecture and a fine audience.

Mrs. Charles Geddes of Hartford, with baby, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Witherell of Middle street. Her husband having been so unfortunate after she left Hartford, to fall accidentally from his bicycle and break his collar bone, has now joined her with an arm in a sling. How true it is that misfortunes come unsought.

On Wednesday about seventy Loyal Knights and Ladies and friends took dinner in the grove near South Braintree Heights. It was a jolly time,—singing, readings, and other amusements. The menu was of the best, not forgetting the clam chowder made by Mrs. Tower, that queen of chowder makers.

LADIES' DAY, Q. Y. C.

Forty Boats Take Out Many Guests For a Sail.

PRETTY SIGHT FROM SHORE.

A Perfect Day and a Merry Time,---Lunch and Hop in the Club House,---A List of the Yachts and Occupants.

Seldom it is that the Quincy Yacht club have had a more beautiful day for its annual Ladies' day than yesterday. In fact, the day was perfect, and an unusually large number took advantage of enjoying the hospitalities of the club. The arrangements were well nigh perfect, and everything took place with clock-like regularity.

Shortly after 2 o'clock the yachts began to leave their moorings and make fast to the float, and soon the ladies who were to be the guests of the skippers arrived, and were soon made comfortable on board the boats, so that at 2.45 o'clock, when the first gun was fired from the flagship Miriam, which was anchored off the club house, everything was in readiness.

Fifteen minutes later the second gun was fired, and the yachts of the fleet passed in review of the commodore and started for the sail over the prescribed course, each saluting as they passed the flagship. As the boats sailed away toward Jackknife ledge buoy they made a very pretty picture for the many ladies who occupied the broad piazzas of the club house.

There were many who did not participate in the sail, but the committee had provided for their amusement, and an orchestra stationed at the club house gave a promenade concert.

The sail was over shortly before 6 o'clock and at that hour supper was served to the club members and their guests by Caterer Cook.

The festivities of the day closed with a dance, in which a large number participated.

Selee Wants Bannon.

BOSTON, Aug. 5.—President Soden of the Boston League club has received a letter from Manager Selee requesting authority to negotiate with Bannon, just released by St. Louis. Mr. Selee thinks Bannon will will make a second Duffy with good coaching.

STARVING TO DEATH.

A Mysterious Woman Who Refuses to Accept Any Nourishment.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—There is a plain, brick tenement at 38 South First street, Williamsburg. Poor persons tend their babies about the doorways. For two years the roof has sheltered a mystery. The neighboring women have gossipped and guessed and watched the spare, black clad figure of "Annie Smith" going down the stairs at the break of day and ascending them at its close. In an ambulance yesterday the mystery was trundled off to St. Catherine's hospital. At the hospital she remains a mystery still. Beef broth, brandy and milk have been held up to her, but she refuses them all.

"Annie Smith" is deliberately, wordlessly starving herself to death. Two years ago she came to the landlady, looked at the sitting room and bedroom on the third floor and said she would take them at $5 a month. Nobody ever came to see her excepting once, a year ago. There was an old gentleman with a gray moustache and two young ladies. They were well dressed. The old gentleman and the ladies left and have not been seen since. He told the landlady that he came from near New Haven.

Yesterday Miss Smith failed to come out as usual and the landlady found her lying very weak on the bed. Later in the day the landlady notified the police about the matter and Miss Smith was found to be very ill and was taken to the hospital. She is 35 years old and looks older for her suffering, and the doctors and policemen say she has not long to live, but if she is dying she will take her secret with her.

A Lake George Disaster.

LAKE GEORGE, N. Y., Aug. 5.—The steam yacht Rachel, with 29 summer guest on board, ran against a pier in the darkness and immediately sunk. Nine persons were drowned. Claude Granger was ordered in charge of the boat. He is not an experienced pilot, although familiar with that part of the lake.

One More Chance.

WILBURTON, I. T., Aug. 5.—The nine Choctaw Indians who were sentenced to be shot July 7 for the murder of several members of the Jones faction, and who were respited by Governor Jones until Aug. 4, have been granted a further respite of one month.

The Parting Hour.

There's something in the parting hour
Will chill the warmest heart—
Yet kindred, comrades, lovers, friends,
Are fated all to part;
But this I've seen—and many a pang
Has pressed it on my mind—
The one who goes is happier
Than those he leaves behind.

No matter what the journey be—
Adventurous, dangerous, far,
To the wild deep or black frontier,
To solitude or war—
Still something cheers the heart that dares
In all of humankind,
And they who go are happier
Than those they leave behind.

The bride goes to her husband's home
With doubtings and with tears,
But does not hope her rainbow spread
Across her cloudy fears?
Alas! the mother who remains,
What comfort can she find
But this—the gone is happier
Than one she leaves behind?

Have you a friend—a comrade dear—
An old and valued friend?
Be sure your term of sweet concourse
At length will have an end!
And when you part—as part you will—
Oh, take it not unkind
If he who goes is happier
Than you he leaves behind!

God wills it so, and so it is;
The pilgrims on their way,
Though weak and worn, more cheerful are
Than all the rest who stay,
And when at last poor man, subdued,
Lies down to death, resigned,
May he not still be happier far
Than those he leaves behind?
—Edward Pollock.

Outdoor Shelters.

Now is the time when we should get "near to nature's heart" and spend our days as much as possible in "the open." The year round dwellers by the country side seem to become so wonted to the changing aspects of nature that their senses are blunted to her beauty, and heedless of the laws of health they frequently shut themselves up in summer almost as much as in winter, shunning the sunbeams as they would an evil influence and avoiding fresh air as they would the cholera.

All this is as it should not be, and in every community some philanthropic woman should organize a fresh air crusade and endeavor to persuade these misguided people not only to admit the blessed sunshine and life giving air to their homes, but also to spend as much time as possible in the open air during the warm weather.

A very picturesque shelter can be arranged simply with a large Japanese umbrella. This of course screens from the sun only, unless there be a bank of shrubbery or mayhap a garden wall to the windward. For a lawn fete several of these can be arranged with charming effect, and some bright girl reading this will think at once of a Japanese lawn fete as a delightful substitute for the timeworn strawberry festival. Nothing prettier could be devised for a tennis tea.

The housewife will never regret time spent in this provision for the comfort of her family, for this inducement to lead an outdoor life will bring its return in increased health and happiness.—Demorest's Monthly.

Anna Katherine Green at Home.

Mrs. Charles Rohlfs (Anna Katherine Green) and her family are residing in a cozy little house on Highland avenue, Buffalo. Of course such a distinguished woman could not be exempt very long from special attention. So she was recently visited by a live Buffalonian, who expected to find her up to the neck among books and papers, turning out manuscript for her next story like snowflakes. He was disappointed, however, for Mrs. Rohlfs was found minding her children, attending to her home duties. No matter, there was an interesting conversation which found its way into the columns of the Buffalo Inquirer. Here is what was said by Mrs. Rohlfs:

We don't expect to go away from Buffalo this summer. At least we have made no arrangements which include an absence. I like Buffalo and find it cool and comfortable in the summer. We spend our afternoons largely on the tennis court across the way. I am not writing anything this summer. I have only just fairly detached myself from my last book, and my custom is to put a period of at least two years' rest between my stories. My children are of an age when they require a great deal of my attention, and while I have a thousand fancies and ideas flitting through my mind my pen gives tangible shape to none of them.

There are 2,000 or 3,000 trained women nurses in New York whose services are constantly in demand at from $25 to $35 a week, with board and lodging.

CHELSEA'S DISASTER

Due to Defective Construction of the Balcony.

MAIN SUPPORT WAS WEAK.

Interesting Statements by the Building Inspector.

CHELSEA, Mass., Aug. 5.—Viewed in the honest, searching light of the sun, the evidence presented by the torn and splintered timbers of the ruined veranda of the Chelsea Yacht clubhouse leaves no further doubt as to the cause of Thursday night's terrible disaster.

The precious lives of some 70 people were hung upon a bit of wood—a tenon of but two inches wide and four in depth, supporting a heavy girder of 8x10 inches in dimensions, and with absolutely nothing beneath it to support stout timber should the tenon snap just as it did.

Six of the 10 inches of that sound girder—three-fifths of its supporting strength for vertical pressure—were cut away, sacrificed in the mortising. Therein lies the key to the whole situation. Every riven timber and floor joist shows its inner core as sound and firm as when first put in new into the building. There was not a rotten bit of wood visible anywhere. All of it appeared as sound as a nut.

"Faulty Construction,"

said Superintendent Lord, "that is the only cause that can be given for the fall of that platform." In his view, however, the fault appeared to lie in the placing of the mortise originally too high in the balcony post. The particular workman who did this had filled up the hole thus erroneously made and had then butted the tenon of the girder right up against the filled portion.

The cause of the trouble is best told in Mr. Lord's words. "The cross beams were 8x10 inches," said Mr. Lord, "and when it was originally framed the mortices were made eight inches wide, or the full width of the cross beams. Later on, however, part of the cross beam at the point where it entered the upright beam was sawed away until the part of it which entered the upright was only four inches deep by two inches wide, and then the upper part of the open space in the upright beam was plugged up.

"The sawing away of such a large portion of the cross beam at the bottom of course weakened it to a considerable extent, but another circumstance

Weakened It Still More Fatally.

"A season check, or split, ran along the center of this cross beam from the point at which it entered the upright post almost to the wall of the clubhouse, which practically made it two beams instead of one. This crack ran from about the point where the beam entered the upright, or four inches from the top of the cross beam.

"Then there were lighter joists running crosswise on these cross beams overhead, on which the flooring of the balcony was laid. Portions of the upper part of the cross beams had been cut away, perhaps for a couple of inches, to allow these joists to sink into the cross beams.

"This practically cut away all the portion of the cross beams which had entered the uprights, and then the crack running along the center of the cross beam had so weakened the remainder that it about eight feet from the front of the balcony.

"The weight being then thrown on the lower portion of the cross beam, which had scarcely any support where it was mortised into the upright, that portion, too, broke off, and down went the balcony."

Mr. Lord further stated that he was not supposed, under the ordinances of the city of Chelsea, to make an examination of any building unless some one complained about it. No complaint had been made of the yacht clubhouse, and he had not, therefore, examined it.

The most casual observer who glances at the woodwork of the place where the balcony broke down will be inclined to agree at once with the opinion of Mr. Lord as to the cause of the accident, and many were the expressions of surprise on the part of the spectators yesterday that an accident had not occurred before.

That portion of the cross beam which entered the upright one appeared so slight that one marvelled how it could ever have supported 100 or 150 persons, as is said to have sometimes been the case.

IN A TRANCE.

Physicians Unable to Arouse Miss Frizzle From Her Stupor.

WALPOLE, Mass., Aug. 5.—Miss Mary Frizzle is in a trance at the town farm. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Frizzle, and is between 21 and 22 years of age. For several years she has lived out at service in the neighborhood. While in the employ of George H. Marvin several weeks ago she suddenly became averse to eating and fell into a listless stupor. She was removed to her home, and, growing rapidly worse, she was on Wednesday removed by the selectmen to the poorhouse. During Wednesday night she became wholly unconscious, and sank into a trance from which she cannot be aroused. Her breathing is scarcely perceptible, her color is almost entirely gone, and her limbs are rigid, but slightly warm and moist.

A PREACHER'S PLAINT

Which Is Likely to Pass Unnoticed by His Parishioners.

NEW CANAAN, Conn., Aug. 5.—Rev. F. A. Smith of Silver Mine has caused a sensation in the town. From his pulpit he informed his congregation that he and the members of his family were starving, simply because his salary was not forthcoming. After preaching a good sermon, he startled his hearers by saying: "I come to you this morning with an empty stomach. I have not had a mouthful to eat today, because I could not get it. For over a week I and my family have lived entirely upon blackberries and bread."

Rev. Mr. Smith has a wife and daughter to support upon a $3 0 salary and declares he cannot get even this small sum. Deacon Lane said to a reporter that Smith has 100 chickens and keeps a horse and does not see how Mr. Smith could be starving.

From Mrs. Guthrie, the secretary, it was learned that up to Aug. 1 the minister was owed just $2.44.

The secretary handed the $2.44 to the preacher and he accepted it. There are many persons in the church who do not want Parson Smith to preach to them and are not slow about giving their opinion of him, and say that if he insists upon feeding them with the bread of life he will have to live on bread and blackberries so far as they are concerned.

ASSESSORS' RETURNS.

Financial Standing of a Few Towns In the Bay State.

NATICK, Mass., Aug. 5.—The assessors have made the tax rate for 1893 $18.40. The city total valuation is $5,514,650, real estate being $4,545,100 and personal property $969,550. The decrease is $67,830. State tax, $6375; county tax, $5123.92; town grants and appropriations, $98,390; overlay of taxes, $195.44; non-resident bank tax, $653.20; total, $110,637.56.

ABINGTON, Mass., Aug. 5.—The assessors give out the following figures: Valuation, $2,248,000; increase, $25,000; number of polls, 1324; tax rate, $22.80, an increase of $4.50 over last year, occasioned by the great improvements made in the town this year.

MIDDLEBORO, Mass., Aug. 5.—The assessors return the following figures: Valuation—Real estate, $3,239,000; personal, $633,508; total, $3,872,508; increase over 1892, $108,247. Rate of taxation, $15.50 per $1000.

MARLBORO, Mass., Aug. 5.—The assessors have fixed the rate of taxation in this city for 1893 at $18 per $1000. The valuation shows an increase of $237,243, making the present valuation $7,740,268. Number of polls 3943.

A Belated Traveler.

LYNN, Mass., Aug. 5.—A carrier pigeon, owned by Samuel Armstead, arrived at his loft at 6:30 o'clock last evening. This pigeon was one of the seven sent to Chicago by the Lynn Homing club to compete in the World's fair fly. It is now 16 days since the birds were released, and they were down to come the 852 miles in six days, if not in less time. The bird was very much exhausted and may die.

Was an Accident.

MALDEN, Mass., Aug. 5.—In the district court Eugene Callahan, who accidently struck Frank Hessian in the eye with a piece of a ball bat while playing, last Sunday, and from the effects of which he died, was arraigned for manslaughter. After a short hearing, in which it was shown that the fatality was due wholly to an accident, Callahan was discharged.

Money More Plentiful.

BOSTON, Aug. 5.—Judging by the unusual number of small mortgages shown on file at the Real Estate Exchange, money for deeds of trust is becoming more plentiful and easier to get. There are several mortgages of considerable amounts on record also, and the brokers are remarking that "the times look brighter."

Held Without Bail.

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 5.—Louis LeFreniere, the French-Canadian charged with murder in the second degree for having killed his wife, was brought before Judge Cable yesterday. The testimony was such as to show deliberate murder, and LeFreniere was bound over to the next term of the superior court without bail.

Russians Leave Newport.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 5.—The Russian fleet sailed from here yesterday afternoon for New York, at which place stores and coal will be taken on board. On Tuesday the Nicholas I, Admiral Nakinhoff and the Rinda will sail for Europe, leaving the Dimitri Donskoi in New York. Her future movements are unknown.

McCarron's Death.

WALTHAM, Mass., Aug. 5.—Medical Examiner Mead, in the case of the death of Charles H. Barron, which occurred at the police station, has come to the conclusion that the man's death was due to heart disease.

Prosecution Rests.

BROCKTON, Mass., Aug. 5.—The fifth day of the Thompson trial is over, and the next session will be held Monday evening. The prosecution rested its case for the present, but will offer evidence in rebuttal later. Nothing startling was developed in last night's testimony.

Cotton Mills to Close.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Aug. 5.—The Sutton mills in North Andover have given notice of a shutdown Aug. 12 to last two weeks. The mill employs 125 work people.

To Work New Hampshire Quarries.

PLYMOUTH, N. H., Aug. 5.—A company with a capital of $150,000 will be incorporated to work the granite quarries in Kilkenny and Northumberland.

Good News.

MIDDLETON, Conn., Aug. 5.—Joseph Schider, president of the Eastern Tinware company, Portland, says the factory will start on full time next Monday.

Crushed by a Wagon.

BOSTON, Aug. 5.—Six-year-old Charles Solomon was run over by one of Cutler Bros.' teams in Harvard place last night, having one foot badly crushed.

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Nearly Drowned by Hailstones.

C. Stanley Hurlbut, the well known oarsman, had a thrilling experience on the Schuylkill river during the terrific storm on Wednesday night and had to swim for his life.

Mr. Hurlbut is a member of the Malta Boat club, and after office hours on Wednesday started up the river in a single shell to the race course. Here the storm overtook him, and the hailstones perforated the covering of his shell. The craft began to fill with water and settle. It was only by skillful handling that Mr. Hurlbut kept right side up, all the while the hail pelting him in a fusillade.

At one time he was in imminent danger of losing his life by being run down by the four oared shell of the Pennsylvania Barge club, which bore down upon him, appearing suddenly through the veil caused by the storm, not 10 yards away. A blow from the sharp prow of the shell would have been fatal to the oarsman, and Mr. Hurlbut, realizing his peril succeeded by a powerful left hand stroke in throwing his shell out of the line.

The boat shot by like a flash and left the oarsman fighting with the waves, which rolled over his boat, causing it to settle at least one foot. He succeeded in getting to the shelter of a pier at Columbia bridge, when the shell turned, leaving him in the water. With the craft in tow Mr. Hurlbut started to swim to Belmont landing, where he was assisted by several young men who had witnessed his exciting struggle. The shell is a wreck.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Prosperity In Nevada.

We would advise the chronic kicker who thinks Nevada fit only for horned toads and rattlesnakes to take a trip through the country and try to find a better place. The farmers on the Truckee meadows live and dress better than in any other section of the country, have more of the pleasures and comforts of life than any of the farmers in any part of California; they live in better houses, get better prices for their produce and are in every way better off. We hear glowing accounts of the country about Los Angeles, the beautiful orange groves, the immense yield of the land devoted to the cultivation of prunes, but distance lends enchantment to the view. Nevada is just now undergoing a business depression, owing no doubt to the unsettled condition of the financial question, but we are better off here and have less to growl about than the people in San Francisco. Let those who think they have a hard row to hoe dig up their sack and take a trip to other sections of the coast, and we venture the assertion that they will return home better satisfied with themselves and this portion of the world at large.—Reno (Nev.) Gazette.

A Pitiful Scene at a Railroad Accident.

In the recent railroad accident at Newburg, N. Y., one woman—Mrs. Elberson of Setauket, N. Y.—who was severely injured, was taken from the wreck hysterically crying for her baby. She had been traveling with her husband, who was also injured, and Addie, her 3-year-old child. For a few minutes no one could tell her what had become of the little girl. Then the child's dead body was found in the wreck, and hugged closely in her arms was a doll. Mr. Elberson heard his child was dead, but he cautioned the men not to tell his wife.

Mrs. Elberson, although badly injured, refused to go to the hospital until she found the child. Then one of the men, counting on her hysterical condition, placed in her arms the doll that had been found locked in the child's embrace. Mrs. Elberson took the doll and went to the hospital, believing that she had her child.

Five hundred and forty-two thousand four hundred and twenty-five books have been borrowed during the year at the four libraries in Camberwell. This is the highest London record.

Cleveland at New York.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—President Cleveland, Secretaries Carlisle and Lamont and Attorney General Olney arrived here today on the way to Washington. The president is looking remarkably well.

Says Crisp Is Safe.

BLOOMINGTON, Ills., Aug. 5.—Vice President Stevenson has left for Washington to be present at the special session of congress Monday next. Mr. Stevenson thought there is little doubt of Crisp's re-election to the speakership.

Tide of Death Stayed.

OLD ORCHARD BEACH, Me., Aug 5.—Nearly 200 people at the Old Orchard campground told yesterday of miraculous cures of faith. Many at death's door, they claimed, had "taken up their beds and walked."

Rockafellow Missing.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Aug. 5.—It is rumored that ex-Banker Rockafellow, who failed last February for $450,000 and against whom several indictments had been found, has left town. He cannot be found.

An Unexpected Display.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 5.—During the street parade of an outdoor spectacular show last night a wagon load of fireworks exploded. Emil Hill was probably fatally burned. Three others were badly burned.

Depositors Will Lose Nothing.

MUNCIE, Ind., Aug. 5.—The Citizens' National bank failed to open its doors yesterday. The directors claim the assets of the bank are ample to pay all liabilities, and depositors will be paid in full.

The Tired Town.

The city lies at rest, for welcome night
Hath hush'd it to slumber 'neath her touch;
It lies, soft breathing, on the earth's rocked breast
As weary children sleep who suffer much.
Its dim lamps gaze into the patient skies
As eyes, half steeped in slumber, wake to close;
All burdens laid aside—it peaceful lies
Close cradled in God's arms for its repose.

POINTERS TO VISITORS.

Twenty-five Things To Be Seen at the Fair

BY THOSE WITH LIMITED TIME.

A List of Exhibits Which One Who Has Been at the Exposition Constantly Since the Opening Thinks Are the Most Noteworthy—Something Which May Prove of Assistance to You.

WORLD'S FAIR, Aug. 4.—[Special.]—Today I met one of my friends from Washington, who had but a few days to spend in the exposition, and he asked me, inasmuch as I had been here some time, to name for him the twenty-five things most worthy his time and attention. "I can see at the first glance," said he, "that this fair is too big for me. I can't take in a tenth part of it. I don't want to waste my time running about aimlessly, and when I start out I want to know just what I am after. So if you will sit down and tell me about twenty-five of the most interesting things to be seen here you will do me a great favor." I said to my friend this was easier to talk of than to do, and besides, if I were to try to give him such a list it might not suit his tastes at all and in the end he would blame instead of thank me for what I had done.

Again, there was an objection to the plan in that I might name for him too many things that had come from foreign countries, while he might be more interested in American works. To this he replied that he would take his chances on my judgment, and as to the foreign articles and displays, that was just what he cared most to see, and if I had made a study of the imported wares so much the better. In this way I was led to attempt a feat which naturally I should not undertake. Below will be found the list which I gave to my friend, with some of the reasons therefor, and if it shall prove any assistance to the intending visitor to the fair I shall be glad.

To my motion the twenty-five most interesting things which the foreigners have to show here are as follows:

1. The Dore vase in French section of Manufactures building. It is a noteworthy work of art, without doubt the finest bronze to be found in the exposition. It is not only large in size, majestic in proportions and a notable casting judged purely from the mechanical point of view, but it is wonderfully beautiful in its design and in the figures with which its surface is literally covered. Gustav Dore, the artist, is dead, and the great vase is for sale for the benefit of his family. The price is $20,000.

2. The street in Cairo is a splendid example of the art of transplanting an Oriental scene to the midst of western civilization. Though a mere showman's trick, the Cairo street, with its shops, its mosque, its dromedaries, donkeys, theater, temple, savage camps and other accessories is a bit of realism which is not surpassed in the exposition for genuine human interest.

3. The loan galleries in the Fine Arts palace. In these rooms are displayed several score of masterpieces by foreign artists, now owned in America. Here are the best pictures of the exposition. But for their presence several of the foreign schools, notably that of France, would be so poorly represented as to be almost failures.

4. The laces made in Belgium, in France, in Italy, with their artistic value about in the order named. All women love laces and many men after beholding these airy, fairy, film-like creations, wish that fashions might change so as to permit them to wear laces. Fabrics at a thousand dollars a yard are costly, but the beauty is there in a degree which you have never dreamed of.

5. The marble statues and statuettes in the Italian section, Manufactures building. These are not supposed to be the highest types of the art of sculpture—for these you must go to the Fine Arts palace—but they are the works which please the masses. They are expressive, they are pictures in stone, they have life and action rather than lofty ideals. They are in immense variety and of amazing cleverness.

6. The Javanese village as an example of the simple, almost dainty life and peaceful industrial pursuits of an interesting people from the other side of the world. They have here a village with forty or more structures in it, representing all their forms of architecture and all manners of life. A cleanly, industrious, lovable, skillful people they are, and their small stature makes them seem more like children than men and women grown.

7. The gowns and millinery in the French section, Manufactures building. There are no such dressmakers, no such milliners, elsewhere in the world. In Paris these trades approach the fields of high art.

8. Work in silver to be found in Russian and Danish sections, Manufactures building. The Russians excel all other nations in the use of enamel. Some of their wares are surprisingly beautiful and difficult of execution. In repouse silver the Danes appear to lead. Compare these silver works with those in the Tiffany and Gorham exhibits, United States section, and note that America is attaining not only fine workmanship but character in design.

9. The carvings in the Japanese and Italian sections, Manufactures building. These two peoples are the earth's greatest carvers. The Italians are surely ahead of all rivals, with the Japanese a good second.

10. The Gobelin tapestries in the French section, Manufactures building—rare old pictures in fabrics, famous pieces from the last century and the century before. See also the tapestries in the Belgium section.

11. German chemistry, Manufactures building. The Germans excel all other peoples in chemistry, which is the art that stands at the base of all arts and industries. The display of chemicals here is the most comprehensive and important the world ever saw.

12. The Doulton pottery and Royal Worcester ware from England, also the Cauldon china from the same country, in comparison with the delft ware from Belgium, the Royal porcelains from Austria, and Germany, the terra cottas and porcelains from Denmark, and the cloisonne and porcelains of the Japanese. These are the ceramic nations of the earth, and the visitor who studies their products will see all in this line that is worthy his attention.

13. The English railway train and locomotive, Transportation building, in comparison with the French locomotives and German cars and American locomotives and trains which stand near by. No such opportunity to study the railway transportation methods of various countries was ever offered before.

14. The Krupp guns, special pavilion, and heavy forgings for other purposes, especially the great steamer screws and steam hammers.

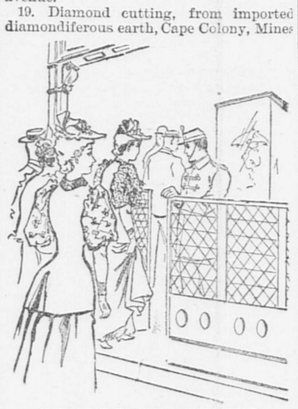

15. Instruments of measurement and precision made by Germans and shown in the first floor and gallery of the Electricity building. The skill that man has attained in this direction, measuring electric currents, temperatures, illuminating the interiors of human bodies and organs, is almost beyond belief.

16. Bohemian glassware as the very finest possible product of the art of glass making. The Austrian empire has no rival in glass, unless it be the Venetians; and in cut glassware the Americans make a specialty and the best works.

17. Hatfield hall, nearly full sized model, British section, Manufactures building, as showing one of the most magnificent interiors and typical British decorations and service of two centuries ago.

18. Swiss watches, hand-made, marvels of ingenuity and workmanship, Swiss section, Manufactures building. Compare these with American made watches, in which machinery plays such an important part, two or three blocks down Columbia avenue.

19. Diamond cutting, from imported diamondiferous earth, Cape Colony, Mines building. Here we see the big Zulu guards, attired in a costume which other men envy on hot days, the manner in which the diamond pebbles are formed in the earth, how they are sifted out, dressed and perfected.

20. The exhibit made by the City of Paris in the French building, lake front, of the manner in which that great metropolis is governed, cleaned, lighted and cared for in all the departments of a model municipal organization—the streets, sewage, gas, hospitals, police, detection of crime by means of photography, even the morgue with its ghastly scenes, the reformatory schools and farms in the suburbs.

21. Models of foreign merchant and naval vessels, Transportation building. There is a great number of these handsome structures, and they form one of the most interesting features of the transportation display, which good judges have declared to be the most thoroughly comprehensive and nearly perfect departmental building of the exposition. The makers of the models have so arranged them as to afford visitors a graphic idea of the rise of the world's shipping, the gradual increase of the size of the great merchant ships, the changes of forms, the growth of the art of marine architecture. Among all these models there is none that attracts more attention than that of the ill-fated battleship Victoria, which sank in a collision in the Mediterranean a few weeks ago. While looking at this model it is hard to realize that such a magnificent craft, equipped with all the most costly and presumably most effective safety appliances, was sent to the bottom of the sea in twenty minutes by an injury to one of its parts.

22. The displays of the world's valuable woods in the Forestry building, particularly the giant redwood trees and cedars of California, our own oaks and walnuts, the bamboos of Asia and the South seas. The biggest tree here is not in the Forestry building, by the way, but may be seen in the Government building, where it occupies a position in the great rotunda. It is a part of the exhibit of the department of the interior.

23. Inasmuch as the greatest thing in life is the home, all visitors will be interested in the furniture exhibit, and the furniture displays most worthy attention may be found in the Italian section, where the carvings are superb, in the German section, where the pieces are rich and massive, in the English section, where oak is made the most of, in the French section, where graceful designs and elaborate ornamentation prevail.

24. La Rabida convent with its treasures of original and reproduced relics of Columbus and the Columbian era, the most admirable and comprehensive historical collection ever presented in a universal exposition.

25. Those greatest of historical relics, the three caravels and the Viking ship from Norway, which are anchored near the convent; and though visitors are not allowed aboard, the strange craft, with their mighty historical associations, may be well seen from the pier near by.

RESERVOIR BURSTS.

Four Persons Meet Death In Its Seething Waters.

DISCOVERY OF TWO WOMEN

Undoubtedly Prevented a Much Larger Loss of Life.

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 7.—The great reservoir of the Portland Water company, on the Eastern promenade, burst yesterday, letting loose its 20,000,000 gallons of water in the short space of about 15 minutes. The immense mass of water, thus suddenly loosened, dashed with mighty power upon the two houses occupied by the families of Michael Lappin and Dennis M. Conley.

The buildings were crushed as if they had been made of cardboard, and four persons lost their lives. Mrs. Dennis M. Conley, Miss Agnes Conley, aged 17 years; Miss Mamie Conley, aged 15 years; James Moseley, aged 18. Under the walls of the reservoir were two small houses, each with a small barn attached. The one next to the reservoir stood but a few feet from the fence, and the high wall of clay and dirt loomed

Fifty Feet or More Above It.

Michael Lappin, an iron moulder, lived in this house with his wife and five of his children and an adopted son, James Moseley. Four of his children are very young, while the fifth is a man grown.

In the next house lived Dennis M. Conley, his wife and two daughters, Agnes and Mamie, and his son, John D., and his wife. The elder Mr. Conley was away from home, being a night watchman at the American Express company. The other members of his household were at home.

Fred Hutchins lives at 23 Willis street, near the reservoir. Mr. Hutchins' household consisted of himself, his wife (who is sick), his sister, Miss Edna Hutchins, and his wife's mother, Mrs. M. A. Jones of Lewiston. Mrs. Hutchins was quite sick Saturday night, and Miss Edna and Mrs. Jones arose about 5:30 yesterday morning, made some coffee and attended to the invalid.

Soon after arising they went out for a short walk, the morning being beautiful, on the promenade. They went down Walnut street, and as they passed by the reservoir Miss Hutchins and saw a stream of water bubbling quite forcibly from the ground at the foot of the reservoir wall.

"What is that? A spring?" said she to Mrs. Jones.

"A spring! The reservoir is bursting," replied the elder woman, as she saw it, and immediately she ran at full speed to the Lappin house, aroused the inmates, and then aroused the Conleys. This done, Mrs. Jones began arousing neighbors on the other side of Walnut street, and in less exposed localities.

It was probably 5:45 when Mrs. Jones warned the Lappins. The stream at that time was only about as large as a man's arm. Almost the next instant it was the size of a man's body. The members of the Lappin family evacuated their home

With Fortunate Celerity.

In less than five minutes Mr. Lappin, Mrs. Lappin, the four babies, the elder Lappin boy and James Moseley had rushed out of the house with such clothes on as they could get in their haste. They took refuge on the other side of Walnut street, where a few neighbors were already arriving.

The Conley family were not so fortunate. They were warned in time, and it seems that Mrs. Conley was already up and dressed. The other members of the family got up at once, and, supposing that they would surely get out, James Conley started for the barn to rescue his horse. The younger Mrs. Conley did get out in her nightdress, hastily folding a wrapper about her as she went. She ran across the road and fell fainting there.

The elder Mrs. Conley, with her two daughters, Agnes and Mamie, appeared next at the door. They were holding each other by their arms and seemed to be about to come across the street. But for some time they did not go. The water was already dashing against the doorsill, and perhaps this terrified them, or perhaps they thought the house would be the safest place. The reason will never be known, but the group of horror-stricken neighbors saw them

Draw Back and Close the Door.

One man seemed to have had the heart of a hero at this supreme moment of the catastrophe. Young James Moseley comprehended that the Conleys were lost unless they could be gotten out of the house at once. He dashed across the street, through the increasing water, and went into the doomed house. He was never seen alive again, and every one of that great crowd feels shudders creep through his veins as he remembers what happened next.

The stream of water had now become a torrent, and the next instant it was an avalanche. It sounded as if the paving stones from the inside lining of the reservoir were being hurled against those houses in a constant bombardment. The immense column of water first struck the Lappin House, divided for an instant, then tore the ell from the main part, landing the ell a shattered fragment several feet back from the bank.

The flood also tore up the street to the depth of six feet, the water going down the steep bank into the cove. The bodies of the four victims were recovered. The break is supposed to have been caused by a leak around the overflow pipe.

The reservoir cost $125,000, was designed by J. H. Shedd, the Providence engineer, and was built under his supervision. The damage to the reservoir is about $25,000.

THE TIDAL WAVE which was expected to sweep the present city administration when the report of the Committee on Fire Department was made, spent its fury weeks ago. It had but little force outside of a small coterie, and nothing but the party whip will secure the acceptance of the report now on the table. Insurance people and taxpayers generally are opposed to the recommendation therein. They find that the Quincy fire department as efficient as the present apparatus can make it, free from discord and well managed, in fact, as an ex-engineer of the city expresses it, the best working and most harmonious department he ever saw.

DID YOU observe the tax rate of Abington? It is $22.50 this year, an increase of $4 50. That of Marion is but $10, but the increase is as large. In the young city of Marlboro it is $18 and in Natick $18.40. That of Fairhaven is $17, and so it goes.

SOMERVILLE is fortunate in having a mayor who in these hard times will loan the city $110,000 at 5 and 5 1-2 per cent. Good for Mayor Hodgkins, whom one of the aldermen of the city accused of "crying baby."

MR. TABER has changed his mind. After finding that he could not move the city government, he has accepted the inevitable and will try to make up what he lost by closing one Sunday.

WEYMOUTH SEEMS to be more in need of a Sunday observance movement than Quincy. Dancing is reported to have taken place there yesterday, and it was not the first time.

THE WEATHER MAN is opposed to Sunday yachting. Although sanctioned by law there is considerable risk of late. Perhaps this is where the pleasure comes in.

WHILE SOME of the streets got a bad washing, many received a good washing.

Quincy Boats Take Prizes.

The Boston Advertiser reports the fourth club race of the Hull yacht club on Saturday as follows:

There were three classes, and the Beatrice as usual secured the honors in the third, the Vanessa in the fourth; Aurisa in the fifth, Mab in the sixth and the Vandal in the special. It was in fact a race where the favorites were all winners.

At 3.05 the starting gun for the third class was fired. The White Fawn got across first. She was followed by the Beatrice. The Gypsy fouled the flag and got in the Moondyne's way, causing a delay of about two minutes for both of them. On the run out to the first buoy the White Fawn had the lead, but the Beatrice passed her as soon as she gybed around the buoy, and on each leg kept increasing her lead. The Beatrice finished first with a long lead. The White Fawn was second, Gypsy third and Moondyne last. The Moondyne's protest against the Gypsy for fouling her at the start was allowed.

The Vannessa was alone in the fourth class, and so waited for the fifth class to start, as this class sailed the same course. Considering the difference in size of the Aurisa and the Vanessa, the Aurisa gave her a pretty good tussle and defeated by a long lead the boats in her own class, the Opeechee, Magpie and Hagedorn. The sixth class had only one boat, the Mab. The special class was started at 3.32 o'clock The Vandal won, the Santa Maria second, the Mabel D., third, and the Meta last.

—One of Boston's costly buildings is the new one of the International Trust company, on the corner of Milk and Devonshire streets, occupied last week. When fully completed it will have cost, with the land, about $550,000. The cost of the building will be $325,000. The company's new safe deposit vaults cost about $100,000. The carved figures on the Devonshire street facade cost $12,000.

GRANITE MEN HOME.

Their Outing in Vermont Very Enjoyable and Profitable.

The Quincy granite manufacturers returned late Saturday evening and one and all were delighted with their two days' outing at Barre, Vt. Leaving Boston at 10 P. M., Thursday, in a special train of Pullman sleepers, they reached Montpelier, the State capital at 6 A M. Friday. Headquarters were established here at the leading hotel, the Pavilion, which is delightfully situated adjoining the capitol grounds.

The party was met here by a committee of the Barre Granite Manufacturers' Association—Messrs. E. L. Smith. Alex. Gordon, C. H. Moore, J. D. Smith and H. K. Bush of Barre and W. E. Adams and T. W. Egan of Montpelier. They tarried only long enough for breakfast, when the special train took them on to Barre. More of the Barre manufacturers joined them there and did everything possible to entertain the Quincy men, and to make their tour of the quarries and sheds easy and profitable.

Barre like Montpelier is nestled in a beautiful valley among the Green mountains. It is a larger town than the capital but is not such an important business centre or such a pretty village. Like Quincy its growth has been very rapid of late and it is not laid out with any system. On its main street, however, are large business blocks of brick and granite. Occupying commanding locations are a pretty brick schoolhouse which cost $45,000, and the Goddard seminary, a large Universalist institution.

The Barre Association provided a special train on its remarkable railroad for a visit to the quarries. These are all in a mountain about three miles from the village and at quite an elevation above the town. The railroad is a great feat of engineering, not only overcoming the elevation but completely circling the mountain, while a net work of tracks connect each of the quarries. The train which consisted of five small cars, which might be termed observation cars, was pushed up the grade, the engine being on the lower side both ascending and descending. The trip to the mountains makes a pretty ride and excursions are frequent.

The train took the party first to one quarry and then another, so close that the derricks could easily have loaded granite on the cars. At the Empire light quarry, the first stop, was seen a huge cross in the rough, which measured 28 feet by 11 feet, and which weighed over 100 tons. Two Quincy manufacturers had figured on this job and lost, but they think the Barre firm will lose more before the monument, upon which a figure of Christ is to be cut in bas relief, is completed.

Then came the E. L. Smith quarry, the Gazeley quarry, the Wells & Lamson quarry, the Barclay quarry in which McDonnell & Sons of Quincy have recently become interested, the Langdon quarry, the Wetmore & Morse quarry, the C. E. Tayntor quarry, and others.

The Quincy men envied the Barre quarrymen because their stone lay so near the surface and could be worked so easily. The Wetmore & Morse plant is a remarkable quarry, and should prove a great bonanza to its owners.

At the Tayntor quarry they saw a fine large steel derrick, by which the engineer could not only raise and lower the stone at pleasure, but also swing it round and land it with ease on a car.

Few of the quarries however have such good hoisting plants as the Quincy quarries, many of them using only horse power.

While Barre has the quantity, the Quincy men feel content because they have the quality and seemingly on inexaustible supply.

The railroad is a great thing for Barre. It handles the stone easier, quicker and cheaper than by teaming, and the streets of the city are relieved of heavy teaming. The stone is taken out of the quarry and loaded directly on to the cars, transported down the mountain and directly into the sheds in the village, where it is reloaded when cut and transported to any part of the country. Competition is active among the railroads for the freight business, and more favorable terms are made than the Quincy men can secure from the N. Y., N. H. & H.

Returning from the trip among the quarries the Quincy manufacturers were guests of the Barre Association at dinner.

A few hours were then spent about the town and among the granite sheds. One firm was cutting a large monument which will go to Chicago. There is a very large spire, weighing in the rough 57 tons which will be 36 feet long, 4 feet square at base and 2 foot 5 inches at top. A 10 foot spire will go on top of this and all will stand on a large die, base and bottom base.

The representative of the DAILY LEDGER is indebted to the manufacturers for courtesies extended, but particularly to Mr. W. F. Scott, editor of the Barre Enterprise; Clayton Kingsley of the Granite City Leader; and E. A. Nutt of the Montpelier Watchman.

There was a short meeting of the Barre and Quincy Association in the early evening, at which association work was discussed, no allusion being made to labor matters, but rather an attempt to improve the business.

The special train conveyed the Quincy men and many Barre manufacturers back to Montpelier at 8 P. M., and at 9 o'clock a banquet with the following menu was enjoyed at The Pavilion:

Cucumbers. Sliced Tomatoes,
Consomme au Vermacelli.
Broiled Blue Fish, Matre de Hotel Sauce,

There was no programme for Saturday. Many returned to Barre, where a Scotch parade and picnic was held. Several "did" Montpelier, walking, riding, and visiting the granite works, the capitol building and other places. T. W. Egan and the Wetmore & Morse Co. have model sheds here, long and narrow, with a travelling crane running the entire length. Water power is used almost exclusively, the pressure being about 145 pounds. It gives good service and is cheaper than steam. At the invitation of Mr. Egan, two of the Quincy men and the LEDGER representative visited the source of water supply. It is a beautiful lake at a high level and about six miles distant. It was a delightful ride behind a spirited pair, and thoroughly enjoyed.

At 1 P. M. the special train, which had remained with the party all the time, was boarded and the homeward journey begun. The scenery of the Green Mountain state was beautiful and the afternoon sped rapidly. It was a single track road and as a long freight contested the right of way for many miles it was necessary to help them along. It was almost 9 o'clock when the Hub was reached. No rain marred the trip, although it is said to have rained in this vicinity, and the appearances were that it did, and it certainly has since.

SUNDAY OBSERVANCE.

Mayor Fairbanks Does Not Wait for the Mass Meeting Resolution.

The recent agitation in relation to the better observance in Quincy of the Lord's day, is having its effect, and while Mayor Fairbanks had not up to Saturday night recived a copy of the resolutions passed at the mass meeting held last week, he took the initiatory steps toward securing a better observance of that day, Chief Langley was instructed to close all places throughout the city whose proprietors could not show a victualler's license. As a result of this order several places in the centre and west parts of the city were closed to business. At Houghs Neck the grocery store, fish market and other places that did not have a license were closed.

The licensed victuallers were allowed to do business but a special officer was on duty who had instructions to visit all these places and report as to the nature of the business transacted and the manner in which it was being conducted. Places where loafers were in the habit of congregating on Sundays and making a nuisance of themselves were notified that loafing must stop.

It is not understood that Mayor Fairbanks intends to prosecute or to strictly enforce the law but better order will be had than in the past.

Sunday transformed quiet little Houghs Neck into a regular Nantasket or Newport. Crowds came and crowds kept coming together at different points on the beach, many remaining near the Jordan & Marsh band which discoursed all the popular airs of the day.

The band should certainly receive much praise, for althought it is comparatively a new band, it shows great promise of a future good standing. As usual the streets were crowded with turnouts and cycles of all kinds. One slight accident will cause the wheelmen to be more careful. A young man, riding along carelessly, at high rate of speed, ran down a man in the road near Tabers'. The man was carrying a child, but fortunately neither were hurt. The man took a sensible view of the matter and did not cause the arrest of the cyclist.

Ball playing was indulged in to the extent of one inning. The appearance of the patrol put a stop to that.

It was with a crash and a roar that Sunday ended. The most beautiful and terrible scene was witnessed during the shower. The water front seemed to be one continual sheet of lightning. Several who stood on the club piazza felt a distinct shock as a bolt struck the water near Hingham. The following clap brought everyone to his feet.

It is rumored that the illumination money now in the hands of the retiring committee is to be donated to the Quincy City Hospital. How about that, citizens. Look it up before Wednesday.

Several more friends have come to visit Mrs. Whitton. Among them are Miss Priscilla Hayes, Miss Dorothy Sproul and Mrs. Beatrice Harpin.

Miss C. L. Wilder is at Camp Comee.

An entertainment and dance will be held this evening in aid of the new Catholic church at Houghs Neck, at the church building on Manet avenue. The entertainment will consist of vocal and instrumental music.

A heap of old clams etc., put on the beach in the night, has caused a horrible smell for quite a way along the beach. This ought not to be allowed, as it is liable to cause sickness.

The Girl Who Swims.

To the recent health talk on sea bathing should be added the following from the American Woman. It says:

"The girl who swims should carefully consider her suit, as it plays an important part in all aquatic exercises. The best material is a light-weight serge, as it does not, like flannel, easily absorb the water and become heavy.

"Good taste as well as good service direct that it should be either dark blue or black in color. The gray, scarlet, or once white suits of elaborate cut and gaudy trimming are never seen on the girl who swims.

"The prime object of her suit is to leave the wearer just as free as possible. She therefore, has it made with a blouse (short-sleeved, if she is willing to sacrifice her arms to midsummer sun), trousers to the knee, and a skirt also reaching to the knee and removable, as it is always an impediment and may be done away with altogether in the seclusion of the natatorium.

"The best bathing stockings are made with particularly stout soles, and thus spare the necessity of that snare to swimmers—bathing shoes. No tight garments or anything that would handicap the motion should be worn, and corsets are an absolute impossibility.

"A necessary adjunct to the swimmer's outfit is the bathing robe—a long garment of turkish toweling or flannel, which may be purchased ready-made at any of the large shops for a reasonable sum, and which, for the sake of both modesty and precaution against chill, should shroud the bather in her promenade between bath-house and beach.

"If the girl who swims does much plunging or diving she should give up all notion of keeping her hair dry, and either let it hang closely braided or twist it up in a tight knot on top of her head.

"Oilskin caps, picturesquely knotted kerchief and ornamental bathing hats are alike powerless to keep out the permeating water.

"If she has real need to appear dry-haired immediately after her bath, she may, of course, swim about with a sort of unsplashing caution, but she loses a deal of fun and she has the discomfort of knowing that the head should be wet first of all on entering a bath.

"Never let the hair dry until it has been well rinsed out in fresh water. A good rubbing of both hair and scalp should follow, and afterward sun, fanning and more rubbing will soon dry it.

"Salt water is beneficial to the scalp as to all other parts of the skin, and if the hair is carefully rinsed after each bath and kept well clipped, it will likewise improve.

"If a girl has straight hair it is useless to attempt to curl it during the swimming season. A daily wetting and "salt sea breezes" are deadly foes to the crimping iron; so, if she is wise, the girl tucks her bristling locks under a sailor hat or cap

BRIGHTER OUTLOOK.

Great Improvement In the Tone of the Money Market.

HEAVY RECEIPTS OF GOLD

Will Soon Relieve the Present Scarcity of Currency.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—The financial community, and, to an extent, the public generally, has begun to cherish hopes of relief from present conditions because of the heavy imports of gold now under way and the assembling of congress today for the special purpose of dealing with the financial situation.

Of the local or speculative factors that have contributed to the sharp advance in prices on the Stock Exchange during the last few days it is hardly necessary to speak. The short interest appears to have been shifted from one class of operators to another rather than materially reduced. Evidence that this is so may be found in the borrowing demand for stocks, which is so great that practically every active stock commands a premium for use.

The sharp advance in prices appears to have affected investment buying unfavorably, and it is quite possible that it has tempted some actual buyers of securities to accept Unexpectedly Quick Profits.

Saturday's market was in harmony with the events of the week, both in and out of Wall street. Fluctuations were wide and the course of prices erratic. Early depression was followed by a sudden advance, which in a number of the active stocks exceeded 2 per cent and a few exceeded 3 per cent.

Then came the bank statement, showing changes of extraordinary magnitude, all of an unfavorable character. In consequence, the improvement was in many cases lost. Still, only a few of the net declines were important.

On the other hand, a number, including Western Union, General Electric and Louisville and Nashville, closed higher.

The statement of averages of the clearing house banks shows a loss in lawful money of $12,006,000. In the deposits this loss is partially offset by an increase of $2,250,000 in the loans. The difference between the two items mentioned is now $35,000,000; that is, the average loans are that much larger than the average deposits. The net result is a deficit of $14,-000,000 in the surplus reserve, of which $9,750,000 is due to last week's operations.

The Loss In Cash

is believed to be due principally to the purchase by the banks of government bonds from the savings banks and the withholding by the last named of the money so received from banks of deposit. It is obvious that unless further and unexpected drains are made upon the banks next week, they will be able to strengthen their position by the amount of gold which will arrive from Europe, and which is now estimated at $14,000,000.

As compared with the final prices of a week ago Saturday, the entire list is higher.

The demand for small bills and coin is not lessened. In fact the money brokers report a larger business than ever. They continue to buy gold and silver and currency at premiums of 1-2 to 3-4 of 1 per cent, and send the money so obtained to banks all over the country, but principally to Chicago, Philadelphia and Boston. They also report that many of the New York banks are among their customers, being forced into the market by the demands of their depositors.

It was reported on good authority, although Wall street was sceptical as to the truth of the story, that such of the gold now afloat for this country as had not been secured by the savings banks had been at a premium of 1 1-2 per cent. The larger importing houses denied that they had sold their gold, although they admit that offers for it had been made to them.

The sub-treasury paid its balance of $68,058 at the clearing house in currency. There was paid out over the counter on checks $585,000, mostly in gold, with a sprinkling of treasury notes. Of silver dollars $50,000 were paid out.

The treasury department at Washington is doing all in its power to meet the demand for small notes in and around this city.

Duke of York Is Generous.

LONDON, Aug. 7.—The Duke of York has requested that the money collected by seamen and marines of the British navy, and presented to him and Princess May on the occasion of their wedding, be added to the fund for the families of the victims of the Victoria disaster or invested for the benefit of the widows and other relatives of naval men dying in the service of their country.

Arkansas Negro Lynched.

MEMPHIS, Aug. 7.—News has been received here of the killing of an old and respectable citizen and the wounding of Chief Patterson of Woodruff county, Ark., at McCreery. The murderer, a negro under arrest, escaped to the woods, but was pursued by citizens, who lynched him.

Denver's Unemployed.

DENVER, Aug. 7.—Seven hundred men registered at the city hall applying for employment under the new street improvement ordinances. Those who are in the greatest distress will be picked out from the list. The relief camp is still running by private subscriptions.

Killed by Lightning.

BROOKLYN, Aug. 7.—While Fred Zeiling, Lizzie Topel, Ernest Topel and John Maher were returning from East New York last night they were struck by lightning. Zeigling and the girl were instantly killed, and the other two were severely shocked.

Many Railroaders Idle.

TOLEDO, Aug. 7.—During the last few weeks the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern railroad has laid off about 1000 men in this vicinity. Saturday about 100 more, engaged in the yards, shops, etc., were cut off. Depression in business is the cause.

A Postponement.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—The medical congress, which was to have been held in Rome on Sept. 4, has been postponed until April, 1894. The American national committee desires both the regular and the medical press to give this official information.

Pitcher Barr strained a tendon in his leg in the last game he played, and will be unable to pitch again this season.

Nearly every one who saw the Bostons play yesterday thought the same thing. The Beaneaters have a cinch on the pennant.—[New York Press.

Cincinnati has not won a game from Philadelphia this season, and Baltimore has yet to win a game from Pittsburg, while St. Louis has yet to beat Boston.

Nick Young says: "I think it would be very nice to have double umpires for the balance of the season and for all time, but we must clean up our notes and pay our debts first."

The secretary of the New England league received a telegram from Manager McDermott of Fall River to the effect that the club would abide by the old schedule or none.

Unreciprocated Love.

BROOKLYN, Aug. 7.—Edward Keating, aged 34 years, died yesterday from the effects of rough on rats taken with suicidal intent after attempting to murder his sweetheart, Mrs. Ida Dougherty, at her home, 12 Ditmars street. Mrs. Dougherty had persistently refused to listen to his offers of marriage, as she was already married, although separated from her husband.

Proper Precautions.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—All the remaining passengers of the steamer Karamania have been transferred to Hoffman island. A gang of the ship's crew were then put to work demolishing all deck houses, closets and hatch coverings, which will be burned in the ship's furnaces. The vessel will undergo a thorough cleansing.

Suit Against the Whisky Trust.

CHICAGO, Aug. 7.—Judge Tuley has overruled a demurrer filed by the whisky trust. The issue was whether the court should allow proceedings brought in the name of the people and intended to dissolve the alleged trust to be continued. By overruling the demurrer the court will allow the suit to continue.

Tip Needs Confirmation.

DENVER, Aug. 7.—President Moffatt of the First National bank has a tip from New York that Cleveland will recommend the coinage of American silver at the ratio of 20 to 1. He says if this is true and congress adopts it he will work 3000 men in his mines in 48 hours.

Labouchere's View of the Seal Question.

I have always been at one with the United States in respect to the seal controversy. By international law we are right, by common sense they are right, and when the former conflicts with the latter I am on the side of the latter. Seals are ferae naturae, and the United States government weakens its argument by contesting this. Their habitat is the open sea, and once a year they betake themselves to American territory in order to bring their progeny into existence. If slaughtered on the way, they would be exterminated in a few years. No one wants this, but if killed in undue numbers when on the territory of the United States this extermination would equally be the result. Common sense therefore says that they ought to be protected while in the sea, as well as protected from excessive destruction while on land.—London Truth.

Look Out For the "Bible Wagon."

The first electric organ to reach this country has arrived at the Boston custom house from England. It has been built for St. Thomas' church, Taunton. Another curious importation is a "Bible wagon," which has arrived from Glasgow. It is an elaborate affair, strangely fashioned and bright with varnish and gilding. It is equipped with seats, book racks and a high pulpit, which with its stand is mounted on a swivel and can be "aimed" in any direction.—Boston Letter.

A Sturgeon Weighing Over a Long Ton.

Some fisherfolk the other day captured in Yerik bay, on the Don, a sturgeon weighing 72 poods, or about 2,600 pounds English. The fish was taken, singularly enough, in an ordinary net and without damage to the meshes. A sturgeon of this size will give about 10 poods of caviare, having a marketable value of 1,000 rubles.—London News.

WEYMOUTH.

David Briggs Lovell of Lovell's Corner died on Friday after a short illness, aged 20 years. He had carried the mail between that village and East Weymouth for 20 years.

The houses of Alva Raymond, C. S. Stowell and Capt. Stowers at South Weymouth were raided Friday night and watches, silverware, jewelry and some money taken.

Henry A. Thomas of this town is a candidate for grand warden at the annual session of the Odd Fellows in Boston on Thursday.

Division 1, A. O. H., of Boston, made its second annual excursion in the harbor Sunday and spent the afternoon at Lovell's grove, where dancing was the chief enjoyment. Weymouth, Quincy, and Braintree members were also present.

White robed the pontiff meditative sought
With glance inquisitive to know
How passed the sage to death below.
"Did he repent by word or sign or thought?"

Answered the grave faced messenger with grief:
"Nor word nor sign repentance proved.
He passed as if to pass he loved,
Nor weighed the worth of doubt or belief.

"Through the dark portals, without faith or fear,
Peaceful, sincere and calm, he passed.
As once from cloister, doubt o'ercast,
In youth he wandered, holding truth so dear."

"'Tis better," said the white faced pontiff, mild:
"Eternal bliss no words decide;
All hearts sincere with God abide;
Thus are divine and human reconciled."

THREE KILLED OUTRIGHT

And Over a Score Injured In a Railway Wreck In Ohio.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 7.—A special from Fremont says: A terrible wreck occurred Saturday night shortly after 10 o'clock at Lindsey, a small village of about 500 inhabitants, eight miles west of this place on the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern. An engine and three sleepers were badly demolished and three people killed outright, while fully 25 were more or less badly injured. The wreck was caused by the collision of a westbound passenger train and an eastbound freight.

The passenger train consisted of an engine, baggage car, two express cars, three coaches and five sleepers. The coaches and sleepers were all well filled with people, many of whom were on their way to Chicago.

The passenger train was running at full speed, and when it neared the switch, close to the freight train, which had been side-tracked, the first three sleepers jumped the track and ran into the engine of the freight. The engine was wrecked and the sleepers crushed like eggshells.

NOW FOR BUSINESS.

Congressional Mill Is Ready to Begin the Great Struggle.

MANY NEW FACES ARE SEEN

Extraordinary Session Likely to Last Many Months.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—For the 12th time in the history of the United States, congress was convened at noon today in "extraordinary" session.

The story which the session will make for itself will probably justify that title in more than one sense. Convened for a single specific object—the repeal or modification of what is popularly known as the Sherman act—it will not be restricted to that bare program, but will have, in connection with it, to legislate on the whole subject of finance, including, probably, a thorough revision of the tariff. Those two subjects, distant and yet connected, will supply material enough to occupy the attention of congress for many months to come.

The house was called to order by Clerk Kerr, who was selected by caucus of his party for re-election, but who would nevertheless have performed that duty under the law as the holding over clerk of the last house, even if he had not been chosen for re-election. When he called the roll he looked upon nearly 100 new and untried men and found many familiar faces absent.

The usual resolution notifying the senate that it had been organized and was ready for business was sent to that body. The afternoon was occupied in the biennial drawing for seats.

Old Rules Adopted.

As it is only by authority of the rules of the house that the speaker appoints the committees, the usual custom was followed of adopting temporarily the rules of the previous congress.

No bills under the rules can be introduced until the committees have been named, but the desire of representatives to keep pace with the senate in this respect will probably cause a resolution to be passed suspending the rules so as to permit the introduction of bills for reference to the appropriate committees when appointed.

There will probably be little done in the house during the first week, owing to the organization of committees, etc. Speaker Crisp was sworn in by Representative Charles O'Neill of Pennsylvania, who is the oldest member in point of service and the "father of the house."

In the Senate.

In the present session, when exciting conflicts may be anticipated and when parliamentary rulings may have to be prompt, sharp and decisive, Mr. Stevenson will have a reliable substitute to call to the chair in the person of the president of the senate pro tem, Mr. Harris of Tennessee.

While the senate will have the great advantage of being guided and controlled by experienced leaders and debaters on both sides of the chamber, it will also contain many members entirely new to its proceedings. Its presiding officer, Vice President Stevenson, when he took the gavel on March 4 last from the retiring vice president, Mr. Morton, had had no familiarity with the rules of a legislative body except that derived from his service in the house during two congresses, but during the six weeks of the extra session he presided with dignity and ability.

The session today was opened with prayer by the senate's new chaplain, Mr. Milburn. Its two principal officers, Mr. Cox, the new secretary, and Mr. Bright, the new sergeant-at-arms, also represented the changed political complexion of the body.

Getting Down to Business.

The first business in order after the senate was called to order was to administer the oath of office to three senators and Mr. Cox, the new secretary of the senate. The senators who took the oath were Mr. Perkins, who succeeds Senator Stanford; Mr. Pasco of Florida, who has been re-elected after serving ad interim under a gubernatorial appointment, and Mr. Quay of Pennsylvania, who was not present during the last extra session and so had not qualified. As soon as notice was received from the house that it had organized the proper committee was appointed to wait upon the president and notify him that congress was ready to receive any communication he might care to make. This called forth the message giving the president's reasons for convening congress in special session and suggesting legislation to cure the ills from which the country is suffering.

All the committee clerkships underwent political changes during the extra session in March, and most of the appointees under the prior secretary and sergeant-at-arms have only had their official decapitation postponed, not averted.

The New Faces.

The state of California will have two new men in the senate to look after her interests—Mr. White, who succeeds Mr. Hearst, and Mr. Perkins, who has just been appointed by the governor to fill the place of Mr. Stanford. Kansas has joined to her Populists Mr. Peffer, on whom neither political party could rely for support on any question, and Mr. Martin, Kentucky has a new man, Mr. Lindsey, elected to fill the vacancy caused by Mr. Carlisle's resignation. Louisiana has one in Mr. Caffery, who took, last January, the seat made vacant by the death of Mr. Gibson. Massachusetts has one in Mr. Lodge, who succeeded Mr. Dawes March 4 last. Nebraska has one in Mr. Allen, elected in place of Mr. Paddock; New Jersey one in Mr. Smith, elected in place of Mr. Blodgett; New York one in Mr. Murphy, elected in place of Mr. Hiscock; North Dakota one in Mr. Roach, against whom Mr. Hoar made such a dead set at the extra session; West Virginia one in Mr. Camden, who, however served a former term in the senate, and Wisconsin one in Mr. Mitchell, who has had two terms' experience in the house of representatives.

Relying Upon Old-Timers.

It is to the old leaders of both political parties in the senate that the public will look forward for action. Foremost on the Republican side is Mr. Sherman, who gave his name to the act now the object of so much condemnation—an act which he has defended as a compromise measure, and what he is now willing and anxious to see repealed. He will probably be supported in whatever position he takes on the silver question by such adjutants as Allison, Aldrich, Frye, Hale, Hawley, Hoar and Morrill, and he will be opposed by such men as Jones of Nevada, Teller, Wolcott and Stewart.

There are quite as many experienced debaters on the Democratic side, including Senators Gorman, Gray, George, Harris, Morgan, Pugh, Vest, Vance and Voorhees, but they will all range themselves not on party lines, but on their individual and state views on financial policy.

Work For the Senate.

If the senate is disposed to go earnestly to work from the start it has before it the privileged question of the right to seats of Senators Mantle of Montana, Beckwith of Wyoming and Allen of Washington.

Another privileged motion pending is Mr. Hoar's resolution touching Senator Roche's character, with Mr. Gorman's substitute, and still another is Mr. Chandler's resolution of similar nature concerning Senator Power. So far no line of policy has been defined by either party upon these subjects, and it is probable that in both the senate and the house the parties will caucus during the week to agree upon their respective plans of campaign.

AN AWFUL PLUNGE.

Trestle Seventy-five Feet High Gives Way Beneath Weights of Train.

DANVILLE, Ills., Aug. 7.—Train No. 44 on the Peoria and Eastern railroad while pulling up a grade coming into Danville broke in two parts on a trestle one-half mile long and 75 feet high. Before the trainmen of the train No. 44 could get the rear portion of their train stopped, train No. 42 eastbound came on the bridge, dashing into the rear of train on the mid span of the trestle. Conductor McCawley was across the bridge but could not back far enough to prevent No. 45 coming onto the bridge.

The middle span was completely destroyed and also 25 cars of grain, two cabooses and the engines. Engineer O'Connor had a very narrow escape. It is reported that 15 tramps were under the train; if so, they were probably killed. Two hundred men are at work clearing away the debris in search of bodies. Only one has been found—that of Brakeman Stone.

Charles Jackson, a brick mason, was seriously injured. He claims that he and 17 other brick masons were beating their way east in a grain car, and that all the others were killed and that their bodies are at the bottom of the river. His story created great excitement, but as only one body has been found it is believed that he is mistaken. The loss will exceed $100,000 to the railroad company.

STABBED TO DEATH.

"Snip" Donovan Sinks a Knife Into the Heart of John Chew.

EATONTOWN, N. J., Aug. 7.—John Chew, an employe of Pierre Lorillard's stable at the Monmouth park race track, was brutally murdered there yesterday. The murder is alleged to have been committed by S. P. Donovan, also an employe of Lorillard, but who is better known as "Snip" Donovan. The murder was committed with a knife, which was thrust into Chew's heart, inflicting a wound nearly six inches long and severing the sixth and seventh ribs. Donovan was immediately put under arrest and taken to the county jail at Freehold.

That Donovan committed the murder there is not the slightest doubt. Late Saturday night the two went out, returning to the stable at 1 o'clock. After putting their horses up the men went to their rooms.

It is supposed the two men quarreled, as there had been bad blood between the two lately. Donovan has a very bad disposition and is easily angered. He had frequently threatened to murder Chew.

Pay the Price of the Royal for Royal only

Royal Baking Powder is shown by chemical tests absolutely pure and 27 per cent. greater in strength than any other. Many second-class brands of baking powder are urged upon consumers at the high-cost, first-class Royal. These powders, because of the inferior quality of their ingredients, cost much less than the Royal, besides being 27 per cent. less strength. If they are forced upon you, see that you are charged a correspondingly lower price for them.

ON A NEW TRACK.

Officers Think They Have a Clue to the Murderer of McCarthy.

NORTH ATTLEBORO, Mass., Aug. 7.—New developments in the McCarthy murder case has come out, and now, after four weeks, the state and town officers are of the opinion that they have in their possession important information which will go a great way in clearing up the mystery.

Some time on Saturday, July 8, the old man was murdered beyond a doubt, the suicide theory having been shown to be inconsistent with circumstances as they now appear. A thoroughly reliable man informed the police that Mr. McCarthy, after leaving Kennedy's saloon before noon, went to a house at the north end of the town. He arrived there, according to the informant, about 11 o'clock in the forenoon. There the murdered man and the persons in the house at the time engaged in a quarrel. He was never seen alive after that.

District Attorney Knowlton has been informed of the new state of affairs, and now arrangements are being perfected for an inquest to be holden before Judge Reed. The officers have been directed to summon every person in the vicinity of the place where the quarrel is said to have taken place, and from them the government expects to get at the facts connected with the murder.

AN INHUMAN CRIME.

Body of an Infant Weighted and Then Thrown Overboard.

BOSTON, Aug. 7.—Three boys who were sailing on the South bay, in the vicinity of the Swett-street bridge, while the water was at a low ebb, perceived the nude body of a male infant lying in two feet of water a short distance from them. They rowed to the spot and stepped into the water to obtain the body. It was then that they discovered that two large rocks were tied to the body, one at the feet and the second to the neck.

They brought the body ashore and notified the police. The body was that of a child, apparently about 7 months old, and had been in the water but a short time. As there was not a particle of clothing on the child no clue could be obtained as to whom the parents were, but the police will investigate the case thoroughly.

Injuries May Prove Fatal.

BANGOR, Me., Aug. 7.—An Italian laborer was brought here from Matawamkeag yesterday for medical treatment. In a fight the Italian, whose name is unknown, had been stabbed in the ear by a piece of iron pipe eight inches in length. The pipe went through his ear and jaw. It is doubtful if he recovers.

Portland's Missing Man.

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 7.—A slight clue has been found in the case of Samuel Thurston, who wandered away from Gorham, N. H. It is known that he passed through the mountains in safety, and was seen on the other side very tired but apparently well. His later movements have yet to be traced.

Rain, Hail and Wind.

BOSTON, Aug. 7.—Boston and vicinity was visited last night by a severe thunder storm, accompanied by hail and a high wind. It has not been equalled in severity for years. Reports from Lynn, Newton, Cambridge and other suburbs indicate that widespread damage was done.

A 10 Per Cent Reduction.

BOSTON, Aug. 7.—After Sept. 1 the small army which draws salaries at Young's and Parkers will draw just 10 per cent less. The only persons not in this are the porters. These draw their money from a head porter and are consequently not included.

Rosie Keating's Fall.

BOSTON, Aug. 7.—Three-year-old Rosie Keating, whose home is at 382 Commercial street, was leaning out of a second-story window last evening, when she lost her balance and fell to the sidewalk below. She sustained severe injuries about the head.

The Shaw Malpractice Case.

RUTLAND, Vt., Aug. 7.—The hearing in the case of Mrs. Loraine Gould, charged with performing a criminal operation on the person of Miss Eva Shaw, is concluded and the woman held for trial at the county court in $2500 bonds.

Lost a Foot.

LYNN, Mass., Aug. 7.—John Carlson was struck by an electric car at Fox Hill bridge on Western avenue. At the hospital the physicians found it necessary to amputate the right foot, as the wheel had crushed the bones.

CRISP'S COMMITTEES

Will Be In Full Accord With the Administration.

POSITION OF REPUBLICANS.

Will Aid Democrats In the Effort to Carry Repeal.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—A strong pressure from leading Democrats is being brought to bear on Speaker Crisp to persuade him to agree to an entire reconstruction of the four leading committees, ways and means, appropriations, banking and currency and coinage, weights and measures. The persons who are engaged in this movement are the extreme tarriff reformers, who are not satisfied with the methods adopted by the ways and means committee in the last congress. They claim that, as the Democratic party has now entire control of the legislative and executive departments of the government, it is its duty to strike out on a wholly different line of policy; also, to get out of the old rut.

SPEAKER CRISP.

The speaker listens to all they have to say, but gives out no intimation as to his plans. To comply with these requests would require a change in the chairmanships of these important committees and necessitate an entire reconstruction and modification of their personnel.

Crisp Will Stick to Cleveland.

Before Mr. Crisp makes any move in the assignment to these four committees he will have a conference with the president and Secretary Carlisle, and ascertain their views as to the policy to be pursued on finance and tariff revision. Speaker Crisp intends to place himself in entire accord with the administration on these vital questions of party policy. He will, therefore, receive any suggestions from the president and secretary of the treasury as to the personnel of these committees.

The anti-silver advocates very favorably receive the conservative utterances of Speaker Crisp in his address to the Democratic caucus after his nomination. The ultra wing of the free coinage element feels somewhat disconcerted. Its members admit their apprehensions that the speaker will so constitute the coinage and banking committees that they will not have a fair representation in committee deliberations on silver and other measures in that direction. The close Democratic friends of the president claim that in times like the present patriotism and not partisanship should control the action of the lawmakers of the country.

Republicans Will Aid In Repeal.

The Republican leaders are awaiting with much anxiety the utterances of the president in his forthcoming message. As soon as the position of the administration is known they will hold a conference and determine upon their line of action. This much is certain: the Republicans will vote for the unconditional repeal of the Sherman act, and will co-operate with any portion of the Democratic party which will take that stand.

In the conferences which have already been held among the Republicans, it has already developed that they will not vote for the repeal of that act if coupled with any radical conditions on the silver question. Many of the Republicans are not unfriendly to bimetallism, but they do not propose to co-operate with any movement looking to free coinage, the restoration of the Bland act, or any of the schemes which will satisfy the Populist idea.

If President Cleveland's message is what his personal friends say it will be, he will receive the co-operation of the Republican party, except the handful of silverites. In the contest on this question in the last congress there was some antagonism among the Republican leaders as to the political bearing of the silver question in the pending campaign. Now, however, the two wings and their leaders are united.

Democrats' Plans Not Matured.

There is as yet no concentration of thought as to what direction the Democratic managers will take in approaching the silver problem. They know that the president and administration desire the unconditional repeal of the Sherman act. They also know that their party is about equally divided in regard to silver; also that unless there is compensating legislation fully one-half, if not more, of their numbers will not vote for the repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman law.

Some of the leading friends of the administration suggest that in order to get at this question promptly a simple resolution to suspend the purchase of silver for 60 or 90 days be introduced and adopted. This course they allege will have a beneficial influence and will show to the country that congress is disposed to take a step in the right direction.

The adoption of this proposition, they claim, will give the opposing forces an opportunity to mature a system of readjustment of silver legislation which will meet the conditions which confront the country at this time. At the same time the temporary suspension of silver purchases will let the country realize whether this suspension of silver purchases will bring the relief anticipated.

If the anti-silver element are not willing to adopt some compensating legislation within the period of suspension, which will readjust the question, the country will have had the experience and effects of a policy of non-purchase and the friends of silver will also then know whether the accusations of the enemies of silver that it is responsible for the present conditions are true or not.

NEARLY $400,000 MISSING.

Report of Commissioner Linehan on the People's Insurance Company.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Aug. 8.—Commissioner Linehan has made his report to the directors of the People's Fire Insurance company. It is very lengthy, but the gist of it is found in the following statement:

Your securities, which should have been safe in the vault, are scattered in various banks between Manchester and Boston. Bonds, mortgages and collaterals amounting to $150,000 have been already located, and their whereabouts made known to the advisory committee. It is very clear that the late president and treasurer of this company have managed its financial affairs in direct violation of its bylaws, and a rigid investigation, extending back to the time when the company began business, should be begun at once.

There is an over issue of stock amounting to $13,500. The deficit amounts to $390,000, and the capital stock has been reduced to $200,000.

Snowdrifts In August.

HAVERHILL, Mass., Aug. 8.—Snowdrifts a foot deep were found yesterday along the line of the Haverhill and Amesbury road on the hillsides this side of Amesbury. There were patches of the white material 20 feet square in the fields and pastures, and the country side was covered with patches of snow here and there for a distance of two miles.

Mrs. Engle's Disappearance.

DEDHAM, Mass., Aug. 8.—Mrs. Bertha Engle, who disappeared from her home on Central street a week ago, has not been found, nor have any tidings been received of her. It is feared that she has wandered into the woods and died from exposure and starvation. Mrs. Engle was a German and unable to speak a word of English.

Mystery Deep as Ever.

NORTH ATTLEBORO, Mass., Aug. 8.—The local police and authorities know nothing of reported important developments in the McCarthy murder matter. There is nothing new that throws any light on the mystery. Preparations are being made for a thorough inquest soon, which is expected to bring out facts of importance.

For False Imprisonment.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Aug. 8.—Lawyer A. L. Green of Holyoke has served notice of a suit for $20,000 against Chief of Police Duryea of Chelsea in behalf of Margaret Hogan of Holyoke for false imprisonment. The plaintiff claims she was placed in the lockup without a warrant or a charge against her.

A Reckless Youngster.

BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 8.—Joseph Fossa, 15 years old, crawled under a two-horse dray loaded with stone during a shower, for shelter. The driver, not knowing of his presence, started his team and one of the wheels ran over the boy's right leg, crushing it very badly.

Fatally Injured by a Colt.

HAVERHILL, Mass., Aug. 8.—Wallace Noyes of Hampstead, N. H., was found in his stable in a dying condition. He had evidently entered a stall to attend to a young colt, and the animal had kicked him about the head and body, inflicting fatal injuries.

Marblehead's Valuation.

MARBLEHEAD, Mass., Aug. 8.—The assessors have given out the following figures: Total valuation, $5,420,450; number of polls, 2359; total tax to be raised, $96,473; tax rate, $17 per $1000, as against $16.20 for last year.

Will Not Cash Outside Checks.

LYNN, Mass., Aug. 8.—Hereafter the banks of Lynn will not cash outside checks. The officers say that when Boston banks refuse to cash their own checks it is time for Lynn to decline to cash them for them.

Leather Business Is Dull.

SALEM, Mass., Aug. 8.—The dullness in the leather business has caused Matthew Robson to discharge nearly all his men, and the other firms are laying off the greater part of their force.

Convicts Recaptured.

ELLSWORTH, Me., Aug. 8.—Albro and Andrews, who escaped from the jail here Friday night, were recaptured at Orland.

DIXON'S SOFT SNAP.

Pierce Is Easily Put to Sleep in Three Rounds.

EDDIE'S FRIENDS ARE SORE.

Think They Have Been Buncoed by Press Laudation.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Never since the Coney Island Athletic club has been pulling off pugilistic contests had there been such a tremendous throng gathered at their commodious arena as the Pierce-Dixon bout attracted here last evening. The time the opening bout was put on everybody seemed to be fairly wild with excitement. Pierce is a great favorite in this city and vicinity and his admirers came down in full force. It is estimated that there were between 8000 and 10,000 spectators in the building. Jim Corbett was there and was given an ovation when he walked into the building.

In the preliminary bout Danny McBride defeated Young Murphy after 10 rounds of hard fighting, and was wildly cheered by the multitude, who felt that it was a well-earned decision.

The Fighters Appear.

Promptly at 9:30 Tom O'Rourke entered the ring, followed by George Dixon, the Boston colored boy, who not only won the featherweight championship by his wonderful ability, but has defended it against all comers. He was given a slight ovation, but it was a mere nothing in comparison with the storm of applause which greeted Eddie Pierce when he appeared on the stage. It was 9:50 o'clock when the men began their great battle of 12 rounds or more, which means a finish fight. The purse they battled for was $6500, of which the loser received $500.

GEORGE DIXON.

The seconds of Dixon were Tom O'Rourke of New York and Jack Havlin and Morris Kelly, both of Boston. The men who looked after Pierce were Charley Norton, Con Riordan, Nick Dunn, John White and Sammy Kelly. Mike Blashy held the time for Dixon and Jim Lavelle for Pierce. The fight was refereed by John P. Eckhardt.

The Battle.

First round—Dixon led with his left after a little feinting, and caught Pierce in the wind. He did this same thing again after some cautious sparring, in which Dixon showed up to the best advantage. The men clinched on the ropes, but broke away of their own accord. Dixon then smashed Pierce with his left and again with his right. A clinch followed, and Dixon showed he was a good hand at the game of infighting and made Pierce break his hold. Dixon caught Pierce again and the round ended.

Second round—After a short feint by Dixon Pierce led lightly on Dixon's face, and then ducked a righthand swing. A sharp rally followed, in which Pierce appeared to have the advantage. Dixon endeavored to land his right, but was met and stopped very cleverly. Pierce appeared to have gained confidence in himself as the round ended.

The Knockout.

Third round—Dixon sent in his left and sent his man to the ropes. Dixon repeatedly sent in his right and left on the wind and jaw and knocked Pierce silly. He went down and out after repeated jabs on the jaw that would have settled a bigger and stronger man than Pierce. It was the universal verdict that Pierce was a softer mark than even Skelly.

He was clearly outclassed and his aspirations as a pugilist are forever settled. It took nearly 10 minutes to bring him to. The wildest kind of excitement prevailed after the battle was over and several free fights were started.

Pierce was in no respect the equal of Dixon, and the majority of the spectators went home feeling that they had been buncoed into thinking that Pierce was a fighter by the glowing press accounts that were published from day to day lauding up Pierce and his wonderful ability.

Smith Will Try Dixon.

Solly Smith, who recently defeated Johnny Griffin, and George Dixon were practically matched last night. No articles were drawn up, but Nick Abrahams, Smith's backer, and Tom O'Rourke, manager for the sable champion, agreed in the presence of a dozen witnesses to have their men meet before the Coney Island Athletic club. The purse offered amounts to $10,000. The contest has been set for Sept. 26.

Cashier Swift In Jail.

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 8.—Edwin L. Swift, the teller of the Birmingham bank, who embezzled $10,000, was taken before United States Commissioner Wright for examination. The prisoner waived examination, and was bound over for trial in the United States district court, which will come in this month. He was remanded to jail in default of $10,000 bonds.

THE CITY COUNCIL.

Debate on the Fire Department Committee's Report a Farce.

IT DID NOT COME TO A VOTE.

An Order for Plans for Abolishment of Water Street Grade Crossing.

After an interim of three weeks the City Council held a regular meeting Monday evening. The greater part of the session was devoted to the report of the Committee on Fire Department on its investigation, and those who opposed it were separately held up to ridicule by the chairman of the committee, so that the debate became a farce.

Twenty members answered to the roll call, but the only absentees from the whole session were Messrs. Drake and Smith.

Policeman Wanted.

Residents in the vicinity of West and Willard streets presented a petition for a night patrol of those streets. Referred to Committee on Police.

Licenses.

There were many applications for licenses, including several from Houghs Neck as common victuallers, and one from J. D. Taber for flying horses, which were referred to the Committee on Licenses.

The Quincy Electric Light & Power Co. petitioned for location for one pole on Foster street. To Committee on Streets.

C. H. Brooks and others petitioned for a fire alarm box at the corner of Brooks avenue and Center streets. To Committee on Fire Department.

Councilman Rooney presented the petition of W. F. Powers and others for the abolishment of the grade crossing on the Granite Branch at West, Copeland and Willard streets. To Committee on Streets.

Reports.

The Committee on Licenses reported on several previous applications for licenses. Those for common victualler's license were with one exception given leave to withdraw.

The Committee on Streets reported an order appropriating $1000 for plans and surveys looking to the abolishment of the Water street grade crossing. Read once and referred to Committee on Finance.

The same committee reported an order appropriating $650 for changing the grade of Winthrop avenue. Read once and referred to Committee on Finance.

Amendment to Ordinances.

Councilman Lennon introduced an order to amend Section 3 of the City Ordinances by adding Section 116 of Chapter 102 of the Public Statutes.

The Councilman explained the he desired to reach the flying horses. They should pay a license, and the City Solicitor had interpreted the law that they may, not shall procure a license. Section 116 imposed a fine for not having a license.

Councilman Johnson inquired if opinion was in writing.

Councilman Lennon said no and explained.

Adams Street.

A public hearing was given at eight o'clock on the widening and rebuilding of a part of Adams street.

Charles R. Sherman, representing the Wollaston Land Company, the largest abutters, said the company would claim no damages if the wall in front of its estate was put back, the lawn graded down and a first class sidewalk built.

The hearing closed and the order was recommitted to the Committee on Streets.

Veto Sustained.

The order appropriating $600 for a hose wagon in Ward Six was taken from the table, and the question came on passing it to be ordained notwithstanding the objection of the Mayor.

Councilmen Holbrook, Moxon and Badger of Ward Six hoped the veto would be sustained and that Ward Six would have a combination apparatus.

Councilman Federhen explained the report. In the committee the only thing considered was the repairing of the Chemical or a new Hose carriage. The Chief Engineer had been requested to attend meeting, but did not. It was on the understanding that Ward Six was well covered with hydrants that a wagon was recommended.

Councilman Sherman queried if a Chemical was not better because of the distance from the Steamer.

Chief Ripley denied being notified of the meeting. There were 17 hydrants in Ward Six. Some were on the Boston mains and others could not be depended on for more than one or two steamers.

Councilman Federhen said he had personally notified Chief Ripley of meeting.

Chief Ripley as emphatically denied it.

Councilman Grindell said the matter of a Hose wagon was hardly considered in the committee. That previous to a Council meeting it was agreed to report in favor of it.

Councilman Brown of committee favored a combination apparatus, but in the committee it was between a new Hose wagon and repairing the Chemical.

Councilmen Federhen and Williams were in favor of sustaining veto if as now represented the hydrant service was poor.

The veto was unanimously sustained, 20 to 0.

Councilman Moxon then introduced an order appropriating $1,300 for a combination apparatus, which was read and referred to the Committee on Finance.

Fire Department Report.

The investigation report of the Fire Department was then taken from the table.

Councilman Badger saw nothing in the report to show that Chief Ripley had not done remarkable well with the apparatus furnished. He was a good fire fighter. The city charter and ordinances very foolishly required six assistant engineers. He thought Chief Engineer Ripley had certainly had experience. Further, some in the service 15 years knew less than others who had served but one.

Councilman Williams told of the trouble among two Assistant Engineers at the hay stack fire, and criticised the Chief at the Graham fire.

Councilman Brown explained how the investigation came about and felt that the committee had done its duty, and that light ought to shine through darkness.

Councilman Grindell asked him if it was a fair report on the testimony.

Councilman Brown would not have signed it unless I did.

Councilman Federhen asked if Councilman Grindell had refused to sign report when drawn.

Councilman Grindell said no, that he had not been asked.

Councilman Federhen asked if previous to the Council meeting he did not have a long interview with the Mayor or Chief Engineer.

Councilman Grindell said he did not, that he had not seen either. Further, he had not interviewed either at any time.

Chief Ripley then read a criticism of the report, item by item, his remarks appearing in full in another column.

Councilman Williams asked why Foreman Thomas of Hose 2 had been reduced and Chief Ripley replied, because the people of Wollaston demanded it.

Councilman Federhen replied at length to the stand taken by Councilmen Moxon and Badger. He did not think the Committee on Fire Department at all responsible for the condition of the fire department. In reply to the query, why this publicity, he saw no demand for secrecy. If the ordinance as to assistant engineers was foolish why was it not repealed. The chief engineer "supposed" Hose 2 was at the Wollaston fire, yes he always supposed. The committee found all the firemen old and experienced except the chief. Hoped members would vote with honest purpose. To the statement that the report would hurt the discipline of the department he took exceptions, believing it would help the department.

Councilman Moxon entered his protest against the remarks attributed to him by the chairman of the Committee on Fire Department. The investigation by the executive of the Wollaston fire was fair, open and square, and everybody was given an opportunity. He did not believe the Council had the authority to investigate departments solely responsible to the Mayor. There was nothing legislative about the investigation. It was a curious thing that Councilman Federhen, who was a member of the Committee on Fire Department in 1892, if he knew of the many wants of the fire department, did not make some attempt to secure improvements when the budget was under consideration. No complaints had been made to the Chief. The Council is not responsible for the working of the department. It makes no difference whether this report is accepted or rejected. The Council can accomplish nothing.

Councilman Johnson believed in the right of investigation, but was opposed to the acceptance of the report on the grounds presented. There were other evils in the department which he believed the committee was knowing of, but upon which they had not touched. He believed committees could correct abuses in their departments by going to the heads personally. He asked if members of the committee had read the report before signing.

Councilman Williams answered in the affirmative.

Councilman Brown regarded the question as an insult. He knew every word.

Councilman Sherman queried if he did know every word, for Mr. Nickerson of his own ward was criticised when it should have been Mr. Nicholson.

A motion to adjourn was lost.

Councilman Federhen replied to Councilman Johnson and Moxon.

Upon motion of Councilmen Adams the Council at 10.20 adjourned and will meet again Aug 21.

THE CHIEF REPLIES

To Report of the Council Committee on Investigation.

FACTS IN THEIR TRUE LIGHT.

Does Not Believe He is Entitled to Any Censure from the Council.

At the City Council meeting Monday evening Chief Engineer Ripley replied to his critics as follows:

Mr. President and Gentlemen of the Council:

With your kind permission I would like to say a word in regard to the very lengthy report that was made by the Committee on Fire Department, July 10. The report begins with a fire in Ward Five on the night of April 13. An alarm was turned in upon the fire alarm system of the city. Hose 2 did not arrive at the fire until about one hour after said alarm had been turned in.

The driver of Hose 2 carriage was away from the city and did not notify any member of the company of his intended absence. I will say just here that the driver of said hose company got notice that a member of his family was dead (or dying) and did not have time to notify, even if he thought of doing so, and it appears to the Chief Engineer that his course was a reasonable one, more especially when it is taken into consideration that he is only at call and receives pay only when a hitch is made. It does not appear reasonable to your Chief Engineer and I do not see how any citizen can expect a man to hang around a fire station the whole year, when he will not average more than ten to fifteen runs which would not be over $45 in round numbers.

Your Committee report also stated that the captain of Hose 2, after twenty minutes, reported to the Chief Engineer that his apparatus was not there. In regards to that statement, I have only to say that, if Captain Thomas ever made any such report to the Chief Engineer, the Chief Engineer did not hear him, and the first that the Chief Engineer knew of the absence of Hose 2 apparatus was about three quarters of an hour after the alarm had been turned in. It was one of the most natural things in the world for the Chief Engineer to suppose that Hose 2 apparatus was present and for the following reason:

There Were Three Streams

Turned on to the fire, two of which I know came from the engine by the force of said streams. The other I had good reason to believe was a hydrant stream. This was operated by Hose 2 men, and I supposed of course that the hose came off of their wagon. Later on when I found I could do no more with Chemical Engine No. 2, I met Captain Thomas between the buildings. I asked him how much hose he had left on his wagon, and if he had enough to reach from the hydrant on the hill with what hose we had, as I would like to keep Faunce's house wet and keep down the front corner as much as I could. He then informed me that the wagon was in the house which was the first that I knew about its being there. I then ordered him to get it around there as soon as he possibly could; take what men you can get and ask anybody to give you a lift. He did as directed, and did all that any man could do. When he asked citizens to give him a lift they refused to do so with the exception of Mr. Sherman. The order I gave to Captain Thomas to get his wagon was not given in so tame a manner as the committee desire the Council to understand.

The Chief Engineer made this statement to the Committee at their first hearing held in the Council Chamber, but for some reason unknown to the Chief Engineer that part has been omitted from the report.

The report also speaks of the steamer's supply of coal giving out and that wood was burned, as has been done on two other occasions. All the Chief Engineer has to say regarding the burning of wood is,

What Of It?

What material harm would have been done if wood had been used altogether?

The Committee on Fire Department next investigate or inquire into Ward Two and report as follows. "It appears that the house in their ward is sadly out of repair and a new one should be built." The Chief Engineer has tried to make this fact plain by mentioning the same in his annual reports for the past four years. In regards to the apparatus being too heavy for one horse to haul with ease, I wish to say, it makes quite a difference what kind of a horse is doing the job, and in speaking of ease, it appears to me that there would not be much ease to haul any kind of a wagon at the rate of speed the horse is supposed to go answering an alarm of fire. If the committee wishes to convey to the Council that the apparatus is too heavy for the load it is supposed to carry, the Chief Engineer can not agree with them and if buying new at this date would have all axles made heavier than the present ones. Don't think I have got any out lying hose wagon that weighs 3000.

In regards to the horse and horses that have been furnished for hauling Hose 4 apparatus it is very true, as the committee report, they have at times been unsatisfactory, but when the committee make the statement that the Chief Engineer has neglected to take any steps to procure a suitable one, that part of the report is not true, for the Chief Engineer had inquired

FACTS AND FIGURES

Call For an Unconditional Repeal of the Sherman Act.

OUTLINE OF THE MESSAGE

Which President Cleveland Will Submit to Congress Today.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—The World this morning prints the following special:

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Following is an authoritative statement regarding the message which President Cleveland will send to the two houses of congress:

He dwells most particularly upon the deplorable condition of the country as affects the masses. The banker and broker and capitalist, he reasons, can take care of themselves, but the workmen are practically helpless when such a condition of affairs as now prevails exists.

To substantiate this argument he shows in concise language the actual effect of the law known as the Sherman act now in force. He calls attention to the dearth of confidence arising therefrom. He deals not in the theories, but in facts and figures, to demonstrate the truth of his assertion that the burden inflicted upon the country by this unwise law falls most heavily upon the workingman.

No Compromise.

It is for this reason that the demand of the country for the repeal is strong and universal. It is the plain duty of all patriotic citizens entrusted with the responsibility of government to heed this demand. Therefore, he recommends unconditional repeal, without hint of compromise or substitute of any kind. There he stops.

Whatever may be his views regarding the future use of silver as a part of national currency, to be fixed possibly by well considered legislation after a suitable time shall have elapsed, he makes no suggestions and outlines no plan which might meet with his approval. He confines his recommendation and directs the attention of congress solely to the pressing need of the hour—prompt repeal. He notes the fact that the people in the last elections made an emphatic demand for revision and reform in tariff legislation.

Pledges Must Be Kept.

The pledges then made must be kept. But since that time an unforeseen exigency has arisen and it must be met and mastered. It is the plain duty of congress, therefore, to afford relief to the country by placing repeal of the financial statute ahead of all other contemplated legislation relating to the tariff or any other subject.

That is the substance of the message. It is pronounced by members of his cabinet, who alone have read it, the ablest state paper Mr. Cleveland has ever produced. It is certainly a bold, unqualified utterance, such as springs only from deep conviction. Not the least of its merits is its brevity. If published in full, it will fill not more than two columns.

The message was practically finished at Gray Gables, but has been the subject of discussion at two cabinet meetings in Washington, and Secretaries Gresham and Lamont spent a large part of last night at Woodley aiding the president in his final revision.

Despite all this discussion, however, it stands, with the exception of a few minor changes, chiefly of diction, as originally penned by Mr. Cleveland's own hand at Buzzard's Bay.

Repeal Will Soon Follow.

President Cleveland believes that public sentiment in favor of repeal has not only grown since he issued the proclamation calling an extra session of congress, but that it is still growing and will continue to grow. For this reason, therefore, no less than because of his confidence of a majority in its support on a final vote, the administration considers repeal within 60 days quite within the range of possibility.

Why It Was Delayed.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—The president's message would have been sent to congress had it not been for the early adjournment of the senate out of respect to the late Senator Stanford. Mr. Pruden was about to enter his carriage with the message when the announcement that the senate had adjourned was received. Consequently the transmission of the message was withheld.

ABOUT $1,250,000 DAILY

In Bank Notes Will Be Issued by the Treasury Department.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—To meet the continued increasing demand for national bank notes from banks which are taking advantage of the low rate of government bonds and buying them and increasing their circulation, Secretary Carlisle has ordered the force of the bureau of engraving and printing to work from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m. This is two hours over the usual time. With these extra hours the capacity of the bureau, in addition to keeping up its regular government work, will be about 40,000 sheets daily, or 160,000 notes a day. The average stamped value of each sheet is $35, so that the total issue per day beginning today will be about $1,250,000, exclusive of reissues.

In Congress.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Senators Quay and Pasco took the oath. Secretary-elect Cox was sworn in. The resignation of Mr. Beckwith of Wyoming was announced and the usual resolutions were passed. In the house Crisp was re-elected speaker. Minor offices were filled by the Democratic nominees. Members-elect were sworn in and seats were drawn for.

They Get Eight Hours.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 8.—The bricklayers' and stonemasons' demand that on and after today eight hours shall constitute a day's work with nine hours's pay, has been conceded so generally that it is reported that not more than four union men are out of work in consequence of the demand.

New York's Money Market.

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—The shipment of currency to the interior by New York banks yesterday aggregated $400,000. A consignment of $150,000 in gold from Europe has been sold at a premium of 1-16 per cent commission.

An Italian's Ready Knife.

TROY, N. Y., Aug. 8.—An Italian named Fonce le Mark murdered James Burns during an altercation. A long bread knife was plunged into Burns' stomach and he died in a few minutes. Le Mark was arrested.

Successful Entertainment in Aid of the Catholic Church—Jump in Contest.

The entertainment given Monday evening in aid of the new Catholic church at Houghs Neck was much enjoyed by a large and appreciative audience. The ones who helped to make the evening a pleasant one deserve much praise for the thorough manner in which the work was done.

Under the enterprising management and direction of Mr. Henry Hoey who managed all the details in his usual manner, the entertainment was a complete success. The artists should all receive a word of praise and special mention should be given to Mrs. Lagergren, Miss Dooley and Miss Holly. After the entertainment the hall was cleared and a very pleasant hop enjoyed. Dancing was continued until 12 o'clock.

What would have been otherwise a very unpleasant and lonely evening proved to those who visited the church a very pleasant one. The following is the programme: take what was furnished or none, and at the present time it is none.

Hobson's Choice,

The Committee also state that the hose house in Ward Four is sadly out of repair and that the Committee hopes to have a suitable location for a building to present to the Council at its next meeting. The Chief Engineer has hoped the same thing for the past four years, and respectfully refers the Committee to his reports.

The committee again speak of the apparatus being to heavy, in answer I have only to repeat my former statement.

The committee further speak of the apparatus being too heavy in Ward Five. In answer I have only to again repeat my former statement.

The committee also speaks of a recent order passing the Council so that arrangements have been made to keep a horse at the Hose house. While I am willing to give the committee credit for all the good they have done the fire department, yet I am not willing that the Council or the citizens should be misled in any way. In regard to this recent order that passed the Council, I wish to say that an order similar was introduced in the Council a year or more ago, so it is nothing new and nothing that this committee need assume any credit for.

In regard to the Chemical engine located in Ward Six, it is said by the committee that it has not been suitable for the purpose it was intended for several years. The Chief Engineer begs to differ with the Committee and improve this opportunity in saying to this Council that it has on several occasions done good service. That it was badly injured at the fire in Wollaston April last is very true. But when the committee make a report that the Chief Engineer did not make any attempt to provide for its repair for a month later, it is very untrue, for the Chief Engineer testified himself that he had corresponded with Charles T. Holloway, the maker, of Baltimore, Md., as to the probable cost of repairing the same.

It Was Simply Impossible

for the Chief Engineer to make a report before he heard from Mr. Holloway. The Council not having a meeting for two weeks was the cause for some of the delay. The Chief Engineer does not consider that he was at fault in any way, shape or manner, for after verbally notifying His Honor, the Mayor, he immediately wrote to the maker of said engine after first trying in Boston for a place to repair the same.

The Committee also took upon themselves the responsibility of recommending the purchase of a hose carriage at a cost of $600, instead of following the Chief Engineer's recommendation to have the Chemical engine repaired at a cost of $400, and further state that said engine is little better than old junk. All I have to say is that it is pretty good junk, in my opinion, as I have had an offer of $400 in exchange for a combination engine and hose wagon.

In regard to better protection with a hose carriage, as the Committee state it would be, in their opinion, I wish to say if the Committee had recommended a hose wagon instead of a hose carriage it would be a little better than what they did recommend. And, as to better service, I wish to inform this Council that the service would not be any where near as good as it is at the present time, and for the following reasons. A hose carriage would carry 950 feet of hose. At the present time, Aug. 6, there are on two jumpers at the engine house in said ward, 1150 feet of hose and one 36 gallon tank chemical engine. That there will be and the Council suppose that the committee brought this about, I will say that in regard to the 1150 feet of hose it was located as follows (and has been for the past four years) one jumper at engine house with 750 feet of hose, and one jumper at car station with 400 feet of hose. It appears to the Chief Engineer that there is more and better service than a hose carriage would be with 950 feet of hose.

In regard to the ladders I will simply refer to the chief engineer's report of 1892, and as soon as there was a place to put a longer ladder it was procured.

In regard to the chief engineer not providing the department with life net, chute, gun or some other suitable device, etc., and that his attention was called to it in 1888, I will first say that I was not the Chief Engineer in 1888. In 1889 my attention was called to it, and I called the attention (verbally) of the Mayor to the same at that time. The conversation between the Mayor and Chief Engineer did not lead to the purchase of the life net. The chute which the law describes is not in existence, therefore, it would be impossible for the Chief Engineer to obtain one.

The department is now the possessor of a life net which was ordered in Feb., 1893. So it appears that the Committee did not bring this about as it would like to have the Council understand.

The Committee seem to insist on giving the Council to understand that the Chief Engineer continually violates the ordinance by placing the Engineer of Ward One in in charge whenever he leaves the city. Not only last year when his attention was called to it, but also this year. In answer to this I simply deny using the words, "take charge," since my attention was called to the same last year, and the Committee have No evidence to that effect.

I will also say that there is no discord among the engineers or any of the members of the department. Notwithstanding the report of the majority of the Committee, peace and harmony prevail. In regards to section 8 of the ordinances being frequently broken where it says the Chief Engineer shall on the last day of each week prepare a pay roll of all permanent members, &c., I will say that the Chief Engineer has been in the habit of doing as follows: This pay roll has been prepared Thursday and Friday evenings so that the men could get their money the last day of the week. As the city auditor has to also approve of these rolls, they have got to be on his desk previous to Saturday morning.

The evidence that the committee have, I would very much like to have read to the Council, and also who furnished the evidence. It must have been given at one of those public hearings that nobody knew anything about, for the Chief Engineer attended all of those hearings that he got any track of, and he does not remember of any evidence of that kind.

In regard to section 14 of the ordinance, about taking the engine out of town without the permission of the Chief Engineer, was fully explained to the Council of 1892 and proper steps taken to prevent a repetition of the same.

In regard to the assistant engineers not understanding their business, I wish to say that I do not know of any that do not their business, as they have always performed all duties appertaining to their office entirely satisfactory to the Chief Engineer.

In regard to the driver of steamer having or assuming any more authority than any other permanent man is unknown to the Chief Engineer. In regard to his performing duties of the engineman, I will state to this council that the extent of that duty was the care of the second floor, which I will explain more fully if the Council desire. In regard to his having more leisure time than other permanent men, it appears to me that the report rather conflicts, for how could he have more leisure time if he performed the duties of others in addition to his own.

In regard to the rules being posted in the several houses, it is very true they have not been until this investigation commenced, but nevertheless every member of the department has been provided with a copy of said rules, regulations and ordidinances.

In regard to the ability, the qualification, experience, capacity, etc., of the present Chief Engineer, I am willing to leave that to the judgment of this Council. If your committee had found any mismanagement of fires, or any money used for any purpose other than for the best interest of the department and citizens of this city, I would then perhaps deserve the censure that the majority of this committee has recommended to this Council, but in their failing to do so, the Chief Engineer does not think he is entitled to censure of any kind from this Council, and in conclusion will say that he has done all he could with what has been given him to do with.

Deacon Jones' Grievance.

You'll excuse me, Mr. Parson,
If I seem a little sore,
But I've sung the songs o' Isr'el
Fur threescore years an more,
An it sort o' hurts my feelin's
Fur to see 'em put away
Fur these harum scarum ditties
'At is capturin the day.

There's anuther little happ'nin
'At I'll mention while I'm here,
Just to show 'at my objections
All is offered sound and clear.
It was one day they was singing
An was doin well enough—
Singin good as people could sing
Sich an awful mess o' stuff—

When the choir give a holler,
An the organ give a groan,
An they left one weak voiced feller
A-singin there alone!
But he stuck right to the music,
Though 'twas tryin as could be,
An when I tried to help him,
Why, the hull church scowled at me.

You say that's so-low singin.
Well, I praise the Lord that I
Growed up when folks was willin
To sing their hymns so-high.
Oh, we never had such doin's
In the good ol' Bethel days,
When the folks was all contented
With the simple songs o' praise.

Now, I may have spoke too open,
But 'twas too hard to keep still,
An I hope you'll tell the singers
'At I bear 'em no ill will.
'At they all may git to glory
Is my wish an my desire,
But they'll need some extry trainin
'Fore they join the heavenly choir.
—Paul Dunbar.

Death's Protest.

Why dost thou shrink from my approach, O man?
Why dost thou ever flee in fear and cling
To my false rival, Life? I do but bring Thee rest and calm. Then wherefore dost thou ban
And curse me? Since the forming of God's plan
I have not hurt or harmed a mortal thing;
I have bestowed sweet balm for every sting
And peace eternal for earth's stormy span.

The wild, mad prayer for comfort, sent in vain
To knock at the indifferent heart of Life,
I, Death, have answered. Knowest thou not 'tis he,
My cruel rival, who sends all thy pain
And wears thy soul out in unmeaning strife?
Why dost thou hold to him, then, shunning me?
—Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

THE SUMMER NIGHTS OF LONG AGO.

Sing me a little song as night draws nigh,
Tender and loving, sweet and soft and low;
And then I'll say a tearful last goodby
To the fond remembered nights of long ago.

O moon serene, that shone on youth's bright shore
And lit the grassy slope with purest glow,
Cast a bright ray down Time's ensilvered floor
From the faroff summer nights of long ago!

'Tis all in vain! The joyous laugh that rang
Is still. The bitter words and tears that flow
Cannot the voices wake of those who sang
In the starlit summer nights of long ago.

THAT OLD VIOLIN.

"Here comes the doctor, Drascovy. Now I can introduce you," said Mrs. Vincent, pulling up her ponies sharply as she came alongside a gentleman who was walking leisurely out of Brighton on the London road.

"Dr. Manfield, this is M. Drascovy, of whom I have told you. It is very lucky, our meeting now, for he only stays with me another 24 hours or so, and I do want him to see your violins. May he do so?"

"With pleasure, Mrs. Vincent. I shall only be too glad if he will see them and perhaps bring out some of the sound that now lies dormant in them. When will you come, monsieur?"

"At any time tomorrow that may be convenient to you, Dr. Manfield."

"Then say after lunch, about half past 2; I am not likely to be engaged then."

After a few minutes' conversation they said goodby, and Mrs. Vincent whipped up her ponies and drove into Brighton to let her lion roar, as she laughingly said to Drascovy, the rising violinist, with a great future before him, so the critics said. Dr. Manfield was something of a musician and had an odd fancy for picking up stray instruments here and there, some of them valuable, others of no worth, for the doctor did not really know enough about violins always to judge correctly their value, consequently he was well pleased that M. Drascovy should come and give his opinion and play on some of them.

The violinist turned up at the appointed time, and soon Dr. Manfield brought out the first—a violin in dark mahogany, evidently old and well seasoned. Drascovy made some alteration in the stringing, and having tuned the instrument the room was presently flooded with a perfect volume of melody. For some time he went on playing, then ended with something like a sigh and put down the violin with a nod of approval.

"Good, very good," he said.

"I thought so, monsieur. What is that violin worth?"

"Three hundred pounds at least. It is a beauty—one of the best I have ever played on."

"Here is another that seems to me good. Will you try it?"

Once again there was approbation on the musician's face.

"And here," said the doctor, "is one I picked up last year in France, and I don't quite know what to make of it. Somehow or other I never cared"——

There was a knock at the door, and the doctor's page entered.

"Bad accident, sir, in the surgery; will you come?"

"You must excuse me, monsieur. You will be able to amuse yourself till I am able to return, I hope."

Drascovy did not reply, and the doctor in his hurry did not notice that his guest was gazing in speechless wonder at the instrument that had just been shown to him. His hand trembled as he took it up lovingly, tenderly. "Is it possible," he murmured, "the realization of my dream, or am I still asleep? A virgin Stradivarius! Surely this is imagination; it cannot be reality!"

He could hardly string and tune it, his hands so shook, but soon he took up a bow and seemed to listen entranced at his own music. Then he put down the violin and pressed his hand to his forehead, pacing up and down the room. Anon he played again and then took it to the window for a better light. He literally caressed it with his long, thin fingers. He knew there was fame and fortune in that instrument with one who could do it justice. He must have it at any cost.

But he was not rich; he could not pay the money it was worth. Then he played again, and a thought came to him.

He would dissemble. The doctor did not know its worth. He would not tell him, but he would hint that he would buy it. His resolve taken, he had time to calm himself before the doctor reappeared, and then they went on talking, Drascovy hardly able to take his eyes off the Stradivarius. Presently he rose to go.

"Yes, your two instruments are good, very good. By the bye, would you care to part with the third?" making a desperate effort to appear calm. "I have a pupil I should like it for."

"Oh, well, yes; I don't mind, if you will fix what you consider a fair price!"

Drascovy winced.

"Ten pounds?" he asked.

"Yes, if you judge that to be its worth."

He took the violin home to Mrs. Vincent, but he did not tell her much about it. He went to his room, and for the next 24 hours he never left it. Once they took him something to eat, but he sat or stood and played till Mrs. Vincent was quite vexed only as she said you never could tell what a genius was going to do next. She supposed he had an inspiration.

* * * * * *

"My dear M. Drascovy! Can it be two years since we saw you in Brighton? Are you never coming to see me again? All my friends are anxious to congratulate you on your late phenomenal successes, so do come and dine with me on Tuesday or any day you like to name. Now, I shall really take no refusal. By the bye, have you heard of poor Dr. Manfield's sudden death—heart disease? His daughter is with me now. She was left so very poor, for he was deeply in debt. I should like you to see her. Sincerely yours, Mildred Vincent."

Could he meet her, Drascovy thought, the daughter of the man he had defrauded. No! He would refuse, and yet as he sat down to write the note something made him accept.

He was not a happy man. Through all his great success, due so largely to that wonderful violin, there had been the skeleton at the feast, and now the doctor was dead and his daughter unprovided for, living, it seemed, on charity.

"M. Drascovy—Miss Manfield," said Mrs. Vincent.

He saw a tall, queenly woman, with lustrous brown eyes and bright, fair hair, dressed in a deep black gown, relieved by the least touch of white about the throat. Her movements were slow and very graceful, and when she spoke it was in a low voice full of melody. She was very beautiful. He could hardly take his eyes off her, and yet, if she happened to look toward him, he started and cast down his eyes. He could not sleep that night. He knew there was only one woman in the world for him, and she—was the daughter of the man he had robbed! It was well, or ill, for him that he could not see her next day, sitting by a couch on which a sick man lay, one hand in his, the other stroking his hair. "Patience, dear heart, patience," she whispered, "things will be better soon. I shall get introductions and pupils through Mrs. Vincent, and then, dear, it will be all right. You must be content to wait till then, for you know I shall be always true and loving."

"But it is so hard for you, Nellie. I cannot tie you to a cripple, to a life of toil for one so helpless as I am. Oh, it is hard that this should have happened to me, when six months ago I was strong and vigorous."

"Maybe it is better, dear; it should bring us closer together, and in years you may recover, perhaps. And now I will read to you, or we will talk together." And so the brave, strong woman helped the man she had loved so long and still loved, even now that he was condemned to lie on a couch for his lifetime through an accident in a London street. He was poor, and so was she. The working and waiting would be very hard, but she would persevere and conquer. Drascovy was often to be found at Mrs. Vincent's house during the next fortnight, and one afternoon, to his great delight, he found Mrs. Vincent out and Miss Manfield alone in the drawing room.

Ten minutes later he had told her he loved her—had asked her to be his wife.

She hid her face in her hand and bade him be silent.

"You do not understand; how should you?" she said. "I cannot think of what you ask, for if ever I marry it will be to some one very different to yourself—to one who loves me, whom, I too, love, and who is now a helpless invalid on his couch. You are rich, and he and I are poor, but I am going to work hard, and some day I shall be his wife if we are ever rich enough, for you see it will be an up hill task getting singing pupils. You understand now, do you not, and will never ask me any more?"

She looked at him and saw his dark, handsome face working convulsively.

"I am sorry if I have given you pain," she said, for he did not speak, "but you will soon get over it. You are rich and have the world at your feet; all that fame and fortune can give you."

"Except yourself, the only gift that can bring me happiness. Ah, child, you little know of the curse there is on my fortune, on my life itself. But you shall know, though I cannot tell you now. Goodby; forgive me if you can."

He hurried from the room, and presently she heard the hall door bang. She sat still for a long time, pondering his strange words and distressed manner, wondering what he could have to tell her.

That night the mystery was solved. By the last post there came a registered letter, thick and bulky. She slipped it into her pocket to read in her bedroom, for she knew it was from Drascovy.

For a long time she sat before the fire that was burning brightly, and her beautiful eyes were full of tears as she thought of her poor crippled lover and asked herself why she was so poor, why some people had so much wealth and she so little that she could not help and live for the man she loved so well. The tears fell one by one down her cheeks, and as she put her hand in her pocket for her handkerchief she encountered Drascovy's letter.

She broke the seal, and found to her amazement that besides a closely written letter there were 20 bank notes, each for £100. She was too utterly astonished even to conjecture the meaning or cause of this. She could only gaze at the notes until she remembered the letter.

What need to go into details? It was simply a complete confession of what Drascovy had done to obtain the Stradivarius, begging her forgiveness and future friendship and inclosing notes for £2,000 as payment for the instrument. In four years' time, if he were still successful, he said he must send her a like sum again; it was her right, her due, for the violin had done half toward making his fortune.

Nellie Manfield sat and wondered and thought and wept tears of joy over the unexpected good fortune that had come to her till the fire was nothing but a few dead coals in the grate, and a clock outside struck 3. Then she roused herself with a shiver, and having thought how she would go to her lover and tell him tomorrow, how she would soon get on in the world with this to start upon, having told herself that she must indeed forgive Drascovy, she was soon asleep in a happy, dreamless slumber.

There is hardly need for more. Drascovy is dead and has left half his fortune to the woman whose father he had wronged. She has been Nellie Harvey for years now, and her husband, although he will never be quite so strong as other men, is something better than a cripple, and, best of all, they are perfectly happy.—Exchange.

THE LABEL SYSTEM

The Main Topic For Labor Men to Consider.

BIG GATHERING AT BOSTON

Of Delegates Representing Over 85,000 Workmen.

BOSTON, Aug. 8.—The eighth annual convention of the state branch of the Federation of Labor opened yesterday in Typo hall. Representatives of more than 85,000 organized wage earners were there when President Robbins called the meeting to order. After making a brief address of a congratulatory nature, the president appointed Delegates Tracy, Pierce and West to the committee on credentials.

These committees were elected: Rules, Silberstein, Jacques and Pierce; resolutions, Thompson, Chuck, Lazinski and O'Sullivan; finance, Ratigan, Manning and Moran; on officers' reports, Sheehan, Howard, Silberstein, Cavanagh and Bernstein.

A recess was then taken to enable the committee on rules to draft the order of business. While the committee was at work, B. F. Randall of Fall River addressed the delegates.

Officers' Reports.

Upon resuming business the officers made their reports. President Robbins was the first. He said, in part:

"The developments of the past year in the industrial world have shown more clearly than ever before the necessity for union. It behooves you to carefully deliberate every question coming before this convention. When we get to that period where all may be employed, that we may support ourselves and families according to American independence, then shall we feel that we have received our liberty. Then, and not till then, shall we feel that we have no more use for our trades unions, or state branch, and last, but by no means least, the great American Federation of Labor.

"An important part of the business of this convention will be the consideration of ways and means for increasing the demand for the union labels of our crafts, which have been the past year antagonized, not alone by the employers of labor, but by their zealous emissaries lurking inside the ranks of rival organizations."

Secretary Foster then submitted his report. Here are a few Extracts From the Report.

Both from a financial and numerical point of view, the state branch shows a substantial gain. During the present term of office your secretary has made something like a score of visitations to unaffiliated unions, with a fair proportion of success among the Carriage Makers' union, the lasters of Marblehead, the mackintosh makers of East Braintree, the teamsters and coal handlers, etc.

A few years ago the western portion of the state was practically unorganized. The long list of unions from that section now upon our roster is the best evidence to be offered of the state branch as an organized medium, and of the wisdom of your choice of president during the past two terms.

A subject which should receive the most careful and thorough consideration from this convention is that of the union labels of the various affiliated trades. An increased demand for the blue label of the cigarmakers and shoe workers, the labels of the clothing trade, of the hat makers, web weavers, iron moulders, printers, etc., is the largest possible assistance which can be given to these trades in maintaining union wages and conditions of labor, and this convention should adopt means to secure this result, thus supplementing the efforts made by the unions themselves.

I recommend, therefore, that this convention consider the feasibility of issuing a "Federation label card," which should bear, in miniature, duplicates of the various union labels indorsed by the A. F. L., together with such information relative to the trade union movement as will make this card worth preservation by those to whom it may be distributed.

After referring the reports to the proper committees, the convention adjourned until 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

The Afternoon Session.

A committee was appointed to wait upon President Gompers, who was said to be in town, and invite him to address the meeting. When the committee returned later they reported that they could not find him, but that he would appear there at today's session.

The committee on grievances, to whom had been referred the resolution of Brewers' union 14 and Bakers' union 4, reported, recommending the adoption of resolutions which recognized Union 4 of the International Bakers and Confectioners' union, and condemned the action of the Independent Bakers' union as being against the best interests of organized labor. They were adopted.

The legislative report was listened to with much interest. It was not favorable to the stand of the last legislature toward organized labor, and told of the serious obstruction on the part of the upper branch, especially, to popular legislation.

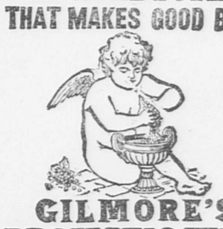

At this point the meeting adjourned to Carroll hall, 375 Harrison avenue, as Typo hall was so noisily located. Here some further business of a general sort was transacted, and then the convention adjourned until today.

The Moody Bible Conference.

EAST NORTHFIELD, Mass., Aug. 8.—Dr. Gumbart of Boston gave an eloquent address on the 23rd psalm in the Bible conference. Dr. Gordon lectured on the subject "First Fruits." He won hearty applause in repudiating the doctrine of evolution.

—Why young men are so little inclined to matrimony is a question which has been much discussed the past few years. The Boston Traveller has solved the problem so far as the present is concerned and explains by saying, "When one looks about and sees the popular type of summer girl in a striped blazer, a colored shirt front and a pair of rubber-soled scows, it's little wonder men herd in the dark Maine woods till the season is over.

THE MESSAGE READ

President Urges Prompt Repeal of Silver Law.

DUTY OF THE HOUR PRESENTED.

Financial Plight Due to Congressional Silver Legislation — People Are Entitled to Money Good as Any Exchange In the World—Depletion of Gold Has Been Easy—Calm Counsel Asked.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—President Clevelands message was read in congress today. It was as follows:

To the congress of the United States:

The existence of an alarming and extraordinary business situation, involving the welfare and prosperity of all our people, has constrained me to call together in extra session the people's representatives in congress to the end that through a wise and patriotic exercise of the legislative duty with which they solely are charged, present evils may be mitigated and dangers threatening the future may be averted.

Our unfortunate financial plight is not the result of untoward events nor of conditions related to our natural resources, nor is it traceable to any of the afflictions which frequently check national growth and prosperity.

With plenteous crops, with abundant promise of remunerative production and manufacture, with unusual invitation to safe investment and with satisfactory assurance to business enterprise, suddenly financial distrust and fear have sprang up on every side.

Numerous moneyed institutions have suspended because abundant assets were not immediately available to meet

The Demands of Frightened Depositors.

Surviving corporations and individuals are content to keep in hand the money they are usually anxious to loan, and those engaged in legitimate business are surprised to find that the securities they offer for loans, though heretofore satisfactory, are no longer accepted.

Values supposed to be fixed are fast becoming conjectural, and loss and failure have involved every branch of business.

I believe that these things are principally chargeable to congressional legislation touching the purchase and coinage of silver by the general government.

This legislation is embodied in a statute passed on the 14th day of July, 1890, which was the culmination of much agitation on the subject involved, and which may be considered a truce, after a long struggle between the advocates of free silver coinage and those intending to be more conservative.

Undoubtedly the monthly purchases by the government of 4,500,000 ounces of silver, enforced under the statute, were regarded by those interested in silver production as a certain guaranty of its increase in price.

The result, however, has been entirely different, for immediately following a spasmodic and slight rise the

after the passage of the act and has since reached the lowest point ever known. This disappointing result has led to renewed and persistent effort in the direction of free silver coinage.

Meanwhile, not only are the evil effects of the operation of the present law constantly accumulating, but the result to which its execution must inevitably lead is becoming palpable to all who give the least heed to financial subjects.

This law provides that in payment for the 4,500,000 ounces of silver bullion which the secretary of the treasury is commanded to purchase monthly, there shall be issued treasury notes, redeemable on demand in gold or silver coin, at the discretion of the secretary of the treasury, and that said notes may be reissued.

It is, however, declared in the act to be "the established policy of the United States to maintain the two metals on a parity with each other upon the present legal ratio or such ratio as may be provided by law."

This declaration so controls the action of the secretary of the treasury as to prevent his exercising the discretion nominally invested in him, if by such action the parity between gold and silver may be disturbed. Manifestly a refusal by the secretary to pay these treasury notes in gold, if demanded, would necessarily result in their discredit and depreciation as obligations payable only in silver, and would destroy the parity between the two metals by establishing a

Discrimination In Favor of Gold.

Up to the 15th day of July, 1893, these notes had been issued in payment of silver bullion purchased to the amount of more than $147,000,000. While all but a very small quantity of this bullion remains uncoined and without usefulness in the treasury, many of the notes given in its purchase have been paid in gold. This is illustrated by the statement that between May 1, 1892, and July 15, 1893, the notes of this kind issued in payment for silver bullion amounted to a little more than $54,000,000, and that during the same period about $49,000,000 were paid by the treasury in gold for the redemption of such notes.

The policy necessarily adopted of paying these notes in gold has not spared the gold reserve of $100,000,000, long ago set aside by the government for the redemption of other notes for this fund has already been subjected to the payment of new obligations amounting to about $150,000,000 on account of silver purchases and as a consequence for the first time since its creation been encroached upon. We have thus made the

and have tempted other and more appreciative nations to add it to their stock.

MISSING MR. WENTWORTH.

Result of Investigations Set on Foot by Newspaper Men.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Aug. 9.—Investigations have brought to light the fact that although W. P. Wentworth, the missing bookkeeper of the Victoria hotel, New York, is not now in Pittsfield, his wife and daughter are there. Wentworth himself was there about three weeks ago. They were generally supposed to be from Salem, and this fact misled the newspaper men who were looking up the matter.

Mrs. Root, the landlady, informed the reporter that Mrs. Wentworth had usually received a letter every day from her husband, but for the last two or three days she had received no word from him and she was beginning to worry. Her friends in the house had concealed the papers from her and she was ignorant of the facts about her husband's absence from New York. Mrs. Root refused to allow the reporters to interview Mrs. Wentworth.

While Mr. Wentworth was in Pittsfield his daughter celebrated her 15th birthday and Mr. Wentworth participated in the festivities. Those who had an opportunity to observe his family relations say that they were most pleasant. Very few, if any, of the townspeople are aware that this Mr. Wentworth was the Victoria bookkeeper, as the impression prevailed in town that the Wentworths were from Salem.

A GRATIFYING RECORD

Shown by Reports of the Connecticut Firemen's Association.

DANBURY, Conn., Aug. 9.—The opening session of the 10th annual convention of the Connecticut State Firemen's association was held in city hall, and about 200 delegates from all over the state were in attendance. The principal business was the reading of officers' reports. President Kennedy reported that during the nine years of the association's existence it had paid sick and disabled firemen $29,000 and 11 death benefits amounting to $5000. In the past year 89 applicants have received $3498 and 10 orphaned children have received $546 in pensions.

Secretary Jones reported that the association is composed of 158 companies beside 97 department members, making a total of 225. Seven companies and 11 department members were added during the past year. Two members, George A. Dennison of New Haven and Henry L. Smith of Norwich, have died. At the last session of the legislature an additional appropriation of $3000 was made to the association, making a total of $8000.

Treasurer Snaggs reported the total receipts on both state and association accounts to be $11,037; expenditures, $5652; balance in the treasury Aug. 1, $5384. The firemen were tendered a banquet last night.

Warrant Out For Morrill.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Aug. 9.—United States Marshal Pierce of Dover was in this city last night and was handed the warrant for the arrest of Charles F. Morrill, the missing cashier of the National Bank of the Commonwealth, for embezzlement. The local authorities affect to believe that Morrill will be apprehended ere long. There are no new developments in connection with the People's Fire Insurance company.

Fell Thirty Feet.

BOSTON, Aug. 9.—Three hod carriers had a fall at East Boston yesterday. The men are William Varley, Patrick Winston and John Haley, and they fell 30 feet, owing to the breaking of a staging which was being used in connection with the erection of the new parish house on the estate adjoining the site of the Star of the Sea church on Bennington street. All three men are seriously if not fatally injured.

To Pay Off In Checks.

WORCESTER, Mass., Aug. 9.—At a meeting of the Worcester clearing house it was voted to request the large employers of labor to pay off their help in checks payable only through the Worcester clearing house, the system to continue during the present scarcity of currency. Several large concerns have agreed to follow this method.

Helping the City.

HAVERHILL, Mass., Aug. 9.—City Treasurer Glines has raised $21,000 of the $25,000 necessary to carry on the business of the city during the month of September. He has obtained this sum from citizens in small amounts generally.

Thousands Made Happy.

BOSTON, Aug. 9.—Last week the Mutual Helpers distributed in the Boston children's flower work 3772 bouquets. The total thus far is 14,887 bouquets contributed by people in 37 towns.

Each Offer Their Mite.

SOMERVILLE, Mass., Aug. 9.—Many responses have been made to the call of City Treasurer Cole for loans to the city. They come in sums from $500 to $5000, amounting to $45,100.

Injuries Caused Death.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Aug. 9.—Michael Coffey of Quaker Hill was gored by his own bull in a field Monday night and received injuries that resulted in his death yesterday.

Brief Mention.

Steamer Pomham was burned at her dock in Providence.

The leather manufactory of Job Wade at New Bedford, Mass., has shut down for two or three weeks.

A temporary injunction has been granted against the New Bedford (Mass.) Safe Deposit and Trust company.

At the regular monthly meeting of the South Shore Co-operative bank at Weymouth, Mass., $3490 was sold at a premium of 10 cents per share.

A reduction has been made in the wages of the employes in all departments in the American watch factory at Waltham, Mass. The cuts range from 10 to 30 per cent.

The Norwalk (Conn.) Tramway company voted to reduce its authorized capital stock of $250,000 to $100,000, on the basis of the 3 1-2 miles of road more in operation.

Suit has been brought by Alonzo A. Bowdoin against the Briggs & Allyn Manufacturing company of Haverhill, Mass., for damages for the loss of a hand. The ad damnum is fixed at $10,000.

The Christian workers' convention is now in session at the Old Orchard camp grounds. The convention is under the leadership of Rev. C. B. Bates of Boston, and various denominations are represented.

STEWART AND HILL

Have Opened the Fight on the Silver Question.

BOND ISSUE OF $100,000,000

The Proposal Submitted by the Senator From Nevada.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—Every senator on both sides of the house was in his seat and attentively listened to the reading of the president's message. The anti-silver advocates were evidently pleased with its tone and the unmistakable language and attitude of the president on the prompt and unconditional repeal of the silver purchasing clause of the Sherman act.

The silverites, particularly Senators Stewart and Teller, showed considerable feeling at the president's utterances in attributing all of the impending troubles to silver. Notice was at once given that the opponents of repeal intended to open debate as soon as the morning business was disposed of, Senator Dolph of Oregon leading off. The message, however, was referred to the finance committee.

Various petitions for and against the repeal of the Sherman act were presented in the senate and referred to the finance committee. As soon as the introduction of bills was in order, Mr. Hill of New York introduced a bill to repeal certain sections of the Sherman act, and it was referred to the finance committee. That was followed by two bills introduced by Mr. Stewart of Nevada, one to restore the right of coinage, and one (which he said was to meet the existing troubles immediately) to supply a deficiency in the currency.

Gist of the Proposals.

The latter directs the secretary of the treasury to issue silver certificates for the silver bullion now in the treasury in excess of the amount necessary to redeem outstanding certificates and also to issue $100,000,000 of 4 per cent bonds. He made a brief statement in explanation of the latter bill and expressed the hope that it would be acted on without delay. Both bills were referred to the finance committee. Many other bills, financial and otherwise, were introduced and referred.

Senator Hill's resolution provides for the repeal of sections 1, 3 and 4 of the Sherman act and declares that this repeal is not to be considered as an abandonment of bimetallism, but that the policy of the government shall be the maintenance of gold and silver as the standard of money metal to the accomplishment of which the government shall be steadily and safely directed.

The Sentiment.

As a result of the exchange of views among members of congress at the capitol the friends of the unconditional repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman act are a good deal more confident now that they will carry their point. A partial canvass has been made and the friends of the repeal claim at least 50 majority if a square vote can be had on that naked proposition. The danger which confronts those who are striving in this direction is that the silverites, who are under the lead of Bland, will not permit a square vote on that proposition.

The silverites claim to be powerful enough to delay final action for a good many weeks. They will not consent to fix any time, either, in which debate shall be closed. They propose to discuss every measure or proposition that may be offered or brought before the house as long as they please. On the other hand, the friends of repeal express the opinion that the sentiment of the country is so strongly in favor of prompt action that congressmen opposed to repeal will not dare to filibuster against it.

Politics Should Be Laid Aside.

Senators Teller and Stewart, who are doing most of the talking on the small side, express the belief that no bill for the unconditional repeal of the act of 1890 can be put through the senate in the next six months. There are some Democratic senators who are inclined to these views. There are not more than eight or ten, however.

There are some western senators, like Manderson of Nebraska and Cassey of Wyoming and others, who have been counted upon as opposed to unconditional repeal, who will vote in favor of it rather than defeat any action. This is a time, say these gentlemen, when one should rise superior to politics and act for the best interests of the country.

TELEPHONE, 213-3 QUINCY.

THERE IS some truth in the communication of "A Business Man" in another column. The fact that stonecutters out of a job in Quincy have gone to Barre, amounts to little, for it is a fact that a great many who have worked in Barre are now employed in this city. That Quincy manufacturers are not doing as much as they should to keep their granite prominently before the country is perhaps a fact. Those who have active men on the road are doing a good business, and will continue to do so. It has been suggested that a much better business might be done and members make the profit of middlemen, if the association on a joint corporation undertook the work of canvassing and figuring. It could prepare designs, send out salesmen all over the country, obtain the work, and let it out. The manufacturers would make fully as much as now on the work, and in addition the members of the association would share in the profits of the corporation. The association could better afford to advertise the stone, and there would be more work and better times.

It is also true that Barre has some conveniences that Quincy manufactures have not. A railroad of 22 miles among its quarries and sheds is a great help in many ways. But united effort can obtain one for Quincy, and it is not improbable that the railroad now being built by the Quarry Railroad Company will be rapidly extended. The electric freight railway proposed recently would have been a good thing, and had the Quincy business men taken an interest in the chief industry of the city, as has been done in Barre and Montpelier, Vt., it would have been built. There is a general feeling that the Old Colony Railroad, which has had a monopoly of the field, has not catered for the Quincy freight. It should not be necessary to team so much granite into Boston, but freight rates are exhorbitant. With a common place for loading the cars, the conveniences are very inadequate and much time which is money is lost. Quincy granite manufacturers demand better facilities if they are to compete with other granite centres, and they must have them.

THE CITY TREASURER has already sold one of the notes of the city advertised yesterday. Taxpayers having ready money will do well to pay their taxes for 1893 now, for the interest they will receive to November 1 will amount to a discount of over one per cent. on their assessment. A man whose tax is but $50 can save at least fifty cents; one whose assesment is $100 can get off for 99; a $1,000 taxpayer will get a discount of at least $10, while Mr. Henry Faxon, the largest taxpayer, can save about $75. The city needs the money and now is your opportunity.

EVEN GALEN admits that there is considerable "cheap talk" at the meetings of the City Council, but he excuses it by saying that they have it in Congress and the Legislature. But it disgusts the people, every time, who would like to do business in a business-like way.

George Washburn Dead.

News has reached Quincy from Capt. William Paulding of company D. 10th infantry, U. S. A., to the effect that George B. Washburn, a private, formerly of Quincy, died on July 30, from the effects of an accidental wound received while hunting a day or two before. The company was stationed at Fort Marcy, Santa Fe, N. M.

Mr. Washburn was a son of the late George B. Washburn, and Lucy (Faxon) Washburn of Quincy. He was 33 years old and unmarried. He spent his boyhood and early manhood in Quincy and later removed to Chicago, where he was engaged in the wall paper business. He was an active and zealous member of the Illinois National Guards of Chicago, one of the state's crack militia regiments. He had been in the army some two years.

His mother, a sister and brother survive him, all living on Spring street, Savin Hill.

TRUTH IS KNOWN.

One of the Karamania's Passengers Is Afflicted With Cholera.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—Health Officer Perkins has officially announced that there is a case of cholera among the passengers of the Anchor line steamer Karamania, from Naples.

The victim of the plague who is now well on the road to recovery is Lorenzo Moracio. Dr. Jenkins issued a bulletin in which he stated that the biological examination of Moracio has revealed cholera bacilli. He states that the man will recover; that there is no danger of any further outbreak and consequently no necessity for alarm.

Every precaution has been and will be taken to guard against the introduction of the disease by the passengers. The passengers will be detained until every danger from cholera infection has passed away. Dr. Jenkins suggested that it might be well, in view of the fact that the sufferer was getting well, not to say anything about the case. Mayor Gilroy was opposed to this and said, "Tell the truth."

OLD ACT ENFORCED.

Statesmen Cannot Draw Their Money Until December.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—Senators and members of the house who on coming to Washington have been accustomed to draw immediately a comfortable little sum, amounting up in some instances to hundreds of dollars, for mileage, have received a most unwelcome setback by a ruling from Acting First Comptroller Garrison, that as the act of July 28, 1866, which is the law now in force respecting the compensation of members of congress, provides that their compensation shall be $5000 per annum and mileage at the rate of 20 cents per mile, to be estimated by the nearest route usually traveled "in going to and returning from each regular session," this mileage will not become due and payable before the commencement of the next regular session of congress, which will convene on the first Monday in December next.

He Started a Fake.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—The grand jury has indicted Louis Monke, 18 years of age, for criminal libel. He was arrested on a bench warrant. It is alleged that on Aug. 4 Monke sent to a number of newspapers a notice which stated that the New York Sun was in financial difficulties; also that a 10 per cent reduction was to be made in salaries; that a strike was expected among the printers and that there was serious friction among the directors. Monke pleaded not guilty. He was committed to the Tombs.

Donovan Held by the Jury.

EATONTOWN, N. J., Aug. 9.—The inquest into the death of John Chew, who, it is alleged, was stabbed Sunday morning by Trainer Donovan of Pierre Lorillard's stables, was held here by Coroner Vandyke. The jury returned a verdict that Chew came to his death as the result of stab wounds inflicted by Trainer Donovan with some sharp instrument.

Soldier Shot to Death.

COAL CREEK, Tenn., Aug. 9.—Soldiers from Camp Anderson have been paying nightly visits to Briceville, calling on women of doubtful character. Last night while a soldier was in one of these places, a crowd of 50 unknown men surrounded the house and shot Private Dougherty to death.

Alderman Missing—So Is $20,000.

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—The police are looking for Alderman William L. Kamerling and Arthur N. Demarest, his partner in the real estate business, who disappeared with about $20,000 belonging to their customers. They made an assignment and have not been seen since.

BARRE VS. QUINCY.

A Business Man Thinks There is Something Wrong with Quincy Manufacturers.

Editors of the Ledger:

In common with a large part of the citizens of Quincy, I am indirectly interested in the granite branch of our industry, and, perhaps, for pecuniary reasons, I may have a greater interest than many of the manufacturers themselves. Every once in a while we hear a workman say, he is going to Barre, and I begin to wonder why we do not keep the men in Quincy. I ask them and they reply they can do better there than here, and then again the stone works easier. Now, if the Barre granite is softer it cannot be as good as Quincy. We have the best granite in the world, the best workmen and everything to do with, stone that it will take years for Barre to get, and when I think of all this I wonder why Quincy cannot hold its trade and why it will let its workmen go. A dozen years ago Barre was about nothing; it had in 1881 a population of 2,060, now it has 9,000. The value of its personal and real estate was $712,439; in 1882 it was $3,453,733. Then fifty granite cutters were employed by several half dozen firms, now about thirty times as many men and more than one hundred firms. Then 150 houses, now over 750, nearly 100 of which were built last year. Should it continue at this rate for the next 20 years it will be a large place.

Quincy has also grown, but why is it that Quincy with the best granite in the world cannot get the orders that go to Barre. Barre may sell cheaper, but is it not a cheaper granite? Should not quality offset the low price?

It seems to me that there must be a lack of push on the part of our manufacturers' or that they have such confidence in the quality, that they think it will push itself. Methods of doing business have changed, for whereas a man a few years ago might do a small business without advertising, now the shrewd business man realizes that to get trade he must advertise. To advertise in all parts of the United States would cost from $10,000 to $20,000 per year, with that sum well expended Quincy's granite business would grow.

In company with others I visited the exhibition at Chicago and each day for a number of days I saw the exhibit made by the Quincy manufacturers. I felt proud of it and it was in fact admired by every one. A sign informed the public that that was the Quincy exhibit but there was no one there to explain the quality of the goods. I met a man who was looking for a soldiers' monument. A member of our party informed him that he thought a man would be on in a few days. No circulars of an kind were in sight, to speak of the quality of our granite or how it had been used for more than a hundred years, how it had been used for hundreds of soldiers' monuments. How that where monuments of other granites had crumbled Quincy granite remained firm. The thought struck me something was wrong.

Near by was Barre and one not a judge could not see the difference in quality. But the Barre manufacturers were awake and nice books were to be had by every one to send to their friends. In these books (a copy of which I would be pleased to furnish) tell all about the granite. They speak of the large number of monuments and claim that wherever a block of their granite is used, the public see its quality and order more of it and that it is recognized everywhere as the finest known.

Quincy has a big trade but let her granite manufacturers wake up and advertise their goods in the great west and south where no good granite is known, and in a few years no other city in the world will be able to say they have grown so fast and well. A BUSINESS MAN.

A Ride to Blue Hills.

Mrs. George J. Jones invited the ladies in the Universalist society to go on an outing to the Blue Hills this afternoon Accordingly two barges furnished by Mr. Joseph T. French were filled with a jolly party of women, who left the old Stone church about 1.15, for a pleasant ride through Milton to the highest and most attractive hills to be found anywhere along the Atlantic coast.

July Weather Bulletin.

AMHERST, Mass., Aug. 8.—The meteorological observatory of the Hatch experiment station, Massachusetts Agricultural college, makes the following observations concerning the weather for July: The rainfall was much below, the temperature slightly above, normal. The amount of sunshine was greater and the average humidity much less than usual. Gales and thunder storms were frequent. The temperature during the month averaged about normal, but the precipitation was considerably below the average not only in Massachusetts, but throughout New England.

At Boston the highest daily mean temperature occurred on the 16th with an average of 79 degrees and the coolest day was the 24th when the mean was 63 degrees. The month was remarkably clear; only five cloudy days were recorded at Boston. The thunder storms were frequent, but of short duration, and no serious damage has been reported. In some places wind did damage, and several buildings were struck by lightning and burned, but no loss of life occurred, though several were stunned by the shock experienced. The weather has been favorable to the hay crop, but vegetation in general feels the need of rain.

DUE TO MACHINERY.

Samuel Gompers' Opinion of the Financial Scare.

TRADE UNION MOVEMENTS

Cannot Be Crushed by Any Power on Earth.

BOSTON, Aug. 9.—President Samuel Gompers addressed the convention of the state branch of the American Federation of Labor in its second day's session. He said in substance that in the past six years of the history of this state there was more legislation in the interest of the common people than all other times combined, which he attributed to the federation of unions on state lines.

"Many persons are dissatisfied," he said, "at the progress of trade unionism, claiming that it is not broad and progressive enough." He claimed that this was necessarily so, as "the progress of the movement for the amelioration of the condition of the people has to keep pace with their education and is retarded by their lack of opportunities to educate themselves."

Said he, "Trade unions must follow in the most practical path," and he commended them for keeping down with the toilers rather than leaving them to the Fate of Corporate Power.

He asserted that progress came with time and that unionists proved themselves worthy of a better state, as they demonstrated their ability to fight for their rights.

"This is no pyrotechnic organization; it hasn't time for platforms and platitudes; it needs no declaration of principles; it simply exists because of the struggle of the people to obtain their rights. It is the question of an advance of wages of $1 per day or an hour less of daily toil."

He maintained that the present session of congress was due wholly to the fact that "plutocracy had run mad." Said he: "One would expect from the interest taken in the special session of congress that it was going to enact a law in the interest of the workers of America." This he denied, and asserted that it was about to put the seal of its approval upon a measure that would depreciate the Product of Our Own Country.

The present stagnation of business, he held, was not entirely due to the silver law, and silver legislation by congress, he said, cannot prevent or eradicate the stagnation of business. He said: "In the progressive state of Massachusetts its wonderful press has fallen into the line of expressing manufactured thought and opinions rather than in expressing the opinions of the people of the state."

He maintained that the cause of the present depressed condition of trade was more the great improvements in machinery during the past 10 years than to any other thing, and that production was being increased regardless of the opportunity of the people to consume. Machinery was improved, he said, so that it might be run all the time, compelling men to work long hours, thereby saving on

The Expense of Production.

He claimed that the avenues of distribution were choked, shelves and granaries loaded down with goods, and men were forced out of employment in consequence. They in their turn curtailed the consumption of articles by getting along on less than if they had the opportunity to purchase and consume.

"To no power on earth is due the credit," he said, "that the stagnation of business has not affected every man, woman and child in this country more than to the trade unions, which, in spite of the depression, have maintained wages, prevented reductions and kept men in employment by preventing a Lengthening of the Working Day.

"No power on earth can crush the trade union movement. It exists as the sun shines, as water runs down hill, because it stands as the living demands of the workers of the country and of the world." He congratulated the convention on its excellent showing, and in the name of the trade unions of America he wished the body godspeed.

The committee on law reported several amendments to the constitution, which were acted upon.

The committee on resolutions submitted some, which were approved and adopted by the convention, endorsing the boycotts of the Garment Workers' union and the cigarmakers, calling public attention to the danger of smoking tenement house made cigars and wearing tenement house made clothing, endorsing the blue label of the cigarmakers and the white label of the garment workers of America, and commending Governor Altgeld for pardoning the Chicago anarchists.

Resolution on Silver.

The silver question was then taken up and the following resolution carried:

It is the opinion of the convention that we require congress to so legislate as to keep up the parity between treasury notes, gold and silver, in order that the debt paying power of the people shall not be diminished and that the circulating medium of the people shall not be at the beck and call of any corporation or number of them.

Election of Officers.

The following officers were elected: President, O. A. Robbins of Springfield; first vice president, John F. Sheehan of Holyoke; second vice president, J. D. Pierce of Worcester; secretary, Frank K. Foster of Boston; treasurer, Charles Spencer of Springfield; trustees, Frank Thompson, R. W. Garrity and A. J. Fetz of Boston; legislative committee, A. T. Silberstein, Frank K. Foster, Henry Lloyd, Thomas Tracy and John F. O'Sullivan; delegate to convention in Chicago next December, Thomas Tracy.

MANET BEACH.

The Illumination Funds — Miss Cushman Entertains—The Surprise in Contest.

The statement made in one of our previous issue that the money now in the hands of last year's illumination committee was to be donated to the City Hospital has been contradicted by those who should know.

Now, no matter whether it has been decided or not, the interest in our illumination should not flag. Come Thursday night prepared to have your say and do all you can to push the thing through.

Miss Cushman of the Linden entertained some of her friends in a very pleasing manner Tuesday evening. A dinner was served at eight o'clock. After much time was spent at the table discussing the great disappointment the guests returned to the parlor where after dinner coffee was served All contributed to make the evening a pleasant one and it was about eight bells when the company was piped below. Among the guests were:—Miss Hattie Pierce, Mrs. Hattie Carpenter, Mr. C. A. Hutchins, Mr. Wm F. Macy, Mr. James E. Winsor, Mr. Geo. A. Brackett, Mr. Arthur M. Coffin and Mr. H. W. French.

Sea Water as Medicine.

The New York Herald says, when a bather at Coney Island the other day accidently swallowed a big gulp of sea water and then rushed off to get a drink of whiskey to take the taste out of his mouth, a successful medical practitioner who had witnessed the performance said:

"That man is either a greenborn or a fool. Otherwise he would have taken merely a sip of lemonade and allowed the sea water to do its work. As a matter of fact, one of the most beneficial features of a sea bath is the sea water inadverdently swallowed by bathers. It is a wonderful tonic for the liver, stomach and kidneys. In many cases it will cure biliousness where all drug preparations have failed. It is peculiarly effective in ordinary cases of indigestion, disordered stomach and insomnia, and has been known to produce excellent results in many cases of dyspepsia.

Sea water is full of tonic and sedative properties. It won't hurt anybody. Two or three big swallows of it would be of positive benefit to nine bathers out of ten. It isn't palatable or tempting, but neither is quinine or calomel. You never see an old sailor who is bilious, dyspeptic or a victim of insomnia, and why? For the reason that an ocean of good medicine spreads all about his ship, and he doses himself copiously with it whenever his physical mechanism becomes the least bit deranged."

The Popularity Contest.

Probably the most surprised candidate yesterday was Conductor Dunham. He expected that his large bundle of votes would put him way in the lead, but the wideawake lady at the Loretto cottage calculated better and still leads by over 600. Mr. Dunham's friends are not at all discouraged and may after all be able to laugh last.

It is now very certain that whoever gets that $100 seashore lot or the $100 credit on any lot, will get it cheap. One hundred dollars would buy nearly 7,000 papers with coupons, which on Monday would have been good for nearly 30,000 votes, and would now be good for over 25,000 votes It is very probable that less than half of this amount will win the $100 lot.

Some five vote coupons were received yesterday for Miss Edith Rose, but the polls had closed.

Today's standing:

Mrs. J. M. Emery, Loretto cottage	4725
Arthur H. Dunham, Houghs Neck	4120
Mrs. Hattie Connors, Brockton cafe	934
C. A. Hutchins, Manet Beach	600

A COUNTRY CHURCH.

An Attractive Edifice That Would Ornament Any Locality—Cost, $7,000.

[Copyright, 1893, by American Press Association.]

A pretty church is one of the most desirable and valuable buildings that can be erected in any community. This is a liberal age, and one may think and believe as best his conscience dictates without fear of persecution, and there is no reason why every town and village should not possess one or more churches. By a little well directed effort a subscription can be started and sufficient funds secured to commence work on the structure. When once under way, a larger number will become interested, because it is not difficult to convince people that such a building will increase the value of property as well as become a monument to the place.

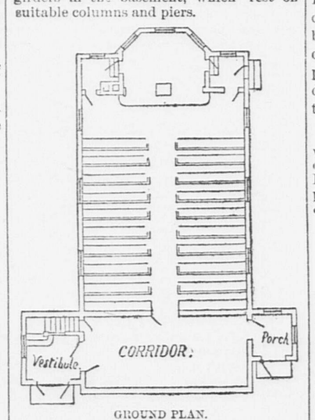

The plan and perspective sketch here given represents the design of a small country or village church in the old colonial style of architecture, neat, refined and simple in all its details and easily adapted to the requirements of any denomination or religious sect. The building has a gabled roof and a square tower, which extends above the ridge line of the main roof and is "broached" into octagon form for the belfry and spire. Upon three sides of the tower are the dials of a town clock, which is arranged to strike the hours upon the church bell. There is a cellar under the entire structure with a concrete floor and all the necessary provisions for the boiler and steam heating apparatus.

PERSPECTIVE VIEW.

The foundation walls are of stone laid up in cement mortar. The structure above the foundation walls is of timber construction heavily framed and securely braced. The roof is supported by suitable trusses. The exterior walls and the roof of the building are sheathed with dry tongued and grooved yellow pine and covered with heavy waterproof sheathing paper and clapboarded with 5-inch beveled white pine siding.

The first and second stories of the tower are clapboarded. The upper part of the tower, spire and main roof of church, roof of apse and porch are covered with dark colored slate. The side walls are back plastered—one coat between the studding—to make the building warmer. The ceiling of the basement is plastered one coat. The side walls and ceilings of the vestibule, porch, corridor, auditorium and study and robing rooms are hard finished on two coats of plaster in the usual way. The floors are doubled and are firmly supported upon the foundation walls and strong girders in the basement, which rest on suitable columns and piers.

GROUND PLAN.

There is a gallery over the corridor, where the choir and organ are located. It is reached by a stairway from the front vestibule. The inside finish of the church is of white pine painted and grained to imitate oak finish.

On each side of the pulpit platform are small rooms, one of which may be used as a study and the other as a robing room. The church windows are glazed with pleasing tints of hammered cathedral glass, which gives all the desired effects without the expense of regular leaded and stained glass.

The building is steam heated and ventilated by a combination of direct and indirect radiation. This building in some localities can be erected for $7,000; in others it would exceed this amount.

D. W. KING.

Hints on Building.

There is no architectural problem so complex as that of building a complete and satisfactory dwelling. No other structure has to be submitted to the same tests, nor are the different parts submitted to the same variety of uses as those of a dwelling. A public structure of any character, an office building, a courthouse, a school building, or others having such general uses, does not receive the constant, everyday critical attention which comes to a dwelling. A window casing which is a little out of line with a corner or a door in which there is a slight imperfection, or a sash which does not fit as closely as it might, is always with and always a part of a dwelling and is such a part because it is a constant anxiety and constant annoyance to those who live in the house.

Anything which falls short of perfection in a dwelling is subject to criticism. The mechanical details which have to do with the plumbing and the general sanitary apparatus, the gas fitting and gas fixtures, mantels, grates, heating apparatus by furnace, steam or hot water, the laundry, electric work and speaking tubes must also be looked after. To the house builder who comes in contact with this mass of detail for the first time it is confusing and often distressing. Without an architect to constantly advise with him and guide him through this mass of detail and confusion it is a very serious undertaking, and even then the confusion and annoyance are great.

BRAINTREE.

Last night the house situated on Holbrook avenue, South Braintree, owned by Capt. Miller, and occupied by Albion H. Howe, was entered by burglars and Mr. Howe's pocketbook was carried off. It contained eleven dollars in money and two bank checks, one for fifty dollars and the other for a lesser amount; also his railroad pass. Mr. Howe's pants were taken outdoors and rifled of the above contents, and then left on the doorsteps.

The Minuet Party.

One of the recent fads is a minuet party. This has a peculiar effect where fanciful costumes—picture costumes as they are called—are introduced. At a recent fashionable party a minuet was danced by the bridal party, the bride and groom leading off the dance. Minuet parties are said to be most conducive to wedding parties, for among other things a minuet party is a charming manner for fostering friendships, almost as good as private theatricals. One retains the same partner at all the practices, of course, and if a careful selection has been made this is an advantage, as American girls who encourage the idea, even if there be no minuet in question, know well. A great deal in a minuet party depends on the mise en scene. It is not enough to provide pretty faces and graceful dancers. The room should be large and the spectators be crowded as much as possible out of sight. A line of benches set close against the wall is recommended, as it takes far less space than chairs. It must be admitted that they are not so comfortable; still some sacrifices must be made. If a bowerlike appearance be given to the room by wreaths of evergreen round the cornice dropping down in the corners and round the windows, so much the better.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

"Home, Sweet Home."

When all the battles are lost and are won,
The last word spoken, the argument done,
Which, which is the best land under the sun?

The question is pondered by you and me
As our barks are sailing life's mystic sea,
But as to the answer we disagree.

"Oh, the very best land," says the German, "is mine!"
And his heart beats quick and his moist eyes shine
As he loudly sings "Die Wacht am Rhine."

But the Frenchman jeers at the German's praise,
While a tribute to France you hear him raise
In the fervent strains of the "Marseillaise."

At the Frenchman's boasting the Scotchman cries,
"What land so bonny beneath the skies
As the land where the great Sir Walter lies?"

Then a Muscovite voice is heard to declare,
"Were my fellow creatures but wise and fair
They'd dote to a man on the Russian bear."

The Irishman answers, with a scornful smile,
"Go over the universe, mile by mile,
And you'll find no land like the Emerald Isle."

The Englishman comments in accents bland,
"I'm thinking there's only one civilized land,
And Britain's its name, you must understand."

The Yankee, rising, with deep emotion
Exclaims, "I'm firmly set in the notion
My eagle's the gem of the land or the ocean!"

So after the battles are lost and won,
The last word spoken, the argument done,
Which, which is the best land under the sun?

The question is pondered by you and me
As our barks are sailing life's mystic sea,
And, on second thinking, we all agree!

We are not divided, saving in name;
In essence each choice is really the same—
It springs from a common, ineffable flame.

Whatever our race, wherever we roam,
The spot that is dearest to each is home,
The toast drank deepest is "Home, sweet home."

Foreign Missionaries Talked.

EAST NORTHFIELD, Mass., Aug. 9.—At the Bible conference yesterday Dr. Pearson presided and the platform was filled with returned missionaries from many lands. Dr. Atterbury, medical missionary from China, told of the wonderful growth of medical missionary work. Thomas L. Gulick, a Scotch missionary from Spain, told of the complete ignorance of the Bible in Spain. Rev. Joseph Tyler of the Zulu mission in Africa said he believed the Zulu to be of Jewish origin. Dr. Reynolds of Turkey and others told of the peculiar features of their own work.

Probably a Victim of Footpads.

[Special.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—John C. Leahey, a wealthy real estate owner and builder, was found dead on the doorway of his boarding house, 71 North Second street, Brooklyn, this morning. He was in the habit of carrying plenty of money with him. When his body was found there was not a penny in his pockets. There was a severe wound back of his left ear. His friends think he was struck with a sandbag.

New York Bank Closes.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—The Madison Square bank did not open its doors today. It is said the deficiency (about $80,000) will be made up by the directors and the bank will resume business. The refusal of the St. Nicholas bank to continue to act as a clearing agent precipitated the trouble.

Richardson Is Failing.

BROOKLYN, Aug. 9.—Henry Richardson, who broke his neck by taking a dive at Bath Beach last Saturday, is still alive, but is growing weaker. He still has possession of his faculties and talks to his family.

Fatal Boiler Explosion.

FOSTORIA, O., Aug. 9.—The Caldwallader Milling company's boiler exploded, instantly killing C. C. Davis, secretary of the company, and fatally injuring, Fred C. Meyers, bookkeeper.

Deep In Debt.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Aug. 9.—A. D. Baker, proprietor of the South Bend wagon works, has made an assignment. Liabilities, $120,000; assets, $55,000.

An Editor's Suggestion.

HARTFORD, Aug. 9.—The Hartford Courant editorially advocates issuing bonds to meet part at least of the vast pension payments now at hand and $50,000,000 a year, thus shifting the burden upon the future, furnishing basis for a currency for today. Local bankers heartily endorse the proposition.

A POPULAR ADMIRAL

Helped the Cause of Revolutionists In Brazil.

THE PRESIDENT GOT UNEASY

And Immediately Suspended Telegraphic Communication.

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—The Herald today prints the following from its Mexican cable:

RIO DE JANEIRO, via Galveston, Aug. 8.—Notwithstanding the rigid censorship of all messages and the absolute prohibition of communication by the government, I am enabled to send you the situation in the capital.

The government was surprised and alarmed at the extent of the revolution in Rio Grande do Sul, owing to the popularity of Rear Admiral Wandenkolk in naval circles.

President Peixietto and his cabinet feared that there was a widespread conspiracy against his administration.

The loyalty of the navy was suspected, and

The First Step Taken

by the government was to prohibit all telegraphic communication to the south. This was followed by an order forbidding any messages being sent to known friends of Wandenkolk in this city. Immediately after an order was issued prohibiting the transmission of cipher messages of any nature over the telegraph wires in Brazil. The object of this was to prevent any collusion between the revolutionary leaders in Rio Grande do Sul with Bahia and Pernambuco.

AN OLD MAN'S END.

Hangs Himself Because He Was Robbed and Brutally Beaten.

EASTPORT, Me., Aug. 9.—James Black of West Lubec committed suicide yesterday by hanging in his barn. He is the old man who, with his sister, was so terribly beaten and robbed of the savings of a lifetime a year ago last June, and for the commission of which crime Howard Parker and James McIsaac, Jr., were arrested last month, and are now in Machias jail awaiting trial. The beating that the old man received and the loss of his money doubtless unsettled his mind and led him to take his life. His age was 73.

Boiled Down.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—The president's message was listened to with profound attention in the senate. A large number of petitions for and against the Sherman law repeal were presented. Senator Hill introduced the first bill. A bill was introduced by Senator Stewart looking to immediate financial relief. Senator Lodge moved that a vote be taken on the repeal of the silver purchasing clause Aug. 22. An acrimonious debate occurred on a proposition to begin the sessions earlier. The reading of the message in the house was followed by applause. The Democratic representative from Michigan was seated.

Rearing Maine Fish.

WATERVILLE, Me., Aug. 9.—The second annual outing of the Kennebec Fish and Game association occurred yesterday at Great pond. Accounts of the work of the association in rearing trout and landlocked salmon at the hatching house show that about 35,000 young trout of this year's hatching are now growing finely, and there are almost as many salmon in troughs. The salmon turned out last year have reached the growth of six inches.

An Insane Father's Deed.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 9.—John Finn, living at 2824 Chateau avenue, had been confined to his house for several days with an attack of bilious fever. Yesterday Finn became delirious, and sprang from his bed and seizing a heavy flatiron attempted to dash out the brains of his two little boys. He then grasped a carving knife and horribly cut his two little daughters. Finn then drew the blade across his throat. All will die.

They Played Pirate.

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 9.—William D. Buckingham, John L. Howard and Charles F. Church, boys who, with some companions, stole Mr. White's yacht and played pirate all along the Connecticut coast, raiding farm yards and chicken roosts and destroying property, have been captured. The boat was abandoned in Madison and the boys scattered, part of the gang coming here.

A Horrible Accident.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 9.—In the converting department of the Bessemer steel works five men were terribly burned and cooked by molten metal. The workmen were about to make a cast and the apparatus became unmanageable. With a hiss the metal flowed into the pit under the converter, and as it struck the water there was a terrific explosion.

Will Settle In Full.

WELLSBURG, W. Va., Aug. 9.—The Bank of Wellsburg closed its doors yesterday because it was unable to realize on its securities. The assets are $30,000; liabilities half that amount. Sam George, the president of the bank and principal stockholder, has sufficient property to pay every stockholder.

Quarrymen Fatally Injured.

PATERSON, N. J., Aug. 9.—James Morrell and John Richie, quarrymen, were blown 20 feet in the air by a premature blast at the Pompton quarry. Richie's eyes were blown out and his hands blown off. Morrell was internally injured and one arm was broken. Both men will die.

Camp Relief Disbands.

DENVER, Aug. 9.—Camp Relief has been disbanded, and 500 men are thrown upon the city in addition to the hundreds of others already being fed by the charitable organizations. There are many muttered threats among the men.

Season Nearly Ended.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 9.—Thus far this season over 15,000 barrels of potatoes have been shipped from Newport alone, principally to Boston. The season will hardly last more than 10 days or two weeks longer.

Dr. Fletcher Held For Trial.

WORCESTER, Mass., Aug. 9.—Dr. H. N. Fletcher of Templeton was held in $5000 on the charge of indecent assault, with intent to commit rape, on Miss Fannie S. White.

THE MESSAGE READ.

That the opportunity we have offered has not been neglected is shown by the large amounts of gold which have been recently drawn from our treasury and exported to increase the financial strength of foreign nations. The excess of exports of gold over its imports for the year ending June 30, 1893, amounted to more than $87,500,000.

Between the first day of July, 1890, and the 15th day of July, 1893, the gold coin and bullion in our treasury decreased more than $132,000,000, while during the same period the silver coin and bullion in the treasury increased more than $147,000,000.

Unless government bonds are to be constantly issued and sold to replenish our exhausted gold, only to be again exhausted, it is apparent that the operation of the silver purchase law now in force leads in the direction of the entire substitution of silver for the gold in the government treasury, and that this must be followed by the payment of all government obligations in depreciated silver. At this stage and the government must fail in its established policy to maintain the two metals on a parity with each other. Given over to the exclusive use of a currency greatly depreciated according to the standard of the commercial world, we could no longer claim a place among nations of the first class, nor could our government claim a performance of its obligation, so far as such an obligation has been imposed upon it to provide for the use of the people the best and safest money.

If, as many of its friends claim, silver ought to occupy a larger place in our currency and the currency of the world through general international cooperation and agreement it is obvious that the United States will not be in a position to gain a hearing in favor of such an arrangement so long as we are willing to continue our attempt to accomplish the result single handed.

The knowledge in business circles among our own people that our government cannot make its fiat equivalent to intrinsic value, nor keep inferior money on a parity with superior money by its own independent efforts has resulted in

at home in the stability of currency values that capital refuses its aid to new enterprises while millions are actually withdrawn from the channels of trade and commerce to become idle and unproductive in the hands of timid owners.

Foreign investors equally alert, not only decline to purchase American securities, but make haste to sacrifice those which they already have.

It does not meet the situation to say that apprehension in regard to the future of our finances is groundless, and that there is no reason for lack of confidence in the purposes or power of the government in the premises.

The very existence of this apprehension and lack of confidence, however caused, is a menace which ought not for a moment to be disregarded.

Possibly if the undertaking we have in hand were the maintenance of a specific known quantity of silver as the parity with gold, our ability to do so might be estimated and gauged, and, perhaps, in view of our unparalled growth and resources, might be favorably passed upon. But when our avowed endeavor is to maintain such parity in regard to an amount of silver increasing at the rate of $50,000,000 yearly, with no fixed termination to such increase, it can hardly be said that a problem is presented whose solution is free from doubt.

The people of the United States are entitled to a sound and stable currency and to money recognized as such on every exchange and in every market of the world. Their government has no right to injure them by financial experiments opposed to the policy and practice of other civilized states, nor is it justified in permiting an exaggerated and unreasonable reliance on our national strength and ability to jeopardize the soundness of the people's money. This matter rises above the Plane of Party Politics.

It vitally concerns every business and calling and enters every household in the land. There is one important aspect of the subject which especially should never be overlooked.

At times like the present, when the evils of unsound finances threaten us, the speculator may anticipate a harvest gathered from the misfortune of others, the capitalist may protect himself by hoarding or may even find profit in the fluctuation of values; but the wage earner—the first to be injured by a depreciated currency and the last to receive the benefit of its correction—is practically defenceless. He relies for work upon the ventures of confident and contented capital. This failing him, his condition is without alleviation, for he can neither prey on the misfortunes of others nor heard his labor.

One of the greatest statesmen our country has known, speaking more than 50 years ago, when a derangement of the currency had caused commercial distress, said: "The very man of all others who has the deepest interest in a sound currency and who suffers most by mischievous legislation in money matters, is the man who earns his daily bread by his daily toil."

These words are as pertitnent now as on the day they were uttered, and ought to impressively remind us that a failure in the discharge of our duty at this time must especially injure those of our countrymen who labor, and who because of their number and condition are entitled to the most Watchful Care of Their Government.

It is of the utmost importance that such relief as congress can afford in the existing situation be afforded at once. The maxim, "He gives twice who gives quickly," is directly applicable. It may be true that the embarrassment from which the business of the country is suffering arise as much from evils apprehended as from those actually existing.

We may hope, too, that calm counsels will prevail and that neither the capitalists nor the wage earners will give way to unreasoning panic and sacrifice their property or their interests under the influence of exaggerated fears. Nevertheless, every day's delay in removing one of the plain and principal causes of the present state of things enlarges the mischief already done and increases the responsibility of the government for its existence. Whatever else the people have a right to expect from congress they may certainly demand that legislation condemned by the ordeal of three years' disastrous experience shall be removed from the statute books as soon as their representatives can legitimately deal with it.

It was my purpose to summon congress in special session early in the coming September, that we might enter promptly which the true interests of the country clearly demand, which so large a majority of the people, as shown by their suffrages, desire and expect, and to the accomplishment of which every effort of the present administration is pledged. But while tariff reform has lost nothing of its immediate and permanent importance, and must, in the near future engage the attention of congress, it has seemed to me that the financial condition of the country should at once and before all subjects be considered by your honorable body.

Upon the Work of Tariff Reform,

I earnestly recommend the prompt repeal of the provisions of the act passed July 14, 1890, authorizing the purchase of silver bullion, and that other legislative action may put beyond all doubt or mistake the intention and the ability of the government to fulfil its pecuniary obligations in the money universally recognized by all civilized countries.

A Remarkable Declaration.

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—In an address of welcome to the annual convention of the military surgeons of the National Guard of the United States, Mayor Harrison said: "There are 200,000 people in Chicago today unemployed and almost destitute for money. If congress does not give us plenty of money we will have riots that will shake the country."

FALL OF HUNDREDS

By the Collapse of a Platform at a Horse Show.

HALF A DOZEN INJURED.

Old Hose Carriage Prevents a Serious Disaster.

WOBURN, Mass., Aug. 10.—There came near being a fatal accident last evening at the Woburn Skating academy. Professor Gleason, the horse tamer, had advertised an exhibition, and a large crowd of people were attracted to the show, and was waiting for the doors to open when the accident occurred.

The entrance to the rink is by a stairway, which leads to a balcony about 60 feet long, which runs almost the entire width of the building. This balcony is 20 feet from the street, and it was in this passageway that the people crowded in such numbers as to forming the framework of the balcony.

There was a sound of breaking timbers, and the platform suddenly gave way and precipitated 300 people to the ground. Luckily an old hose carriage belonging to the fire department was under the balcony and broke the fall of the platform and prevented more serious results.

Six persons are reported injured as follows: Mrs. Lydia A. Burrows of Winchester, leg injured; Ernest Esterbrook, 14 years old, injured in the back and rendered unconscious; John McCarthy, 1 years old, leg sprained; John Mullen, 1 years old, arm bruised; a boy name Howard, 15 years old, leg injured; a boy named McGiloray, arm injured.

Several others were slightly injured. Mrs. Burrows is the only one who is seriously injured.

Building Didn't Pay.

This skating academy was built about 10 years ago, and is owned by Samuel H. Leathe, a St. Louis millionaire, who came into possession of it by inheritance from a sister. It has always been used for roller skating, polo and other exhibitions, but has never paid since the first year or two, and has been neglected.

The accident was caused by a cross beam, which was used as a support for the platform, being forced away from the building in the side of which it rested on a sill. It was evidently not securely fastened at this end. On the outer end it was mortised into an upright post.

When the 250th anniversary of Woburn was celebrated last fall this building was examined and, as was supposed, put into a safe condition, as it was used during the celebration.

PRAISE FOR HOLMAN.

Women Indebted to Him for Legislation In Their Behalf.

BOSTON, Aug. 10.—The Women's Rescue league held a meeting yesterday and unanimously passed the following resolutions:

Whereas, Hon W. S. Holman of Indiana may have made mistakes in his choice of men and names for speakers of the house of representatives during his 30 years' continuous service in congress, he has never made a mistake during his long term of service in that legislative body in voting on the side of advancing the interests of women as breadwinners, and he has never objected to measures or appropriations to help the industrial women in the government departments or those occupying the lowest grades in the government service, as well as poor women without political or personal influence, and he has always voted for, and never forgotten, the bills or the names of the bill that would advance the interests of the working women of the United States as political and industrial factors. Be it

Resolved, That the Women's Rescue league of Boston, a branch of the Women's National Industrial league of Washington, congratulates the grand old man of the house of representatives on his trivial mistakes and safe return to the capitol of the nation, and may he live to be returned for 30 successive years to come from the state he has so long honored; be it also

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be sent to Hon. W. S. Holman and the press to show our appreciation of the man who had the moral courage to defend on the floor of the house the cause of the working women, who are largely the creators of the wealth of the nation, and as such are entitled to recognition as political and industrial actors in all economic measures pending in congress.

Fight Over a Freight Train.

GREAT BARRINGTON, Mass., Aug. 10.—Because Ed Lyons, a brakeman on a Wilson Point freight, was laid off, Brakemen Treat, Stevens and Wright refused to work. Another crew was made up, but the three refused to let them have the train and a fight ensued. The new crew got the train after a half hour's delay and went to Sheffield. There a crowd surrounded the train and put on the brakes as fast as the trainmen took them off, and 20 minutes' delay was caused there. The whole crew, except Conductor Jaqua, was discharged, and the men may be prosecuted.

Moody's Logic.

EAST NORTHFIELD, Mass., Aug. 10.—The return of Mr. Moody has aroused great interest in the Bible conference. Mr. Moody was warmly greeted, and thanked the conference for rendering him financial aid. He said church members had got it into their heads that no work could be done in summer. As a result the churches lose in summer what they gain in winter. Mr. Moody gave a very instructive reading from the notes on the margin of his Bible on "Round Top."

Mislaid Securities.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Aug. 10.—The alleged missing securities of the People's Fire Insurance company are turning up daily. There were found in the vaults of the National Bank of the Commonwealth yesterday, where they had been mislaid, 88 shares of the First National bank of Marion, Ind., and the sum of $4400, which is in the hands of Nashua parties for collection, was also reported.

Circus Folks Settled.

WESTFIELD, Mass., Aug. 10.—The proprietors of Walter Main's circus, which showed here yesterday, were detained by having their largest tent attached by the proprietor of the local baseball grounds, who demanded $50 for damage done to the diamond. The matter was settled after an attachment had been made.

Ate Paris Green.

MIDDLEBORO, Mass., Aug. 10.—A boy, aged 4 years, and his sister, somewhat younger, children of Robert Slesser, were taken violently sick with indications of arsenical poisoning, and the boy died. It is thought that in playing in a potato field, they put some paris green in their mouths. The girl is still very sick.

Good News For Depositors.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Aug. 10.—The New Bedford Safe Deposit and Trust company will open its doors inside of a month, when it is officially stated that every depositor can withdraw his deposit if he chooses. The deposits amounted to over $400,000 when the doors were closed, but some of this was in notes.

Mule Spinners' Assessment.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Aug. 10.—The Mule Spinners' union has voted to make the weekly assessment to members $1.25 until such time as the mills are running on full time. Members who work will pay the extra assessment, and members who are forced to remain out of work will be paid $5 a week.

A Shortage of $4000.

ST. ALBANS, Vt., Aug. 10.—Since Colonel E. Henry Powell was elected treasurer of the University of Vermont and State Agricultural college a year ago he has investigated into the dealings of T. J. Baker of Johnson, an agent of the institution, with the result that he reports a shortage of over $4000.

Important Changes.

RUTLAND, Vt., Aug. 10.—The Rutland city ordinances were published this morning. The most important change from the old town system is the abolishment of the volunteer fire department and the substitution of a paid department, consisting of not less than four nor more than 28 men.

Killed on the Track.

STAMFORD, Conn., Aug. 10. — James Conroy, aged 40, was killed at the Meadow street railroad crossing last evening, while boarding a moving train. John Spellman, 22 years old, was killed while walking to his home in Glenbrook.

Working Force Reduced.

LYNN, Mass., Aug. 10.—The Thomson-Houston Electric company has discharged all their night force, while a portion of the day force has been laid off for a time. This reduces the working force from 4000 to about 3000.

Creditors Make a Report.

BOSTON, Aug. 10.—At a meeting of the creditors of F. A. Loring & Co. the report of Assignees C. H. Allen and G. R. Fowler showed direct liabilities of $239,414.90, against assets of $145,094.68.

Cholera's Ravages.

ODESSA, Aug. 10.—The latest official statistics in the 18 of the provinces affected by cholera in European Russia shows that 496 cases and 186 deaths occurred in one week, while in the province of Nijni Novgorod 258 cases and 102 deaths occurred in a fortnight. Unofficial reports declare that 1400 persons were attacked and 500 died in Podolia in less than a fortnight.

Secretary Herbert to Wed.

ATLANTA, Aug. 10.—It is reported that Secretary Herbert and Miss Sallie Brown, youngest daughter of ex-Senator Joseph E. Brown, ar engaged to be married. She is a blonde and is still on the sunny side of 30. She has traveled extensively and is a woman of literary tastes and many social graces. Her father is worth $10,000,000.

Charged With Crookedness.

READING, Pa., Aug. 10.—Colonel Tyson of Governor Pattison's staff was arrested yesterday on a second charge of false pretenses preferred by Henry D. Paxson of Philadelphia. Tyson is also under bail to answer the charge of passing a worthless check for $900 on William F. Harrity.

STILL IN THE DARK.

Caucus Fails to Agree Upon a Silver Plan.

NOW LOOKS LIKE A REPEAL

With Free Coinage at an Increased Ratio.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—Almost every Democratic senator was present at the party caucus held yesterday. The meeting was convened at 10:30 o'clock, and when the hour of noon arrived nothing definite had been accomplished, and an adjournment was taken until immediately after the adjournment of the senate.

The resolution of Mr. Hale, which so suddenly and unexpectedly brought the question of speedy repeal of the Sherman law before the senate, it was thought by some Democrats, placed them in a position where a conference became necessary in order that the policy of the party might be discussed and unanimity of action agreed upon.

As might be expected, with the Democrats divided upon this subject as are the Republicans, there was a diversity of opinion, and a vast amount of unimportant talk was indulged in, with the inevitable result of nothing being determined upon when the noon hour came around.

A Lively Discussion.

The discussion was decidedly animated. No definite proposition was advanced, and when the caucus adjourned it was just as much at sea as when it was called together.

Immediately after the caucus numerous conferences were had between the Democrats and free silver Republicans of the same persuasion, the result of which was apparent as soon as the journal was read.

A motion was made to adjourn, and it was noticeable that the silver Republicans voted with the Democrats to carry out that proposition. This was taken as an evidence of a desire for time, and the caucus immediately reassembled.

Both Sides Firm.

The afternoon caucus was almost as unproductive of results as the morning session. Most of the time was consumed in the expression of individual views which clearly demonstrated that each element in the party was firmly wedded to its own notions. One senator, who occupies a high position in the finance committee and whose leaning toward free silver is pronounced, declared positively, "You can set it down as a certainty that the Sherman act will not be repealed unconditionally."

Some senators who have sided with the president said rather despondently that while no tangible advance had been made toward a point where the party could be regarded as united, they had not abandoned hope that the efforts in that direction might eventually result in success.

It is gathered from this that the conditional repeal proposition is gaining in strength and that certain of the ultra silver men are preparing to follow in the direction indicated by the leaders in the silver caucus in the house yesterday, namely, towards repeal with free coinage at an increased ratio.

It was rather a significant fact that the silver men appeared to have less anxiety than their opponents about the result of the caucus, as was evinced by their conduct while the senators were discussing the situation, a number of them leaving the room and going to the restaurant, where they calmly indulged in luncheon, apparently unconcerned as to what was going on in the chamber above. Neither party in the senate has ever been able to caucus with complete success on the subject of silver, and the result of yesterday's caucus was no exception to the rule. So, after exhausting the possibilities of debate, the caucus fell back upon the oft-tried expedient of delegating to a committee the task of endeavoring to arrange a plan of business that should be satisfactory to all sides.

Figuring on a Committee.

Mr. Gorman, the chairman of the caucus, was authorized to appoint this committee, and the caucus itself adjourned subject to his call, which will be issued as soon as the committee has reached an agreement and is prepared to submit a report for action. Immediately after adjournment of the caucus Mr. Gorman repaired to the room of the committee on appropriations and called into consultation Senators Blackburn, Gray, Ransom and Voorhees. Senator Cockrell was invited to remain in the room.

All these, with the exception of Senator Gray, were members of the Democratic caucus committee of the last session, and although Mr. Gorman had not made his appointments at the time of the consultation, their presence gave color to the expectation that they would be named as members of the caucus committee.

At the conclusion of this informal caucus at 5:15 p. m., Senator Gorman said he would not appoint the committee authorized by the caucus until this afternoon.

Long Debate and a Compromise.

Senator Hawley says that he sees no prospect of immediate relief from existing uncertainty by the action of congress. The indications are, he thinks, that there is to be a long and acrimonious debate, with a strong probability that it will not be possible to secure the unconditional repeal of the silver purchase clause. The gossip is, he says, that, after a long struggle, a compromise bill may be passed, providing for the repeal of the silver purchase clause and free coinage of silver, with an increased ratio.

Smallpox In a Jail.

IS THIS YEAR also to pass without inaugurating some systematic sidewalk building? Why not begin on Hancock street and cause a brick sidewalk to be put in from School street to City Hall, where there is not now a good sidewalk. Nothing depreciates the city so much in the eyes of visitors as its want of sidewalks. Many small but enterprising towns are away ahead of us. Good sidewalks are demanded by women and children, and nurses who have to propel baby carriages, if not by men. With granite at hand we should have sidewalks.

NOW IT is Woburn that needs a building inspector. Perhaps it will be Quincy next.

A COSTLY MAUSOLEUM.

Two Quincy Firms Have Large Contracts for Granite Work.

For nearly two years the firm of McKenzie & Paterson has been engaged on a massive mausoleum worth perhaps $50,000. Another Quincy firm, the O. T. Rogers Granite Co., has also an important contract in connection therewith, being the entrance thereto. It contains seven very large stones of from 35 to 40 tons each, which many in passing the works on Willard street have stopped to admire. Each of the three series of stairs, including the buttresses, are cut solid, requiring stones of the following measurements: 17.8 x 9.4 x 3 feet; 16 6 x 10.6 x 3 9; and 16 6 x 9 x 3. There is another piece 32 x 7 6. The whole is for the estate of C. P. Huntington and will be placed in Woodlawn cemetery, New York city. The contract of the O. T. Rogers Granite Co. is for about $20,000, and it is not only one of the largest jobs cut in this city, but creditable to the Quincy granite and Quincy firm.

William H. Haggarty of Weymouth, was arraigned for bastardy on complaint of Eliza Bennett, and held in $700 for the grand jury.

Regimental Reunion.

Comrades of the old 39th Regiment Massachusetts Volunteers have been notified of the 27th annual reunion at Quincy, Wednesday, Aug. 30, with Co. D. The veterans are expected to arrive between 10 and 11 A. M. A line will be formed and after a short march, electric cars will be taken for the Pine Point House, where the meeting will be held. Ex-Mayor Porter of this city is the regimental secretary, and P. H. Gavin the secretary for Co. D. The former closes the notice by "earnestly hoping that there will be a large turnout of the old comrades on that day, and that there will be a renewal of friendships of the days which are never to be forgotten."

Republican Caucuses.

The Republican State Committee met Wednesday afternoon and voted to recommend to the different city and town committees in the Commonwealth that the caucuses for the nomination of delegates to the State Convention be held upon Thursday, Sept. 21, or Friday Sept. 22. This will not necessitate the holding of all the caucuses upon the same date, as some had desired, but it will bring them within one day of each other.

A motion was adopted to recommend to those caucuses for the election of delegates to the State convention that they instruct delegates to make their substitutions if possible from Republicans who are residents of their own towns or wards.

Fortunate to Escape.

The Globe says, Mr. James H. Slade of Quincy, who lately returned home from Washington, where he has been straightening up Uncle Sam's accounts with the Indians, met with quite a severe accident last week. He was struck by an electric car while crossing a street in Washington. He was thrown to the pavement in an insensible condition. An ambulance was called and he was taken to the hospital, where a severe wound in the back of his head was treated. He was otherwise badly bruised and shattered, but was fortunate to escape with his life.

Dr. Everett's Guide.

Dr. Everett begins his congressional career by being taken under the guiding hand of Springer, late chairman of the committee on ways and means, who is not likely to be reappointed. But Mr. Springer will be a valuable guide to a new congressman, and can tell him how to win fame very easily on the Springer plan. This is to always wear a red flower in the left lapel of the coat. It has given Springer his place in the House, and is a plan which even the most retiring congressman can adopt.—Boston Record.

Of course in handling a quantity of screen doors some get bruised a little. Just as good for service, however. Now for the abused and orphaned ones, 95c.,—less than the wire in them costs. HENRY L. KINCAIDE & Co.

Fatal Burning.

Willie Pryor who was visiting Mrs. W. I. Powell, on Granite place, East Milton, was fatally burned last Friday by a bonfire which ignited his clothing and he died within six hours. Mrs. Powell's hands were quite severely burned in extinguishing the same, and she is also prostrated by the shock so as to require medical attendance.

—The grape crop of New York state is coming to be a considerable item. It covers over 40,000 acres and sells for over $4,800,000, or about $122 per acre; being near good markets, the price received by farmers in New York is about four times as large as that received by the California farmers.

—It is predicted that the Maine hay crop will exceed a million and a quarter tons.

MANET BEACH.

"The full tides lap on the rough, dark piers
As strong as fate and as salt as tears;
The wind blows in from the outer bay,
Moist with the chill of the ocean spray:
And here, where the round red sun goes down.
Come the tried crowds of the toiling town."
—MADELINE S. BRIDGES in Ladies' Home Journal.

Band concerts will be given at Houghs Neck on Sunday, afternoon and evening, by the Jordan & Marsh band and the Atlantic band.

Some excellent views by Photographer Bussell of several boats of the Quincy yacht club are on exhibition at the Quincy post office.

Rules for Bathing.

A writer in the August Housewife on "Baths and Bathing," says:

"The swimming bath, both in salt and fresh water, is one of the most healthy and invigorating forms of bathing, and I would strongly insist on the importance of all young people being taught to swim. It should always be remembered, however, that serious results may occur when too long a time is spent in the water. Let me give a few words of advice as to the essentials of bathing and the time to bath:

1. Undress quickly.
2. Immerse the whole body, not forgetting the head.
3. Rub the limbs and body gently while in the bath; in swimming, do not loiter in the water.
4. Never stay in the water too long—twenty or thirty minutes is quite long enough when in an ordinary swimming bath or the sea.
5. Dry the body gently with moderate friction, beginning with the head, then the arms and body, and finally the legs and feet.
6. Friction is valuable for three reasons: It moves the circulation; it exercises the muscles, and it rubs off the dirt and loose skin.
7. Do not dress until body is perfectly dry, and do so leisurely, as it gives the skin time to breathe.
8. Never bathe in less than three hours after a meal; morning and evening are the best times.

The Popularity Contest.

The comment yesterday that the $100 sea shore lot would be obtained cheap has caused some thinking, but no one has yet embraced the opportunity. A new candidate could easily obtain the prize at a big discount.

IMPORTANT INSTRUCTIONS

From the Navy Department to Vessels at Foreign Ports.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—Orders were sent by cable yesterday to Captain Barker, commanding the cruiser Philadelphia, at Callao, Peru, directing him to coal his ship and wait orders. Secretary Herbert told a reporter that he had decided to relieve the Boston at Honolulu by sending either the Philadelphia or Charleston. The necessity for keeping the Philadelphia at Callao in anticipation of trouble in Peru following the general elections alone prevents Mr. Herbert from ordering that vessel to Hawaii, but it is probable that she will ultimately be selected for the important duty which now engages the Boston.

Tomorrow the Charleston will sail from Hampton Roads for the Pacific station, via Cape Horn, with orders to stop at Rio de Janeiro en route, and her objective point will probably be Callao. With Mr. Blount on the Pacific, half way to San Francisco, the mantle of diplomacy has fallen on the shoulders of Rear Admiral Skerrett, a capable officer, and orders will be sent him to remain in Honolulu after the departure of the Boston and transfer his flag to the vessel sent to relieve her, thus leaving him the diplomatic and military representative of this country in the perturbed country.

A THOUSAND ANGRY MEN

On the Way to Joliet to Kill a Rape Fiend and Murderer.

JOLIET, Ills., Aug. 10.—One of the most fiendish and outrageous acts recorded in the history of Will county was that committed on little Nellie Byron, the 13-year-old daughter of a Wesley township farmer. Nellie was visiting her aunt, Mrs. Ulmsted, half a mile from her home, last Sunday. She did not return that evening, but it was supposed that she had remained with her aunt. Upon going to her aunt's Monday, however, it was found that the child had left for home Sunday evening.

Search was immediately begun, and on Tuesday noon the little girl was found, concealed in a growth of hazel brush, dead, her body showing criminal assault. Sheriff Henneby and State Attorney Aiken went to the place yesterday and arrested Ernest Lacore, a farmer, aged 21 years. To the state's attorney he confessed everything, saying he murdered her Sunday evening about 5:30 o'clock by breaking her neck between his hands. The sheriff had to smuggle the man to Wilmington to keep him from being lynched. He was brought to Joliet, and now it is reported that fully 1000 men are coming there to kill him.

THE CHOLERA SCARE.

No New Cases Reported by New York Health Authorities.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—This bulletin was posted last night: "There are no new cases to report." The two patients at Swinebourne island continue to improve. The disinfection of the baggage of the Massalia is nearly complete."

The following cablegram was received yesterday from Dr. Dalandmy, representative at Naples: "Arrived on Monday; cholera here since July 17, extending in adjacent country. Ten died today, 15 sick. Steamship Hesperia refused bill of health. Weser and Cachemire passengers isolated here five days. Reported as having arrived at Gibraltar all well. Further information as soon as obtained."

The arrival of the Massalia without any illness and this report concerning the Cachemire and the Weser encourages Health Officer Jenkins to believe that there will be no developments of the disease on board these vessels.

COLONEL BOYD'S LETTER

Will Result In His Losing His Ministerial Job at Siam.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—Colonel S. H. Boyd, the United States minister to Siam, has not tendered his resignation to the president as a result of the publication of a personal letter, which he wrote Mr. Holderman, expressing views in the Siamese situation in very undiplomatic language and reflecting on Secretary Gresham.

While Colonel Boyd will not be asked to resign, it is understood his tenure of office will be made to end by the appointment of a successor. Mr. Holderman called on Secretary Gresham yesterday to explain why he made the Boyd letter public, but the secretary declined to hear him, stating that he was wholly indifferent to the subject. Mr. Boyd was appointed minister to Siam Oct. 1, 1893.

Will Again Try Lynching.

CORYDON, Ind., Aug. 10.—Mac Harbaugh has instituted proceedings against the conrad boys, who shot five of the mob that attempted to lynch them, as they had accused Harbaugh of being a member of the mob. If the marshal succeeds in arresting them they will probably be taken from him and lynched.

Desperate Convicts.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Aug. 10.—The convicts made another daring attempt to blow up the penitentiary with nitro-glycerine last night, but were foiled by the timely discovery of Warden Norman. They evidently intended to make a death struggle for liberty after blowing up the prison walls.

To Square Up.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—Arrangements have been completed for discharging the floating debt of the General Electric company, amounting to $4,500,000. Bonds of various electric companies owned by the General Electric will be sold to a syndicate at auction if required.

American Naval Officers Honored.

LONDON, Aug. 10.—Earl [illegible] of the admiralty, [illegible] Spencer, first lord in honor of [illegible] have a dinner last night. Admiral Erben and Chief Engineer [illegible] of the United States navy. The [illegible]o, which is now at Southampton. There was a large attendance of distinguished guests.

Troublesome Indians at Large.

DURANGO, Colo., Aug. 10.—The Utes are leaving their reservation in large numbers and are plundering and wilfully destroying game. The authorities will at once make efforts to get the Indians back on the reservation.

Grieved Over Her Child's Death.

LIVERPOOL, Aug. 10.—Mrs. Jane Metier of Boston attempted to commit suicide last evening in the river Mersey. Mrs. Metier recently lost a child and its death affected her deeply.

Brooklyn Mills Shut Down.

BROOKLYN, Aug. 10.—The big Planet mills shut down last night for at least two weeks. During that time 450 hands will be out of employment.

Elias S. Beals, Edward Sampson and James H. Pratt have returned from their trip to the World's Fair. They report an enjoyable visit.

Rev. B. F. Eaton, who has recently resigned his pastorate of the Universalist church, will be tendered a reception this evening at North Weymouth. There will be an entertainment by local talent to be followed by a supper.

Mrs. Aaron P. Nash a lifelong resident of this town died at her residence on Front street on Tuesday, aged 79 years. She leaves a husband and three sons.

A Well Deserved Award.

The Treasury Department at Washington, after receiving bids from the largest and best known carpet manufacturers and dealers throughout the country, has awarded to the old and reliable house of John H. Pray, Sons & Co. of Boston the contract for furnishing Brussels carpets for Government use throughout the country for the ensuing fiscal year ending June 30, 1894.

This contract amounts to some 20,000 yards, more or less, and is for Brussels of the firm's own manufacture, having, as a guaranty of the quality, its name woven on the back of every yard of carpet that is delivered, so that the house cannot fail to be well known in all Government buildings and offices throughout the United States wherever the carpets are seen.

Messrs. Pray & Co.'s reputation for selling only standard and reliable goods seems to have been well maintained as the Government standard is a high one and the tests are most severe.

PEOPLE'S COLUMN.

Communications concerning city and public matters are invited, and will receive space, although in views they may not coincide with those of the editors. They may be signed by initials or otherwise, but the editors must know the name of the writer.

An Open Letter.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

Many sluring and insulting statements have of late been published in some of the Boston papers in their attempts to report the progress of the movement, now on foot in our city, toward securing a better observance of Sunday.

These papers, always ready to distort the truth, if thereby, their tale may be made more sensational, have even gone out of their way in their endeavors to make it appear that a strong sentiment exists in our community against this movement.

Few of these articles have cast so direct an insult upon the good name of Quincy as the following, taken from a Boston daily of last week, "Many believe that the Sunday observance movement will result in the city's voting, yes, on the license question next year." The writer of this article intentionally overlooks the fact that, for some years past, the decided action of the people of Quincy on the license question has placed our city in a prominent place among the temperance towns of the State, and would have it appear that a majority of our citizens care so little for the great principles of temperance, and are so lawless that, because of the enforced closing on Sunday of a few shops, whose proprietors are carrying on an open Sunday trade in direct violation of the laws of our States, they would be ready, out of spite, to vote "yes" at the coming election.

"The promoters of the movement are the Young Peoples' Society of Christian Endeavor and the Y. M. C. A." This is another statement which should be corrected:

In the first place the violators of the law by their own acts have so aroused public indignation against themselves, that they were themselves the first promoters of the movement.

Secondly, instead of only one Society of Christian Endeavor being affected, the combined efforts of young peoples' societies of all denominations and from all parts of the city have been turned against this evil.

Again, the Y. M. C. A. has not even been associated with the other societies in this campaign, excepting as some of its members happened to belong to some of the young peoples' societies. It is well known, however, that a certain person located not far from the Association Rooms, whose most profitable business would be taken away if the Sunday laws were enforced, would be glad to connect the name of the Association with this movement, and possibly he may have attempted to do so in this instance.

The writer of this article ends by saying that "The municipal election in December will be the hottest fight the city has ever seen, as there are several councilman concerned in the present movement, whose heads, the voters say must come off." Such a statement is on its face a pure fabrication, and leads one to suspect that the person with whom it originated had some interest at stake, and was fast becoming desperate.

To claim that because any of our city councilmen might be interested in an effort to secure the enforcement of law and order, the voters of Quincy should so disapprove of their action, as to reject them at the next City Election, is again highly insulting, especially when it is considered that our councilmen are elected for the express purpose of enacting the ordinances which shall govern our city, as well as to transact other lines of its business.

Having no object in hiding my identity under an anonymous name, I am, very respectively yours,

WM. P. BAILEY.

Quincy, Aug. 9, 1893.

Changes on the Old Colony.

Incident to the transfer of the Old Colony system to the consolidated management several changes are going on which cause more or less comment all along the line.

Under the former management station agents and other receivers of money were allowed to keep bank accounts and to remit their receipts at stated intervals. This is now changed and all money is remitted directly to the home office.

There has also been a readjustment of salaries to secure equality on the various divisions of the consolidated system, by which quite a large portion of the conductors and trainmen on the Old Colony system are now enjoying an increase of wages. In other cases there have been reductions.

It has been decided to consolidate the shop work of the line at Hartford as much as is possible, and this has resulted in a reduction of the force at the Roxbury shops. With these changes is a quite rigid reduction of expenses by lopping off surplus men.

—At a recent meeting of the Cape Cod Cranberry Growers' Association, many of the members agreed to give three per cent. of their crop for export to Europe and to other foreign countries this year, in the attempt to introduce the berries where they are now unknown.

—The Massachusetts Ploughman says, the prospect seems to be a rather short crop of apples this year, taking the average of the whole country, but we shall probably have enough for home use with a smaller surplus than usual for shipment.

THREE STRAIGHT.

Two Pitchers Were Unable to Defeat the Champions.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—Boston took the third game in the series by batting the weak and ineffective Washington pitcher, Stockdale, all over the field. He was driven out of the box in the third inning, being succeeded by Maul, who did good work, but it was too late for the home team to catch up.

BANKERS BOTHERED

By the Uncertainty Regarding the Future of Silver.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—The Sun this morning prints: Several exceedingly interesting cablegrams from London were received in Wall street yesterday. They were sent by London banking houses of the highest repute to their correspondents here and were as confidential as they were important. Their purpose would not be clearly set forth by reproducing them.

On the strength of the information conveyed and inquiries made by those London bankers it can be stated that the English government has become alarmed at the prospects of the repeal of the Sherman silver law, and the members of the cabinet are discussing, possibly informally, the advisability of making a proposition to the United States that if it will continue the purchase of silver under the act of 1890, the Indian government will reopen its mints to the free coinage of silver at the rate of 24 to 1.

Cordage Officials Summoned to Court.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—Police Justice Grady issued summonses against J. M. Waterbury, P. M. Fallon, Sr., J. W. Loper and F. T. Wall to appear in court next Monday in answer to charges of perjury and violation of the statutes relating to corporations. These men were officers and large stockholders of the National Cordage company.

Mataafa to Be Deposed.

LONDON, Aug. 10.—Dispatches from Berlin say that England, the United States and Germany have resolved upon decisive and combined action to end the Samoan trouble. It is reported that the solution will be the exile of Mataafa.

Did a Big Business.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—The sub-treasury yesterday cashed checks for $250,000 with gold. It paid out in currency over the counter in exchange for large bills $30,000. Included in this sum was $10,000 in silver dollars.

In Congress.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—There was no session of the house. The senate adjourned without transacting any business. Caucusses of Democrats and free coinage members failed to arrive at any definite conclusions.

British Steamer Ashore.

LONDON, Aug. 10.—The British steamer Golconda, from Calcutta is reported ashore on Greystone rocks at the entrance to Plymouth harbor. A tug has been sent to her assistance.

TELEGRAPHIC BREVITIES.

More deaths are reported from cholera in Brahilov and Soeling.

Owen Sheeky & Co.'s tanneries at Rankin Station, Pa., were burned.

M. Pavie, the French minister, again takes up his residence at Bangkok.

Earthquakes were felt yesterday at Oakland and Sacramento, Cal. No damage was done.

Philadelphia Italians tried to wreck cable cars because their children were killed by them.

The gross earnings of the Chicago and Erie for June were $237,018, against $202,136 last year, an increase of $34,882.

An unknown man, supposed to be John H. Miller of Albany, shot and killed himself at the International hotel, New York.

War News From Brazil.

New York merchants received a hint that something ominous was happening in Brazil and Nicaragua fully 24 hours before the newspapers published their dispatches announcing those countries, to be in a state of revolution. When they presented messages at the cable offices to be transmitted to their correspondents in the respective countries, they were informed in the case of Brazil that cipher or secret messages were prohibited, and in the case of Nicaragua that telegraphic communication with certain provinces was stopped by the authorities.

These two countries operate land telegraphs as an adjunct to their postal systems, and where connection is made with a foreign telegraph company an agent is maintained to collect the government tax. This agent in emergencies becomes censor, and messages not viseed by him are suppressed. Sometimes notice is given to the sender that his message has been suppressed. More often, however, no notice at all is given.

The notices these agents promulgate are official, contain bare facts relating to telegraph traffic alone and are not embellished by a single word of explanation. For instance, the Brazilian notice referred to simply said, "The employment of cipher or secret language telegrams is temporarily suspended."

It is the duty of the connecting company receiving such a notice to forward it forthwith to Bern, Switzerland, the headquarters of all international telegraph companies, where the notice of interruption, suspension of privileges or whatever happens is instantly sent to every telegraph station the world over.—New York Sun.

Why Newport Lacks Single Men.

One reason why there are no more young men in Newport is because those bachelors who in times gone by were fortunate enough to be the guests of the young married women rather exceeded the bounds of good behavior by accepting invitations to dine at other houses without consulting their hostesses. A young Englishman, who has been made much of in New York, was asked to spend Sunday at Newport and immediately on arrival informed the lady of the house that she needn't feel at all bothered by getting up things to amuse him, as he had accepted invitations for every meal during his stay in the place. This was simply one of the many cases, and finally the young women have agreed that they do not care to merely keep lodging houses. Of course it is very well to say that women of the present day have made so much of the men that they are a trifle spoiled, but the ordinary rules of politeness should hold good, no matter where or when.—Cor. Vogue.

Why a City Flat Is Closed.

There is one flat up town which has been closed a month earlier than originally intended owing to the janitor and the hallboy.

When the family moved in last May, everything ran smoothly for awhile. That was because the head of the family "tipped" the janitor liberally and frequently employed his wife. But when a servant was engaged the janitor began to sour.

Then a hallboy was hired, and he refused to open the door unless he got a fee regularly. Between the two life was made unbearable for the family, and in a moment of despair the flat was closed for the summer.

The head of the house is worrying his head off now trying to think of some course to pursue when he gets his family back to town that he may live in peace without spending all his pocket coin in tips and without being forced to move.—New York Herald.

Members of Congress.

The congress summoned by President Cleveland contains 444 members, not counting the four territorial delegates. Of the 88 senators 45 are pretty sure to vote solidly Democratic, 38 Republican, 3 People's, and 2 doubtful. The youngest of them is Edward O. Wolcott of Denver. He was born in 1848 in Massachusetts and is a lawyer by profession. The oldest is Justin S. Morrill of Strafford, Vt., who was born in 1810 and now is a merchant. Moreover, he is the Nestor of congress, having served 99 years. The rest of the senate is made up of 61 lawyers, 4 capitalists, 3 journalists, 2 lumbermen, 2 manufacturers, 1 merchant, 1 railroad official, 1 miner, 1 stock raiser, 1 car builder, 1 doctor, 2 bankers, 1 planter, and 6 quarrymen. The rest put themselves down as "retired."—Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

Chicago's Busy Coroner.

The last annual report of the coroner of Cook county shows the number of violent deaths in this county in June of last year to have been 166. In July following the deputies held 177 inquests, in August 165, in October 162 and in September 160. The smallest number of cases was in February, when there were but 103. The total number of cases investigated during 1892 was 2,301, and of this number 1,454 were males. Those who had been married numbered 694. More than one person a day for every day in the year is the awful record charged up against the railroads.—Chicago Mail.

A Coincidence.

Running diagonally over the East St. Louis race track is a bridge. From it a road runs to a small settlement near the race course. As the horses were going to the post in a 2-year-old race one day recently a funeral procession started over the bridge. Some of the more superstitious of the spectators hurried at once to the betting ring and plunged on a horse named Coroner that was in the race. The contest was run, and the winner was Coroner.

New Laws Needed.

What is wanted now is a city ordinance compelling young men to put pneumatic tires on their buzzsaw straw hats, so people could get by on the sidewalk without getting scratched.—Springfield Graphic.

First in Tires and Improvements

Riders of Victor Pneumatics carry an extra inner tube to be used in case of accident. By simply removing a punctured inner tube through a hole in the rim, repair is effected in five minutes by replacing with a new one.

Rest.

My feet are wearied, and my hands are tired,
My soul oppressed,
And with desire have I long desired
Rest—only rest.

'Tis hard to toil when toil is almost vain
In barren ways;
'Tis hard to sow and never garner grain
In harvest days.

The burden of my days is hard to bear,
But God knows best;
And I have prayed, but vain has been my prayer,
For rest—sweet rest.

'Tis hard to plant in spring and never reap
The autumn yield;
'Tis hard to till, and when 'tis tilled to weep
O'er fruitless field.

And so I cry, a weak and human cry.
So heart oppressed;
And so I sigh, a weak and human sigh,
For rest—for rest.

My way has wound across the desert years,
And cares infest
My path, and through the flowing of hot tears
I pine for rest.

'Twas always so. When still a child, I laid
On mother's breast
My wearied little head. E'en then I prayed,
As now, for rest.

And I am restless still. 'Twill soon be over,
For down the west
Life's sun is setting, and I see the shore
Where I shall rest. —Father Ryan

A Transporting Tale.

Charlie Ryan, who handles the passenger business of the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad from Cincinnati, has also to handle some passenger business that requires Napoleonic genius—to wit, the pass fiends. One of these, a sleek, insinuating fellow, walked into Ryan's office one day in June.

"Ah," he said, "is this Mr. Ryan?"

Mr. Ryan didn't deny that it was.

"Ah, well, I called to see if I couldn't get transportation for myself over your road to White Sulphur."

Mr. Ryan smiled divinely.

"Certainly, sir, certainly; all you want."

"Ah, many thanks. Do I get it from you?"

"Oh, no, sir," bowed the polite Charles. "You get it at the ticket office down stairs. We don't sell tickets up here," and the man was so overcome that he went down stairs and actually bought a ticket.—Detroit Free Press.

The Convolutions of Soup Creek.

Soup creek, in McDowell county, W. Va., is a remarkable stream. The creek passes a hamlet called Vivian, and about a mile below returns, runs around a tract of land about a half mile wide, and then passes under itself. This freak is caused by the lay of the land, which sinks spirally.—Exchange.

A Safeguard Against Breaking Down.

This is a season of the year when many people "break down," as the saying is. Feelings of irresistible languor overtake them. They are tired out all the time. They are feverish and sleepy and irritable, and finally their strength gives way, and they are prostrated with sickness.

One of the best safeguards against this downward tendency is a plenty of sleep. And the sleep, in order that it may have its full effect as "tired nature's sweet restorer," should be taken at seasonable hours. It is an old adage that "one hour's sleep before midnight is worth two after it."—New York Ledger.

Advocated at the Convention of Ohio Democrats.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 10.—The Democratic state convention was formally opened in Music hall this morning and thousands of Democrats are now hard at work on the preliminaries which precedes the chosing of a standard bearer for the fall campaign. Hon. G. C. Crite of Lima, chairman of the Democratic state central committee, in calling the convention to order, thanked the local committees and the citizens, generally, of Cincinnati, irrespective of party, for the complete arrangements that had insured the convenience and accommodation of the convention, and urged the delegates to go forth, after their work was done, with vigilance and determination to do battle with the common enemy until the polls closed in November, when victory would be complete. Following is

Crite's Speech:

About two months ago there was held in the capital city of this state a ratification meeting called a Republican state convention noted for its depleted delegations, its total lack of enthusiasm and willful absence of prominent Republicans of the state, many of whom not even sought the shadow of an excuse for non-attendance, but their motives were apparent to all.

How different are the surroundings here; every one of 808 delegates in his place, backed by an equal number of sturdy alternates and surrounded by thousands of the rank and file of the party from every district and county of the state, all united and enthusiastic for party success.

Fortunately we may safely rely upon the intelligence and fidelity of these 808 tried and true delegates directly representing the Democracy of the state to wisely transact the business of this convention. It speaks for your deliberations, presence and harmony, and a ticket that shall redound not only to your credit, but to that of the 400,000 loyal Democrats who sent you here.

Hon. Gilbert H. Bargar of Columbus acted as temporary chairman and Hon. Walter Thiede of Cleveland as temporary secretary. B. W. Layton of Wapakoneta is the sergeant-at-arms. Following the address of Mr. Crite, Chairman Bargar said a few words to the convention and then the report of the committee on credentials was made.

The situation this morning is as mixed and as undefinable as it was 24 hours ago. As John J. Lentz, the Columbus politician and himself a leading dark horse for the gubernatorial nomination, put it: "The situation is unparalleled and indescribable."

The most and, in fact, the only important development was the propulsion into the role of an open candidate for the head of the ticket of Charles W. Baker of this city. This was brought about at a caucus of Neal's opponents held at the St. Nicholas, convened by E. W. Hughes, ex-consul to Birmingham and one of ex-Governor Campbell's chief lieutenants, and participated in by half a score of delegates from as many districts. To this conference Mr. Baker was summoned, and when the gathering broke up the announcement was made that Baker had been entered in the lists and might be regarded as the administration candidate for the nomination.

Headquarters were at once opened at the Gibson House, adjoining those occupied by Candidate Neal, and the word went around that the prospective nominee of the convention was ready and willing to welcome his supporters.

Neal Is Weak.

Neal himself says that he does not know how large a vote he will poll, and this is also taken as a sign of weakness by his enemies. This is his third attempt to become governor of Ohio, and the Campbell men assert that he by this time knows perfectly well where his strength lies and that if he had 405 votes assured he would lose no time in claiming them with a loud voice.

John A. McMahon of Dayton, who was mentioned for the nomination and who had quite a following, has kicked the gas out of his own balloon by declaring that he would not take the nomination if it was tendered him by both parties. Then Mr. McMahon, after declaring this, hastened over to the St. Nicholas hotel and locked himself in a room with the anti-Neal people. The selection of Baker to lead the Campbell side of the convention has hurt Neal somewhat in Hamilton county.

Neal has declared that he will abide by the Chicago platform, and his followers are Democrats of the unterrified stamp, who will stick to him as long as there is a show of his nomination. On the other hand, the Campbellites make no denial of the fact that they are with the administration and that they are out to beat Neal, and to beat him with any man who can be made available. Campbell will not be a candidate, and if his name goes before the convention by the act of some enthusiastic follower it will be instantly withdrawn.

For Free Coinage.

The committee on resolutions remained in session many hours. The roll of 102 districts was called, and each member responded with his views on the silver question. With two exceptions, the message of President Cleveland was condemned, and the opinion was expressed that the platform should declare for free coinage at the ratio of 16 to 1. Finally it was decided to refer the platform to a committee.

The committee on organization made the temporary organization the permanent organization of the Democratic state convention. Judge Armston and Ed Hunt, the Hamilton county members of the committee on resolutions, are not committed on the silver question, but those in a position to know say that they favor the financial plank of the Chicago platform.

Building Up the Navy.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—Preliminary steps for the construction of three new gunboats for the United States navy were taken by the navy department yesterday in the issuance of advertisements inviting bids for their construction. The last congress appropriated $1,200,000 for their construction.

In the Nick of Time.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—Just before the Madison Square bank suspended, State Treasurer Danforth succeeded in drawing $300,000 that he had deposited with the bank on Monday last.

THE MAGIC MIRROR.

Dim clouds across the field there float,
And shadows slowly form, combine
And gather shape. A tiny boat
I see, tossed in the foaming brine.
O rower, wait! Brave rower, stay!
Nay, boat and rower fade away.

Again the dim clouds gather o'er
And slowly shape a battlefield,
And, dead or living, wounded sore,
One lies beside a broken shield.
O warrior, canst thou heed or hear?
Nay, for the visions disappear.

Fling down the shining surface bare.
An idle tale it tells to me.
The shadowy form I image there
I trace in earth and air and sea.
Earth, sea and air from pole to pole
The magic mirror of my soul!
—May Kendall in Longman's Magazine.

A VALUABLE VALISE.

Returning from New York city by the E—— railroad a few years ago, I bought of the train boy a copy of a Cincinnati paper, in which I read a long account of the robbery of the City National bank of L——, Ky., and the sudden disappearance of its teller, Harry W. Swope. As usual in such cases, he had been a trusted employee, a member of the church and a society young man. The robbery was a particularly cool one, the gentleman having quietly slipped $90,000 in notes into a valise on the previous Saturday afternoon after bank hours and walked out into the cold world.

That was the last seen of him, and it was not until after the bank opened on Monday morning that any one suspected anything wrong. The affair created an immense sensation. "Society" was shocked, the church scandalized and the bank directors furious. The newspapers printed long stories of the Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde sort of existence the young man had led for a number of years, and numerous friends of the "lately departed" knowingly shook their heads as they told the reporters that they knew something like that was sure to happen soon.

This sensation so interested me that when I reached Cincinnati I scarcely realized the express was, as usual, an hour behind time and had failed to make connection with the train to L——. I should therefore be compelled to take the last train going west that night, which would cause me to stop over night in a one horse town in Indiana that did not contain a comfortable hotel.

I knew Mr. Swope by sight, having come in contact with him on a number of occasions while doing business with the bank of which he was teller. The L—— papers I bought in the Union depot gave further details of the affair and contained also the announcement that the bank directors had offered a reward of $1,000 for Swope's capture and 10 per cent of the cash returned, which would make a total of $10,000 if the rascal was caught before he got rid of his booty.

After eating an unsatisfactory lunch I took a seat in the general waiting room of the depot and ruefully awaited my train. As I did so I noticed a young man approach my seat, and placing his valise on the floor alongside my own, to which it bore a strong resemblance, sit down while he looked cautiously around at the clock on the wall and then at the officials moving about.

How long he sat beside me I don't remember, but after a time he slowly arose and walked over to the telegraph office at the farther end of the room. Before he came back a strong lunged individual in uniform stepped up to me and bawled out the names of the towns which the train about to start was bound for. Hurriedly picking up my valise, I made straight for the gate and was soon aboard my train for the west.

The journey was made with the usual discomfort and monotony. The depot at N—— Y——, Ind., where I had to stop over from 10 p. m. till 5 the next morning, had been rebuilt since my last visit to that town, and remembering too well my hotel experience there a year before I resolved to spend one night in the depot waiting room with a few other passengers who shared my misfortune.

All that night the face of the stranger who had occupied a seat beside me in the Cincinnati depot haunted me. There was something about him that reminded me of Teller Swope. He was just his size and build. His mustache, to be sure, was wanting, but that he should shave off this appendage was to be considered a matter of course. The gold spectacles he wore very much resembled those I had associated with the face of the intellectual looking teller, and I had observed on his fingers a number of rings, jewelry that Mr. Swope was said to be very partial to. As I turned the matter over in my mind the more convinced I felt that I had lost a splendid chance of capturing the thief and securing a $10,000 reward.

When 5 o'clock at last came round, I boarded the train for L——, not in the best of humor, and two hours later arrived at home feeling very blue. After taking a slight breakfast, I went down to the office, where the big robbery was still the talk of the clerks. Each of them had a theory of his own as to where the thief had gone, and when they appealed to me for my opinion I dolefully recounted my experiences of the previous evening. Of course they unanimously agreed with me that I had very foolishly allowed the fugitive teller to slip out of my fingers.

Just before going out to lunch a messenger boy languidly entered the office and handed me a note from my wife. Thinking it was the usual commission to get a yard or two of "goods like the sample inclosed," I thrust it into my pocket and started out to dinner. I had not gone far before I suddenly stopped and took out the envelope the boy had given me, opened it and read it. At first I could not understand what it all meant; then I turned it over and went through it again. It ran as follows:

DEAR GEORGE—Come home at once. In opening your valise to get your soiled linen to send it to the laundry I discovered it packed with bank notes! What does it mean? Is anything wrong? Come home at once.

My first thought was to hasten home, but upon reflection I resolved to step around to the bank and acquaint the officials there of my discovery. I found the president of the bank in his private office engaged with several lynx eyed individuals whom I suspected from their appearance to be, as it turned out they were, detectives.

When I was granted an interview and explained my discovery, it created, very naturally, a sensation. At first the old gentleman was inclined to regard me as a crank, but when I asked him to allow a clerk to accompany me home he seemed to be satisfied I was in earnest. He consented to my proposal, but after a moment's thought he said an escort was unnecessary, thinking doubtless that the handsome reward would be a sufficient inducement to insure the safe delivery of the precious valise.

As I left the bank and turned up the street in the direction of home I was joined by a young man who came running out of the bank after me, hat in hand. He said "the old man" had reconsidered the matter and sent him to accompany me back with the money. This seemed to me to be quite satisfactory, and as the fellow was a very genial young man we immediately fell to discussing the robbery of his bank. He congratulated me on my good fortune and knowingly hinted that "the old gentleman" would treat me cleverly in the way of reward.

I said this young man was a very genial fellow, but somehow I soon began to feel an instinctive distrust in him. I plied him with questions concerning the habits and business methods of the missing teller, but he returned evasive answers. In one or two little things he contradicted himself, and finally, when I unexpectedly asked him how long he had been employed in the bank, he replied, after looking at me in a dazed sort of way, "Oh, about a year or two." At once the thought came to me: What if my "escort" was one of the young men I had seen outside the president's office. Perhaps he had overheard our conversation and had planned this neat little scheme of playing the role of a clerk of the bank sent me for "protection," as he insinuatingly put it. If so, I readily saw that he intended to make an effort to get his hands on the valise and then seize the first opportunity to bid me goodby.

This theory was strengthened when I noted that my "protector" seemed gradually to become very uncommunicative, and the conversation during the rest of the journey referred to passing objects and sights. Try as hard as I could I failed to get anything satisfactory out of him concerning the robbery.

When I reached home, I politely asked the young man to take a seat in the hall while I stepped up stairs to get a glimpse of the treasure. I found my wife at the head of the stairs, very excited. In an adjoining room we examined the valise, and at a rough estimate we placed the amount at about the figure the newspapers said Swope had carried off with him—somewhere about $90,000.

I did not tell my wife of my suspicions of the young man down stairs, but I resolved at once to arm myself in order to be prepared for the worst. It is a well known fact that in Kentucky the sixth commandment has long ago been declared unconstitutional, and I quickly made up my mind that if my bodyguard showed any signs of playing me false I would let him have a dose of cold lead.

Contrary to my expectations the young fellow made no offer to carry the valise as we started on our journey back to the bank. At the end of the short street on which I lived we stopped to take a car. My friend had again become very affable, and as we stood on the corner he offered me a cigar. I took it, thanked him, and placing my valise carefully on the ground between my feet I struck a match to light it. Just as I was in the act of doing so I received a blow from the left that sent me staggering into the middle of the street. At the same moment my "protector" disappeared in the other direction.

"Look here, young man," said a gruff voiced fellow in uniform at my side as he shook me violently, "I thought you told me you were going to take the train west tonight. It has just pulled out, and you're left."

Opening my eyes I looked around the waiting room in a confused way and reached for my valise.

It was nowhere to be found!

My brusque arouser instantly took in the situation, and with a look of intense disgust on his face said as he turned away:

"I guess that studentlike sport who was sitting beside you has taken care of your baggage. He passed me a few moments ago on his way to the train with a couple of valises. Next time you go traveling, young man, you had better take some one along with you to care for you while you sleep."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Canadian Fish and the Tariff.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—Assistant Secretary Hamlin of the treasury yesterday granted a hearing to the representatives of the lake fishing interests. A strong effort is being made to induce the department to reverse its decision that fish caught in Canadian waters by companies having Canadian licenses are dutiable under the McKinley tariff law.

Carlisle's Note Caused It.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 10.—Mayor Stuart has called an extra session of the select councils to take action upon the mint site selected by Secretary Carlisle. This action was taken because of a very curt note received by the mayor from Secretary Carlisle.

SCHOONER RUN DOWN

By a Steamer Which Continues on Her Way.

NO OFFER OF ASSISTANCE.

Captain and Crew of the Wrecked Vessel Saved.

VINEYARD HAVEN, Mass., Aug. 11.—Schooner Acacia, Golding, from Port Johnson, of and for St. John, with a cargo of 167 tons of coal, when about six miles east-southeast from Chatham, just after midnight, during a light southwest wind and foggy weather, was run into by a large unknown steamer, which struck the Acacia a glancing blow on the starboard bow, carrying away her bowsprit and all head gear, causing her to sink in about 40 minutes.

The captain and crew were picked up about three hours later in their yawl boat by schooner Velma, White, of and from Calais, Me., for Newport, R. I., and landed at this port yesterday. They saved nothing and will be forwarded to Boston.

Heartless Action.

Captain Golding of the Acacia states that the colliding steamer kept on her course, making no effort to offer assistance or make known her identity.

Had the schooner's boat been stove by the collision all hands would most likely have been drowned. The Acacia lies in 10 fathoms of water, with mastheads awash, and is a dangerous obstruction to navigation. The damage to the steamer is unknown.

CHAPTER OF ACCIDENTS

Create a Day of Excitement For People of Haverhill.

HAVERHILL, Mass., Aug. 11.—During yesterday many people had narrow escapes from death. A 2-year-old son of Alexander McAuley secured a two-ounce bottle filled with paregoric and drank the contents. He cannot recover.

Johnny Howard, 6 years old, climbed up the rear wheel on an ice wagon. The driver started up the horses and Johnny fell under the wheels, and the flesh was scraped off one side of his face clear to the bone.

William Sullivan, a stone mason, had two fingers crushed to a pulp.

William Fitzgerald and John McDonald attempted to separate two dogs that were fighting on Harrison street and were badly bitten.

Three children of John McCarthy started to cross the track. Two trains were coming, and the children became confused and laid down in front of the express. Switchman Quill seized a red flag, waved it, the train stopped and the children's lives were saved.

A French girl named Duchesne attempted to wheel her little sister in a baby carriage up the railroad track from the Essex street crossing to the depot. The Portland express came along. Freight Agent Kimball and the crossing tender pulled the child and the baby carriage out of the way, and a fatality was thus averted.

WALKED INTO THE WATER.

Deliberate Suicide of One of Lynn's Most Prominent Citizens.

LYNN, Mass., Aug. 11.—W. G. S. Keene, one of the most prominent shoe manufacturers in this city, committed suicide at Nahant yesterday afternoon. Mr. Keene was apparently in the best of health and humor yesterday forenoon. He had visited the residence of Congressman Lodge, which is now closed. He was seen slowly descending the rocks to the water's edge in front of the summer house. The sight of the water made him hasten, and he deliberately walked out in it over his head.

Mr. Keene's home was one of the best in the city and wanted nothing to add to his comfort. He was worth several hundred thousand dollars and was a public spirited man, taking great interest in all affairs that would benefit the city. He was in the shoe business with his brother, Frank Keene. They owned several buildings in the heart of the city and have been quoted as being immensely wealthy.

The cause of his sudden death is laid to the heat of the day, as it is generally believed that it affected his brain. A story was started that he had committed suicide on account of being financially embarrassed. There appears to be no truth in it. Mr. Keene was a member of the board of trade.

BAY STATE ODD FELLOWS

Nominate Officers and Transact Other Business at Boston.

BOSTON, Aug. 11.—The largest annual session of the grand lodge of Massachusetts, I. O. O. F., ever held assembled yesterday, 400 strong, in the hall at Berkeley and Tremont streets. The session was called to order by Grand Master Price of Cambridge.

Upon recommendation of the committee on election and returns, 150 past grands received the grand lodge and past noble grand degrees. They were also admitted and duly instructed.

The following were placed in nomination for the various offices: For grand master, Louis A. Cook; for deputy grand master, Henry E. Ruggles of Franklin; for grand secretary, Charles D. Cole of Boston; for grand treasurer, Julius L. Clark of West Newton; for grand warden, Austin S. Esty of Somerville, Hon. Charles A. Russell of Gloucester, Henry A. Thomas of Weymouth, Fred Samuels of Lowell, Frank A. Milliken of New Bedford and John W. Palmer of Northampton.

Reports from various officers showed the lodge to be in a flourishing condition.

Hop Yick Lung's Troubles.

BOSTON, Aug. 11.—Hop Yick Lung, the Harrison avenue Chinaman who was arrested for assault with intent to kill William J. Mann, was held in $20,000 for examination on Aug. 17. Mann lies at the city hospital in a precarious condition. He was struck on the head with a stool. It is supposed that Mann and a companion tantalized the Chinaman, and that he excitedly threw the chair at his tormentor.

Sad Ending of a Vacation.

BOSTON, Aug. 11.—John Lantry, 12 years old, and Charles Lintsky, 23 years old, both of this city, were drowned yesterday in the lake at Jeffersonville, N. H., where they were spending their vacations. The body of young Lantry was recovered. His home was on Dale street, Highland district. His father died some months ago. Lintsky was a civil engineer in the office of the city engineer of Boston.

Will Pay In Full.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Aug. 11.—At a meeting of the directors of the suspended Bank of New England Bank Commissioner Lyford stated that a careful examination of the institution had revealed no discrepancies, and that if the assets could be realized upon not only would the depositors and stockholders receive every dollar, but a surplus of at least 10 per cent would remain.

The Hub's Taxes.

BOSTON, Aug. 11.—The tax rate in Boston for 1893 is $12.80 per $1000. This $12.80 is divided up as follows: For county, 75 cents; for state, 92 cents; for city, $11.13. The total tax last year was $12.90. The present year's tax for county and city is the lowest rate since 1870, when it was $11.08. The county and city tax together last year was $12.27, while this year it is $11.88.

Harvest For Money Lenders.

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 11.—A number of local money lenders are buying up bank books for 75 or less per cent of the face value for cash and doing considerable business in that way. The rule put into effect by the local banks preventing the drawing of any deposits on less than 90 days' notice makes it impossible for many to draw cash when they need it.

Discharged Through a Mistake.

LYNN, Mass., Aug. 11.—On Wednesday 300 hands were discharged by the Thomson-Houston company. Yesterday the officials discovered that someone had made this big error. They say that no order was given to cause these men to be discharged, and that they will be called back immediately.

Mangled by a Train.

BOSTON, Aug. 11.—An unknown man was run over and instantly killed in the yard of the Boston and Maine railroad last night. He was apparently under the influence of liquor and was walking on the track when he was run over. His body was shockingly mangled.

Used Revolver and Knife.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Aug. 11.—George Clark of West Epping attempted to murder his wife by shooting her, and failing in that manner he used a knife, but was arrested before accomplishing the terrible crime.

Taxation In Saugus.

SAUGUS, Mass., Aug. 11.—The assessors report that the rate of taxation will be $18.50 on $1000, an increase of $2 over last year. The valuation is $2,883,488 and the number of polls assessed are 1210.

Joe Kelly's Fall.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Aug. 11.—Joseph N. Kelly, 4 years old, fell from a four-story window in the Brooks house on Harrison street, sustaining serious injuries. He will recover.

A Distinguished Visitor.

BEVERLY, Mass., Aug. 11.—Ex-President Harrison is the guest of D. A. Kilham, where Mr. and Mrs. McKee are spending their vacation. He will remain here a week or more.

To Try an Englishman.

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 11.—Bobby Burns, the lightweight pugilist, will sail for Europe Saturday to arrange a match with some prominent pugilist on the other side.

Clothing Caught Fire.

RUTLAND, Vt., Aug. 11.—Mrs. Charles Fuller, wife of a local photographer, was burned to death here. Her clothing caught fire from the explosion of an oil stove.

Brief Mention.

The United States monitor Miantonomah is at Newport torpedo station.

William Makepeace Towle, journalist and literary writer, died at Boston.

At a fire at Richmond, Vt., a fireman named Burns was struck by a falling timber and so badly injured and burned that it is thought that he cannot recover.

Biggest In the World.

CHESTER, Pa., Aug. 11.—The largest side-wheel steamboat in the world slid off the ways and into the Delaware river yesterday. The yards of the Delaware River Iron Shipbuilding and Engine company were crowded with people attracted by the unusual sight. The officials of the Fall River line, whose fleet the new boat will head, were present. The new boat has not yet been named, but as she is a sister ship to the Puritan, Plymouth, Providence and Pilgrim, she will probably be called the Priscilla.

NEWTON, Ala., Aug. 11.—F. Mullens and his wife were struck by lightning yesterday. Mr. Mullens was instantly killed and his wife is in a critical condition.

DEMOCRATS OF OHIO

Choose Neal and Taylor to Head Their Ticket.

BAKER WAS SLAUGHTERED.

Neal's Friends Say He Will Bury McKinley.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 11.—For governor, Lawrence T. Neal of Ross county.

For lieutenant governor, William A. Taylor of Franklin county.

For supreme court judge, John W. Sater of Darke county.

For treasurer of state, D. C. Blackburn of Coshocton county.

For attorney general, John P. Bailey of Putnam county.

For member of board of public works, Louis B. Wilhelm of Summit county.

For food and dairy commissioner, Patrick H. McKeown of Hamilton county.

It was a hot day but a cool convention. The hall was filled. It is no work for a politician to throw open his face and let corrugated yells tear holes in the air, consequently the politicians yelled, and they yelled loud, long and often. One delegate from Putnam county, who habitually goes armed with a voice which sounds like the sob of a broken fiddle string, was particulary strong in the noisy part of the proceedings.

The convention, as a whole, was remarkably harmonious, considering the unsettled condition of matters before the meeting convened. There was but he had no trouble in securing a large addition to the number of his friends when once the ballot was decided. Part of this was a rush to get into the band wagon, and part of it was loyalty to the nominee of the party—more of the latter than of the former.

Baker was expected to swing a much heavier vote than he did, and if the Campbell men were really pushing him, and they say they were, they pushed him in the wrong direction. His candidacy was deplorably managed, and it really never had a chance to win after the name of Hamilton county was reached on the first roll call. There was no response to Chairman Barger's call, and he repeated the name several times before a voice from among the Hamilton county delegates called out his name, and then Hamilton county slaughtered him by casting the bulk of its votes for Neal.

It was an easy victory for Neal, and his friends are more than

Hopeful of Success In November.

They say that they will bury McKinley. The action of the platform committee in omitting to take a stand on the silver question is variously commented upon. Members of the committee declare that it was all summarized in the plank binding the convention to support the administration, but the free silver men, who are numerous, are not content. One member of the committee said:

"We did not know what to do. The action of the silver men in Washington on Wednesday threw us on our beams' ends, and we would have been a committee on jackass legislation to map out a policy for Ohio, and then, perhaps, have the Washington fellows do something else."

A Peculiar Case.

OMAHA, Aug. 11.—William Rogers Garner, a telegraph operator, was found dead in bed in his room at the home of Dr. Lavender. When discovered, a man known as Dr. Ward, alias Peyson, was seated on the bed beside the corpse, eating lunch. He was stupefied with liquor, and could give no explanation of Garner's death. It is believed that Ward gave Garner several hypodermic injections of morphine, causing death. Ward was arrested.

In Congress.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—Immediately after the reading of Wednesday's journal Mr. Gorman moved that when the senate adjourn it be till Monday next. The senate then immediately adjourned until Monday at noon. After the reading and approval of Tuesday's journal, Mr. Bailey moved that the house take a recess till 1 o'clock. The motion was carried. Shortly after reconvening the house adjourned for the day.

Didn't Want Checks.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—Pay day came to a sudden stop in the Long Island railroad yard in Long Island City yesterday. The small currency gave out, and the paymaster was forced to suspend while a disappointed crowd of about 400 employes besieged the car and wanted to know what was the matter. The company offered to give them checks, but the men wanted money.

Dealings In Silver.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—Silver continues on the rise in London. According to official advice the price is $0.7625 an ounce. This is 1 cent an ounce above the price paid by the treasury. Of the 357,000 ounces of silver offered Wednesday the treasury bought 322,000 ounces at $0.7515 an ounce.

Burge Won't Fight McAuliffe.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—The proposed international match between Jack McAuliffe and Dick Burge for $5000 a side will not be arranged, owing to the backer of Burge desiring him to arrange a match with Jack Dempsey for $10,000 a side in America.

Rest.

My feet are wearied, and my hands are tired,
My soul oppressed,
And with desire have I long desired
Rest—only rest.

'Tis hard to toil when toil is almost vain
In barren ways;
'Tis hard to sow and never garner grain
In harvest days.

The burden of my days is hard to bear,
But God knows best;
And I have prayed, but vain has been my prayer,
For rest—sweet rest.

'Tis hard to plant in spring and never reap
The autumn yield;
'Tis hard to till, and when 'tis tilled to weep
O'er fruitless field.

And so I cry, a weak and human cry,
So heart oppressed;
And so I sigh, a weak and human sigh,
For rest—for rest.

My way has wound across the desert years,
And cares infest
My path, and through the flowing of hot tears
I pine for rest.

'Twas always so. When still a child, I laid
On mother's breast
My wearied little head. E'en then I prayed,
As now, for rest.

And I am restless still. 'Twill soon be over,
For down the west
Life's sun is setting, and I see the shore
Where I shall rest. —Father Ryan

A Transporting Tale.

Charlie Ryan, who handles the passenger business of the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad from Cincinnati, has also to handle some passenger business that requires Napoleonic genius—to wit, the pass fiends. One of these, a sleek, insinuating fellow, walked into Ryan's office one day in June.

"Ah," he said, "is this Mr. Ryan?"

Mr. Ryan didn't deny that it was.

"Ah, well, I called to see if I couldn't get transportation for myself over your road to White Sulphur."

Mr. Ryan smiled divinely.

"Certainly, sir, certainly; all you want."

"Ah, many thanks. Do I get it from you?"

"Oh, no, sir," bowed the polite Charles. "You get it at the ticket office down stairs. We don't sell tickets up here," and the man was so overcome that he went down stairs and actually bought a ticket.—Detroit Free Press.

The Convolutions of Soup Creek.

Soup creek, in McDowell county, W. Va., is a remarkable stream. The creek passes a hamlet called Vivian, and about a mile below returns, runs around a tract of land about a half mile wide, and then passes under itself. This freak is caused by the lay of the land, which sinks spirally.—Exchange.

A Safeguard Against Breaking Down.

This is a season of the year when many people "break down," as the saying is. Feelings of irresistible languor overtake them. They are tired out all the time. They are feverish and sleepy and irritable, and finally their strength gives way, and they are prostrated with sickness.

One of the best safeguards against this downward tendency is a plenty of sleep. And the sleep, in order that it may have its full effect as "tired nature's sweet restorer," should be taken at seasonable hours. It is an old adage that "one hour's sleep before midnight is worth two after it."—New York Ledger.

BAKER'S ASPIRATION

Likely to Secure Him the Nomination For Governor.

A FREE COINAGE PLATFORM

Advocated at the Convention of Ohio Democrats.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 10.—The Democratic state convention was formally opened in Music hall this morning and thousands of Democrats are now hard at work on the preliminaries which precedes the chosing of a standard bearer for the fall campaign. Hon. G. C. Crite of Lima, chairman of the Democratic state central committee, in calling the convention to order, thanked the local committees and the citizens, generally, of Cincinnati, irrespective of party, for the complete arrangements that had insured the convenience and accommodation of the convention, and urged the delegates to go forth, after their work was done, with vigilance and determination to do battle with the common enemy until the polls closed in November, when victory would be complete. Following is

Crite's Speech:

About two months ago there was held in the capital city of this state a ratification meeting called a Republican state convention noted for its depleted delegations, its total lack of enthusiasm and willful absence of prominent Republicans the state, many of whom not even sought the shadow of an excuse for non-attendance, but their motives were apparent to all.

How different are the surroundings here; every one of 808 delegates in his place, backed by an equal number of sturdy alternates and surrounded by thousands of the rank and file of the party from every district and county of the state, all united and enthusiastic for party success.

Fortunately we may safely rely upon the intelligence and fidelity of these 808 tried and true delegates directly representing the Democracy of the state to wisely transact the business of this convention. It speaks for your deliberations, presence and harmony, and a ticket that shall redound not only to your credit, but to that of the 400,000 loyal Democrats who sent you here.

Hon. Gilbert H. Bargar of Columbus acted as temporary chairman and Hon. Walter Theirse of Cleveland as temporary secretary. B. W. Layton of Wapakoneta is the sergeant-at-arms. Following the address of Mr. Crite, Chairman Bargar said a few words to the convention and then the report of the committee on credentials was made.

The situation this morning is as mixed and as undefinable as it was 24 hours ago. As John J. Lentz, the Columbus politician and himself a leading dark horse for the gubernatorial nomination, put it: "The situation is unparalleled and indescribable."

The most and, in fact, the only important development was the propulsion into the role of an open candidate for the head of the ticket of Charles W. Baker of this city. This was brought about at a caucus of Neal's opponents held at the St. Nicholas, convened by E. W. Hughes, ex-consul to Birmingham and one of ex-Governor Campbell's chief lieutenants, and participated in by half a score of delegates from as many districts. To this conference Mr. Baker was summoned, and when the gathering broke up the announcement was made that Baker had been entered in the lists and might be regarded as the administration candidate for the nomination.

Headquarters were at once opened at the Gibson House, adjoining those occupied by Candidate Neal, and the word went around that the prospective nominee of the convention was ready and willing to welcome his supporters.

Neal Is Weak.

Neal himself says that he does not know how large a vote he will poll, and this is also taken as a sign of weakness by his enemies. This is his third attempt to become governor of Ohio, and the Campbell men assert that he by this time knows perfectly well where his strength lies and that if he had 405 votes assured he would lose no time in claiming them with a loud voice.

John A. McMahon of Dayton, who was mentioned for the nomination and who had quite a following, has kicked the gas out of his own balloon by declaring that he would not take the nomination if it was tendered him by both parties. Then Mr. McMahon, after declaring this, hastened over to the St. Nicholas hotel and locked himself in a room with the anti-Neal people. The selection of Baker to lead the Campbell side of the convention has hurt Neal somewhat in Hamilton county.

Neal has declared that he will abide by the Chicago platform, and his followers are Democrats of the unterrified stamp, who will stick to him as long as there is a show of his nomination. On the other hand, the Campbellites make no denial of the fact that they are with the administration and that they are out to beat Neal, and to beat him with any man who can be made available. Campbell will not be a candidate, and if his name goes before the convention by the act of some enthusiastic follower it will be instantly withdrawn.

For Free Coinage.

The committee on resolutions remained in session many hours. The roll of 102 districts was called, and each member responded with his views on the silver question. With two exceptions, the message of President Cleveland was condemned, and the opinion was expressed that the platform should declare for free coinage at the ratio of 16 to 1. Finally it was decided to refer the platform to a committee.

The committee on organization made the temporary organization the permanent organization of the Democratic state convention. Judge Armston and Ed Hunt, the Hamilton county members of the committee on resolutions, are not committed on the silver question, but those in a position to know say that they favor the financial plank of the Chicago platform.

Building Up the Navy.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—Preliminary steps for the construction of three new gunboats for the United States navy were taken by the navy department yesterday in the issuance of advertisements inviting bids for their construction. The last congress appropriated $1,200,000 for their construction.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—Just before the Madison Square bank suspended, State Treasurer Danforth succeeded in drawing $200,000 that he had deposited with the bank on Monday last.

THE MAGIC MIRROR.

Dim clouds across the field there float,
And shadows slowly form, combine
And gather shape. A tiny boat
I see, tossed in the foaming brine.
O rower, wait! Brave rower, stay!
Nay, boat and rower fade away.

Again the dim clouds gather o'er
And slowly shape a battlefield,
And, dead or living, wounded sore,
One lies beside a broken shield.
O warrior, canst thou heed or hear?
Nay, for the visions disappear.

Fling down the shining surface bare.
An idle tale it tells to me.
The shadowy form I image there
I trace in earth and air and sea.
Earth, sea and air from pole to pole
The magic mirror of my soul!
—May Kendall in Longman's Magazine.

A VALUABLE VALISE.

Returning from New York city by the E—— railroad a few years ago, I bought of the train boy a copy of a Cincinnati paper, in which I read a long account of the robbery of the City National bank of L——, Ky., and the sudden disappearance of its teller, Harry W. Swope. As usual in such cases, he had been a trusted employee, a member of the church and a society young man. The robbery was a particularly cool one, the gentleman having quietly slipped $90,000 in notes into a valise on the previous Saturday afternoon after bank hours and walked out into the cold world.

That was the last seen of him, and it was not until after the bank opened on Monday morning that any one suspected anything wrong. The affair created an immense sensation. "Society" was shocked, the church scandalized and the bank directors furious. The newspapers printed long stories of the Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde sort of existence the young man had led for a number of years, and numerous friends of the "lately departed" knowingly shook their heads as they told the reporters that they knew something like that was sure to happen soon.

This sensation so interested me that when I reached Cincinnati I scarcely realized the express was, as usual, an hour behind time and had failed to make connection with the train to L——. I should therefore be compelled to take the last train going west that night, which would cause me to stop over night in a one horse town in Indiana that did not contain a comfortable hotel.

I knew Mr. Swope by sight, having come in contact with him on a number of occasions while doing business with the bank of which he was teller. The L—— papers I bought in the Union depot gave further details of the affair and contained also the announcement that the bank directors had offered a reward of $1,000 for Swope's capture and 10 per cent of the cash returned, which would make a total of $10,000 if the rascal was caught before he got rid of his booty.

After eating an unsatisfactory lunch I took a seat in the general waiting room of the depot and ruefully awaited my train. As I did so I noticed a young man approach my seat, and placing his valise on the floor alongside my own, to which it bore a strong resemblance, sit down while he looked cautiously around at the clock on the wall and then at the officials moving about.

How long he sat beside me I don't remember, but after a time he slowly arose and walked over to the telegraph office at the farther end of the room. Before he came back a strong lunged individual in uniform stepped up to me and bawled out the names of the towns which the train about to start was bound for. Hurriedly picking up my valise, I made straight for the gate and was soon aboard my train for the west.

The journey was made with the usual discomfort and monotony. The depot at N—— Y——, Ind., where I had to stop over from 10 p. m. till 5 the next morning, had been rebuilt since my last visit to that town, and remembering too well my hotel experience there a year before I resolved to spend one night in the depot waiting room with a few other passengers who shared my misfortune.

All that night the face of the stranger who had occupied a seat beside me in the Cincinnati depot haunted me. There was something about him that reminded me of Teller Swope. He was just his size and build. His mustache, to be sure, was wanting, but that he should shave off this appendage was to be considered a matter of course. The gold spectacles he wore very much resembled those I had associated with the face of the intellectual looking teller, and I had observed on his fingers a number of rings, jewelry that Mr. Swope was said to be very partial to. As I turned the matter over in my mind the more convinced I felt that I had lost a splendid chance of capturing the thief and securing a $10,000 reward.

When 5 o'clock at last came round, I boarded the train for L——, not in the best of humor, and two hours later arrived at home feeling very blue. After taking a slight breakfast, I went down to the office, where the big robbery was still the talk of the clerks. Each of them had a theory of his own as to where the thief had gone, and when they appealed to me for my opinion I dolefully recounted my experiences of the previous evening. Of course they unanimously agreed with me that I had very foolishly allowed the fugitive teller to slip out of my fingers.

Just before going out to lunch a messenger boy languidly entered the office and handed me a note from my wife. Thinking it was the usual commission to get a yard or two of "goods like the sample inclosed," I thrust it into my pocket and started out to dinner. I had not gone far before I suddenly stopped and took out the envelope the boy had given me, opened it and read it. At first I could not understand what it all meant; then I turned it over and went through it again. It ran as follows:

DEAR GEORGE—Come home at once. In opening your valise to get your soiled linen to send it to the laundry I discovered it packed with bank notes! What does it mean? Is anything wrong? Come home at once.

My first thought was to hasten home, but upon reflection I resolved to step around to the bank and acquaint the officials there of my discovery. I found the president of the bank in his private office engaged with several lynx eyed individuals whom I suspected from their appearance to be, as it turned out they were, detectives.

When I was granted an interview and explained my discovery, it created, very naturally, a sensation. At first the old gentleman was inclined to regard me as a crank, but when I asked him to allow a clerk to accompany me home he seemed to be satisfied I was in earnest. He consented to my proposal, but after a moment's thought he said an escort was unnecessary, thinking doubtless that the handsome reward would be a sufficient inducement to insure the safe delivery of the precious valise.

As I left the bank and turned up the street in the direction of home I was joined by a young man who came running out of the bank after me, hat in hand. He said "the old man" had reconsidered the matter and sent him to accompany me back with the money. This seemed to me to be quite satisfactory, and as the fellow was a very genial young man we immediately fell to discussing the robbery of his bank. He congratulated me on my good fortune and knowingly hinted that "the old gentleman" would treat me cleverly in the way of reward.

I said this young man was a very genial fellow, but somehow I soon began to feel an instinctive distrust in him. I plied him with questions concerning the habits and business methods of the missing teller, but he returned evasive answers. In one or two little things he contradicted himself, and finally, when I unexpectedly asked him how long he had been employed in the bank, he replied, after looking at me in a dazed sort of way, "Oh, about a year or two." At once the thought came to me: What if my "escort" was one of the young men I had seen outside the president's office. Perhaps he had overheard our conversation and had planned this neat little scheme of playing the role of a clerk of the bank sent me for "protection," as he insinuatingly put it. If so, I readily saw that he intended to make an effort to get his hands on the valise and then seize the first opportunity to bid me goodby.

This theory was strengthened when I noted that my "protector" seemed gradually to become very uncommunicative, and the conversation during the rest of the journey referred to passing objects and sights. Try as hard as I could I failed to get anything satisfactory out of him concerning the robbery.

When I reached home, I politely asked the young man to take a seat in the hall while I stepped up stairs to get a glimpse of the treasure. I found my wife at the head of the stairs, very excited. In an adjoining room we examined the valise, and at a rough estimate we placed the amount at about the figure the newspapers said Swope had carried off with him—somewhere about $90,000.

I did not tell my wife of my suspicions of the young man down stairs, but I resolved at once to arm myself in order to be prepared for the worst. It is a well known fact that in Kentucky the sixth commandment has long ago been declared unconstitutional, and I quickly made up my mind that if my bodyguard showed any signs of playing me false I would let him have a dose of cold lead.

Contrary to my expectations the young fellow made no offer to carry the valise as we started on our journey back to the bank. At the end of the short street on which I lived we stopped to take a car. My friend had again become very affable, and as we stood on the corner he offered me a cigar. I took it, thanked him, and placing my valise carefully on the ground between my feet I struck a match to light it. Just as I was in the act of doing so I received a blow from the left that sent me staggering into the middle of the street. At the same moment my "protector" disappeared in the other direction.

"Look here, young man," said a gruff voiced fellow in uniform at my side as he shook me violently, "I thought you told me you were going to take the train west tonight. It has just pulled out, and you're left."

Opening my eyes I looked around the waiting room in a confused way and reached for my valise.

It was nowhere to be found!

My brusque arouser instantly took in the situation, and with a look of intense disgust on his face said as he turned away:

"I guess that studentlike sport who was sitting beside you has taken care of your baggage. He passed me a few moments ago on his way to the train with a couple of valises. Next time you go traveling, young man, you had better take some one along with you to care for you while you sleep."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Canadian Fish and the Tariff.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—Assistant Secretary Hamlin of the treasury yesterday granted a hearing to the representatives of the lake fishing interests. A strong effort is being made to induce the department to reverse its decision that fish caught in Canadian waters by companies having Canadian licenses are dutiable under the McKinley tariff law.

SCHOONER RUN DOWN

By a Steamer Which Continues on Her Way.

NO OFFER OF ASSISTANCE.

Captain and Crew of the Wrecked Vessel Saved.

VINEYARD HAVEN, Mass., Aug. 11.—Schooner Acacia, Golding, from Port Johnson, of and for St. John, with a cargo of 167 tons of coal, when about six miles east-southeast from Chatham, just after midnight, during a light southwest wind and foggy weather, was run into by a large unknown steamer, which struck the Acacia a glancing blow on the starboard bow, carrying away her bowsprit and all head gear, causing her to sink in about 40 minutes.

The captain and crew were picked up about three hours later in their yawl boat by schooner Velma, White, of and from Calais, Me., for Newport, R. I., and landed at this port yesterday. They saved nothing and will be forwarded to Boston.

Heartless Action.

Captain Golding of the Acacia states that the colliding steamer kept on her course, making no effort to offer assistance or make known her identity.

Had the schooner's boat been stove by the collision all hands would most likely have been drowned. The Acacia lies in 10 fathoms of water, with mastheads awash, and is a dangerous obstruction to navigation. The damage to the steamer is unknown.

CHAPTER OF ACCIDENTS

Create a Day of Excitement For People of Haverhill.

HAVERHILL, Mass., Aug. 11.—During yesterday many people had narrow escapes from death. A 2-year-old son of Alexander McAuley secured a two-ounce bottle filled with paregoric and drank the contents. He cannot recover.

Johnny Howard, 6 years old, climbed up the rear wheel on an ice wagon. The driver started up the horses and Johnny fell under the wheels, and the flesh was scraped off one side of his face clear to the bone.

William Sullivan, a stone mason, had two fingers crushed to a pulp.

William Fitzgerald and John McDonald attempted to separate two dogs that were fighting on Harrison street and were badly bitten.

Three children of John McCarthy started to cross the track. Two trains were coming, and the children became confused and laid down in front of the express. Switchman Quill seized a red flag, waved it, the train stopped and the children's lives were saved.

A French girl named Duchesne attempted to wheel her little sister in a baby carriage up the railroad track from the Essex street crossing to the depot. The Portland express came along. Freight Agent Kimball and the crossing tender pulled the child and the baby carriage out of the way, and a fatality was thus averted.

WALKED INTO THE WATER.

Deliberate Suicide of One of Lynn's Most Prominent Citizens.

LYNN, Mass., Aug. 11.—W. G. S. Keene, one of the most prominent shoe manufacturers in this city, committed suicide at Nahant yesterday afternoon. Mr. Keene was apparently in the best of health and humor yesterday forenoon. He had visited the residence of Congressman Lodge, which is now closed. He was seen slowly descending the rocks to the water's edge in front of the summer house. The sight of the water made him hasten, and he deliberately walked out in it over his head.

Mr. Keene's home was one of the best in the city and wanted nothing to add to his comfort. He was worth several hundred thousand dollars and was a public spirited man, taking great interest in all affairs that would benefit the city. He was in the shoe business with his brother, Frank Keene. They owned several buildings in the heart of the city and have been quoted as being immensely wealthy.

The cause of his sudden death is laid to the heat of the day, as it is generally believed that it affected his brain. A story was started that he had committed suicide on account of being financially embarrassed. There appears to be no truth in it. Mr. Keene was a member of the board of trade.

BAY STATE ODD FELLOWS

Nominate Officers and Transact Other Business at Boston.

BOSTON, Aug. 11.—The largest annual session of the grand lodge of Massachusetts, I. O. O. F., ever held assembled yesterday, 490 strong, in the hall at Berkeley and Tremont streets. The session was called to order by Grand Master Price of Cambridge.

Upon recommendation of the committee on election and returns, 135 past grands received the grand lodge and past noble grand degrees. They were also admitted and duly instructed.

The following were placed in nomination for the various offices: For grand master, Louis A. Cook; for deputy grand master, Henry E. Ruggles of Franklin; for grand secretary, Charles D. Cole of Boston; for grand treasurer, Julius L. Clark of West Newton; for grand warden, Austin S. Esty of Somerville, Hon. Charles A. Russell of Gloucester, Henry A. Thomas of Weymouth. Fred Samuels of Lowell, Frank A. Milliken of New Bedford and John W. Palmer of Northampton.

Reports from various officers showed the lodge to be in a flourishing condition.

Hop Yick Lung's Troubles.

BOSTON, Aug. 11.—Hop Yick Lung, the Harrison avenue Chinaman who was arrested for assault with intent to kill William J. Mann, was held in $20,000 for examination on Aug. 17. Mann lies at the city hospital in a precarious condition. He was struck on the head with a stool. It is supposed that Mann and a companion tantalized the Chinaman, and that he excitedly threw the chair at his tormentor.

Sad Ending of a Vacation.

BOSTON, Aug. 11.—John Lantry, 12 years old, and Charles Lintsky, 23 years old, both of this city, were drowned yesterday in the lake at Jeffersonville, N. H., where they were spending their vacations. The body of young Lantry was recovered. His home was on Dale street, Highland district. His father died some months ago. Lintsky was a civil engineer in the office of the city engineer of Boston.

Will Pay In Full.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Aug. 11.—At a meeting of the directors of the suspended Bank of New England Bank Commissioner Lyford stated that a careful examination of the institution had revealed no discrepancies, and that if the assets could be realized upon not only would the depositors and stockholders receive every dollar, but a surplus of at least 10 per cent would remain.

The Hub's Taxes.

BOSTON, Aug. 11.—The tax rate in Boston for 1893 is $12.80 per $1000. This $12.80 is divided up as follows: For county, 75 cents; for state, 92 cents; for city, $11.13. The total tax last year was $12.90. The present year's tax for county and city is the lowest rate since 1876, when it was $11.68. The county and city tax together last year was $12.27, while this year it is $11.88.

Harvest For Money Lenders.

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 11.—A number of local money lenders are buying up bank books for 75 or less per cent of the face value for cash and doing considerable business in that way. The rule put into effect by the local banks preventing the drawing of any deposits on less than 90 days' notice makes it impossible for many to draw cash when they need it.

Discharged Through a Mistake.

LYNN, Mass., Aug. 11.—On Wednesday 300 hands were discharged by the Thomson-Houston company. Yesterday the officials discovered that someone had made this big error. They say that no order was given to cause these men to be discharged, and that they will be called back immediately.

Mangled by a Train.

BOSTON, Aug. 11.—An unknown man was run over and instantly killed in the yard of the Boston and Maine railroad last night. He was apparently under the influence of liquor and was walking on the track when he was run over. His body was shockingly mangled.

Used Revolver and Knife.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Aug. 11.—George Clark of West Epping attempted to murder his wife by shooting her, and failing in that manner he used a knife, but was arrested before accomplishing the terrible crime.

Taxation In Saugus.

SAUGUS, Mass., Aug. 11.—The assessors report that the rate of taxation will be $18.50 on $1000, an increase of $2 over last year. The valuation is $2,883,488 and the number of polls assessed are 1210.

Joe Kelly's Fall.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Aug. 11.—Joseph N. Kelly, 4 years old, fell from a four-story window in the Brooks house on Harrison street, sustaining serious injuries. He will recover.

A Distinguished Visitor.

BEVERLY, Mass., Aug. 11.—Ex-President Harrison is the guest of D. A. Kilham, where Mr. and Mrs. McKee are spending their vacation. He will remain here a week or more.

To Try an Englishman.

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 11.—Bobby Burns, the lightweight pugilist, will sail for Europe Saturday to arrange a match with some prominent pugilist on the other side.

Clothing Caught Fire.

RUTLAND, Vt., Aug. 11.—Mrs. Charles Fuller, wife of a local photographer, was burned to death here. Her clothing caught fire from the explosion of an oil stove.

Brief Mention.

The United States monitor Miantonomah is at Newport torpedo station.

William Makepeace Towle, journalist and literary writer, died at Boston.

Edward Looney, 26 years old, was drowned while bathing at Silira's pond, near Stonington, R. I.

Richard Tufts of Gloucester, Mass., furniture dealer, has filed a voluntary petition in insolvency.

James F. Farrell of New Bedford, Mass., was found dead in bed at St. Charles hotel in Pawtucket, R. I. He died from alcoholism.

Poor Bros. of Salem, Mass., whose tannery was burned several weeks ago, are now building a new plant. There will be 12 buildings in all.

Andrew Moreau, a carpenter, aged 23, fell from the roof of a new building at Fall River, Mass., and struck on a ledge of granite. He will die.

At a fire at Richmond, Vt., a fireman named Burns was struck by a falling timber and so badly injured and burned that it is thought that he cannot recover.

Biggest In the World.

CHESTER, Pa., Aug. 11.—The largest side-wheel steamboat in the world slid off the ways and into the Delaware river yesterday. The yards of the Delaware River Iron Shipbuilding and Engine company were crowded with people attracted by the unusual sight. The officials of the Fall River line, whose fleet the new boat will head, were present. The new boat has not yet been named, but as she is a sister ship to the Puritan, Plymouth, Providence and Pilgrim, she will probably be called the Priscilla.

Lightning's Victims.

NEWTON, Ala., Aug. 11.—F. Mullens and his wife were struck by lightning yesterday. Mr. Mullens was instantly killed and his wife is in a critical condition.

DEMOCRATS OF OHIO

Choose Neal and Taylor to Head Their Ticket.

BAKER WAS SLAUGHTERED.

Neal's Friends Say He Will Bury McKinley.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 11.—For governor, Lawrence T. Neal of Ross county.

For lieutenant governor, William A. Taylor of Franklin county.

For supreme court judge, John W. Sater of Darke county.

For treasurer of state, D. C. Blackburn of Coshocton county.

For attorney general, John P. Bailey of Putnam county.

For member of board of public works, Louis B. Wilhelm of Summit county.

For food and dairy commissioner, Patrick H. McKeown of Hamilton county.

It was a hot day but a cool convention. The hall was filled. It is no work for a politician to throw open his face and let corrugated yells tear holes in the air, consequently the politicians yelled, and they yelled loud, long and often. One delegate from Putnam county, who habitually goes armed with a voice which sounds like the sob of a broken fiddle string, was particulary strong in the noisy part of the proceedings.

The convention, as a whole, was remarkably harmonious, considering the unsettled condition of matters before the meeting convened. There was but he had no trouble in securing a large addition to the number of his friends when once the ballot was decided. Part of this was a rush to get into the band wagon, and part of it was loyalty to the nominee of the party—more of the latter than of the former.

Baker was expected to swing a much heavier vote than he did, and if the Campbell men were really pushing him, and they say they were, they pushed him in the wrong direction. His candidacy was deplorably managed, and it really never had a chance to win after the name of Hamilton county was reached on the first roll call. There was no response to Chairman Barger's call, and he repeated the name several times before a voice from among the Hamilton county delegates called out his name, and then Hamilton county slaughtered him by casting the bulk of its votes for Neal.

It was an easy victory for Neal, and his friends are more than

Hopeful of Success In November.

They say that they will bury McKinley. The action of the platform committee in omitting to take a stand on the silver question is variously commented upon. Members of the committee declare that it was all summarized in the plank binding the convention to support the administration, but the free silver men, who are numerous, are not content. One member of the committee said:

"We did not know what to do. The action of the silver men in Washington on Wednesday threw us on our beams' ends, and we would have been a committee on jackass legislation to map out a policy for Ohio, and then, perhaps, have the Washington fellows do something else."

A Peculiar Case.

OMAHA, Aug. 11.—William Rogers Garner, a telegraph operator, was found dead in bed in his room at the home of Dr. Lavender. When discovered, a man known as Dr. Ward, alias Peyson, was seated on the bed beside the corpse, eating lunch. He was stupefied with liquor, and could give no explanation of Garner's death. It is believed that Ward gave Garner several hypodermic injections of morphine, causing death. Ward was arrested.

In Congress.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—Immediately after the reading of Wednesday's journal Mr. Gorman moved that when the senate adjourn it be till Monday next. The senate then immediately adjourned until Monday at noon. After the reading and approval of Tuesday's journal, Mr. Bailey moved that the house take a recess till 1 o'clock. The motion was carried. Shortly after reconvening the house adjourned for the day.

Didn't Want Checks.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—Pay day came to a sudden stop in the Long Island railroad yard in Long Island City yesterday. The small currency gave out, and the paymaster was forced to suspend while a disappointed crowd of about 400 employes besieged the car and wanted to know what was the matter. The company offered to give them checks, but the men wanted money.

Dealings In Silver.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—Silver continues on the rise in London. According to official advice the price is $0.7625 an ounce. This is 1 cent an ounce above the price paid by the treasury. Of the 357,000 ounces of silver offered Wednesday the treasury bought 322,000 ounces at $0.7515 an ounce.

Burge Won't Fight McAuliffe.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—The proposed international match between Jack McAuliffe and Dick Burge for $5000 a side will not be arranged, owing to the backer of Burge desiring him to arrange a match with Jack Dempsey for $10,000 a side in America.

Meteor In Georgia.

SAVANNAH, Aug. 11.—A large meteor passed over this city last night and struck in the marsh near the Isle of Hop, a suburb of Savannah. This shock was felt in the city and caused great excitement in the section near where it fell.

Austria Becoming Frightened.

VIENNA, Aug. 11.—An official statement issued by the sanitary council of Austria declares that the condition of the country with regard to cholera is very precarious—much more serious than it was in 1892.

Weeding Them Out.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—It is learned that the resignations of a number of principal examiners and first assistant examiners in the patent office have been requested by Commissioner Seymour.

BEGINNING WEDNESDAY and continuing weekly, the LEDGER will present to its readers a column pertaining to the noted places, landmarks and other interesting facts connected with our city which cannot but fail to prove of interest. These articles will be published every Wednesday and will deal with the descriptions of the glass works, salt works, taverns or public houses, first iron forge in America situated at West Quincy and many other topics of general interest. These interesting facts connected with our city are but too little known by the majority of our citizens who do not relish the idea of perusing volumes of history to become acquainted with these facts. The LEDGER then will enable its readers to become better acquainted with our city. Pattee's history for a guide coupled with personal observations will be used to present a picture of the "Granite City" of the past to the view of its inhabitants of today.

BOSTON'S GAIN in valuation the past year was over thirty million dollars. This is over $67 per capita according to the census of 1890. That of Quincy last year did not come quite up to this, but our contemporary thought it awful. The Herald's comment is equally applicable to Quincy. It says, "It is true that the valuation of real estate in the city has been advanced by the assessors, but it has not been marked up higher than values on the 1st of May would warrant, nor is the advance greater than the average for the past four years."

The valuation of the real estate in the Dorchester ward alone is $35,066,600, about three times that of the whole city of Quincy, and the gain was $3,010,700.

AS COUNCILLOR RICE is out with a letter declining to again be a candidate for the position, it will be necessary for the Republicans to look about for an available candidate. Quincy has a gentleman who would fill the bill and do honor to the commonwealth, as he has to the city of Quincy in his three years as the chief executive officer. All hands up for Mayor Fairbanks.

A Good Walker.

Mr. J. Frank Burrill, who resides at 45 Washington street, Quincy, is a very active man for one of his years—having seen nearly the allotted time for man—three score and ten. We met him in the Square this, Friday, morning a few minutes after nine, and he told us he was going to walk to Boston for exercise and health; that he expected to accomplish the journey and return before dinner.

If he succeeds in walking the sixteen miles before one o'clock, he can beat many of the young men who have not seen one-half his years, and we have no doubt he will do it, as he is used to walking ten to twenty miles at a time. We should not want to try the experiment, on so hot a day, for $100.

TODAY'S COURT.

William Rogers of Quincy, for drunkenness, was fined $5.

MURDEROUS ASSAULT.

Three Germans Lay in Wait for Their Victim at West Quincy.

There was a murderous assault at West Quincy Thursday night about 8 o'clock and as a result Frank X. Fruith lies dangerously injured at his home on Willard street, and Louis Buckbower, Charles Schlager and Joseph Hunger his assailants are in jail awaiting the result of his injuries.

The particulars of the assault are as follows: Fruith was coming down a lane, leading into Willard street, on his way home when he was set upon by the three Germans, who were laying in wait for him. They seized him unawares and beat him about the face and body, one of the party striking him a murderous blow over the right temple with a club.

This blow rendered Fruith unconscious in which state he remained until this morning.

After assaulting Fruith the assailants fled.

A sister of the injured man saw the assault and notified the police. Meanwhile John Schatzel had found Fruith and carried him home and summoned a physician.

The girl gave the names of the three men who were arrested later in the evening by Officers Canavan and Bradley and locked up.

They were arraigned in court this morning and held in $300 each until next Wednesday. In default they were committed.

MANET BEACH.

A bombshell of great diameter was exploded at the illumination meeting Thursday evening. A large number of beach people gathered with the expectation of hearing a broadside from some of the Manet Beach orators. They were very much disappointed, however.

One would think we dwelt on the Pacific rather than on the stormy Atlantic. A motion of last meeting was reconsidered, and the retiring executive committee were elected for this season.

Various opinions were expressed, but the general one is that the best course possible has been taken. Please express your satisfaction by putting your hand deep into your pocket when called upon to donate.

Bell Time.

In answer to "Young Yachtsman," who inquires about bell time and watches on board ship, we quote the following from the Yachtsman's Guide:

The twenty-four hours are divided on board ship into seven parts, and the crew is divided into two parts or watches, designated Port and Starboard Watches. Each watch are on duty four hours, except from 4 to 8 P. M., which time is divided into two watches of two hours each, called dog watches, by means of which the watches are changed every day, and each watch gets a turn of eight hours' rest at night. First watch, 8 P. M. to midnight; middle watch, midnight to 4 A. M; morning watch, 4 to 8 A. M; forenoon watch, 8 A. M. to noon; afternoon watch, noon to 4 P. M.; first dog watch, 4 to 6 P. M.; second dog watch, 6 to 8 P. M. In the French service there are no dog watches, but there two watches of 6 hours each.

The bell is struck every half hour to indicate the time:

EXCEPTIONS OVERRULED.

Dr. Buchanan Must Abide by the Verdict Already Rendered.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—Recorder Smythe has denied the motion for a new trial made on behalf of Dr. Buchanan, recently convicted of having poisoned his wife.

The charge against Buchanan was that he killed his wife, Anna B. Buchanan, on April 28, 1892, at 267 West Eleventh street, this city. She had property supposed to be worth about $10,000, gained by keeping a disorderly house in Newark. Buchanan's lawyers tried to upset the verdict because Juror Paradise, as they alleged, was rendered incompetent to arrive at a verdict by reason of illness. In his decision, which covers 46 typewritten pages, the recorder says that there is no good reason for believing that the jury's judgment was unsound, and Buchanan is formally denied a re-trial.

BACK TO GRAY GABLES.

The President Has Cleaned Up All His Most Important Business.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—President Cleveland will leave Washington this afternoon for Buzzard's Bay, Mass., to remain until about Sept. 1. It is likely that he will be accompanied by Secretary Lamont, who is anxious to join his family at Sorrento, Me. Since the meeting of congress on Monday last, Mr. Cleveland has disposed of a huge amount of work, and he feels that there is nothing to keep him in Washington. Congress is not expected to do anything for some time, and matters for congressional consideration can be prepared by the president at Gray Gables.

Mr. Cleveland spent yesterday at his country seat and managed to get rid of a large amount of business. He disposed of all applications for pardons laid before him, and signed his name to the hundreds of certificates nominating men who were appointed during the congressional recess to the offices they are now filling.

The recess appointments are the only ones the president will send to the senate before his departure. In accordance with his rule, Mr. Cleveland has directed that the time of his departure from Washington shall not be made public.

YELLOW JACK.

Extra Precautions at New Orleans For Warding Off the Disease.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 11. — The state board of health met here to act on the threatened yellow fever epidemic at Pensacola. After a full discussion of the subject, it was determined to take every precaution against the introduction of the disease here, short of absolute quarantine.

Every through train on the Louisville and Nashville road carried many out of Pensacola. All of them were caught about 20 miles from this city and detained. Among them were the members of the New Orleans baseball club, who left Pensacola in a great fright. They will be detained five days, and hereafter all passengers from Pensacola will be detained the same length of time unless they have health certificates. Those who have certificates will be kept two days at an isolated point from the city.

The Argentine Disturbances.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—A dispatch from Buenos Ayres says the Radicals have entered La Plata. Minister De Valle has ordered the contending factions to disarm. OUR GRANITE BUSINESS.

The Quincy Stock the Best and Should have a Glorious Future.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

I have read with great interest the letter in your paper of the 9th, signed "A Business Man," on the great granite industry of our city, which is very dull at present. And it behoves every lover of our city and our homes, to look for the cause. The writer in common with many others thinks the chief trouble is the great lack of intelligent pushing of Quincy granite on the market. We have depended on the jobber for this, almost wholly for the last six or eight years. They have their offices in Boston, New York and other cities, and they have no interest in Quincy or her granite, but in the cheaper granite of other places that will yield them a greater profit. Only selling Quincy granite when they could not talk a customer over to the cheaper article. When they have sold from six to ten monuments in this way, they send out the whole batch to twenty or thirty different firms for prices and should one manufacturer make a mistake and leave off some item, he will get that order. Some one else may make an error on the next, and he will get that. Should all the figures be high on some of the jobs they hold them over and send them out with the next batch. In this way our manufacturers have been bled, and they have placed half of their orders below cost.

What has our Quincy manufacturers done to offset this? Simply try to manufacture cheaper. And how could this be done with labor at a set price and the best stock steadfast as the hills? All that is left is to use apprentice help and poor granite, and work from 12 to 16 hours per day himself in order to gain the desired end. Then in order to make their poor granite pass muster, he has called to his aid the oil can, the product of the ink factory and every known devise in order to make the poorest granite look better than the best, long enough for him to get his pay. Now this is all wrong and against all business principles and all honor and uprightness.

But many manufacturers are found who will say "what can we do about it?" If we do not manufacture cheap, Barre will get all the work, and we cannot afford that. Now many who visited Barre a week ago cannot help seeing we are playing a losing game. That Barre can quarry and handle stone for fifty per cent. of what Quincy can.

Others say: "We might as well give up; we must lose." The writer belongs to neither class, but believes that Quincy and Quincy granite has a glorious future; that the remedy is in our own hands, and the sooner it is applied the better for every manufacturer, every storekeeper, every trader and capitalist that has the good of our city at heart. They should, one and all, put their shoulders to the load, their brains to the subject, and devise a means of regaining our former prestige,—the best granite in the world. There is a market for Barre granite with its cheap prices, as there is a market for calico in the dry goods world; and there is also a market for Quincy granite, as there is for the silk goods on the shopkeeper's counters. Yet there is no competition between these fabrics; no animosity between the manufacturers of them. Then, why in the name of common sense should there be between these granites? They are the two greatest monumental granites of the world.

What Quincy must do, is to take this business from the jobber, that has no interest in us only so far as he can make his big profits. We must elevate the quality of our products, send out choice designs to show Quincy granite at its best. Intelligent, smart, energetic salesmen must be sent out over the country, who will be so imbued with their commission, that they will talk Quincy granite from early morn to late at night. And in five years we will double our product. The people want the best, and are willing to pay for it, and the reason half the white granite is sold is by taking the customer to a cemetery and show them a Quincy monument made of the poor trash of granite and keeping them from looking at the best. Now Quincy must show them she has the best, and we must see to it that only the best is used. But it is a great task. How can it be accomplished? Which is the best way? Will some one tell? Yours, ALPHIA.

WEYMOUTH.

Rev. B. F. Eaton, the retiring pastor of the Universalist church, was given a reception Thursday evening by his parishioners at North Weymouth. The evening was spent in a social manner, an interesting entertainment being given by local talent, at the close of which a banquet was served. During the evening's festivities, Mr. Elias S. Beals presented Mr. Eaton with a volume of "Stoddard's Glimpses of the World." Mr. Eaton thanked them heartily for their pleasing gift and expressed his regret of his leave taking.

Sunday Observance.

The date of the next mass meeting under the auspices of the Young People's Societies of Christian Endeavor is in doubt. It will either be on Wednesday evening next or on the following Sunday evening. See Monday's DAILY LEDGER for announcement.

The principal speaker will be Rev. Wilbur F. Crafts, the National chairman of the World's Fair Sabbath-closing committee, and honorary secretary of the International law and order league. His theme will be: "National, Local and Personal Sabbath Reform."

In a recent lecture on "The Sabbath for Man," the reverend gentleman said:

"Sabbath laws are consistent with liberty in that they are laws for the prevention of cruelty to animals, in that they are laws of health, in that they are laws for increasing the National wealth, in that they are laws for harmonizing the relations of capital and labor, in that they are laws for the protection of the home, in that they are laws for the prevention of crime, in that they are laws for the protection of one of the chief historic institutions of the Nation, in that they are, in short, laws of National self-preservation."

Main's Grand Circus.

Walter L. Main's grand railroad show is coming to Quincy on Friday, Aug. 25, and will appear on the grounds at South Quincy. Ed. Knupp, the popular agent of this circus, called at our office this morning to make arrangements for advertising this great circus. He has with him twenty bill posters, who will post all through this vicinity the flaming bills which will announce to all passers by that Main's big R. R. show is coming to this city to give one of the grandest and best shows on earth.

John A. Pope Dead.

The Martha's Vineyard Herald reports the death of a former resident of Atlantic in its issue of Saturday. It says,

Our community was saddened yesterday morning at the announcement of the death of Mr. John A. Pope from heart disease. Mr. Pope has been suffering for some years, and while his death was expected, it nevertheless comes as a sudden blow to his bereaved family and many friends. His loss as a business man will also be felt here, where his active interest in bringing people to invest in real estate has done much for the progress and wealth of the village. The family have the warmest sympathy of the entire community. The funeral will take place from his late residence on Sunday.

Some Day.

Some day I shall be dead—
Under the grass and close to my head
A stone with name and date of my death
May withstand old Time's corroding breath,
But I shall be nothing but dust.

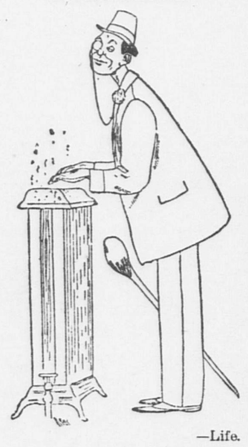

Some day I shall be dead—
Lie like a stone with the life all fled—
I, in whose veins health's rich red blood
Rushes and leaps like an unchecked flood;
To think of me lying there dead!

Some day I shall be dead,
And some fair woman my grandson has wed
Will say, as she holds up jewel or lace
To the wondering eyes in her baby's face,
"Great-grandmother once wore this."

Some day I shall be dead—
The last song sung and the last prayer said,
The laughter hushed and the tears all dried,
And I, whatever of woe may betide,
I shall be safe and dead.

The Modish Bedroom.

The craze for chamber sets of white enamel is slightly declining. Young ladies' rooms and guests' rooms are still fitted up in white and gold and in creamy white. The rooms for more general use are furnished in natural woods, like birch, maple or oak. Of these the least expensive and most durable is natural oak. Birch is also durable wood, but maple, though a light, attractive wood, is not very durable.—Boston Courier.

Reaction Against the Train.

The reaction from the trains of a year ago has been sharp and decided. Some very elegant frocks are to be seen which do not touch the ground by an inch or so. This is desirable to understand, for light summer dresses cut out shamefully if worn in a demitrain, and as long as it is permissible it is certainly advisable for all economic souls to follow this sensible style.—Exchange.

Those Wash White Frocks.

"I don't think I fancy what you ladies call 'wash white' frocks," said a well known clergyman the other day. "They have such an after-the-picnic look to me." The comparison was apt, though it did come from masculinity. They do. —Philadelpbia Press.

DOGGED SILVER MEN

Said to Be Determined to Force a Compromise.

THE LATEST PROPOSITION

May Be Antagonized by the Silverites.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—The senate committee on finance held its first meeting yesterday. Every member was present. After a brief discussion, Chairman Voorhees informed the Republican members that a majority of the members of the committee were not ready to present any measure, nor did they wish to discuss the matter. He intimated that they would probably be ready to lay before the committee a proposition at the meeting on Tuesday next. It is expected that the Democratic members are engaged in mapping out a plan that will lead to a measure relating to silver and other financial legislation upon which their party in the senate can unite.

In order that the time might not be altogether wasted, however, the committee took up and discussed the proposition to allow the national banks to issue circulation to the full face value of the bonds deposited in the treasury, instead of limiting to 90 per cent of the value of the bonds, as at present. It was urged that the result of this legislation would be more immediately beneficial than any other that had been suggested, as it would add a large sum to the money in circulation as quickly as the notes could be printed.

Threatened by Amendments.

It was made clear that for the first time in many years there is a possibility of legislation favorable to national banks in the line indicated, for, although no vote was taken, the discussion appeared to indicate a leaning toward the measure by a majority of the committee. The present danger, however, lies in an attempt to cumber the bill with amendments that will involve the whole silver question and prevent a disposition of the measure on its own merits.

In the Democratic senatorial caucuses the diverse opinion expressed gave little encouragement that the recommendations contained in the president's message will receive the support of that body. Some say that there are not more than 12 or 15 Democratic senators who favor the unconditional repeal of the silver purchasing act.

Silverites Obstinate.

Senators Voorhees, Turpie, Blackburn, Vest and Cockrell, who have been counted as favoring the administration policy, informed their colleagues in the caucus that they would not vote for the unconditional repeal of the existing purchasing law. They will insist that there must be compensative legislation coupled with the repealing clause. This announcement astonished those of the senators who are strongly supporting the president's policy.

There were many Democratic representatives in the silverites' caucus who were not in favor of free coinage, but who believe in bimetallism. These will vote for the repeal of the purchase of silver, but insist upon some satisfactory additional legislation.

It has been ascertained that a large number of Democrats of the south and west will insist upon the repeal act being coupled with specific recognition of silver. Senators Allison, Sherman, Hoar and Hawley in the senate, and Representatives Reed, Burrows and Henderson, in speaking of the situation yesterday, remarked that the prospect of agreeing upon any legislation on a line with the president's recommendation is not very promising.

A New Proposition.

After the adjournment of the senate finance committee the Democratic and Republican members came together and a new proposition was submitted, which was virtually agreed to by all the members of the committee. It provides for the unconditional repeal of the Sherman act and authorizes the secretary to issue at once $50,000,000 of legal tender notes.

The latter, in the judgment of members of the committee, will give the needed relief to the present stringency in the money market and tend largely to restore confidence throughout the country. Of course it is not known as yet how this proposition will be received by the silverites. If they should antagonize it, its passage will be delayed for a while. Senators Sherman, Hoar, Lodge, Allison and others on the Republican side will support it.

Definite Action.

The free silver Democrats have submitted to the Democrats of the house in caucus their proposition. They agree to close debate and come to vote on all propositions in three weeks from the beginning of the debate and agree to desist from filibustering and abide by the result if they shall be outvoted. This proposition is based on the confident belief of the free silver men that they have a majority in the house. The anti-silver men claim that they have the majority. One of the factions is, of course, mistaken.

How Populists Stand.

George F. Washburn, chairman of the eastern division national committee of the People's party, stated to a reporter last night that a break in the silver forces had occurred. The cause of the trouble was that some of the silver producers of the west are advocating a compromise measure on a ratio of 20 to 1, which the Populists claim is an abandonment of principle for selfish ends. Mr. Washburn said:

"Our fight is for the free and unlimited coinage of silver and gold on a ratio of 16 to 1, because it is the money of the contract on which our bonds were issued, and any change of ratio renders the payment of these bonds in gold alone. We are fighting for a larger volume of circulation, not for a large dollar. Twenty to one would benefit the silver producers alone and would not help the farmers or wage earners by increasing the price of products which a ratio of 16 to 1 would do, hence we must part company with the silver men who favor the change. The Populists will stand for 16 to 1 to the end, believing that the repeal of the Sherman act is preferable to a change of ratio. A canvass of Populist and silverite members will be made and a list prepared of those who will pledge themselves to unalterably oppore any increase in the ratio of coinage."

All Quiet at Samoa.

AUCKLAND, N. Z., Aug. 11.—According to the latest advices from Apia order has been completely restored in Samoa.

LEADERS AND RULERS.

How Some Common Names and Titles Came to Be Applied.

There are heaps of history in titles. For instance, take that of the "prince of Wales." This title is always given to the eldest son of the ruler reigning over England, and it came in this way:

Wales is now part of the kingdom of Great Britain, as Ireland and Scotland are. But once for a long time Wales was a separate kingdom. At last the English conquered it, and then after that there were always plots and rebellions among the Welsh people. By and by an English king went with his queen into Wales to see if the Welsh were ill treated, and if they were to try to make things easier and pleasanter for them. The Welsh nobles and leaders all came together to meet their English king and to complain to him.

But the king gave them no chance to speak. He rose and told them he had heard they wanted a prince of their own, and that he meant to give them one—a born Welshman and speaking no other language.

Then, as the Welsh joyfully cheered as loud as they could, he fetched out his baby son, born the night before in the Welsh castle, and of course the baby could "speak no other language," as he was not able to speak at all. Ever since the eldest son of the English royal family has been called the "prince of Wales." That ruler deserved his own title "king," for "king" is a word that comes from "koenig," which means a "wise" or "knowing man." I suppose the first rulers—the heads or kings of small tribes—came to be so by "knowing more," by being "wiser," than the other men of the tribe.

"Czar" and "kaiser" both came from the Latin word "cæsar," the title of the great conquering Roman rulers, whose only law was their own will.

The czar of Russia and the young Kaiser William of Germany have much more power over their subjects than the queen of England has over the people of England. "Sultan" is another such title, and it comes from an Arabic word, which means "absolute lord."

Grover Cleveland's title, "president," means one appointed to sit before or over others. It comes from the two Latin words "præ," which means "before," and "sideo," which means "to sit." The title shows that the president's business is to sit before or above the lawmakers and carry out and execute the laws they frame. This is why the president is sometimes called the "chief executive."

"Captain" means "head man." It comes from the word "caput," which means "the head." "Colonel" comes from the same Latin root word as "column," and the title no doubt rose from the regimental practice of marching or attacking in column, with their commander at the head.

As to the two titles "democrat" and "republican," when a small boy hears them he generally thinks of one or the other of those political parties as the people who are not of his father's way of thinking. It will do him no harm to know exactly what each of these party titles really means.

"Democrat" comes from the Greek word "demos," which means "the people," and from "kratos," which means "power." So a "democrat" is one who believes in the power or sovereignty of the people, each acting as nearly as may be for himself.

"Republican" comes from the Latin words "res publica," which mean "for the common good."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Self Medication as a Science.

Imagination has too much to do with a man's practice on himself. One who reads the little textbook on physiology in the schools will immediately discern in every rumble of his intestines the kind of action the gastric juices are taking on the food that has gone into the stomach, and he soon becomes, if he pushes his investigation further, a monomaniac on hygiene. It is true that a man or woman who has arrived at the age of 40 years ought to be able to decide at a glance the kind of food suited best to their digestive organs, and experience ought to teach them never to touch any food that disagrees with them. This is true also of drinking. When a man is 40 years of age, he ought to understand himself sufficiently to guard against all imprudences in either eating or drinking or working, but that is about all he ought to know about it. He expects to be employed as an expert on others in his own line of study, and he ought to be willing to reciprocate by employing a physician when he is sick. —Austin Statesman.

A Large Cross In an English Church.

The largest cross in any church in this country is the "Great Rood," which the Duke of Newcastle presented to the Church of St. Albans, Holborn. It is an enormous crucifix, the cross of which is over 25 feet in height, and hangs suspended from the chancel arch. The cross itself is colored dead olive green, and the arms have terminals of flower-de-luce and Tudor roses. The sacred figure is painted and gilt, while on either side stand presentments of St. John the Divine and the Virgin as "the Mater Dolorosa." The idea of the work has been chiefly borrowed from the rood crosses to be seen still at St. Peter's, Louvain, and at Oplinter in Brabant.—London Tit-Bits.

In Kentucky Jurors Must Be Able to Read.

Circuit Judge Green in a murder trial at Williamstown decided that not being able to read disqualified a person from sitting on a jury. It is the first time the question has been raised we believe. Section 225 of the criminal code provides: "The court shall, on motion of either party, and before argument to the jury, instruct the jury on the law applicable to the case, which shall always be given in writing." Congressman Dickerson made the point that each juryman should be able to read the instructions himself, and if he could not do this he was disqualified. The judge sustained the objection.—Greenup (Ky.) Gazette.

Rights of Bicycle Riders.

When the bicycle first made its appearance upon our highways, it was natural, we suppose, for drivers of horses who were themselves put to fright and danger by the fright of their horses to bear for the time being no good will for the novel vehicle, but now that horses pretty generally have become accustomed to the noiseless wheel there would appear to be no longer any reason why drivers should persecute riders of the wheel. But there are always a few cross grained people who never revise their opinions and never forget their spite.

A few weeks ago one of these ill bred fellows followed a trio of wheelmen riding in the suburbs of Newark, drove them off the road and otherwise maltreated them, for which he has been arrested and held to bail to answer at the county court. And now we notice that two suits have been brought in the supreme court for damages—one against a person who carelessly left some plank in the roadway opposite his premises, against which a wheelman collided in the dark and was badly injured, and another by a gentleman who while riding on the streets of Bloomfield was run down by a vehicle and seriously injured. In both these cases damages were laid at $5,000, and the suits are brought as well to test the rights of the bicycle rider to the common use of the highway as to redress their own private injuries.

These are said to be the first bicycle cases ever begun in the supreme court of our state, and their decision will probably mark a new era in the history of this remarkable invention.—Monmouth (N. J.) Democrat.

Fluctuations In the Honey Crop.

This has not been a good year for the beekeepers, as there has not been half a crop of honey. There is a great difference in seasons, so far as honey making is concerned. Though flowers come in about the same profusion each year, they do not contain the same amount of honey. Some years they seemed filled with the sweet nectar, and the bees make frequent excursions and always return heavily laden, and other years the busy little workers scour the country far and wide and gather little honey. It has been two or three years since there was a large crop of the product, but when there is beekeepers make plenty of money. In a good year an average season's work for a stand of bees is 200 pounds of honey, though a particularly good stand will sometimes gather 500 pounds. The product sells from $90 to $140 a ton, so that on a good year a person with 100 stands of bees would make from $900 to $1,400. If every season was a good one, a person could not find an "odd job" that would reward his spare time any better than keeping bees.—Pomona (Cal.) Progress.

Benjamin Dey's Silver Star Found.

A relic of the war was found recently by Mr. George W. Worley on his farm southwest of Marietta, near Cheatham hill, where there was a terrific battle fought during the late war. It is a bright silver star, as large as a silver dollar. The following inscription in plain letters is on it, "Benjamin Dey, Company C, 134th Regiment, N. Y. V." In the center, encircling "Company C," is a crescent. The star had a catchpin, showing that it was worn on the lapel of the coat or vest. Mr. Worley discovered it while plowing. It is not in the least corroded and wears a bright polish. Now the question is: Where is Benjamin Dey? Is he dead or living? Where in New York do his people live? If they would like to communicate with Mr. Worley, a letter addressed care of the Marietta Journal will reach him.—Atlanta Constitution.

Still the White Warships.

There will be no change in the color of our naval vessels after all, and they will continue to plow "the dark and deep blue ocean" in their pristine white beauty. An order has been issued by the navy department prescribing that hulls of all iron and steel vessels of the navy outside, above the load water line, and the bulwarks inside shall be painted white. Regulations are prescribed as to the kind and character of paints and oils to be used, so as to insure uniformity. A light straw color is now the regulation color for the masts, bowsprits, doublings, smokestacks and yards. A slab, painted to match the standard color, will be prepared at the New York navy yard and furnished to each navy yard and station and to each vessel in commission. — Washington Star.

An Electric Gun.

Turpin, the inventor of melinite, has submitted to the French war office an electric gun alleged to be capable of discharging 25,000 projectiles in five minutes and to have a range of several miles. The apparatus is comparatively light in weight, so that it can be drawn by two horses and worked by four men. The projectiles are small shells charged with a secret chemical preparation, spreading death for 60 yards around. The English government is said to be negotiating for the purchase of the invention, though skeptical of its value.—Electricity.

How Much for a Hammock.

You'll wonder when we tell you,—A genuine Mexican, 69c., others at any price. HENRY L. KINCAIDE & Co.

—An inquiring Frenchman has set about studing the history of the corset from the earliest time it was used as a sheath for the female form divine. He has pictures, too, which are rather flattering as indicating the advance made from certain early monstrosities. For example, unreformed as is our present corset, it is a fairy web compared to one dating from the middle ages. This was a work of art in its way. It was of wrought iron, and would have done credit to the greatest Flemish metal workers.

MILLS STARTING UP.

The Business Situation Improving In Massachusetts.

PAPER COMPANIES BUSY.

Cheering Reports From Many Manufacturing Towns.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Aug. 12.—The business situation in western Massachusetts has been magnified to represent a depressed condition of things which does not exist.

It is ascertained upon the best of authority that the majority of industrial shutdowns in this region are due, not to hard times, but to needed repairs in factories and about their premises which have been and are being made. Another cause for shutting down is due to the lack of water in the stream to turn the mill wheels.

The city of Holyoke, with its 50 big paper mills, is paralyzed for water. The works of the Overman Wheel company of Chicopee Falls, which certain newspapers said stopped work on account of alleged monetary stringency, resumed work this week, and President Overman says that the mill did not shut down on account of reported hard times, but that it shut down because the summer is always the dull season. He thought this the case with other factories.

The industries in Springfield, which have been idle for a short time, have made their repairs, and are one by one daily

Starting Up Their Machinery.

In Holyoke, the manufacturing cent of this part of the state, where busin has been reported to be so unprecedented depressed, the prospects are good. T Gill Paper company states that the pre ent monetary troubles have nothing to do with its trade, and that the factory has run and will run on full time.

The Powers Paper company is not going to shut down, but will run on full time. The Wauregan Paper company started yesterday on full time, having been shut down for repairs.

Hon. William Whiting says that his No. 2 mill is running full time, and proposes to start up No. 1 next week on full time. He thinks the reported business depression is getting to be a fairy tale to scare the country.

The Parsons Paper company is running and does not expect to shut down. The Linden Paper company is running on full time. The Merrick Thread company is hustling things in spite of the Alleged Business Stagnation.

It has encountered some difficulty in getting cash to pay its help, but that is because small money has not been in circulation, and if it shuts down it won't be owing to a lack of business.

The Crocker Manufacturing company is running on full time, and does not expect to be obliged to stop its power. The Chemical Paper company says it is well fixed. The Coburn Trolley Track company is having plenty of work and running 10 hours daily. The Chadwick Plush company is making things hum, and will not stop unless the "calamity" gets into the gearing and clogs their wheels.

The country towns about here have got a taste of the business scare, but no depression is anywhere manifested.

Looks Brighter at New Bedford.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Aug. 12.—The Wamsutta mills will start up Monday in accordance with their plan to run a week on and a week off, which was announced when the mills were closed last week. The week's idleness has resulted in a curtailment of 500,000 yards of cloth in these mills alone, and has eased up on the banks to the extent of $20,000, which would have been demanded in currency for the pay of the help. In nearly all the mills in town, with the exception of the Potomska mills, work will be gradually resumed, beginning Monday.

A Brighter Prospect.

PALMER, Mass., Aug. 12.—The chances are that the business depression which has been so keenly felt in the manufacturing towns of eastern Hampden will be alleviated about Sept. 1. The large cotton mills will again commence operation, and the manufacture of straw hats, which is an important factor in the prosperity of this section, will be resumed. It is hoped that the carpet mill and woolen industries will feel the quickening impulse of a revival of trade.

Can't Get Currency.

NORTH ADAMS, Mass., Aug. 12.—The Arnold print works, the largest mills in this town, together with the Beaver and Eclipse mills, the Williamstown Manufacturing company, and the North Pownal Manufacturing company, at North Pownal Vt., mills which made cloth for the Arnold print works, will shut down tonight. The shutdown is due to the inability to obtain currency.

Wool Sorters Made Happy.

NORTH ADAMS, Mass., Aug. 12.—The wool sorting department of the Blackinton woolen company will be started again Monday. Orders are coming in, and it is hoped the whole mill will soon be running. The difficulties of the old Blackinton company are being rapidly settled satisfactorily to the creditors.

Will Run Another Week.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Aug. 12.—The mills of Congressman Moses L. Stevens & Sons at North Andover, Andover and Haverhill will shut down as soon as the orders on hand are completed, which will require over a week's more work.

Will Run Every Other Week.

AMESBURY, Mass., Aug. 12.—Orders have been received at the Hamilton mills to run only every other week until further notice, closing Saturday for the next week.

DYING OF CONSUMPTION.

Walter Douglass Blames a Prison Warden For His Sad Condition.

NORWICH, Conn., Aug. 12.—Walter H. Douglass, just released from the Wethersfield state prison, where he was committed in September, 1892, is in this city in the last stages of consumption. He was robust and weighed 200 pounds when committed. He alleges his condition is due to abuse of him by Deputy Warden Bainsden. He shows scars upon his body, claimed to have been made by a loaded cane Bainsden always carried. He is in the care of City Missionary Swan, and will be sent to his home in Massachusetts today.

"Soon after Warden Chamberlain was suspended," he said, "and while Bainsden was in control, while I was at work in the shoe shop, a three-quarter inch wire brad was jammed into the palm of my hand by the machine I was at work on. I asked the deputy if I could cease for that day. 'Step out here into the hall,' he responded.

"As I reached the door I turned to show him the wound, and down came his cane on my head and shoulders. Knocked almost senseless by the blow, I fell prostrate to the floor and was dragged to a dungeon. I spent over three days in the reeking, damp hole, and then my hand had swelled to such proportions that the physicians ordered me to the hospital."

TEST THAT DIDN'T TEST.

A Lynn Milkman Shows a Queer Result of an Analysis.

LYNN, Mass., Aug. 12.—J. L. Swan, one of the unfortunate milk dealers who was arrested two weeks ago for selling adulterated milk, had a queer test made. A quart of milk was put into four small bottles in the presence of Dr. Sherman Wing, Charles Roberts and another. The bottles were marked A, B, C and D. They were sent to W. F. Craig, Boston, to be analyzed. Mr. Swan shows the following analyses in reply:

	Per cent. Solid.	Fat.
A	12.80	2.74
B	14.32	4.46
C	13.02	3.03
D	13.06	3.18

Average, 13.30 per cent.

The milkmen will use this test as testimony in their suit against the city to recover money paid to the board of health for analyses at $20 each test.

Crabs In Pews Don't Count.

EAST NORTHFIELD, Mass., Aug. 12.—The theme of all meetings yesterday was the "Holy Spirit," whose work and personality always held such a prominent place in Northfield theology. D. L. Moody gave one of his rousing practical talks. He said: "Put a holy man in the pulpit and a lot of crabs in the pews, and no good will result."

Increase of Forty Cents.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Aug. 12.—Cambridge assessors have fixed the tax rate for the year at $16.40 on $1000. This is 40 cents in excess of last year's rate. This increase is largely due to the increase of the state, county and sewer taxes, amounting to $79,416.88. The increase of polls is about 450.

Gala Day at Machias.

MACHIAS, Me., Aug. 12.—This town yesterday celebrated her historic battle of June 12, 1775, by a grand reception to the officers of the gunboat Machias and the gift to the vessel of a silver punch bowl. The valor of her heroes was recited in eloquent words at a banquet.

Missing Ten Days.

BIDDEFORD, Me., Aug. 12.—Gardner R. Pinkham, confectioner at Cape Porpoise, has been missing 10 days. He left home with his gun and said he was going to the woods in search of game. Suicide is feared. He was unmarried.

Brief Mention.

Edward Burke of Pittsfield, Mass., died from the result of drinking ice water while overheated.

Mabel Bemis, 16 years old, of Fairfield, Mass., was drowned in the Westfield river while bathing.

Fred Libby, aged 6, was killed at the Deering (Me.) poor farm, a heavy cart body falling on him.

Forest fires are raging on East mountain, at Great Barrington, Mass., and much damage is being done.

Richard Schofield, a New Bedford (Mass.) weaver, unsuccessfully attempted to end his life by shooting himself.

William Norton, aged 70, was struck by a train at Portsmouth, N. H., hurled 25 feet into the air and seriously injured.

Mrs. Cora Hayes of Saco, Me., attempted suicide by jumping into the river, but was rescued. Domestic trouble was the cause of her act.

While bathing in Cushman's mill pond at North Adams, Mass., Gilbert Fuller, aged 14, struck his head upon a rock and was drowned.

The 18-year-old daughter of C. D. Baker of Hartford, aged 52, is about to become a mother, and charges her father with incestuous intercourse.

At Providence Margaret Genge and Rosie Brown were bound over to the higher court for concealing the death of a colored baby found in Benedict pond.

William Lipman, who murderously assaulted and robbed Jeweler Leopold Goldstein at Providence, pleaded guilty, and was held for trial without bail.

The annual muster of the Vermont militia begins at Rutland Wednesday. The camp will be known as Camp Governor Fuller. Governor Fuller will review the troops next Friday.

George H. Wells, formerly superintendent of the State street railway of New Haven, and until two years ago a leading business man of that city, has disappeared and left numerous creditors in the lurch.

Church, Buckingham and Howard, the boys arrested for stealing boats and pillaging along the sound, in the city court at New Haven, were each fined $50 and costs and sentenced to three months in jail. The boys laughed.

Print Works in Lowell to Start Up.

LOWELL, Mass., Aug. 12.—The Menical print works, in which hundreds of operatives find employment, will resume work Monday morning.

Necessary Repairs Completed.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Aug. 12.—The Merrimac paper mill, that has been shut down for the past week for repairs, will start up Monday.

A DECISION REACHED

Final Vote on Repeal Will Be Taken Aug. 28.

ANOTHER RELIEF MEASURE

Which Would Give a Great Volume of Currency.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—The house found it difficult to understand the proposition relative to silver which was submitted to it by the Democrats. The Republicans insisted that they shall have the right to control their time, and that the Democrats shall not be permitted to control the time on both sides of the question.

Mr. Reed insisted that some time should be given for debate. He said: "Had the proposition been simply to repeal the purchase clause of the Sherman act, or not to repeal it, I should see the propriety of the house coming at once to a vote, but now if the previous question is ordered we are silenced."

The speaker ruled that if the previous question should be ordered there would be no debate in the absence of an agreement and the absence of rules.

The Bland resolution was finally adopted by the house—yeas, 217; nays, 100. The 14-day debate begun at 1 p. m., Isadore Raynor of Maryland, a gold monometalist, opening the debate on the side of repeal.

Final Vote Aug. 28.

Under the order of the house the final vote will be taken upon the several propositions relating to silver on Monday, Aug. 28, two weeks from next Monday. As there will be at least six roll calls, requiring each about one hour, the final vote cannot be reached until night, and possibly it may be necessary to continue the legislative day of Aug. 28 into the calendar day of Tuesday, Aug. 29.

What the final vote will be will, undoubtedly, continue a matter of speculation until the announcement of the result shall be made. Some of the friends of repeal are very hopeful that the bill for the naked repeal of the silver purchase clause will pass the house by a good majority.

The rules of the last house will control the debate and votes upon the silver bill. The success of this movement relieves the speaker of the necessity and embarrassment of now appointing a coinage committee, and prevents the necessity of a struggle over rules prior to action upon the bill.

The Latest Proposition.

There exists a more hopeful feeling that some solution of the silver complications and the financial question will be reached very soon in the senate. The Democratic members of the finance committee are at work upon a measure which they expect to have ready on Monday and will then submit to the general committee at Tuesday's meeting. It provides, as previously announced, for the repeal of the Sherman act, and coupled with that is authority to the secretary of the treasury to issue $50,000,000 of treasury notes.

There are other provisions under discussion, among them one authorizing the national banks to issue currency up to the par value of their United States bonds held in the treasury as security against their circulation. The latter proposition is strongly urged by Senators Sherman, Allison and other Republican members of the committee.

Some opposition has been manifested against this among a few of the Democratic senators, who are opposed to national banks and would prefer to repeal the 10 per cent tax on state banks rather than to give the national banks any additional privileges. As this proposition is intended in a measure to relieve the present condition of affairs and the stringency in the money market, the Democrats may withdraw their opposition.

Silverites May Fight It.

The Republican members, including Senators Sherman, Hoar, Lodge, Hawley and others, will support this measure, provided there is no offensive legislation added to what has been stated. The attitude of the silverites, Teller, Stewart and Walcott, and others from the silver states, towards this proposition is not fully known, but it is expected that they will antagonize it, as there is no recognition of silver.

The committee is disposed to leave out all legislation on the silver question in this bill, as it expects this subject to be fully covered in a separate bill from the house. The measure which the senate is preparing is designed for immediate relief and the restoration of confidence in business and monetary circles.

Pence's Debut.

Representative Lafe Pence of Colorado, to whom was accorded the honor of opening the debate on the silver bill in behalf of the Populist members of the house, created the first sensation of the session. The scene while he was talking was an intensified repetition of that which marked the famous debut of Representative Bryan of Nebraska in the Fifty-second congress. Mr. Pence was more fortunate than Mr. Bryan in that he was enabled by the exigencies of the case to focus himself through the members of the house in the eyes of the country on the fifth day of his service as a congressman, and in this respect stands unique in recent congressional history. No other man has so succeeded in impressing himself upon the favorable consideration of his associates at such an early period of his membership.

Will Not Give In to Russia.

LONDON, Aug. 12.—Austria, replying to Russia, offers a commercial treaty comprising the most favorite nation clause, but will not concede to Russia the special grain advantages allowed to Servia and Italy.

A North Carolina Tragedy.

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C., Aug. 12.—E. J. Fuller, a member of one of the leading families in this section, shot and killed B. C. Parker, a clothing merchant. Fuller claims to have shot in self defense.

Another Postponement.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 12.—The further hearing of the trial of Actor Curtis for the murder of Police Officer Grant has been postponed until next Monday.

TELEPHONE, 213-3 QUINCY.

NORFOLK COUNTY has probably the richest town in the United States. The valuation of Brookline this year is $56,198,6000, over three times that of the city of Quincy. The personal estate alone, $16,269,700, is equal to that of our entire valuation. The increase in total valuation is $3,172,400 and the tax rate is but $11 per $1000. The population is about 14,000, number of polls 3926.

THE MOVEMENT inaugurated by Councilman Rooney is timely, to secure the abolition of the grade crossings at West, Cross and Willard streets. While not of such pressing importance as Water street, the separation could be done much cheaper now than a few years hence. At West street in particular it could be easily accomplished. Let all the grade crossings be considered together.

HALF OF the cities of Massachusetts have now announced their tax rates for 1893. With the exception of Boston, Malden, Everett and Somerville, they are all larger than the Quincy rate of last year. The average of the fifteen is $16.42 and one is as high as $18.10.

THE MONITOR suggests Mr. Rupert F. Claflin for Mayor. A very good candidate for a citizens nomination.

The Greenleaf.

There are several reasons why "The Greenleaf," to be opened early in September, should be a prosperous hotel.

It has been thoroughly remodelled and is pronounced by experienced hotel men to be conveniently arranged and a modern house.

The furnishings throughout are new, and of a much better grade than in hotels usually. Brussels carpets in many of the rooms, antique oak furniture, and the wall paper which is pretty harmonizes with the carpets. There is not an undesirable room in the house.

The landlord and landlady, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert W. Fiske, are experienced hotel people, and are bound to succeed. Mr. Fiske occupied various positions in the Tremont House, Boston, under Col. Gurney, being night clerk, day clerk, for seven years the steward and one year in the cafe. Four years ago he became manager of the union station restaurant at Springfield, but this was not to his liking. He has since managed Hotel Oxford in Boston, and for one season run the Nanepashemet House on Marblehead Neck. A first class hotel is needed Quincy, and it is the wish of the people that Mr. and Mrs. Fiske will make The Greenleaf a success.

William Chesley.

This aged and highly respected citizen of West Quincy recently passed away at the age of 84. He was born in Barnstead, N. H., and learned in Durham the blacksmith trade, and later worked in a machine shop at Lowell. In 1833 he came to Quincy and was employed by the Granite Railway Company. He soon became a stockholder in the company and was appointed superintendent of the machine shop, which position he held with honor and credit until a few years since.

Mr. Chesley married Miss Susan K. Chesman of Weymouth, soon after coming to Quincy, and has had a happy and contented home; having one of the best of women for a companion. Their union was blest with one daughter, Mrs. Sarah E. Harper, who has done much to make the home of her parents pleasant, during their declining years.

—Ex-Representative Louis A. Cook is also mentioned as a Republican candidate for councillor in this district.

The Merry Mount Tennis club of Wollaston is to give a tournament for gentlemen's singles. The trophy will be a silver cup.

Hon. James Humphrey, judge of the East Norfolk District court, is away on his vacation, and Judge James H. Flint is dealing out justice.

The Transcript says, Mr. Frank Southworth of Quincy has been chosen to fill the position of principal of the Oakdale Grammar school at Dedham.

Our Galen left last evening with the Stoughton Musical society for Chicago. He wore a new identification badge for protection in case he got lost.

The St. Marys and a South Boston nine will play ball in the morning at the Catholic picnic. In the afternoon it will be Quincy and West Quincy vs. Atlantic and Braintree.

The game of ball between nines from Hose 1 and Hook and Ladder 1 has been postponed on account of the absence of the Hook and Ladder battery, who are at the World's Fair.

The by-laws of the Lazy club have been amended so that in order to be eligible to membership the applicant must work. This amendment will throw out some of the old members.

Four band concerts will be given on Sunday at Houghs Neck, two in the afternoon and two in the evening; the Atlantic band at Mears', and the Jordan Marsh & Co. band at Taber's.

Mr. L. C. Ela, of Wollaston, entertained the officers of the Society of Good Fellows of South Boston, of which he is a member, on Thursday evening at his new home on Farrington street.

Mr. Samuel P. Hayden and Mrs. Henry Porter, the two persons who were seriously injured in the barge accident of the 18th ult., are steadily gaining. Mr. Hayden was able to walk about his place this week.

At the Clifton House at Squantum are Mr. and Mrs. George Carbis and Miss Minnie Carbis, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Rayner, the Misses Millie and Florence Rayner, and Clarence Rayner, all of Boston Highlands.

Rev. L. B. Hatch of Whitman filled the pulpit of the Congregational church at the Point last Sunday. The subject of his sermon was "Charity," and it proved interesting to the large congregation in attendance.

Maj. Charles N. Ford met with quite an accident Friday afternoon. He stood on Cottage avenue with a rope in his hand, one end of which was made fast to the limb of a tree. He gave it a pull and it gave way, which caused the Major to roll about the street in a very unceremonious manner. Fortunately nothing serious happened except the dislocation of some of the gravel stones in the avenue.

Lawry—Tincombe.

The residence of Mr. Frederick Barnicoat No. 8 Liberty street, was the scene of a happy wedding ceremony Monday evening. Mr. John Lawry, a granite manufacturer of Quincy, and Miss Mary E. Tincombe daughter of Mr. Edward Tincombe, coach builder of Exeter, England, were made man and wife. The nuptial knot was tied by Rev. S. B. Duffield in the presence of a large number of friends. The bride was given away by Mr. Frederick Barnicoat. She was attired in a becoming costume of white liberty silk, her bridal veil caught up with orange and myrtle blossoms, and carried a boquet in her hand. Mr. Horace Chamberlain of Boston was best man. Miss Gertrude Barnicoat, Miss Hetty Lawry and Miss Edith Lawry were bridesmaids.

The presents were costly and many, Mr. and Mrs. Lawry will visit Chicago. After their return they will reside on Nightingale avenue.

BROCKTON TOUGHS.

Liquor Makes Them Fighting Drunk and They Assault Campers.

Five Brockton toughs went to Quincy woods this morning for a day's outing. They carried a quantity of alcoholic stimulents with them and as a result the party were fighting drunk by noon.

While in this condition they visited the tent of some campers and began to insult the two ladies who were in the tent, using vile language and threatening them bodily harm.

The men in the campers party hearing the racket went to the assistance of the ladies.

As they approached the drunken brutes turned upon them and assaulted them with stones about the face and body. One of the party even going so far as to draw a revolver and threaten to do some shooting.

The men fled with all possible haste to Quincy, where the officers were notified. Chief Langley was at dinner at the time, and after hearing the story thought it was no more than a drunken row and therefore did not order his officers to go down.

Shortly after another party came to City Hall and reported that the ladies in the party had been injured.

This time Officer Fergeson did not wait for orders but in company with Officer McGrath, Connolly and Sandberg started for the scene in a carriage.

Upon the approach of the officers the gang ran into the woods and up to the time of going to press had not been captured, although it can only be a matter of a short time before they are apprehended, as the officers are scouring the woods for them.

Officer Connelly has returned, and Chief Langley and Constable Furnald have gone down to assist the officers.

A Connecticut estate is settling with its creditors for 1 cent on the dollar.

Mrs. S. W. White

Tells of a family blessing.

Thus she writes to Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I suffered for 10 years with female complaints of the worst form, accompanied by severe spinal trouble, causing incessant backache, weakness of the stomach, and nervousness.

"I gave up all hope of ever being well again. Just then I began to take:—

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I followed your directions and treatment until I am now a perfectly well woman.

"I gave it to my two daughters, aged 14 and 16 years, and they are fine, healthy girls.

"It is surely a blessing to our family."—816 Holly St., West Philadelphia, Pa.

A Day of Rest.

Justice Field of the United States supreme court delivered the following unanimous decision in 1885:

"Laws setting aside Sunday as a day of rest are upheld, not from any right of the Government to legislate for the promotion of religious observances, but from its right to protect all persons from the physical and moral debasement that comes from uninterrupted labor. Such laws have always been deemed beneficial and merciful laws, especially to the poor and dependent, to the laborers in our factories and workshops, and in the heated rooms of our cities; and their validity has been sustained by the highest courts of the states."

WEYMOUTH.

The North Weymouths and Randolphs today at North Weymouth. Next Saturday the Institutes and North Weymouths will play at Weymouth.

Henry Whitman a young married man aged 28 years was drowned in Weymouth Great pond yesterday. He was a resident of Weymouth and leaves a widow and one child.

A musicale was given Friday evening at the residence of Melvin S. Raymond. There were piano solos and duets by Misses Fannie Raymond and May Poole; songs by Bessie Raymond and Edith Burrell; ocarina solos by Henry B. Raymond, and vocal duets by Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Raymond.

An entertainment consisting of vocal and instrumental music and readings was given at Temperance hall last evening under the direction of the Sons of Temperance.

BRAINTREE.

Rev. Charles S. Lane and family of Connecticut are the guests of Mr. Lane's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Lane of Mt. Pleasant.

Rev. Mr. Ross of the South Congregational church will occupy the pulpit of the First parish tomorrow morning. All are cordially invited.

William Orr of East Braintree left this morning for Providence, R. I., to visit an old friend of his, Mrs. Sandy Hogg and spend a few days.

The annual clam bake of Gen. Sylvanus Thayer Post 87, G. A. R., having been postponed last Saturday owing to the condition of the weather, will take place today at Great Pond.

Mr. Samuel A. Bates, registrar of births, marriages and deaths, says that the summer death rate, so far for the town of Braintree, is exceptionally low. About a month, he told us, since a death was recorded. This speaks well for the town of Braintree.

The new postmaster, Alfred Southworth, has had the post office authorities put up an iron box at the Braintree railroad station for the reception of letters only, dropped in by strangers who have not the time, or do not know where the office is. This will prove decidedly a great convenience.

Dr. David Thayer, the eminent physician of Boston, a native of Braintree, 80 years of age, has returned from a ten days' visit to the World's fair. There are but few men that could stand such a journey, attended, as it necessarily is, with a certain amount of excitement, at such an advanced age.

Gilbert W. Bowditch of East Braintree returned Wednesday evening from his trip to the White mountains, full of praise of all he saw and the kindness and hospitality showered upon him by friends he visited.

Morrison Bros. have shut down one of their mills (the new one) and are running the other (the old stone one) full time, five days in the week. One of the firm, when asked if it was the "free coinage" scare that was the cause, answered, curtly, that it was the want of free spending of silver, he thought, that was the trouble.

Yesterday morning a party of ladies principally from the north part of the town made an excursion to the Isle of Shoals. The party consisted of Mrs. A. C. Drinkwater and daughter, Miss Plympton daughter of Col. Plympton, Miss Helen Morrison, Miss Alice Morrison, Miss Liza Hollis Mann, Miss Julia Ellsworth, Miss Maria and Soffia Thayer, Miss Lillian H. Gage of North Dighton. The party returned late in the evening all safe and delighted with their outing.

Main's Show.

An exchange has the following to say of the Main show, which is to exhibit here on Friday, Aug. 25:

"Walter L. Main's show has come and gone. Two trains of sixty-foot cars brought the greatest circus now on the road into our city. By night the tents were up, and people began to realize that there was more canvas spread than there ever was before, and that the show must be a monster.

Mr. Maine has a reputation in the east, and this trip is sure to merit the verdict that this show is now the best on the road. Their performance is clean and legitimate. There are no fakes, gambling or skin games on the outside, and the rough element supposed to be around a circus was conspicuous by its absence.

The animals in the menagerie are in splendid condition. They look as if they were well treated and had plenty to eat. In the average traveling menagerie the animals look as if they had been on short rations all winter and too busy to eat while on the road. The sleek animals in this show are indeed a curiosity. The horses are well trained and handsome; the six trained Arabian stallions are rare beauties.

The hippodrome races were genuine and exciting, especially the chariot races. An ordinary trotting race or county fair would be tame compared with the races under Main's tent. The ring performance was replete with the trained elephant, donkey and horse acts; with the artistic bareback riders, tumblers, trapeze performers and other specialists.

We have no hesitation in saying that it is, in every way, superior to any show seen in the east this season. It is really a marvel in one particular. It shows all it advertises.

A party of young ladies stormed Great Hill last evening, and after a successful capture, took lunch. The tonic caused the most trouble, as none had learned to drink out of a bottle.

Mr. Smith holds the highest score at bowling, making 196 on a string.

Mrs. A. M. Coffin is at Camp Comee.

Quite a rivalry has sprung up between the Jordan, Marsh & Co. band and the Atlantic band, and as both are to give simultaneous concerts here on Sunday, it will be of interest to see who gets the crowd.

The South Boston yacht club has a championship regatta today, and an open race early in September.

Come, children, and listen; I'll tell you in rhyme
A story of something that happened one time.
There was war in the land, and each brave heart beat high,
And many went forth for their country to die.
But words fail to tell of the fear and dismay
Which swept the small village of W—— one day
When the enemy's army marched into the street,
And their own valiant soldiers were forced to retreat.
Such hiding, surrend'ring and trembling with fear!
When what in the midst of it all should appear
But Grandmother Gregory, feeble and old,
Coming out from her cottage, courageous and bold.
She faced the intruders who marched through the land,
Shaking at them the poker she held in her hand.
"How foolish!" her friends cried, provoked, it is true.
"Why, grandmother, what did you think you could do?"
"Not much," answered grandma, "but ere they were gone
I wanted to show them which side I am on."

Now, children, I've told this queer story to you
To remind you of something the weakest can do—
There is always a fight 'twixt the right and the wrong,
And the heat of the battle is borne by the strong.
But no matter how small or unfit for the field,
Or how feeble or graceless the weapons you wield.
Oh, fail not until the last enemy's gone
To stand up and show them which side you are on.

—Anna R. Henderson.

The Sailor Hat.

Delsarteau people say that our muscles and carriage betray our true natures even more than our faces. So do the clothes we wear, although few of us stop to think about it. For instance, there is something about a sailor hat which expresses the whole gamut of emotion. The inventive girl can give herself an infinite variety of moods by the way she affects it. It is all over the world feminine just now in all manner of style and quality. Every girl owns one. As Mark Twain said of the cross of the Legion of Honor, "few have escaped." But observe how differently it is worn. Straight upon the coiffure, with a black band, it is demure, businesslike and impressive. Tipitilted a mite over the ear, it is a trifle reckless and inviting. In pure white, with a cloud of veiling about it, it is flirtatious, fascinating and alluring. Pushed back off the forehead, it expresses hoydenishness and youthful exuberance, and in tarpaulin, with a bunch of violets at one side, it has a freaky, capricious air.

Yes, the modern sailor hat is an æolian harp on which the summer girl can play many tunes. It is a good thing to know just what to choose. There is a great deal in knowing how not to do it. —New York Herald.

Subjects of a Few Lectures by Women.

At the philological congress Miss Marie A. Molineaux of Boston contributed a paper entitled "Twenty Years In Roman Fields." Mme. Schliemann, the widow of the great German archæologist, gave an address on "Excavations at Troy." Mrs. Sara Y. Stevenson, the accomplished lecturer for the University of Pennsylvania and curator of the Egyptian section of that institution, lectured on "The Civilization of Egypt; Its Place In History." Miss Georgia Leonard of Washington furnished a paper on "The Domestic Life of Early Egyptians." Mrs. Helen Mary Tirard of London, who has been lecturing in the British museum, and who since the death of Miss Edwards is considered the greatest Egyptologist among woman, gave a lecture on "The Social Status of Women In Ancient Egypt."

A German View of the Woman's Congress.

Almost the entire European press has been discussing the "woman's congress" held in Chicago and have either ridiculed its action or treated it as the harmless play of immature children. We are not surprised at this. All departures from established methods pass through four stages. First, their significance is underestimated, then mocked at as a folly, then opposed, and finally recognized as right. We here in Europe are now meeting bitter hostility. Therefore we have passed through the first and second stages, are now in the third, and may assure ourselves we are approaching victory.—Berlin Frauenricht.

Now, This Is Fishing.

Frank Vinton and others caught a 300 pound sturgeon last week and made the line fast to a young tree standing on shore. Later, when they went to draw the big fish to land, they found it had escaped by pulling the tree up by the roots and taking over 80 feet of small rope along. The fishermen have three other big fish tied up at different places along the stream.—Asotin (Wash.) Sentinel.

ANXIOUSLY WAITING.

Congress Expected to Bring Relief to Money Market.

EXCHANGES ARE CRIPPLED

By the Withdrawal of Enormous Sums From Banks.

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—Dun's Weekly Review of Trade yesterday says: The long desired meeting of congress, a president's message which fully answered expectations, and the arrival of $13,280,000 gold from Europe, with $10,000,000 more on the way, have not brought the improvement many anticipated. Stocks are stronger, but failures and the closing of industrial establishments continue, and the disorganization of domestic exchanges is even greater than a week ago. Yet there is a more hopeful spirit, though the nation looks to Washington with some impatience when the senate seems disposed to rival the mills in working short time. Whatever relief congress has power to give may be less fruitful for good if long deferred.

Exchange Business Paralyzed.

The machinery of exchanges has almost stopped. When $30 per $1000 is paid for New York exchanges at Chicago and $15 or $20 at other western cities, settlements between the east and west become extremely difficult. Even the New York Central could not get currency here on checks of the Boston and Albany and was obliged to send to Boston for the money.

The root of the trouble is that, according to reports of July 12 to the comptroller, over $131,000,000 of deposits had been withdrawn in two months from part of the national banks and probably $177,000,000 from all, besides unknown sums from savings, state and private banks, and during the month since July 12 the withdrawal and hoarding must have been relatively even greater.

A premium of 1 to 2 per cent is paid for gold and 3 to 4 per cent for currency. The government is printing $1,200,000 in bank notes daily. The clearing house has issued $5,000,000 more certificates, and the hope is that confidence may be revived and hoardings unlocked.

The Industrial World.

Shoeshops are looking in vain for further orders, and last week's shipments from Boston were 16,100 cases, or 20 per cent less than those of the same week last year.

Railroad earnings show a decrease of about 8 per cent compared with those of last year, and the clearing house returns at the principal cities show a decrease in settlements of 25 per cent.

Thirteen million dollars in bank notes will quickly be added to the circulation, through use of the bonds purchased from savings banks, and $23,000,000 in gold, in spite of the advance in the Bank of England rate to 4 per cent, and in its charge for gold to 76s. 10d., which with some specie and notes and Canada will make the largest addition to the monetary supply ever experienced in a single month.

Failures during the week number 324 in the United States, against 160 last year, and 25 in Canada, against 20 for the same week last year.

THE VICTORIA DISASTER.

An Inquiry to Be Made as to the Cause of Her Capsizing.

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—The Herald prints the following copyrighted cable:

LONDON, Aug. 11.—It is learned on the highest authority that the government has decided to hold an inquiry into causes which led to the capsizing of the Victoria after she had been in collision with the Camperdown. This is to be done in order to resolve the doubt whether the capsizing was due to defective design and construction or to the fact that the watertight compartments were not completely closed.

She Deserves Pity.

BANGOR, Me., Aug. 12.—The pretty 16-year-old wife of 70-year-old Jacob Witham drowned herself in the lake at Plymouth because of his jealous abuse and the lack of sympathy of her parents. The latter compelled her to marry the decrepid old man, because he had been granted a pension of $30 a month, with back pay at the same rate. For years before obtaining this money Witham had been a town charge.

Charged With Embezzlement.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Aug. 12.—Edward McKowen, chairman of the Democratic city committee, was arraigned yesterday on a complaint sworn out by Francis E. Manley of Melrose, an officer of the Mutual Life Insurance company of New York, charging him with the embezzlement of $1400, funds of the company of which McKowen is agent. He was held in $3000 for the November term of the superior court.

Enjoying Himself.

BEVERLY, Mass., Aug. 12.—Ex-President Harrison was out sight seeing with his grandchildren, Benny and Mary McKee, yesterday. He is shy about talking politics, even with his friends and callers. During the forenoon he visited Baker's island in Salem harbor. In the afternoon, there being such a dense fog, he remained indoors nearly all the time.

Disastrous Forest Fires.

ALPENA, Mich., Aug. 12.—No rain has fallen yet and the forest fires are raging worse than ever. The fires were close to the city all day and at night the fire department was kept busy, and the men were sent to the woods to fight the fire back. Near Ossineke 100,000 feet of logs were destroyed.

No Work May Day.

ZURICH, Aug. 12.—At the international socialist congress the sectional committee reported in favor of a universal cessation of work on May day and demonstrations in favor of an eight-hour day and universal peace. The committee's suggestion was adopted.

Rain Badly Needed.

FORT PLAIN, N. Y., Aug. 12.—The continued drought is having a damaging effect on crops of all kinds in the Mohawk valley. If this drought continues much longer there will be great difficulty in navigating boats on the canal.

Fatal Kick From a Horse.

WATERVILLE, Me., Aug. 12.—H. C. James of Oakland, a well-known horseman, died yesterday from the effects of being kicked in the stomach on Wednesday by a stallion.

ORIOLES WERE WEAK.

The Bostons Experienced No Difficulty In Winning the Game.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 12.—The Bostons took the lead in the fourth inning and won in a canter. The Orioles were lamentably weak at critical stages of the game. A misjudged fly gave the champions two runs, while stupid base running deprived the Orioles of two. Kelly and Duffy laced out eight hits for 15 bases. McNabb pitched the last two innings.

McNabb's Health Is Poor.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 12.—McNabb, one of Baltimore's pitchers, has been released. He has always been regarded as a good pitcher, but owing to the state of his health has rarely been able to last a game.

DENVER'S HUNGRY CITIZENS

Demand Work That They May Keep the Wolf From the Door.

DENVER, Aug. 12.—Five hundred unemployed American citizens met in mass meeting yesterday and resolved that imported foreign labor should not be allowed on the sewers just contracted for in this city. The contractor has imported 500 Italian laborers to do the unskilled labor which begins next Monday, hence the above action was taken.

A committee of the unemployed visited the newspaper offices and announced the ultimatum of the mass meeting. They said that the meeting was composed of American citizens, residents of Denver, the majority of whom had families to support, and that they would prevent the work being done by foreign contract labor. If it came to bloodshed, they declared they would as soon die of gunshot wounds as of starvation. It is hoped that arrangements will be made that will give the citizens work and avoid trouble.

Smith and Dixon Matched.

CONEY ISLAND, N. Y., Aug. 12.—Solly Smith and George Dixon signed the articles of agreement last night before the Coney Island Athletic club. The fight will take place on Monday, Sept. 25, for a purse of $10,000, $9000 to the winner and $1000 to the loser. They will fight for the featherweight championship of the world, 118 pounds, weigh in at the club on the day of the combat.

Result of Carelessness.

CARLISLE, Pa., Aug. 12.—A work train ran into the rear of a westbound freight at Barnitz, and a moment later a passenger train ran into the rear of the work train. A number of cars of the work train were broken to pieces. The conductor of the freight train and several other employes were injured. The accident is said to have resulted through carelessness.

Ten Thousand Looked On.

PICKVILLE, Ky., Aug. 12.—Henry Hall was hanged here for the murder of his brother. He made a confession on the scaffold and completely broke down. Ten thousand witnessed the execution.

End Not In Sight.

KNOXVILLE, Aug. 12.—There are no new developments at Briceville and Coal Creek. The strike is still on, and the end is not in sight.

Sontag's Threat.

FRESNO, Cal., Aug. 12.—M. J. Sontag, stepfather of John Sontag, the dead outlaw, writes from Mankato, Minn., that he intends to prosecute the slayers of his son.

The Midway Is Weak and Vapid.

Henry Watterson, who is at the Richelieu, has been studying the various things to be found in Midway plaisance. He tells the story thus: "I had heard several remarks made about the terribly wicked things to be found in Midway, and in the interest of mankind in general I concluded that it was my duty to see them, and if necessary raise my voice and wield my pen in saying things about them. Well, I 'have saw them'—as an old friend of mine in Louisville says—and the verdict I have reached is that the Midway plaisance has no right to be connected in any way with such a wonderful show as the World's fair. There is nothing of interest there to me except the types of people. The so called shows are frauds and 'fakes.' Those that are advertised as being obscene and vulgar are weak and vapid. There is nothing terrible about them at all, and the mysterious whispered comments upon their broadness are unnecessary. There is no vulgarity about them. They are insipid.

"One woman, who poses as a Persian, was asked by a friend of mine what she was doing. No answer was expected, as we didn't suppose a Persian could understand English. To our surprise, however, she looked at us, and in good Bowery patois said: 'I am knitting. What do you suppose I am doing?' Then, with a downward, horizontal movement of her hand, she inquired if we saw."—Chicago Tribune.

A Burglar Who Tried to Take Everything.

C. A. Collins, who says that he is a clerk, but who is said by the police to be one of the shrewdest burglars in the city, is confined in one of the tanks in the city prison. He was arrested Wednesday night by Detectives Silvey, Cody and Crockett.

On the 25th of last month, according to the police, he broke into the flat of Mrs. Knox at 2542 Howard street while she was absent in the country and for two days devoted his time to carting away every movable object in the house. Nothing seemed to be beneath his notice, and in the various trips he made in and out he took away all the silverware, clothing, bedclothes, etc., that belonged to Mrs. Knox, and then took down the curtains and portieres and the pictures on the walls. The carpets and rugs also came under his observation, and he took the choicest.

All these things were disposed of to a Fourth street furniture dealer, and Silver says that he not only received the cash for them, but made arrangements with the furniture man to go and get the piano and the rest of the carpets, and had negotiations under way with a Market street real estate agent to put a mortgage on the building.—San Francisco Examiner.

Senator Stanford's Illness.

An intimate friend of the Stanford family relates an incident in the senator's life in Washington: A policeman on duty one evening on K street, within a block of the Stanford residence at the national capital, found a man lying unconscious on the sidewalk. He was about to ring in an alarm for the patrol wagon when a gentleman came up and recognized the unconscious man as Senator Stanford. They succeeded in getting the senator into his house without any one else knowing what had happened, and nothing was ever said about it. The first question the senator asked when he regained consciousness was whether the newspapers would know all about it, and he appeared to be greatly relieved when he learned that it had been kept a secret. The gentleman who knew of this incident said that the senator's sudden death was no surprise to him.—San Francisco Chronicle.

A Novelty In Trolley Roads.

In an electric road recently constructed in England a radical departure from American methods has been made. A trolley wire is suspended from arms projecting from steel columns. No guy wires are employed, as the steel wires are especially designed to withstand severe strains. At the corners the trolley wire, instead of following a curve of the same radius of the track, as in the American systems, is turned on an angle, the whole system depending on the flexibility of the trolley arm, or side collector, as it is called, which automatically engages the trolley wire in any position from two to twelve feet from the side of the car.

Another change from American practice is the adoption of a pressure of only 350 volts. The cars are only 22 feet long and are equipped with two motors of 15 brake horsepower, running at 400 revolutions.—Philadelphia Press.

Teetotal Sailors.

A large number of the crew of the ill fated Victoria were teetotalers—in fact, a lodge of the Independent Order of Good Templars—the Victoria's Lifeboat Lodge A. D.—had been established on the ship. Not one of the names of the members of the lodge is included among the list of the saved, so that the lodge has no longer an existence. A curious fact is that a whole lodge of the same order was lost in the terrible disaster that overtook the Eurydice in 1878.—London Tit-Bits.

GREAT FIGHT ENDED.

Supreme Court Decision on Rhody's Political Muddle.

GOVERNOR'S ACTION LEGAL.

Entire State Government Holds Over For a Year.

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 14. — The political fight in this state, which has continued since last March, was ended Saturday, when the supreme court gave its opinion that Governor Brown had the constitutional right to prorogue the legislature, as he did at Newport last May. This establishes the right of the entire Republican state government to hold over for the year.

After the elections of last spring the legislature was an exact tie. When the two houses met at Newport the Democrats in the house of representatives unseated two Republicans, who, they claimed, were illegally elected. The Republican senate thereupon refused to join the house in grand committee for the purpose of electing a governor and all the state officers, there having been no choice by the people

Under the Majority System.

The governor then adjourned the legislature to Providence in January, and the senate accepted the action. The house refused to do this, and the speaker threw the governor's proclamation into the waste basket. The senators returned to their homes, and the members of the house retained the organization of that body by meeting every day and adjourning.

After the senate had dissolved, the house passed a resolution submitting three questions to the supreme court, the substance of which was inquiry as to whether the governor's action was legal. The Democratic position was that the senate should have joined the house in grand committee before adjourning.

The opinion of the court is that the governor and could properly adjourn the legislature, being responsible for his actions to the people only.

Has Extraordinary Power,

Such a muddle will never occur again in this state. In November the people vote on the plurality amendment to the constitution, which requires a three-fifths vote for adoption. It will receive almost unanimous support, and with its approval comes the death knell of the Republican party of this state. The next United States senator from Rhode Island will undoubtedly be a Democrat.

IN A DRIFTING CRAFT.

Clothing of a New Haven Man Found Rifled of Valuables.

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 14.—Possibly murder, possibly suicide, perhaps a drowning accident, resulted in a loss of the life of Louis L. Norton, son of A. O. Norton, a prominent business man. The case is one of deep mystery. Young Norton said he was going down the harbor for a row. His parents dissented, but he left home to carry out his plan.

A friend said he met Norton on the street and chatted with him on his way to the shore, and that was the last Norton was seen alive. Saturday a tug saw a rowboat tossed about by the waves near the breakwater and took it in tow. A suit of clothes on the seat led the crew to treat the case as suspicious and hand them over to the police.

The articles were critically examined and declared to be Norton's. Then a startling discovery was made. Notwithstanding the fact that Norton had when he left home a large amount of valuable property, no trace of it could be found in his clothing. It is known that he had a gold watch and chain, a diamond pin and several other articles of jewelry, as well as a well filled pocketbook, but none of them can be found.

A number of searching parties were immediately organized, and all the seaside resorts were notified of the affair that a strict watch might be kept for the body. Several yachts are sailing over all coves and recesses of the harbor, in hopes of locating the body or throwing some light on the mystery.

Norton's parents are grief-stricken. He was their only son. He was a member of the popular New Haven military company, the Grays, and had just established a business for himself.

Though appearances point to foul play, it is thought that, perhaps, the rifling of his clothes took place after he had left the boat. The police are hard at work on the matter, but have unearthed no clue.

ONE LAD KILLED

And Two Severely Injured In an Electric Car Accident.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Aug. 14.—A fatal accident occurred here last evening. Electric car No. 99, on the Globe street railway, under the control of Motorman Charles Russell and Conductor Gregory, was running down Fourth street at the rate of about 13 miles an hour. Crossing Fourth street, through Wade, were three young boys in a carryall. The horse was walking and the boys heard no warning until the car was directly upon them.

Their horse and carraige were hit together. The horse was killed instantly. All three boys were thrown out and two of them were drawn beneath the broken beams.

Thomas Morris, aged 13, was drawn under the fenders, and lived only a few moments after he was taken out. Frank Kelliher, aged 11 years, received a broken ankle and some body bruises. Charles Keves, aged 11 years, was thrown into the road and received a bad wound on the back of the skull, a broken leg and severe bruises. He may be permanently injured.

Medical Examiner Dolan and the police took charge of the car and other materials and placed the car men under guard. Several spectators say that no warning was given by the motorman.

DEATH MAY RESULT.

Mrs. Bisson Has Suffered Greatly During Her Wanderings.

CENTRE HARBOR, N. H., Aug. 14.—A man who was berrying found Mrs. Joseph Bisson on the north side of Red mountain, five miles from here. She had been away 26 days, and during her wanderings had not been near any house or had anything to eat but berries. She had been out in some of the most severe showers seen in this region for years, and had but very little clothing about her. When found she was helpless and at quite a distance from water. She was taken to the home of Mr. Bragg, from whence Mr. Bisson brought her home. Dr. Morrill was called and he pronounced her insane. There is very little hope of her recovery.

Woonsocket Toughs' Brutality.

WOONSOCKET, R. I., Aug. 14.—Several clews have been obtained by the police as to the identity of the toughs who so brutally assaulted a party of Armenians Saturday evening near the Fairmount bridge. Two of the injured men now at the hospital are reported in a comfortable condition. Kirkor Madorasian, whose skull was fractured and who suffered other serious injuries, is not expected to live.

A Somerville Mystery.

SOMERVILLE, Mass., Aug. 14.—The police of this city have a mystery on their hands. Residents on the banks of the Mystic river were awakened by screams Saturday night, and saw a strange buggy followed by an excited woman hastening toward Medford. A woman's hat and a blood-stained undergarment were found by police yesterday. They will push an investigation.

Killed by Heat.

MYSTIC, Conn., Aug. 14.—Augustus Cromwell, a wealthy farmer, was found dead in a huckleberry lot. He was seen walking along the road staggering as if intoxicated. An examination of the body showed that he had not partaken of any liquor and that death was due to excessive heat.

Blower Works Robbed.

BOSTON, Aug. 14.—There is a sensation in Jamaica Plain over the reported discovery of gross irregularities in the payroll of the B. F. Sturtevant Blower works. While it is believed that a more careful investigation may reveal a much larger deficiency, up to date there is some $3800 missing.

Pain Bereft Him of Sense.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Aug. 14.—George W. Bradley, aged 67 years, disemboweled himself at his home yesterday morning. Pain caused by an ulceration of the stomach made him delirious. Bradley lingered until noon, when death ensued.

End of the Bible Conference.

DAMAGES OF $50,000

Claimed In a Suit Against Congressman Breckinridge.

THE ACCUSED WON'T TALK.

Charges Are of the Most Sweeping Character.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14. — Congressman W. C. P. Breckinridge; the silver-haired and silver-tongued orator of Kentucky, has been made defendant in a sensational suit for $50,000 for an alleged failure to keep a promise of marriage. Mr. Breckinridge is one of the picturesque figures of the house. He is 55 years old, and besides being a politician he has obtained distinction in church work.

The suit is brought by Miss Madeliae V. Pollard, who is a Kentuckian, and whom it was gossiped about he intended to marry.

Mr. Breckinridge's first wife died a little over a year ago. His engagement to Miss Pollard was published in the Washington and Louisville papers last winter and no denial was made.

On the 18th of last month Mr. Breckinridge's marriage to Mrs. Louise Wing of St. Louis was announced. There was much surprise expressed and speculation was rife as to why the other engagement was broken.

The Plaintiff.

Miss Pollard is well known in Washington and has held positions in several of the departments. She was discharged from the pension office for making the remark when General Sherman died that "The devil would get his own."

She is 25 years of age, tall and slight of build, with a plain face. She is not much older than Mr. Breckinridge's unmarried daughter, who moved in Washington society circles before her mother's death.

The papers in the case were prepared by two of Washington's most prominent lawyers, Calderon Carlisle and Jeremiah Wilson.

Explosion of the Bomb.

This is the story which all Washington read with such regret in Saturday evening's papers:

In the supreme court of the district of Columbia, today, was filed by Jere M. Wilson and Calderon Carlisle, attorneys for the plaintiff, a suit for $50,000 for breach of promise against Representative William C. P. Breckinridge of Kentucky by Madeline Pollard.

The plaintiff charges that in April, 1884, when she was 17 years old, and a student at Wesleyan Female Seminary at Cincinnati, she was met on the train travelling from school to Frankfort, Ky., by W. C. P. Breckinridge, who made her acquaintance, and that on the 3d day of August, 1884, he came to see her at the seminary and got permission of the president for her to dine with him, and began by wiles and artifices and protestations of affection to take advantage of her youth and inexperience and to gain her affection, but later in the same month he accomplished her seduction.

She avers that he got her completely under his control, and that she bore a child to him. The allegations filed go with great length into the relations which existed between the plaintiff and Mr. Breckinridge, as she charges, until recently.

Promises of Marriage.

She alleges that she bore two children to him, and that after their death she came to Washington, and that after the death of his wife she was again in a delicate situation, and with protestations of love and affection he induced her to continue their relations, and promised to marry her as soon as it would be proper for him to do so in a sufficient time after the death of his wife.

It is alleged that he solemnly promised that there should be a secret marriage on May 31, 1892, and that the marriage should take place in the city of New York, but after that, on the plea of her condition, the time appointed for the marriage was postponed until the following December or January, after the child should have been born.

From time to time, she alleges, the date for the marriage was postponed, until, on the 18th day of July, she alleges that Mr. Breckinridge wrongfully and injuriously married another woman, Mrs. Louisa Wing, who was then a resident of the city of St. Louis. The plaintiff, therefore, asks for damages of $50,000.

Has Little to Say.

An attache of the marshal's office served the papers on the defendant Saturday night. Colonel Breckinridge showed the papers to his wife and neither appeared disturbed. A few minutes later Colonel Breckinridge saw a reporter in his room. He betrayed no signs of nervousness. In response to a request for a statement in reply to the charges made by Miss Pollard, Colonel Breckinridge said:

"I have been in the city only a few minutes, and have not had time to examine the papers in this case. I can only say at this time, before I have a chance to know the extent of the allegations made, that I hope my friends will believe that these charges are the result of vindictiveness, vexation and perhaps of intention to blackmail, and I ask that they suspend judgment until a full hearing shall have shown all that is in them.

"I do not care to say anything further until I have had an opportunity to consult with attorneys and thoroughly examine the allegations."

A Parisian Sensation.

PARIS, Aug. 14.—M. Lockroy, a former cabinet minister, was fired at yesterday by a man named Moore, a notorious socialist. Moore, who was unknown to the ex-minister, stopped him and demanded a loan of 10 francs; Lockroy refusing, the man fired at him with a revolver. Lockroy fainted but was not pierced by the ball.

FOUR MORE city tax rates are announced, two high and two low: Springfield vies with Boston in the smallest rate, both being $12.80. That of Worcester is $15, an increase of forty cents; that of the young city of Chicopee $17.30, an increase of $3.50, and that of Fitchburg $18, an increase of $2.40. Quincy will be one of the last but perhaps one of the most favorable, as only six out of nineteen are lower than the rate of this city last year.

IN MANCHESTER, that taxpayers' paradise on the North Shore, the tax rate although but $7 is the largest for ten years. In Cohasset it is $2.50 larger, and in Milton $4.50 larger. They will soon cease to be paradises.

THE GRANITE BUSINESS.

Advertising the Key to Success—the World's Fair Exhibit.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

I am am not surprised that a number of granite manufacturers after reading my article a few days ago were led to remark, that some people understand other people's business better than their own. I expected that they would make that good old remark, but some manufacturers were led to stop and ask themselves if my article, as well as the editorial, contained any truth.

It is some years since any merchant has been able to establish, or carry on a large trade without the aid of printer's ink. Take the Quincy dealers who advertise, they do a larger trade, than stores which do not. It is therefore safe to say this, every merchant should pay out for advertising each year from 1 to 2 per cent. on his sales. If he is to do a trade in the towns around Quincy he must pay out at least 2 per cent. which will be probably more than we pay out for rent. If it is important for the Quincy merchant to advertise it is much more so for the granite dealer, as they must send their product a long distance.

I do not know much about stone, but as I have advertised during the last 30 years in the principal papers in the United States I claim I know something about advertising.

Referring to the World's Fair, I note that the manufacturers have advertised for a salesman to stay in Chicago. What is he to do? Take orders for some one firm? I very much doubt if he will sell any goods, as people do not go to the fair to buy but to see. They take a moment's glance and then pass along. It might be a good way to send two wide awake ladies. Let one stay with the exhibit from 8 to 1 and the other from 1 to 6.

That is about as long as a person could stand it. Let them have plenty of circulars to give to every one. They will take one to send or carry home. Let the circular be strong, let them tell of the quality of Quincy granite; let it also state the names of agents in every state where there is one, so that the people can order at home. That the people may keep the circular let it have on the outside a cut of the First church, stating that it was built of Quincy granite, when it was built, also that it contains the bones of the two Presidents.

There is yet another way to advertise at the fair which I will not now mention. No doubt but the two ladies would go for their car fares out and back and their board while there. A BUSINESS MAN.

Was a First-Class Show.

Walter L. Main's circus and menagerie has come and gone, having delighted the small boy and interested and instructed the older people who went "simply to take the children." Those who imagined that Walter L. Main's monster railroad shows were a cheap aggregation of back number circus jokes were agreeably disappointed. The performance in the three ring circus was as good as ever seen under a tent in this place.

The trapeze work, acrobatic and tumbling feats are not surpassed in any show that is now traveling.

The Fisher brothers in their wonderful aerial feats excited the wonder and admiration of the audience. No more daring gymnastics artists were ever seen.

The six performing horses under Mr. Joseph Berries have no equal, and the acrobats, High, Dave, Reno and Jack Walton are simply unrivaled.

The equestrian feats, grand hurricane hurdle acts, and hippodrome races are all first class and just as good as can be seen under Barnum's or Forepaugh's tents—The Aurora Beacon.

MANET BEACH.

Largest Sunday Crowd of Season—Religious Service.

Yesterday was a delightful day at the beach, and a very large crowd gathered along the shore. Some to listen to the sweet music by the bands—one at Taber's, the other at Mears'—others to get a cool refreshing breeze from old ocean and to enjoy the beautiful and changing view from the shore.

The street railway was well patronized, three cars were run at nearly all the trips during the afternoon, and the company endeavored to accommodate all with seats.

Everything was quiet and orderly, the visitors and cottagers all appeared to be happy.

The religious service which was held at the cottage of Mr. Williams, Sunday, was an especially interesting and profitable one. The attendance exceeded a hundred and for this reason it was necessary to hold an open air meeting. A cabinet organ has been obtained and was of great service in starting and leading the singing.

Perhaps the most encouraging part of the service was the interest manifested by nearly all present, in the movement to build a chapel in that summer resort. A committee of investigation was appointed and a mass meeting of all persons interested in this movement will be held at 7.30 Thursday evening of this week, at Mr. Williams' cottage. All are invited to attend this meeting.

Councilman C. J. Jacobs of Boston Highlands has as guests at his cottage, Mrs. Timothy J. Murphy and Miss Lottie Reynolds.

The ladies' day programme of the Hull yacht club on Wednesday includes band concerts in the afternoon and evening, a sail at 3 P. M., followed by a collation, and in the evening a hop. There will also be fireworks.

Clams Delicious, Nutritious, Toothsome.

Writing to that excellent magazine, "Food," David A. Curtis says:

"The clam has been called the "poor man's oyster," and if the tinge of apparent sarcasm in the phrase be elimated, the characterization is an excellent one. For there is no finer wild fowl in the sea than the clam, providing always that it be captured in good condition, and be not maltreated by the cook.

The fact that cooks generally do maltreat the clam, has occasioned a violent prejudice in the past against this fine shell-fish, and the opinion, once general, that the clam could not be really eaten, has not yet entirely died out. There are those (and the writer was one of them some years ago) who maintain that although a clam may be swallowed, and even digested, he cannot be masticated. There is this foundation for the opinion, that overmuch cooking transforms certain parts of the clam into leather, and this leather is tougher and harder by far than the finest grades of commercial India rubber. Moreover, there are clams which do not need cooking in order to make the comparison apt. It is doubtful if cooking or even tanning would make them any tougher than they are in their natural state. In other words, there are clams and clams, and while some clams are certainly not edible in the strict sense of the word, other clams are as certainly delicious food, nutritious and toothsome to a degree, and so delicate withal that the invalid who cannot retain other food in his stomach is pleased, nourished and strengthened by a diet of clams."

Prompt Arrest.

Much credit is due to Officer McGrath for the prompt arrest of the parties concerned in the brutal assault at Quincy woods, Saturday noon.

The officer obtained the names of two of the assaulting party and when it was found that they had decamped, Officer McGrath hunted up Francis A. Spear, who is officiating as clerk of the District court, and warrants were issued for the two Gales. He then took the three o'clock train for Brockton, and before many hours had passed the two were in the Quincy lockup, but were subsequently bailed.

This morning the remainder of the party came down to see how their friends fared, when warrants were promptly served upon them.

Have the DAILY LEDGER sent to you while on your vacation.

TODAY'S COURT.

Stephen Kuerser of Quincy, was arraigned for keeping intoxicating liquors with intent to sell. Case continued until Wednesday.

Henry Record, John Nickerson, Walter Gale and Robert H. Gale four of the Brockton toughs who committed the assault on the party of campers at Quincy Woods Saturday afternoon, were arraigned in court this morning. Record was fined $10 and Nickerson and the two Gales $15 each.

James Callahan and Daniel Bresnihan of Weymouth were arraigned for mutual assault. Callahan was fined $15 and Bresnihan $25. The former paid his fine and the latter appealed.

The liquors seized from Mary A. Doran of Weymouth were forfeited to the Commonwealth.

Sunday Observance.

The National lay congress of Roman Catholics agrees that "There are many Christian issues in which Catholics could come together with non Catholics and shape civil legislation for the public weal. In spite of rebuff and injustice, and overlooking zealotry, we should seek alliance with non-Catholics for proper Sunday observance. Without going over to the Judaic Sabbath, we can bring the masses over to the moderation of the Christian Sunday."

Hon. T. V. Powderly, master workman of the Knights of Labor, says, "I believe in Sunday rest. So do the Knights of Labor."

Liquor Raid.

Liquor officer McGrath, assisted by Chief of Police Langley and officers Ferguson and Shackley, raided the premises of Stephen Kuerser on Willard street, Saturday night, and seized two full cases of beer, two empty cases, one keg of beer, and two empty kegs.

THE OPEN REGATTA.

Ninety Dollars in Prizes Offered—Open to all Yacht Clubs.

The open regatta of the Quincy Yacht Club will be sailed next Saturday, and is for all yachts under 28 feet, enrolled in any regularly organized yacht club, off the clubhouse, over the club's courses of eight and seven miles.

The entries must be made in writing on or before 12 M., Friday, Aug. 18.

The measurement of boats will be as follows: First class, 21 to 28 feet; second class, 18 to 21; third class, 15 to 18.

The prizes will be $15, $10 and $5 in each class. Yachts will be classified according to sailing length, which will be water line measurement, plus one-fifth of the after overhang. The start, a flying one, will be made between the judges' yacht and a flag boat. The time will be figured from the gun. The preparatory gun will be fired at 3 o'clock, the gun for the first class to start at 3.05, second class, 3.10, and third class, 3.15. The time allowance will be figured on the basis of the Herreshoff table of allowances.

The official measurement of any yacht club will be accepted, the club reserving the right to remeasure any yacht, and in case of a conflict of measurement to take its own. The race will be sailed under the rules of the club.

Other Fixtures.

A Benefit at Downers.

On Tuesday, Sept. 5, several well known and popular attaches of Melville Garden, Downer Landing, through the courtesy of proprietor, James D. Scudder, who will extend the regular season to include that date, will benefit in a grand complimentary testimonial tendered by their friends which will take the form of a social dance in the afternoon from 2 to 4, and 4.30 to 6, and in the evening from 7 to 1 o'clock. The beneficiaries are Mr. George L. Odiome, Mr. Augustus O. Closson, Mr. Washington I. James, Mr. William White, Mr. Samuel James, Jr., and Mr. C. Myron Clark. Barges will be run from North Weymouth on arrival of electric cars from Quincy and from surrounding towns. Tirrell's celebrated orchestra of Weymouth will furnish the music and the affair is bound to be a notable success.

LOSS OF $2,000,000

By a Fire Which Swept Over a Portion of Minneapolis.

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 14. — About 1:30 p.m. yesterday $2,000,000 worth of property was destroyed by fire. Over 200 houses were burned and 1500 persons were rendered homeless. This is the record made by the destroying element in the short space of two hours. A change in the direction of the wind prevented an awful conflagration. The fire started on the river side of J. E. Clark & Co.'s box factory on the south end of Nicollet island at the head of St. Anthony Falls.

The flying sparks alighted on Boom island, nearly half a mile above the fire on Nicollet island. The whole island was soon ablaze. The flames soon gained a footing in the lumber yards, where there were piled some 10,000,000 feet of lumber. It was impossible to check the progress of the flames. Flying sparks ignited fires many blocks beyond the places where the firemen were at work.

About 6 o'clock the fire jumped the river and for some time the west side saw mills district was in great danger. Fortunately the flames were extinguished before much damage was done. The east side is in ruins.

Mrs. Thomas Malone, an old lady who was bedridden, was burned in her home. The charred remains of a boy were also found in the debris.

Hungarians Killed by a Cloudburst.

WINONA, Kan., Aug. 14.—A cyclone in the northern part of Logan county destroyed a large amount of farm property. The house of W. H. Jackson was demolished and his two children were killed.

THE ANIMAL KINGDOM.

Smithsonian Institute Exhibit at the Fair.

AN EIGHT-FOOT RATTLESNAKE.

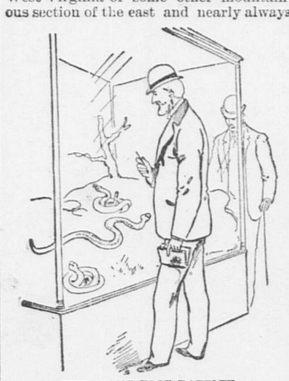

All Other Snakes Comparatively Imperfect Creatures Beside Him—Every Style of Animal Evolution Shown in This Interesting Exhibit in the Government Building—Collection of Ceramics.

WORLD'S FAIR, Aug. 11. — [Special.] — The rattlesnake is the supreme triumph of nature. This fact I demonstrated today by four hours' study in the Smithsonian institution end of the Government building. In all the animal kingdom there is no such complete specialization of functions and machinery suited to perform those functions. As an automatic machine of mischief the rattlesnake is simply perfect and beside him there is none other. True, this snake has not much to do, but for what he does in this world he is emphatically well heeled. It is no wonder these Smithsonian gentlemen have nicknamed him the Crotalus Horridus. All the other snakes in the exhibit seem comparatively imperfect creatures. The non-poisonous, tree-climbing snakes are beautifully mounted on saplings, the little ring snakes are artistically arranged after their natural habit and there are a great many other snakes which the exhibitors call Typhlopidae, Leptotyphlophidae, Hysiidae, Nothopsidae, Amblycephalidae and even worse names; but the snakes don't mind it at all. There is also a cast of a Jamacia boa, and a lot of turtles and lizards of every size, style and color from the little green and blue swift of the Wabash valley and the chameleon of Louisiana to reckless looking monsters apparently but one remove from the primeval iguanodon, but none of these draw the crowd and hold it with a sort of horrid fascination as does the lovely 8-foot rattlesnake.

Think what a tribute it is to this creature that animals who never even saw one in life will snort with terror at sight of his stuffed skin, and women looking at him through glass, while the cold reason assures them there is no danger, feel that thrill of dread and nerve repulsion which their Simian ancesters felt in the woods so long ago. This snake holds over all other creatures an inherited power, and as Americans we ought to be proud of him. His skeleton as exhibited here shows his superiority with scientific exactness. There is, first, the flexibility of his backbone which enables him to turn any way to get at a fellow. No other animal can compare with him.

Then consider the double ball-and-socket arrangement of his numerous ribs and compare it with the human shoulder, especially the female human. The latter easily miscalculates the circular swing of his, especially her, shoulder, but a rattlesnake's ribs never go back on him. And then the jaws, so adjustible that he can swallow creatures twice his thickness, and the fang which rises just at the right time to do the most good (from a snaky point of view). If either missed it by a second there would be a bite thrown away, but invariably the drop of dirty, yellow oil goes into the wound and then—what? Serum and red corpsucle fall apart, the blood clots and the bitten one howls for whisky regardless of temperance principles.

To this digression I was led by listening to the conversation going on all around the snakes. Go there at any hour of the day one may be as sure to find a lot of folks swapping snake stories. There is generally a man from Pennsylvania or West Virginia or some other mountainous section of the east and nearly always a man or two from the plains, and surrounded by all this world of wonders, this greatest show on earth, these men stand for long periods telling stories and contrasting the snakes of their respective localities. This particular 8-foot specimen is from Indian Territory. The exhibitor says that on Darwinian principles it took at least 700,000 generations of selection, survival and slow improvement to produce such a snake. I haven't a doubt of it. I don't see how it could be done in that time. Why, it has taken 800 generations to produce a Jersey cow, though man has absolute control of the selection and a good cow to start with. I tell you nature works slow, but she gets there.

In the leather exhibit are some lovely snake skins, tanned, from South America, and in the collection of ancient relics are a few sections of similar skins from Asia Minor, on which the ancients have written leading articles, snake stories probably, though no one here can read them. Far more interesting, to my mind, are those little fragments of drawings in the Smithsonian exhibit, drawings made long before writing was invented, in which the primitive man tried to picture the animal he had killed. Apparently he made the drawing, or scratching, with a pointed stone and generally pictured the dead animal on one of its own bones. Along with those are a few bushels of stone weapons and tools, polished stone ornaments and curiously shaped things in horn, bone and stone for which we can imagine no use, but it is supposed they had some religious significance. Next to these come really fine implements of polished stone and then copper and so on down, so one can trace the progress of man from the beginning.

The ladies are most deeply interested in the Smithsonian ceramics and I was surprised to learn, in the Japanese collection, that every one of the twenty-four provinces represented shows local peculiarities, and in some of the larger provinces each town does the same, so a Japanese expert can tell at a glance what part of the island empire a piece comes from. And it is so all over the fair. There are such immense quantities of pottery that one would expect the thing to grow monotonous, but every country has its marked specialties and generally its minor variations by locality. The oldest Japanese ware in this particular exhibit is of the year 1600.

In the Smithsonian room also are specimens of every kind of printing and engraving from Faust to the colored daily paper, every sort of musical instrument to illustrate the progress from Pan to Paderewski, pictures showing every sort of American Indian in every sort of fix they ever got into, carving and modelings of all stages from the mud god of the wild Malays to marble busts and ivory medallions, and finally a wonderful array of bas-reliefs and other figures representing all the religions of all the races around the Mediterranean in all times. And if this seems a small thing, consider that six of the world's ten great religions are here shown in details of every rite from circumcision to cremation. In short, this room shows every stage of animal evolution from the lizard to the philosopher, every step in man's progress from the cave and hollow tree to the Waldorf hotel, and every event in a single life, and there are a few hints as to what comes after cremation. But there poetic fancy has room to soar.

Although this is the greatest show on earth and everybody says so, yet there is the usual number of "fakes" and it is safest to ask the price before purchasing. In several parts of the ground I note amusing cases of taking advantage of man's natural desire to get something for nothing. In one place a free pancake is offered on certain conditions. It is just the circumference of a silver dollar and about half as thick. In another a free cup of chocolate is promised from 2 to 4 p. m. The cup is a beauty—for a child's toy house. It contains one swallow for a very small man. In truth, nearly all the cups and glasses used on the ground are remarkably small. When I examined the bills of fare I concluded that the cost of living was not very high inside the fair, but when it took two cups of coffee, three sandwiches, a pie and a glass of milk to make me a "light lunch," I suddenly changed my mind, especially as they were 10 cents each. Down in the city one can get a passable dinner for 50 cents and a really generous one for $1.

Now consider that to walk through all the avenues around the grounds inside, and along the peristyle, without entering a building, requires a journey of thirteen miles and it will be evident that the matter of refreshments and their cost is quite important. And I really cannot see why living should be any higher in Chicago than in Indianapolis or St. Louis, and it ought to be cheaper than in New York. Transportation, however, is really quite cheap and abundant. Five cents on a cable car for the eight mile ride is "dog cheap" and 10 cents for coming in one-third of the time from the heart of the city by the Illinois Central is little enough. But the prettiest ride to the fair, if one is in no hurry, is by boat from the foot of Van Buren street. The steamer goes in a great semi-circle far out in the lake and back to the water front of Jackson park, and as it moves one passes the whole southern half of the city in review. And as he comes in at the pier he sees that the water front of the White City is by far the most handsome.

Nobody has figured out the exact cost of "extras" in the fair, but it is big. The unwary visitor will find himself paying out a dime here and a quarter there all day and at the end of a week will wonder what became of his money. There are many buildings it simply isn't worth while to try to go through without a catalogue, and each is a quarter. There are many villages of far foreigners and some other places to which the admission is a quarter and then one is almost compelled for his own self respect to buy a few souvenirs, pictures, books, etc., and so it goes. And after all there is such a very large part of this fair that no one person can see.

I do not refer to lack of time. One might stay the five months through and still not really see many a wonderful thing simply from want of knowledge or capacity to enjoy it. There, for instance, is all the brilliant array of silks and laces and fine fabrics in many colors which is mostly ancient Greek to me, and there is the wonderful Fine Arts building with over 7,000 pieces, many by world's masters, and yet not a hundred that deeply interest me. And there especially is the classical music for which, I am told, they are paying Mr. Thomas $1,700 a day, and two-thirds of the people on the ground, myself included, never go near it. I can tell a discord from a bedcord and on a fiddle or brass instrument can recognize a tune I am familiar with, and that is my limit in the science and art of music.

Now it is only fair, I take it, to conclude that other folks are just as ignorant on some other subjects and when exhibitors complain, as some of them do, that the masses go by the finest exhibits with a mere glance, they should console themselves with the fact that they have done too well—got the thing too fine for the public taste. But it is a wonder how little people care about some things. Sensible people, too. Why, I met an old acquaintance in the Smithsonian this morning who took no sort of interest in the big snake and sneered at the lizards, and when I asked his opinion about the uses of those queer old bone and stone things he replied that he didn't know and didn't care a ——. What does a man like that come to a world's fair for, anyhow? I reckon it must be the Midway plaisance.

J. B. PARKE.

Friday, Aug. 25, has been decided upon as the day for the colored men at the World's fair. On that day fully 100,000 colored men and women from all over the country will assemble in this city. Special excursions will be run from all parts of the north, east, south and west, and the most prominent men of the race will be here.

"Tears, Idle Tears."

Oh, why are Mary's eyes so red, and why are salt tears straying
Adown the face where happy smiles were wont to be a-playing?

What sudden grief unjustly bears upon so fair a maiden,
Whose soul and self seem fitted less for earth than distant Aidenn?

Has death or fate brought into naught fair Mary's dream of mating?
Ah, no! 'Tis not so bad as that—horseradish she is grating.

Within the deep,
Still chambers of the heart, a specter dim,
Whose tones are like the wizard voice of Time
Heard from the tombs of age, points its cold
And solemn finger to the beautiful
And holy visions that have passed away
And left no shadow of their loveliness
On the dead waste of life.

NOTHING BUT SILVER

Will Be Considered in the House This Week.

NIGHT SESSIONS PROBABLE.

The Rule Governing Closure Being Considered.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—Congress has settled down to debate with a degree of expedition almost unknown in its history, and with an apparent determination to do something that promises well for the outcome.

Fortunately for the majority in the senate the action of the house on silver relieved them from the necessity of speedy and perhaps ill-advised action. The Democratic caucus committee charged with the preparation of a plan that should secure the adherence of the united majority will therefore commence its labors with more deliberation than would otherwise have been possible, and it is not expected now that they will perfect their work—which involves consultation with many senators at each stage—much before the house acts.

The financial committee will probably sit upon the action of the caucus committee, and so the silver question is not likely to figure in a formal way in the proceedings of the senate this week. It is entirely possible, and even probable, that speeches will be delivered upon the subject, but if so, they will be based upon some such resolution as that introduced by Senator Lodge, calling for a vote upon the repeal of the silver purchase section of the Sherman act, and not upon the bill regularly reported from the finance committee, and ready for immediate action.

There is a strong disposition in some quarters to fill in the time during the week by the discussion of the Lee Mantle senatorial election case, which is in a privileged position and can be called up at any time to the displacement of other business.

Silver Excludes Everything.

The program in the house had been definitely fixed by the adoption of an order introduced Friday by Bland. The time will be devoted exclusively to the consideration of the silver question under the rules of the last house governing general debate.

Notwithstanding the apparent lack of interest in the discussion manifested by members Saturday, the number of applicants for recognition already on the speaker's list demonstrates that the period allotted to the debate—11 days under the general rules and three days under the five-minute rule—will be all occupied.

There are now between 90 and 100 names enrolled by the speaker, the great majority of whom probably expect to talk the full hour allowed by the rule. There are a number, however, who have stipulated for shorter periods, generally 20 minutes or half an hour. If it appears that the time for debate will be too short to accommodate all who wish to speak, night sessions will be held to lengthen the period, but this expedient, it is believed, will not become necessary before next week, with the expiration of which the debate will close.

Slow Work.

Since the house entered upon the discussion of the silver question Friday, under an order which will not exhaust itself until the close of next week, the probability that the organization of the house by the adoption of rules and appointment of committees would not be completed for two or three weeks has changed into almost a certainty.

As yet no call for a meeting of the committee on rules has been issued, although one may be tomorrow. One of the members of the majority of the committee when asked about the prospects for action on the rules said that until the present order of the house had expired there was no need of rules. It was impossible to break upon the silver debate with one over the adoption of rules, even were the new code ready to be reported. So, in his opinion, the committee would not be in a hurry to prepare their report. The member further remarked the probabilities were that the rules of the house in the Fifty-second congress, which had been referred to the committee for consideration, would not be materially changed; in fact he expected but few changes of any nature from the system under which the last house was directed.

Pointers From Carlisle.

Secretary Carlisle spent an hour or two with Speaker Crisp in his room at the capitol a few days ago and they probably touched upon the subject of rules in the course of their conversation. Nothing could be more natural than that Mr. Crisp should solicit an opinion from his predecessor in the speaker's chair, and especially from one who won such high reputation as a presiding officer as did Mr. Carlisle in that position, and any suggestions the secretary saw fit to make would doubtless be most carefully considered by the committee.

There is but one rule about which any general interest attaches—the one governing closure. The best obtainable opinion is that there will be no radical change from the rule in force in the last congress, which gave the house power to end debate or prevent filibustering upon any proposition whenever the majority so decided.

In a Bad Fix.

ONEILL, Neb., Aug. 14.—More than a week ago Treasurer Scott left for Sioux City to be absent ostensibly a day. He has not returned and of $70,000 of county funds that should be on hand only $20,000 can be found, three-fourths of that amount being in a defunct bank.

Awful Railway Disaster.

LONDON, Aug. 14.—A train on the Taff Vale railway ran off the track while going rapidly around a curve, and rolled over a steep embankment. Seventeen persons were killed and 40 injured. A number of the carriages were badly smashed.

For Free Coinage.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 14.—The bimetallic league of St. Louis held a stormy meeting and adopted a resolution calling on all voters to pledge themselves not to vote for congressmen who do not support free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1.

Not Looking For Sunday Business.

CHICAGO, Aug. 14.—The exposition was open yesterday, but the attendance was light. The management of the fair offered no attraction of any kind to induce people to come out to the park. There will probably be no more open Sundays.

Diamond Tips.

Ed Crane is trying to get an appointment as league umpire.

Lehane has been playing a superb game at first for the Springfields.

The Philadelphias will now have to keep their eye on the Clevelands.

It looks as if President Young had shelved Umpire Snyder for good.

Burkett, of the Clevelands, in eight games up to Saturday made 22 hits.

Again Pittsburg is without a regular umpire, and there is trouble in that city.

Ulrich, who was given a trial by the Cincinnatis, is playing with the Wilkesbarres.

The Dovers are pressing the Portlands hard, and will come very near to finishing third.

The Smith playing with St. Louis is "Jud" Smith, who was released by the Cincinnatis.

On their first eastern trip the Bostons lost seven games out of 13. It was altogether different on this trip.

Kirmes of the Brocktons has been suffering from a sprained neck. Clark played good ball in his place.

The tone of the Philadelphia press is very mournful nowadays, but Harry Wright is trying to keep a stiff upper lip.

Manager Burns of the Springfields may well fell proud of the three straight defeats administered to the leaders, the Troys.

Hamilton of the Philadelphias will be unable to play again this season. His condition was so serious that his wife was summoned from Clinton.

O'Connor is batting well for the Boston Reds, and is putting up a good game behind the bat. He is a Boston boy. He has a batting percentage of over .300.

The Brooklyns seem to be convinced that Keeler will not do at third base. "Old Reliable" George Schoch has been put there and is doing splendidly.

The Portland club has claimed John O'Brien of the Augusta (Ga.) club. It is said that this player will join the Chicagos, but Manager Garrity may prevail upon him to stay at home.

Anson has signed J. J. O'Brien, infielder; Glenalvin, second baseman; Hugh, pitcher, and Camp, third baseman. It has taken him a long time to find out that his present array are not winners.

Courage Probably Helps Him.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—Physicians are at a loss to account for the wonderful vitality of Harry Richardson, who broke his neck while diving off a springboard at Bath Beach. The accident occurred Aug. 5. Richardson has maintained a very cheerful demeanor, and there is a faint possibility he may recover partially, if not entirely.

Bad Collision In a Fog.

LONDON, Aug. 14.—The British cruiser Forth rammed the British steamer Kirkby off Start point, in a fog, Saturday evening. A bad hole was knocked in the Kirkby's port side amidships. The fires under her boilers were soon extinguished. The undamaged compartments kept her afloat.

Fought Over a Girl.

OAKLAND, Ills., Aug. 12.—At a revival meeting near Ridge Farm a young man named Alexander became engaged in a quarrel with several of the local swains over a girl, and in the fight that followed Alexander used a knife, wounding three men, one fatally. Alexander fled.

A Daring Robbery.

ERIE, Pa., Aug. 14.—Burglars overpowered the watchman at the Nickel Plate freight house, and, after beating him into insensibility, blew open the safe and secured $100 in cash and a large number of checks. They have not been captured.

In Congress.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—The silver debate was continued in the house. It is now considered certain that all of Bland's amendments will be defeated. The senate will wait for the house to vote on the Wilson bill.

"Gold Brick" In the Sucker State.

CANTON, Ills., Aug. 14.—The gold brick swindle was successfully worked on a wealthy farmer named Fisher. Fisher lost $7500, and the three smooth men who worked the trick have decamped.

CURED BY PRAYER.

Remarkable Story of a Once Helpless Paralytic.

VOICE IN DEAD OF NIGHT

Commands Mrs. Murray to Get Up and Walk.

BEVERLY, Mass., Aug. 15.—Mrs. Martin Murray of 36 Bow street is the happiest women in Beverly. A week ago she was a helpless paralytic; today she can walk, and in every nerve she feels the return of health. "I was cured," she says, reverently, "by the grace of God and the power of prayer. It is a miracle."

A miracle indeed, it is believed to be by all Mrs. Murray's friends in the little community where she is widely known from her long and prominent connection with charitable work.

Mrs. Murray was for several years the president of the local Woman's Relief Corps of the Grand Army, and on her retirement from office in 1886 was presented with a handsome gold ring appropriately inscribed. She one time held the office of secretary and at present is treasurer. She is a member of St. Mary's Star of the Sea Catholic church and has long identified herself with church charities.

To a reporter last evening she told the story of her miraculous cure, seated in a rocking chair in her cosy kitchen, and rising once or twice to walk across the room to illustrate the Certainty of the Miracle.

Her husband, Martin Murray, was present and added to his wife's story from time to time with grateful commentary. Mrs. Murray is a bright-faced, blue-eyed slender woman of about 40, with an especially pleasant voice and convincing manner.

"I have been an invalid for all of 2 weeks," she said, "and in all that time I was not able to walk a single step until last Sunday, at 2:30 in the morning, before dawn, when I saw a bright light and heard a voice, and arose from my bed and walked. I was cured by the grace of God and the power of prayer, and I fell upon my knees and gave thanks.

"My sickness began with stomach trouble, and I had an attack of gastric fever which left me very weak and entirely deprived of the use of my legs. They were paralyzed. I could not take a single step. I had to be lifted in and out of bed when I was able to be up, and was only able to get about my house by the use of the rolling chair"—the rolling chair had been incontinently retired to a corner.

"My doctor, Dr. Hayes of Beverly, a very good physician, gave me no hope of recovery. I tried to be patient, but it was very hard; still, I and I believe I bore my sufferings more patiently than some, in consequence. I gave up taking medicine, for it was no use. My husband hired a cottage at Asbury grove, the Methodist camp meeting, thinking the fresh air would bring back my strength, and I stayed there a month, but I grew no better.

Prayed For Patience,

"Two or three weeks ago I began to pray for health. I had lost faith in human help, but I put my trust in God and made a novena to the blessed Virgin. My friends all prayed for me, and my name was specially mentioned for prayers in the church.

"I have always had great faith in prayer. Last Friday Father Curran came and administered the sacrament, and the next day I began feeling much worse, and all day Saturday I was very sick. Saturday night I was carried to bed as usual and at 2:30 Sunday morning I awakened suddenly by a bright light. Then I heard a voice—no, I was not dreaming, it was an actual voice—and it said, 'Your prayers are answered; get up and walk.'

"I awakened my husband and told him of it. He thought I had suddenly lost my mind, but when he had lighted the lamp I got up from the bed and walked without help from the bedroom to the kitchen—a distance of probably 20 feet. Then we both knelt down and gave thanks to God.

"Except for some little weakness I am as well as I ever was. Dr. Hayes was here and he says it is a miracle—he can't account for it in any other way. Everybody has been here with congratulations and I am a very happy woman."

Mr. Murray corroborated his wife's statements earnestly. "From entire helplessness she was raised in an instant, as one might say, to health and strength. Whether it came by a miracle or not, we have the happy result," he said.

And there is little else but "the great miracle" talked of in Beverly.

CAPITAL STOCK REDUCED.

Action of the Directors of the People's Fire Insurance Company.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Aug. 15.—A special meeting of the People's Fire Insurance company was held yesterday and was attended by the largest number of stockholders ever present at a meeting in the history of the organization. President Tuttle presided. The resignations of C. D. McDuffie and Walter Aiken as directors were accepted. The proposition recommended by the directors that the capital stock be reduced to $200,000 was discussed at length.

After discussion, participated in by many of the stockholders, it was unanimously voted to reduce the capital stock to $200,000 and to appoint a committee of five shareholders to act with the advisory committee in investigating the affairs of the company, with instructions to report in four weeks.

ATTLEBORO'S MYSTERY.

What Was Revealed at the Inquest on Patrick McCarthy.

TAUNTON, Mass., Aug. 15.—In the first Bristol district court here the inquest on the body of Patrick McCarthy, found in Whiting's pond, North Attleboro, July 9, was held yesterday.

Medical Examiner Holden described a number of wounds and bruises and said there was an opening into the external jugular vein, and a scalp wound an inch and a half in diameter, under the edges of which were two small pieces of grass.

The autopsy disclosed the heart to be in normal condition, also the stomach. Other organs were normal. The brain was normal and skull not fractured. There was sufficient air in the lungs to float them, and their condition showed that he breathed after being put into the water. The wounds were probably before death. The primary cause of death was the wounds, and the secondary was drowning. The wound in the jugular vein could have caused death. The other wounds would not have necessarily. The body had not been in the water over 24 hours.

The doctor produced a stick of hardwood nearly a yard long, which was found near the body. There were meshes of hair found on the stick corresponding to that of McCarthy in color, length and fineness. The wounds might have been inflicted by such a stick, and the wounds would naturally cause a flow of blood, which would stain the clothing, but the doctor found none.

Dr. J. B. Gerould, J. Q. Heningan, chairman of the North Attleboro selectmen, and J. O'Brien gave testimony of a general character.

Quinn's Case Continued.

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 15.—In the district court at Pawtucket the case against James Quinn, charged with mixing poison with the intent to kill James Galligan, was continued to the 28th inst. to await the result of the chemical analysis of the internal organs of the deceased. Galligan died after drinking liquid supposed to be whiskey at a place owned by Quinn's brother. The prisoner was the barkeeper.

Dull Times at Lynn.

LYNN, Mass., Aug. 15.—Some 200 hands employed in the steel works of the Thomson-Houston works were discharged last evening. Only those who have been with the company for some time and have families were retained. It is claimed that nearly one-half of the 4000 men employed there a month ago are idle.

Little One Instantly Killed.

BOSTON, Aug. 15.—George Donohue, 4 years old, climbed upon an ice wagon which was standing on Foundry street yesterday. The horses started and the boy was thrown to the ground. The wheels passed over his body and he was instantly killed. The driver was in no way to blame for the accident.

Forced Into Insolvency.

RUTLAND, Vt., Aug. 15.—S. M. Dorr & Sons, who did a western bond and mortgage brokerage business here and ran a bank at Bristol, have filed petitions in insolvency. The schedules show liabilities aggregating $142,875, of which $50,000 is secured, and assets of the nominal value of $241,496.

Tourists Improve the Opportunity.

MOUNT WASHINGTON, N. H., Aug. 15.—The reduction of rates for round trip tickets from $5 to $4 between Fabyans and Mount Washington went into effect yesterday. Nearly 200 passengers came to the summit by train, the largest number arriving here in any single day this season.

Evil Design Frustrated.

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 15.—The daughter of Sterry Sweet, a Johnston milkman, had a struggle with an Italian farm hand, who entered her room at midnight. Her screams aroused her father and the man fled. He was captured, however, and held on a charge of attempt to commit rape.

A New "Lung Disease."

DANVERS, Mass., Aug. 15.—A young child of Remi Languiraud has been treated for some time for lung disease by Dr. Frost. Sunday the doctor felt a bunch in the child's chest and medicine was given the child to cause vomiting. A shingle nail was the reward.

Talked Christianity.

OLD ORCHARD, Me., Aug. 15.—The national convention of advocates of Christianity and fidelity met at Ocean park. A grand missionary rally was held, followed by a business meeting. Farewell services were held during the day and evening.

The Second Trial of Dr. Graves.

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 15.—County Attorney Stevens and County Commissioner Twombley of Denver, who have been interviewing the eastern witnesses in the Graves case, left here last night. Stevens said that there would be a second trial.

Rhody's Legislative Farce.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 15.—The "rump" house of representatives met yesterday according to adjournment and adjourned to Wednesday, in accordance with custom, as they had received no official notice from the supreme court of its decision.

Off For Naval Reserves.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 15.—Coast defense vessel Miantonomah has sailed for Bristol, where the naval reserves will be taken aboard. The Newport reserves will not have their tour off duty until the season closes late in September.

Not Severe Enough.

BOSTON, Aug. 15.—Yee Wung, a Chinaman about 17 years old and a resident of Chinatown, was given six months in the house of correction for an indecent assault upon a 3 year-old girl. He pleaded guilty to the charge.

Vigilant Came In First.

COTTAGE CITY, Mass., Aug. 15.—The Vigilant won the run from Newport, beating the Jubilee and the Colonia two miles. Among the schooners the Lasca and Constellation won.

Grover Went Fishing.

BUZZARD'S BAY, Mass., Aug. 15.—The president and Dr. Bryant were down the bay fishing three hours yesterday. The rest of the day was passed quietly at home.

The First Frost.

WATERBURY, Conn., Aug. 15.—There was a slight frost apparent on the fences yesterday morning, but no damage to crops.

OUTLOOK FOR REPEAL

Does Not Appear to Be So Bright as Heretofore.

SERIOUS QUESTION ARISES

Concerning a Veto Under Certain Conditions.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—The more the financial situation is discussed in congress and the more conferences are held the more cloudy and complicated the situation appears. The silver men are much more confident now of defeating the unconditional repeal of the Sherman law than they have been before. There will be no occasion for surprise if the extra session proves useless so far as the purpose for which it was called together goes. The indications still are that unconditional repeal will go through the house, yet this cannot be relied on in view of the possibility of change between now and the time for taking the vote.

If members were compelled to vote on the naked proposition of repeal or not repeal, without the chance of amendment or condition, there is little doubt that the repeal bill would be passed by a respectable majority. A large number of members who are conditional repeal men argue that they are pledged by the Democratic national platform to two propositions—the repeal of the Sherman law and the maintenance of bimetallism. The question whether the two things shall be handled in one bill is one of policy.

Figuring on the President.

Fearing that if the legislation favorable to silver were not attached as a condition to the repeal of the silver purchasing law the president might not approve of the silver legislation, they regard it as policy to combine the two, yet they would not feel warranted in refusing to vote for the repeal of the silver purchasing law unconditionally if the attempts to amend it failed. They would feel if confronted with the naked proposition that they would have to vote for repeal. But this is not what they want.

Counting these men in their canvass the anti-silver men can show a larger majority for repeal than they can rely on to vote with them on the various propositions that come up by way of amendment. What they rely on, however, is that some of the men who would vote for free coinage at a ratio of 16 to 1 will not vote for a ratio of 18 or 20 to 1, should the first proposition fail, and that some who are willing to vote for 18 or 20 will not vote for 16, leaving the silver men therefore divided on the question of ratios.

Antis Are Ahead.

There is, however, a possibility which should not be lost sight of, that when the house comes to vote on the amendment providing a ratio of 20 to 1, it may have strength enough to carry it through. From the present outlook the anti-silver men appear to have the best of it in the house.

Should a 20 to 1 amendment be adopted by the house it would be mighty apt to go through the senate. The impression is growing stronger every day that an unconditional repeal is impossible in the senate. The silver men are very strong numerically in that body and have such power under the rules as to make it practically impossible to force through legislation which they are determined shall not pass. The probabilities are that the struggle there will be a very long one, and the indications are that a condition will be put on the bill.

No Compromise.

In this connection arises the serious question of whether the president would sign a bill even to secure the repeal of the silver purchasing law if it carried with it a provision for the coinage of silver. It is said that he is determined to stand by the issue of unconditional repeal or nothing, and that if a bill should go to him providing for the repeal of the obnoxious law, and for the free coinage of silver at 20 to 1, or even a greater ratio, he would veto it without any hesitation, preferring to rely on the administration of the present law than to have a new law still holding silver in its present position as a money metal through the efforts of the government only. There is, therefore, the possibility confronting the country of a long agitation of the question without any practical results in the way of legislation.

Coinage Question In England.

LONDON, Aug. 15.—In the house of commons Robert L. Everett (Liberal) asked that the house, in view of the fact that a bill for the free coinage of silver, at a ratio of 24 to 1, had been introduced in the senate of the United States, declare that the time was opportune for Great Britain and the United States to establish a durable par basis for gold and silver. Mr. Gladstone replied that the bill referred to by Mr. Everett in no way represented the views of the United States government. Its introduction, therefore, could not form a suitable opportunity for communication with the government, apart from the question whether the passage of such a bill by the congress of the United States would justify the opening of communications.

The Old Hancock House Remodelled—The New Stores Around It.

The old Hancock House, which has stood for years at the entrance to the depot yard, has undergone many changes during the past few months.

Around the west, south and east sides eleven handsome stores have been erected, all of which, with three exceptions, have been let; some are already occupied and the others will be this week.

The stores are all finished in natural wood, and the walls have been tinted in a neat color. Each has large show windows and are wired for electricity.

The firms to occupy the stores that have been let are: C. C. Hearn, druggist; C. F. Carlson, variety; F. T. Appleton, paper hangings; Eugene W. Gillett, cigars; Gallagher's Express, Quincy Gas Light Co., C. J. Sommers, barber, and the School Committee.

The old hotel part has also undergone many changes. Part of the rooms have been included in the stores and some of the others have been enlarged so that there are now outside of the kitchen and dining rooms 45 rooms. These rooms have all been painted and papered and are wired for electric lights. In all of the rooms on the second and third floor are small steam radiators. On the second and third floor large new bath rooms have been put in. The basement has all been cemented and here is located the Walworth steam heating apparatus, which heats the entire building, including the stores.

The carpentering work has been under the direction of Warren Higgins who has certainly done a good job for everything is in first class shape.

The whole outside of the building is to be painted and when this is completed it will present an attractive appearance.

The hotel will be opened by Mrs. Lapham.

POLICE IMPROVEMENTS.

An Officer on Duty at Station Nights—Telephone Connections.

Mayor Fairbanks has inaugurated a new system in the police department that will fill a long felt want. Heretofore one officer only has been on duty at night in the centre, and as he was obliged to be upon the streets, the police station has been left to its own care. This has at times proved inconvenient as in case an officer was needed at night it has been necessary to hunt up the night patrolman, and the chances are that he would be at the extreme end of his beat.

By the new arrangement which goes into effect tonight, Officer Hanson will go on duty at the police station and remain there all night. The station will also be connected by telephone so that communication can be had with the police at all hours of the day or night.

The advantage of this change can be readily seen, for now, instead of running about trying to find an officer, a telephone to the police station will have the desired effect.

SNAPS FOR BARGAIN SEEKERS.—The stock of Henry L. Kincaide & Co. 5 to 25 per cent. lower than Boston prices.

THE PEACE CONGRESS.

An Extract from the Opening Address of Mr. Josiah Quincy.

Yesterday the fifth World's peace congress opened at the World's Fair. Mr. Josiah Quincy, as president, made the opening address from which we make the following extract:

"The position of absolutely unquestioned security which the United States occupies, not only among the nations of the American continent but among all the countries of the world, is the most striking example which history can show of the peaceful influence of a great nation.

"It has, beyond all question, been a most fortunate thing for the world that so large a part of the territory of the North American continent has been united under one government. The smaller the number of the powers which divide the earth's surface between them, the greater becomes the chance of the maintenance of peace, for thus we approach more nearly toward that final unity of all mankind under one government, which constitutes the political ideal.

"But the successful maintenance of such great national units is only possible in fully civilized nations under certain essential conditions of internal government.

"National unity on a great scale can be secured only in two ways—by centralized imperialism or local self-government. The former rests of necessity upon an insecure foundation and affords no guaranty of permanency: it belongs rather to the past than to the future. The latter, on the other hand, with the elasticity and opportunity for growth which it gives to the political system, affords the best possible basis for lasting unity.

"The federal system, as it has been developed in the United States, the union under a federal government of limited powers of states which retain full rights of local government, not so large in territory as to include to great diversity of interest, must rank as a political discovery of the first importance.

"It was the great elasticity of our system of state governments, joined together in a federal nation, which kept this country united up to the time of the civil war, and which has enabled it with such wonderful rapidity to recover from the consequences of that war and to bring about a complete restoration of the old political status.

"It is altogether unlikely that it would be possible to hold together this nation, in spite of its territorial unity, if legislative and executive power were entirely centralized at Washington.

"The direct participation of the people in their own government and free choice of their own rulers is, in my opinion, another influence that tends strongly to give a pacific character to the United States. The great body of the people have always been less inclined to war than the ruling classes who have governed them in the past.

"The ambitions of individuals, which have played so large a part formerly in bringing on wars, are almost entirely eliminated under a great democracy.

"Nor should the fact be overlooked that the United States has, in its supreme court, established a tribunal bearing a closer analogy to the international court, which is the ideal at which the peace movement aims, than any yet created by man.

"A court in which self-governing states appear as plaintiffs and defendants, even though they are united by a federal bond, must certainly be regarded as a step towards that still higher tribunal which we hope and believe the nations of the earth will one day establish for the settlement of disputes between them."

Walter L. Main's Circus.

The Walter L. Main's circus showed to a full house last evening, the mammoth tent being packed with people. We do not exaggerate when we say the show was equal to that of any circus performance ever given here and a great deal better than the majority of them. Every feature introduced was of that character which stamps it as first-class upon first appearance. The performance was given in three rings and at times there were other features going on outside of them. The aerial feats were daring and skillfully performed as were many other acts of daring. The Roman Hippodrome part of the entertainment was not only interesting but exciting. It consisted of chariot races, barrel and obstacle races, Roman standing races, cowboy and pony races, lady riders and many other features too numerous to mention. There were plenty of horses and no show can have finer ones, while the menagerie was a splendid exhibit of the animal kingdom. It was also a noticeable feature that there were no fakes nor robbing schemes permitted on the grounds, while the entire show was clear cut and of a high standard throughout. Everything going to make up the show is entirely new, while the performers were selected from the upper ranks of professiontl people and they stand second to none. To do still bigger business this show only needs to play return dates. —Steubenville Evening Star.

Picnic Prizes.

Tomorrow the Catholic Sunday schools of the city will hold their annual picnic at Lovell's grove. Prizes for the sports will be:

Sack race, first prize $1, second prize 50 cents.

Bicycle races, silver badge, and for novices, prizes in money value to the amount of $5, $3 and $2.

EIGHTEEN DELEGATES.

Quincy Entitled to that Representation at Republican State Convention.

According to the statement issued by the Republican State committee, this city will be entitled to 18 delegates at the coming State convention, as follows:

	Vote for Harrison.	Delegates at Large.	On Numerical Basis.	Total.
Ward One,	330	1	3	4
Ward Two,	223	1	2	3
Ward Three,	267	1	2	3
Ward Four,	225	1	2	3
Ward Five,	293	1	2	3
Ward Six,	145	1	1	2

The basis of representation is one delegate at large for each ward of a city, and for each town; one delegate for the first 75 votes cast for Republican Presidential electors in 1892, in each ward of a city and in each town; one delegate for each succeeding 150 votes cast for Republican Presidential electors in 1892 in each ward of a city and in each town, or for a fractional part as large as 75 votes so cast.

Ward Five would have been entitled to an additional delegate had it cast 7 more votes, and 5 more would have given Ward Six another.

The representation of the twelve smallest cities is: Fitchburg, 24; Gloucester, 25; Waltham, 23; Pittsfield, 21; Quincy, 18; Northampton, 20; Chicopee, 14; Newburyport, 18; Marlboro, 19; Woburn. 17; Medford, 15; Everett, 15.

The neighboring towns will be represented as follows: Weymouth, 9; Braintree, 5; Milton, 4; Hyde Park, 9; Dedham, 6; Canton, 4; Randolph, 4; Holbrook, 3; Hingham, 5; Hull, 1; Cohasset, 3.

There will be 2114 delegates to the convention.

1000 Men and Horses Employed.

A STOMACH LIKE AN INDIAN,

Why the Indians Never Have Dyspepsia, Yet are Careless Eaters.

No one could accuse an Indian of over-carefulness in eating. He ate what nature gave him—berries from the wood, spoil from his traps, game from his bow. He ate plenty of it, ate till he was full. It was not very well cooked sometimes, and he often ate fast.

When hunting or fighting a day would often pass without anything being eaten at all.

Yet he never had dyspepsia.

He never "dieted."

We hear too much about "dieting" these days.

A man musn't eat pie, or cabbage, or cake, or beans, or this and that.

He musn't eat very much and he must do it very slow. He must never drink when he eats. He musn't hurry. He musn't worry. And so it goes.

This is all very good advice. But it would worry a man to death to remember it all. Why can't we live like the Indian in a healthy, hearty, natural way? Because we have such weak stomachs. But how did the Indian possess such perfect strong, digestion? By taking that medicine of his, Sagwa, whenever he felt there was anything wrong with him. That Sagwa we have now employed him to make for us. If you would take the natural American remedy for dyspepsia, Kickapoo Sagwa, you, too, would not know what a weak stomach or dyspepsia was.

Thanks to the efforts of the Kickapoo Medicine Company, Indian Sagwa and other Kickapoo Indian remedies are obtainable of any druggist, and their genuine curative value is beyond comparison.

Kickapoo Indian Sagwa.

$1.00 per Bottle, 6 Bottles for $5.00.

There was a young man from Bombay, who was rather inclined to be gay; he went to bed late, but we're happy to state our alarm clocks aroused him next day.

A party of ladies and gentlemen who were invited to take a sail in Mr. Hunt's steam launch Saturday had a rather unpleasant time. While taking an evening sail off the spit, the boiler burst. As this was the only means of propulsion they were at the mercy of the tide which at this point is very strong. The surrounding yachts could lend no aid as it was a flat calm. One yacht owner loaned the Captain a pair of sweeps and after some trouble the party reached shore.

The Brockton Despatch says, "The Brockton Clam Eaters, who are to hold their annual clambake at Raccoon Island, August 27, have issued a humorous invitation to their members to be present on that occasion. The clam bake is to be opened at 3 P. M. and no man will be allowed to go away either hungry or dry. The executive committee having the matter in charge is composed of L. Freemont Wade, president; Andy Dimmick, secretary and treasurer; Augustus B. Loring and Elijah Smith."

Mr. Geo. D. Hicks of Roxbury is visiting at Saint's Rest.

Mr. Frank Jacobs of Roxbury has the highest record for a string of ten pins. He stands 196 in ten frames.

Mr. T. J. Collins, a young man of newspaper experience, enters upon his duties this afternoon as Houghs Neck correspondent of the DAILY LEDGER, and is the only authorized agent of the paper at the beach. He will visit all the cottages at least once a week, and the publishers can promise that the DAILY LEDGER will be much newsier. Any assistance shown and favors extended will be appreciated.

In Case of Drowning.

Much has been said about bathing, etc., and a few concise rules to be followed in cases of drowning, given by a standard authority may be timely:

1. Loosen clothing, if any.
2. Empty lungs of water by laying body on its stomach and lifting it by the middle so that the head hangs down. Jerk the body a few times.
3. Pull tongue forward, using handkerchief, or pin with string, if necessary.
4. Imitate motion of respiration by alternately compressing and expanding the lower ribs, about twenty times a minute. Alternately raising and lowering the arms from the sides up above the head will stimulate the action of the lungs. Let it be done gently but persistently.
5. Apply warmth and friction to extremities.
6. By holding tongue forward, closing the nostrils and pressing the "Adam's apple" back, (so as to close entrance to stomach), direct inflation may be tried. Take a deep breath and breathe it forcibly into mouth of patient, compress the chest to expel the air, and repeat the operation.
7. Don't Give Up. People have been saved, after hours of patient, vigorous effort.
8. When breathing begins get patient into a warm bed, give warm drinks or spirits in teaspoonfuls, fresh air and quietness.

The Last Week.

Positively no coupons in the popularity contest will be printed after next Saturday, although candidates will have until Aug. 28 in which to vote. Some candidates make slight gains today.

LIKE RATS IN A TRAP.

Guests In a Chicago Hotel Are Forced to Face Death.

CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—A hotel fire, resulting in the death of a number of the guests, occurred yesterday morning. The fire was in the Senate hotel, a three-story structure on Madison street, near Fifth avenue. The loss on the building and contents is practically total, but as the structure was old and the furnishings cheap the amount will not exceed a few thousand dollars.

A restaurant occupied the ground floor and the Senate hotel the two upper ones. It contained 36 rooms and held 30 guests when the fire broke out, shortly after 6 a. m. The rooms were separted by flimsy wooden partitions, and proved good food for fire. The blaze started in the office on the second floor and spread rapidly through that and the upper rooms. Before the guests could be warned the flames had cut off the escape of a number from the stairways and they were caught like rats in a trap. J. Gooche is the landlord of the Senate, and J. Ohren manager.

The list of dead is as follows: Harry Godfrey, aged 7; Edward Short, aged 24; Mrs. Fannie Reed, 27 years old, a widow; Philip Cronberg, aged 21, of Little Rock; William K. Ulroy, aged 17, of Buchanan, Mich.; unknown man, 35 years old; May C. D. Taylor of Hot Springs; unknown man, about 23 years old.

Rape Fiend Summarily Dealt With.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Aug. 15.—Monroe Smith, a negro, criminally assaulted Mrs. D. E. Sears, a white woman, near Spring Hill, Sunday afternoon. A posse pursued him all night and captured him yesterday. After hanging Smith to a tree the mob filled his body with bullets and then cast it into a creek.

Chilled Air.

Possibly you don't know much about refrigerators. Plenty don't who think they do. All season long selling at 20 per cent. discount,—a wonderfully little price and everyone knows it. But there are a few left, look at them, figure 30 per cent. discount from the manufacturer's list and the chest is yours. Nuff said. Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

You can be Happy.

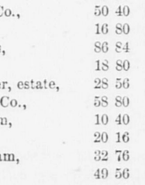

You know you ought to be bright, cheerful, and happy.

You determine each day that you will be happy yourself, and make others so.

The day is not very old before your brightness is gone, your nerves go "all to pieces," and you are helpless on the couch.

You have falling or displacement of the womb,—causing "bearing down feeling" and backache,—perhaps ovarian troubles, with inflammation of the uterus and leucorrhœa.

Then remember Lydia E. Pinkham made a great discovery. Her Vegetable Compound has cured thousands just like you, and will you. It is given you by a woman who gave her life to the study of your troubles.

Fair are the flowers and the children, but their subtle suggestion is fairer;
Rare is the rose burst of dawn, but the secret that clasps it is rarer;
Sweet the exultance of song, but the strain that precedes it is sweeter,
And never was poem yet writ but the meaning outmastered the meter.

Never a daisy that grows but a mystery guideth the growing;
Never a river that flows but a majesty sceptersthe flowing;
Never a Shakespeare that soared but a stronger than he did enfold him;
Never a prophet foretells but a mightier seer hath foretold him.

Back of the canvas that throbs the painter is hinted and hidden;
Into the statue that breathes the soul of the sculptor is bidden;
Under the joy that is felt lie the infinite issues of feeling;
Crowning the glory revealed is the glory that crowns the revealing.

Great are the symbols of being, but that which is symboled is greater;
Vast the create and behold, but vaster the inward creator;
Back of the sound broods the silence; back of the gift stands the giving;
Back of the hand that received thrill the sensitive nerves of receiving.

Space is as nothing to spirit; the deed is outdone by the doing;
The heart of the wooer is warm, but warmer the heart of the wooing;
And up from the pits where these shiver, and up from the heights where those shine,
Twin voices and shadows swim starward, and the essence of life is divine.

A Double Tragedy.

PENSACOLA, Fla., Aug. 14.—Mrs. A. W. Dunham, wife of a notorious character, was found in her bed with her throat cut and several stab wounds in her body. Her husband lay at her side, his throat also being cut. He had lived a very bad life for many years. He recently tried to have his wife return to him. A few years ago he was tried for murder and one of his sons killed his brother.

FOR FIFTEEN ROUNDS

Alec Greggains Stood Up Before Dan Creedon

FORMER STARTED IN BEST

But His Strength Failed Him Toward the End.

ROBY, Ind., Aug. 15.—Dan Creedon of Australia, middleweight champion of the colonies and possessor of the Australian belt, defeated Alexander Greggains of Boston, champion middleweight of the Pacific coast, last night, in the arena of the Columbian Athleti c club for a purse of $5000 and a side bet of $2000.

The spectators numbered 5000, and included many noted sporting men. Among those present were the maharajah of Kapurthala, who is visiting the World's fair, and George Francis Train.

At 10 o'clock, Creedon appeared in the ring; Greggains followed a moment later. Both men looked in the very pink of condition, their appearance eliciting hearty applause. Creedon's seconds were Tom Tracy, Sam Fitzpatrick and Martin Costello, with Colonel J. Hopkins as the timekeeper. Greggains' seconds were Joe King, Billy Smith, Joe Lewis and Billy Hennesey, with Warren Lewis as timekeeper. At 10:20 the men shook hands and began round one.

The Fighting Begins.

Greggains tried for Creedon's neck, but was stopped. Creedon rushed his man, but Greggains ducked. Creedon got a hot one in the neck and slipped down on one knee. Greggins got in two face blows and the round ended in his favor.

In the second round Greggains tried rushing tactics, but was met with a stinger in the face, followed by numerous others. It was give and take, with honors easy. Creedon landed freely toward the end of the round and it ended in his favor.

In the third round Creedon landed on Greggains' stomach. Greggains landed on Creedon's face. Greggains' generalship was much applauded. This round was much in Greggains' favor.

In the fourth round Greggains landed first on Creedon's face, and followed several times on the ribs, but got somt good stomach punches.

In the fifth round Greggains caught Creedon with his right and left on the head. Creedon also landed two stomach punches, but got if in the face.

Plucky Greggains.

In the sixth round Creedon rushed his man, and soon had him bleeding at the mouth. Creedon then scored the first knockdown and almost had his man finished, but Greggains came gamely to the scratch.

The seventh round started in with Creedon doing his man up fast, but Greggains held his own gamely. Creedon found Greggains' face twice in rapid succession.

Both men in the eighth round seemed to want to make it hot. Greggains seemed to have his second wind, but Creedon rushed his man, and Greggains seemed not to have strength to stay. The gong saved him.

In the ninth round Creedon landed on the ribs several times, getting some facers in return. Both landed on the stomach, but Creedon had the best of the bout.

The tenth round found both showing signs of weakness. Greggains landed on Creedon's nose. Creedon, however, kept at work and had his man groggy when the bell sounded.

Creedon Forces Matters.

In the 11th round Creedon landed frequently, making Greggains bleed freely at the mouth.

During the 12th round Creedon landed twice on the stomach and got a facer in return.

In the 13th round Creedon landed freely on Greggains' wind. Greggains received heavy face punishment and was staggering when the bell sounded.

In the fourteenth the men made it a hot fight. Creedon received several hard ones in the face, but worked for Greggains' wind, and finally began to have his man groggy.

In the fifteenth round Creedon, by a heavy blow on the lower part of the face, knocked Greggains out within one minute after entering the ring.

The fight lasted 55 minutes.

VEST'S POSITION.

Will Resist Repeal Unless Coupled With Bimetallism.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—The free and unlimited coinage of both gold and silver, without discrimination against either metal, found a strong and eloquent advocate in the senate yesterday in the person of Mr. Vest of Missouri, who made a three hours' speech on that topic, based on a resolution offered by him last Tuesday. Mr. Vest was emphatic, as he always is, and made it very plain that he would resist to the last extremity the repeal of the Sherman act unless that repeal was coupled with bimetallism.

GEORGE G. VEST.

A bill was introduced by Mr. Voorhees of Indiana and was referred to the finance committee of which he is chairman, allowing national banks to issue notes to the par value of the bonds deposited, or to be deposited, in the treasury, not to exceed, however, the paid-in capital stock of the banks. This bill was accompanied by a letter from the secretary of the treasury approving it, and stating that its passage would at once increase the national bank issue, on the bonds already deposited, by $19,000,000.

Some important resolutions were offered and laid aside for future action, one by Mr. Hill of New York restricting legislation at the present session to financial subjects, and two by Senators Mitchell of Oregon and Gallinger of New Hampshire, that there shall be no change in the tariff laws during this congress.

The Day In the House was devoted to speechmaking. The greatest attention was paid to Mr. Warner of New York, but he seemed scarcely so much at home as he would have been had the tariff been the suject matter of debate. Mr. Patterson of Tennessee also was slow in securing an audience. When he did so it was an enthusiastic and appreciative one. Mr. Pendleton (Dem. W. Va.) maintained his position in favor of the Wilson bill in a good manner, and answered the many questions plied to him with ease and courtesy. Mr. Bailey of Texas gracefully and quietly presented the resolutions which impelled him to vote for a coinage bill, and the house at 5 o'clock adjourned, while his colleague, Hutchinson, was still holding the floor on the same side of the perplexed question.

HIGH EXCHANGE RATES

Responsible For a New Order Concerning Certain Pension Payments.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—The president, under date of Aug. 10, 1893, has issued an executive order directing that so much of the executive order of May 7, 1877, as provides that pensions due to inmates of the various branches of the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers shall be paid at the agency in Washington is thereby revoked. It is also said that after July 1, 1893, all pensions due to inmates of the several branches of said home shall be paid by the pension agent in whose agency district said branch home is located.

It is said at the interior department that this order is made in consequence of the high rate of exchange between the western towns, where very many of the homes are located, and New York. It is expected that the saving in exchange alone to the several homes will be approximately $25,000 a year.

A Reasonable Conclusion.

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 15.—The statement is made by Robert A. Brown, treasurer of the New Haven savings bank, that depositors in this city are persistently drawing out their money at every opportunity and have already drawn nearly $3,000,000. He asserts that the depositors themselves are at the bottom of the scare as far as banks are concerned, and that the large amount of money stored away is the prime cause of the stringency in the local money market.

Steamer Sarnia Overdue.

MONTREAL, Aug. 15.—The Dominion line steamer Sarnia, with a general cargo and 50 passengers, which left here July 30, for Liverpool, was spoken Aug. 7 by the steamer Ripon City, hence for Glasgow, 500 miles east of Newfoundland, with machinery disabled. She refused assistance. Nothing has since been heard of the Sarnia, and her arrival in Liverpool is awaited with some anxiety.

—Josiah Quincy has surely acquired the Clevelandesque style of expression since he has been at Washington. His interview in regard to the candidacy for governor and mayor ably illustrates this. —A Baltimore firm sold recently 1,500 tons of hay for shipment to France.

—The Boston Home Journal thinks the amount of censure that has been heaped upon the Railroad Commissioners for declining to permit the railroads to run "excursion" trains on Sundays, seems to be wholly unjust. This on the face might appear to be a Puritanical move, but when it is remembered that these Sunday excursions merely draw forth the rough crowds and scattered them broadcast it seems as though any effort to check it, ought to be upheld rather than condemned. No action has been taken limiting legitimate Sunday travel, and it is not likely that there will be.

UNCLE SAM FAVORED

By the Decision of the Behring Sea Tribunal.

A HISTORY OF THE CASE

And Why It Was Submitted to Arbitration.

PARIS, Aug. 16.—The decision of the Behring sea tribunal of arbitration was handed down yesterday. After a preamble stating the case submitted for decision, the full text of the award runs as follows:

We decide and determine as to the five points mentioned in article 6 as to which our award is to embrace a distinct decision upon each of them.

As to the first of said five points, we, Baron de Courcel, John M. Harlan, Lord Hannen, Sir John S. D. Thompson, Marquis Emilio Visconti Venosta and Gregorey W. W. Cram, being a majority of said arbitrators, do decide as follows:

By the ukase of 1821 Russia claimed jurisdiction in the sea now known as Behring sea to the extent of 100 Italian miles from the coasts and islands belonging to her; but in the course of the negotiations which led to the conclusion of the treaty of 1824 with the United States and the treaty of 1825 with Great Britain Russia admitted that her jurisdiction in said sea should be restricted so as to reach a cannon shot from shore. It appears that from that time up to the time of the cession of Alaska to the United States Russia never asserted in fact or exercised any exclusive jurisdiction in Behring sea, or any exclusive rights to the seal fisheries therein, beyond the ordinary limit of territorial waters.

As to the second of the five points we decide and determine that Great Britain did not recognize or concede any claim upon the part of Russia to exclusive jurisdiction as to the seal fisheries in Behring sea outside the ordinary territorial waters.

"The Pacific Ocean."

As to the third point, as to so much there as requires us to decide whether the body water now known as Behring sea was included in the phrase "Pacific ocean" as used in the treaty of 1825 between Great Britain and Russia, we unanimously decide to determine that the body of water now known as Behring sea was included in the phrase "Pacific ocean" as used in said treaty.

On the fourth point we decide and determine that all the rights of Russia to jurisdiction and to the seal fisheries passed to the United States limited by the cession.

On the ninth point we decide and determine that the United States have no right to the protection of or property in the seals frequenting the islands of the United States in Behring sea when found outside the ordinary three-mile limit.

Summed Up.

This last decision was made by arbitrators John T. Morgan, Baron de Courcel, Marquis Visconti Venosta and Judge Cram; Lord Hannen, John M. Harlan and Sir John Thompson dissenting.

A close season is established, to begin May 1 and to continue until July 31. This close season shall be observed both in the North Pacific and in the Behring sea.

A protected zone is established, extending for 60 miles around the islands.

Pelagic sealing is allowed outside the zone in Behring sea from Aug. 1.

The use of firearms in sealing is prohibited.

The American arbitrators have expressed their satisfaction with the text of the decision. They believe that the regulations decided upon by the tribunal mean practically the end of pelagic sealing and that they are better terms than were heretofore offered to the United States by Great Britain as a settlement of the questions involved.

How It Came About.

The differences in connection with the seal fisheries between the United States and Great Britain resulted in an agreement between the two countries for the appointment of a joint high commission which should settle finally the matter in dispute. Considerable delay took place in signing the treaty for a joint commission, and it was not until Feb. 20, 1892, that it was formally signed, but it was not ratified by the United States senate until a month later. The joint commission spent several months in Behring sea gathering all the information possible to bear on the proposed arbitration. The report of the commission was not satisfactory, and no agreement between the two countries was arrived at. It was shown, however, that since Alaska came into the possession of the United States the number of seals had gradually diminished, and this decrease was shown to be due to the destruction of the animals by sealers.

A Hitch.

There was a disagreement as to the source of this destruction, the United States commissioners charging it to the deep-sea killing carried on by Canadian sealers, while the British representatives attributed it to the killing of seals permitted under contract by the United States treasury. On the 29th of February, 1892, a treaty was signed in Washington by Mr. Blaine on the part of the United States and Sir Julian Pauncefote on the part of Great Britain, by which the whole controversy was relegated to an international arbitration commission to be composed of seven members. The points to be submitted to arbitration were set out in the sixth article of the treaty as follows:

The Sixth Article.

1. What exclusive jurisdiction in the sea known as the Behring sea, and what exclusive rights in the seal fisheries therein did Russia assert and exercise prior and up to the time of the cession of Alaska to the United States?

2. How far were these claims of jurisdiction as to the seal fisheries recognized and conceded by Great Britain?

3. Was the body of water now known as Behring sea included in the phrase "Pacific Ocean" as used in the treaty of 1825 between Great Britain and Russia, and what rights, if any, in Behring sea were held and exclusively exercised by Russia after said treaty?

4. Did not all the rights of Russia as to jurisdiction and as to the seal fisheries in Behring sea east of the water boundary, in the treaty between the United States and Russia of the 30th of March, 1867, pass unimpaired to the United States under the treaty?

5. Has the United States any right, and if so what right, of protection of property in the fur seals frequenting the islands of the United States in Behring sea when such seals are found outside the ordinary three-mile limit?

The Arbitrators.

These points were to be decided by seven arbitrators, two to be named by the president, two by the queen, one by the president of the French republic and one each by the king of Italy and the king of Sweden and were to meet in Paris.

The question of damages was settled to the satisfaction of both governments, and on the 18th of April Secretary Blaine and Sir Julian Pauncefote concluded a new modus vivendi providing for a close season, as did that of 1891, but including the agreements as to damages, and it was sent to the senate April 19, 1892.

Briefly stated, these articles prohibit the British and Americans from seal killing in Behring sea and islands, save 7000 seals to be taken on the islands for the subsistence of the natives during the arbitration, provide for the seizure of offending vessels and permit the residence of British agents on the islands during the season. Articles 3 and 6 read as follows:

More Fine Points.

Article 3. If the result of the arbitration be to affirm the right of British sealers to take seals in Behring sea within the bounds claimed by the United States under its purchase from Russia, then compensation shall be made by the United States to Great Britain for the use of her subjects for abstaining from the exercise of that right during the pendency of the arbitration upon the basis of such a regulated and limited catch or catches as in the opinion of the arbitrators might have been taken without an undue diminution of the seal herds, and on the other hand, if the result of the arbitration shall be to deny the right of British sealers to take seals within the said waters, then compensation shall be made by Great Britain to the United States (for itself, its citizens and lessees) for this agreement, to limit the island catch to 7500 seals upon the basis of the difference between their number and such larger catch as in the opinion of the arbitrators might have been taken without an undue diminution of the seal herd. The amount awarded, if any, in either case shall be such as, under all the circumstances, is just and equitable and shall be promptly paid.

Article 6. This convention may be renounced by either of the high contracting parties any time after the 31st day of October, 1893, on giving to the parties two months' notice of its termination, and at the expiration of this notice the convention shall cease to be in force.

WORTH $300,000,000.

Southern Negroes Only Free by Tolerance of the Whites.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 16.—A number of notable colored men assembled in this city and formed the Anti-Lynching league. The object is to appeal to congress for legislation to punish lynchers when the state authorities are derelict. Isaac C. Wear made a stirring address amidst the utmost excitement, which reached a climax when Rev. William H. Heard of Wilmington, Del., addressed the assemblage. He declared the negroes of the south are worth $300,000,000, but were free by tolerance only.

"Where is God?" demanded Rev. Mr. Cook, springing to his feet.

"Where he was when we were slaves, where he is now, where he will be when we are all murdered," retorted Rev. Mr. Heard.

A scene of wild confusion followed. Men stood on chairs and shouted at each other. In vain the chairman called for order. The meeting would have permanently disrupted had not the committee with the resolutions come in to report. Hon. Frederick Douglass is to be made president of the league.

Newfoundland's New Volcano.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Aug. 16.—The reports of a volcanic eruption at the summit of Cape Harrison, Labrador, are confirmed. Smoke and flames are visible nightly for many miles. Fishermen who landed to examine the phenomenon fled in terror, finding a huge cavity with flames issuing from it.

After Warm Weather Is Over.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Ex-Commissioner of the General Land Office Carter of Montana, who was chairman of the national Republican committee last fall, is in town. Mr. Carter said the national committee would not be opened until after the warm weather.

Small Reward For Their Pains.

COFFEYVILLE, Kas., Aug. 16.—Two unmasked men entered the Missouri Pacific office here and covered Night Clerk Hodges with a revolver. The robbers only secured $7.25. A posse is after them.

Started on a Training Cruise.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—The United States cruiser San Francisco steamed out to sea yesterday on a six-days' training cruise with the Rochester and Philadelphia naval reserve battalions aboard.

Northern and eastern beef cattle—There was a limited supply and an active demand. Slaughterers were looking for good cattle. A few of the best heads of western cattle were sold by exporters to home slaughterers at prices ¼ cent stronger than those received last week. Exporters find it hard to obtain currency to pay for their western cattle, and therefore there were light receipts.

Milch cows and springers—The supply was fair, with the demand fairly active. A few first-class buyers could not be induced to pay the prices asked by the drovers.

Sheep and lambs—All the arrivals from the west were sent direct to slaughter houses. New England stock were the only offerings on the market. Prices showed no change from those quoted one week ago.

Veal calves—Values showed no change from those quoted last week.

Western beef cattle—The stock was consigned to shippers and exporters. The stock was all intended for export trade, but home slaughterers bought a few of the best beeves. Values were quoted at ¼c firmer than last week.

Western swine—Western swine were quoted from 5½c to 6¾c pr lb, live weight.

KEENE BROS. ASSIGN

Drowning of Senior Partner Probably Explained.

HARD PRESSED FOR MONEY.

News Which Caused a Great Sensation In Lynn.

LYNN, Mass., Aug. 16.—Keene Bros., shoe manufacturers of this city, have assigned. B. N. Johnson, a lawyer of Boston, and who is a resident of this city, is the assignee. This presumably solves the reason of W. G. S. Keene's sudden death in Nahant waters last Thursday.

The news of the assignment last evening spread like a whirlwind. The exact reason of the assignment is not known, but a broker's check for $12,000 plays an important part in it.

It was but a short time ago that Keene Bros. were considered the largest shoe manufacturers in the country, as they had three factories, one in South Berwick, Me., one in Skowhegan, Me., and the other on Willow street in this city, with a capacity of 12,000 pairs a day. All this has dwindled down. Shoe business in their Lynn factory has been dull for over a year. W. G. S. Keene and his brother Frank Keene as partner worked earnestly together and had the reputation of being Hustlers In the Shoe Craft.

A friend of theirs said last evening to a reporter: "It was not of their shoe business that this old shoe firm is pushed to the wall, and as for that Frank Keene will be able to pay dollar for dollar. I am sure that W. G. S. Keene, before his death, found much difficulty in obtaining ready funds to meet his payments on the Dagyr building that is now nearly completed, and one lumber firm had pushed him for the payment of a note of $3000 shortly before his death. It was on account of this that the mortgage was raised.

"Coupled with the fact that the money market being so tight and his own entanglement into money difficulties, who knows but on that fatal morning he saw ruin staring him in the face. A home that had been his boast of being the happiest one in this city, his business once so enormous, his schemes

All Slipping Away From Him,

No wonder his body was removed from a watery grave. I do not think that the Keene Bros.' factories will be shut down, but I do believe that Frank Keene will be equal to the occasion and bring everything out right.

"Both the Keenes had plenty of money, and I am of the opinion that the assignment is made to settle the matter."

The assignee, B. N. Johnson, is not in the city and is off somewhere on a vacation. His house was closed when a reporter called. Frank Keene could not be found and the sons of W. G. S. Keene had no information to offer.

This failure of Keene Brothers, it is said, will not affect anyone else. B. N. Johnson, the assignee, is also the counsel of the Keenes.

A MYSTERIOUS DEATH

Which Will Probably Be Brought to the Attention of Court.

BARRE, Vt., Aug. 16.—There is another sensation here. Miss Aurora Flint of West Randolph was brought here from the Mary Fletcher hospital in Burlington the last of June in a critical condition, suffering from blood poisoning, and died July 3 at Riverside hospital, being interred in Barre cemetery. While ill here she was attended by Drs. Fiske and Lance of Montpelier and J. W. Jackson of Barre.

Nothing excited suspicion at the time of her death, but since then States Attorney Stowe of Orange county has been asked to investigate the cause of the blood poison, which has resulted in the supreme court judges sending Drs. A. P Grinnell, Burlington Medical college, and J. H. Lindsley here to exhume the body. They reached here late night before last, being joined by States Attorney Stowe, Dr. E. N. Goss and Dr. J. W. Jackson.

The body was exhumed at midnight and given a rigid examination lasting three hours. The physicians left town before morning to avoid suspicion, but it is reported on the best of authority that they secured evidence sufficient to warrant the arrest of a certain physician and leading citizen of West Randolph for criminal malpractice, and probably manslaughter.

An investigation shows that early in June the young lady was taken ill at the home of a West Randolph citizen, and it is alleged that an operation was performed which caused her to be sent to the Mary Fletcher hospital.

The affair has caused a big sensation here and in West Randolph, where the parties implicated reside. There are indications that the next term of the Orange county court will see the author of the crime and the one who accomplished the girl's ruin brought to justice.

SENATOR LODGE'S quotation from President John Quincy Adams, in closing his arguments in favor of the repeal of the silver purchase act, was apt and timely. "I would not deliberate; I would act." It is remarkable to see the Republicans of New England endorsing the recommendations of a Democratic President so unanimously. To quote from Senator Lodge's speech:

There is a great crisis upon this country at this moment. There is an amount of suffering going on and a still larger amount promised, the like of which I, at least, in my life have never seen. In the presence of such a crisis as this I, for one, believe that the usual arts of politics or party management will be consumed like stubble in the fire. They will not avail; and I think what the people want above everything else is to see action, some sort of action, here in this Senate Chamber. If we are to have free coinage let us know it; if we are to have a limited coinage let us know it; if we are to have an unconditional repeal let us know it.

Band concert in the Square tonight.

Have the DAILY LEDGER sent to you while on your vacation.

Mrs. J. R. Walters and children leave today for Rutland, Vt.

Mrs. Winslow Burrell is quite sick at her residence on Sea street.

Rev. Wilbur F. Crafts will speak at the Congregational church this evening.

Clarence Byard of Common street, has returned from his visit to Freeport, Me.

Miss Florence Thayer of Crescent street has gone to Central Falls, R. I., on a visit.

Miss Emma Brown of Central Falls, R. I., has been the guest of Mrs. Horace Johnson of Cresent street.

The Jordan, Marsh & Co. band will give another of their popular concerts this evening at the Pine Point House.

Miss Georgia Pitts of Standish avenue, Wollaston, is passing her fortnight's vacation with Mrs. Fred A. Clough, Weir River, Mass.

Miss Blanche Thayer, the popular matron at the Quincy City Hospital, is enjoying the sights at the World's Fair, Chicago.

Miss Ella M. Cox, of Allston, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Knowles, Walnut street, and is enjoying a well earned and much needed vacation.

The stringency of the money market is being felt among the granite manufacturers. A LEDGER reporter has interviewed several and tomorrow's paper will contain a special article.

Mr. M. R. Sparrow of Wollaston, who was seriously injured several weeks ago by a kick from one of his horses, has successfully undergone a surgical operation and is now rapidly improving.

At the regular meeting of the Wollaston Cooperative Bank held on Tuesday evening $2000, was sold at from ten to thirty-five cents. The new series of shares will be put on sale at the next meeting.

The Catholic Sunday schools are holding their annual picnic today at Lovell's grove. The weather in the morning was threatening, but it has turned out to be the pleasantest and most delightful day the parish ever had for a picnic, and large numbers are in attendance.

Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Knowles and Miss Emma A. Knowles, of Atlantic, are visiting the old Knowles homestead at Eastham, Cape Cod, for a few weeks. This is one of the oldest homesteads on the Cape. The original building having been erected about the middle of the last century. They anticipate a grand time visiting old acquaintances and scenes. It being their first visit for twenty-five years.

The Glenwood.

Capt. Chas. N. Hunt has had his steam yacht "Get" overhauled and refitted in a thorough manner. A new boiler has been put in and her hull has been repainted till she looks like one of the "white squadron." Capt. Hunt announces that he is prepared to take out sailing parties. A boat of this description has for sometime been desired by those who do not like to trust their lives to a sail boat that is liable to capsize in a squall.

The item which appeared in Tuesday's LEDGER relative to the bursting of the boiler of this boat was entirely incorrect and lest anyone should be misled we hasten to correct.

The boiler has been tested by the United States authorities and has carried 200 pounds of steam with safety, and as Capt. Hunt never carries above 80 pounds it is easy to see that an explosion would be well nigh impossible. Mr. Richardson, the engineer, who had charge of the boat on Saturday evening, is a duly licensed engineer and last night he emphatically denied that any such incident as mentioned had occurred. Capt. Hunt felt rather displeased that such a statement should have found its way into public print, and in order to satisfy the public that his boat was perfectly sound, he invited the LEDGER representative for a spin around the bay. The steam was run up to 80 pounds and the boat skimmed over the waters like an ocean greyhound. The trip was a delightful one, and the reporter wished he could have remained longer on the boat. Those who wish to see the great yacht race from start to finish on Saturday can do so for a small sum, as Capt. Hunt intends to follow the racers over the course.

Rumor says that we are to have four band concerts next Sunday. Coney Island will soon be in the shade.

Houghs Neck is a great place for wind both oral and aerial. Many boys have taken advantage of the latter and every day many kites may be seen stretching away in the distance like ambassadors from earth to heaven.

A party from this place paid a visit Tuesday to "Portugese Joe" at his lone home on Rainsford Rock. Joe lives on this rock year in and year out and makes his living by fishing and catching lobsters. At high tide the rocks are submerged till his habitation looks like a house adrift. Despite his dreary surroundings Joe seems to enjoy his rocky home where "he is monarch of all he surveys."

The dance at Pierce's the other evening was a grand success both socially and financially. Lucas' orchestra furnished the music and added much to the success of the affair. There will be another dance on Saturday night at which the same orchestra will be present.

Mrs. Sarah Trumbull and daughter, and Mrs. Alma Lovett of Rockland, Mass., are visiting with Mr. E. P. Vinton of Sea street. Master Charles Kimball of Boston is spending the month of August at the same cottage, and next week Mr. Vinton expects Miss Josie Lovette of Rockland, Mass.

Mr. E. C. Dow and family, and Mr. A. V. S. Culins and family are at Pierce's Grapevine cottage.

Mr. J. Frank Bell and family of Ashland are rusticating at the Sea View cottage.

Mr. Morris and family who have been occupying the Daisy cottage, have returned to their home in Abington.

The following are registered at Pierce's: Miss Gertrude Holt, Mr. George W. Holt, Mr. Edward C. Pierce, Mr. George T. Randall, Mr. Walter D. Packard, Mr. Samuel D. Harriman, and Mr. P. J. Gorman all of Brockton; Mr. E. McNamara of Boston; Mr. and Mrs. George Chase and Mr. Henry Lucas of Stoughton; Mrs. Elbridge Ross, Miss Villa Ross, Mr. G. F. Chase, and Miss Lizzie Chase of Milton; Mr Frank Kingsley, Mr. Edward Leonard and Mr. Rufus A. Hayden of Brookville; Miss Mary Morrow of Boston; Miss Margaret J. Kane.

The Wild Waves Say

That illumination night is but two weeks off.

That the committee in charge should have the cooperation of every resident.

That we will paint the place red.

That the Quincy Cycle Club will chaperone the out of town clubs.

That the latter can count on an enjoyable time.

That Capt. Hunt will soon take the Lazy Club for an outing in his steam yacht.

That Commodore Cavanagh has not as yet taken the Land League for their annual sail.

That some conductors on the cars demand a fare from policemen, much to the surprise of the latter.

That there will be a large fleet of yachts in the open regatta on Saturday.

That the season of '93 will soon be a thing of the past.

TODAY'S COURT.

Victor Erickson of Quincy, for assault on Hannah Rosenquist, was fined $12.

Charles Schlager, Louis Buckbower and Joseph Hunger, were arraigned for assault on Frank X. Fruith. Schlager was fined $15; Buckbower $5, and Hunger was discharged.

Stephen Schatzl of Quincy, for keeping intoxicating liquor with intent to sell, was fined $60.

The Parent Rock.

An exchange says, "granite is the lowest rock in the earth's crust; it is the bed rock of the world. It shows no evidence of animal or vegetable life. It is from two to ten times as thick as the united thickness of all other rocks. It is the parent rock from which all other rocks have been directly or indirectly derived."

Everett's Secretary.

Congressman William Everett has appointed F. H. Stewart of Melrose Highlands to be his private secretary, and Mr. Stewart left for Washington last night. He is 23 years of age and a graduate of Harvard College. He is the son of W. D. Stewart of the Melrose school board.

Shut Down at Westerly.

The Smith Granite Company at Westerly, R. I., have notified its employes of a shut down until September.

The Portland, Conn., brownstone companies have all closed for an indefinite period, probably April 1.

—Business must be good at the Morse Brother's stove polish works in Canton. The Journal of that town says the firm usually allowed their help a vacation in August, but owing to their foreign trade they will be unable to shut down as usual for the month of August.

—A kettle of fat boiled over in the Saratoga chip manufactory at Nantasket, Tuesday, fearfully burning Mr. George Baker, the proprietor, so that his recovery is doubtful. The building which is also occupied by Photographer Williams was damaged $1500, and a laundry near by $500.

—The barn and carriage house of Mrs. Silas D. Bacon, on High street, Dedham, were burned early Tuesday morning. Loss $900; insured; cause, incendiary.

—The Old Colony system has notified conductors that it cannot allow boys with pond lilies, etc., to pass through the trains offering their goods for sale.

There was a young man from Bombay, who was rather inclined to be gay; he went to bed late, but we're happy to state our alarm clocks aroused him next day.

Coaching Parade.

The residents of Quincy are cordially invited to participate in the coaching parade at Winthrop, on the afternoon of Saturday, Aug. 19. This parade will be the most extensive and original of any similar celebration in this country. Winthrop is particularly adapted for it. It combines all the beauties of country scenery with the finest ocean views on the Atlantic coast. The procession route will pass over six miles of streets, including a mile and a half along the open ocean beach. Prizes will be offered for the best four and six in hands, pairs, tandems, singles, ponies, and lady and gentlemen equestrians. It is expected that many hundred displays will be made, and that several thousand people will ride in the parade. Floats representing historical and local events, with participants in costume, will be leading features. Bands of music will enliven the scene, and the residents will decorate their houses. It is expected that the members of the yacht club will present attractive features in the harbor and along the ocean front. Ample arrangements have been made for the accommodation of out-of-town visitors. No charge is made for entering the parade. Entry blanks and full particulars will be sent upon communication to Committee Winthrop Coaching Parade, Winthrop, Mass.

S. of V. Monuments.

The Massachusetts Department, Sons of Veterans, contemplate erecting six monuments at different locations. These monuments will commemorate important battles of the rebellion and are erected in memory of the fathers of the organization. The following have been appointed as a subscription committee: E. E. Mechan, chairman; J. P. Dalton, secretary; George W. Bardwell, treasurer; A. W. Mechan, J. P. Dalton, E. E. Mechan, and Fred Bostwick, board of trustees.—Producer and Builder.

MARRIAGE BELLS.

A Quiet Church Wedding of Miss Mackey and Mr. Baxter.

At the Congregational church, Tuesday afternoon, there was heard once more the peal of marriage bells. The contracting parties were Mr. Alfred R. Baxter and Miss Hattie E. Mackey both of this city. At three o'clock the bride and groom entered the church preceded by Mr. A. A. Moon, an intimate friend of the groom, and Miss Mabel Baxter, sister of the same. Rev. Edward Norton, pastor of the church, met the contracting parties at the altar and in the presence of relatives who had gathered to breathe for the young couple their heartfelt wishes and fervent prayers, performed the service which made the two lives one. Mr. Frank C. Gilbert presided at the organ, rendering the wedding march and playing softly through the service.

The bride was charmingly attired in a pure white, with white flowers and similax in her hair, and carried a lily and testament in her hand.

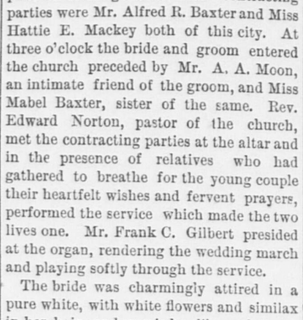

Upon their return to the groom's home, a poem, composed for the joyous occasion by an invalid aunt was affectingly read. Refreshments followed, and then amid showers of rice, and accompanied by the good wishes of all, they took their departure for a short honeymoon.

Mr. Baxter has been for some time travelling salesman for one of the granite firms of our city. He has won in his business marked success and has a future bright with promise. Miss Mackey recently came to our city and in the short time she has been with us has won the respect and high esteem of all who have become acquainted with her. She formerly resided at Rose Hill farm, Bently Springs, Md., and more recently in Philadelphia.

After a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Baxter will reside in Quincy. A thousand good wishes to our young friends for their happy life-journey.

BOSTON VICTORIOUS.

After Having the Game Well In Hand Phillies' Errors Lose Them the Game.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 16.—The Phillies had Boston defeated up to the seventh inning, when by good work they tied the score. In the eighth inning, with two out and three men on bases, Cross muffed Gastright's easy fly and Tucker and Ganzel scored. Long hit safely and Gastright came in. Stivetts pitched part of the first inning, and then gave way to Gastright, with whom the Philadelphias could do very little.

A YOUTHFUL FIEND

Responsible For the Awful Death of Three Young Neighbors.

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Aug. 16.—A fiendish act was perpetrated near Homewood which resulted in the death of three boys. Frank Graham, 17 years old, knew that three other boys were hunting ground hogs about a mile below the village. He got a can of blasting powder, attached a fuse, placed it in a little pile of rocks and waited until the young hunters neared the spot. Then he lit the fuse and crept off to a safe distance.

Burgess Reed, 16 years old, and James Reed, aged 14, with James Carney, aged 17, approached the spot entirely unconscious of danger. The can exploded, all being maimed and burned terribly. Carney was knocked insensible and his clothing was burned off. One of the Reed boys was also disabled. The other Reed boy was able to crawl away and gave an alarm. Doctors did everything possible for the young sufferers, but unavailingly, as they died yesterday. Graham made his escape and is still at large.

Visitors Must Walk.

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—Four hundred chair pushers are on strike. The employes of the company who wheel visitors through the World's fair grounds and buildings refused to go to work yesterday because Superintendent Adams posted a notice in all the booths that there would be a reduction of 25 per cent in the wages of the chair pushers.

Political Disturbances In Mexico.

IN DAYS OF YORE.

Bits of Local History Possibly Overlooked.

QUINCY STANDS PREEMINENT.

Laws Against the Use of Liquor and Tobacco.

To the antiquarian or student of history no place affords a more extensive field for research, or opportunities of connecting the memories of the past with those of the present, than our own city. As a historical centre Quincy stands preeminent among the shrines of our country's greatest men; indeed, excepting Plymouth, no place in the Old Bay State is more sacred to every true American than "Ye heart of old Brantry."

Its public schools are of a very high order, a beacon light shining on the educational waters, but while they diffuse knowledge almost illimitable, it is sad but true that the scholars of the Quincy schools are deficient as regards the history of their own city, that city made sacred by the names of Adams, Hancock and Quincy. There are many interesting facts connected with this old town which may be worth while to consider. Quincy was the home of the first railway in the United States. Of course every school child knows that, but how many are cognizant of the fact that the first iron forge in the United States was worked in Quincy? And how many can tell where the glass and salt works were located?

Many of them can tell how the good people of Lexington and Concord secreted the powder and other ammunition which the British soldiers endeavored to take possession of, but how many know that at the very same time the citizens of Quincy were engaged in a similar enterprise in this city, and so successfully accomplished their undertaking that the soldiers of King George abandoned their intended search. The want of thought on these and many other little incidents have led me to take up my pen in behalf of the old town, and if anyone will have become better acquainted with Quincy as she was and is, with her landmarks and other incidental features, then my mission will have been accomplished.

* * * *

It was five years after the landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth that Capt. Wollaston and his little band of men landed on the shores of what is now Quincy. The place where this doughty captain landed is generally conceded to be on what is now the estate of John Quincy Adams. The tree represented on our city seal, supposed to be the exact spot where they landed is said to be still in existence, and the word "Manet," meaning "it remains," seems to bear this assertion out. The exact location of this tree, I am told, is to the rear of the boathouses on Black's Creek on the land of Mr. Adams. The grassy knoll near the house of Mr. Adams is the place where Captain Morton and his band set up the first May pole in America which so shocked the staid Pilgrims that they sent soldiers from Plymouth to arrest these disciples of Bacchus and Terpischore.

Quincy, now famed as the no-license city, or as our Mayor likes to term it "The Banner Temperance City of Massachusetts," was, in days of yore, noted for its taverns or public houses, where the male inhabitants of the village gathered round the flowing bowl to discuss the Stamp Act, or in later years to recount the deeds of valor and bravery performed during the struggle for Independence.

Some of these houses were probably the scenes of gambling and brawls for on one occasion John Adams, then a young lawyer, vehemently denounced them as injurious to the village, and he declared that in several parts of the Province he had heard is used as a proverb, "As litigious as Brantry" and in 1761 he had inserted in the town warrant, an article to decrease the number of licensed houses in the village.

One of the reasons for the large number of these houses was probably the fact the road from Boston to Plymouth, sometimes called the Old Indian Road, lay directly through the centre of the village, which after coming up Hancock street, branched off at School street, continued down Summer street, up through Faxon Park and joined Franklin street near the base of Penn's Hill.

This road, is, I believe in existence today, though in places in Faxon Park it is narrowed down to a mere footpath.

Thus the traveller to and from Boston, overtaken by darkness or fatigue, always found a hospitalable place to rest himself and relate the latest news in Boston or Plymouth to the ever present assembly of village gossips.

Though intoxicating liquors were sold without stint, still there seemed to be a penalty for using tobacco judging from the order to which innholders were subjected which I give in full. "It is ordered, that noe p'son that keeps an ordinary shall take above VId. a meale for a p'son, & not above 1d. for an ale quarte of beare out of meale tyme under the penalty of Xs. for eny offence eith'r of dyet or beare."

"Further, It is ordered that noe p'son shall take tobacco publiquely vnder the penalty of IIs. VI d., nor privately in his own house, or in the house of another before strangers & that two or more shall not take it together anywher vnder the aforesaid penalty for any offence."

Next week I will give the names of the public houses from 1639 till the present day together with their locations and interesting anecdotes connected with them.

☞ The August New England Magazine is better than ever before, and it significantly marks its change of management with a beautiful colored frontispiece of Mt. Chocorua in midsummer. It is a picture which will interest all who have visited the wonderful White Mountains, and the print itself is well worth framing. It is not a mere lithograph of the old style, but possesses absolute photographic reproduction and delicate blendings of the colors and tones of nature. The New England is the first popular magazine to make use of the wonderful recent advances in color illustration, and this particular issue is of great interest to all amateurs in photographic and art work.

Sorrow.

Count each affliction, whether light or grave,
God's messenger sent down to thee; do thou
With courtesy receive him; rise and bow;
And ere his shadow pass thy threshold crave
Permission first his heavenly feet to lave;
Then lay before him all thou hast; allow
No cloud of passion to usurp thy brow
Or mar thy hospitality, no wave
Of mortal tumult to obliterate
Thy soul's marmoreal calmness; grief should be
Like joy, majestic, equable, sedate,
Confirming, cleansing, raising, making free,
Strong to consume small troubles, to commend
Great thoughts, grave thoughts, thoughts lasting to the end.

—Aubrey de Vere.

Unheeded.

In a field apart two violets bloomed,
And over their heads the tall grass loomed,
And there came one day a frolicsome breeze
That parted the grass so they saw the trees,
And catching a glimpse of the world outside
They chaffed at the fate that had kept them tied
To a nook obscure in a gloomy dell
Where scarcely a drop of dew e'er fell,
And they drooped their heads, for they longed to see
What the wonderful world outside might be.
When, lo! as it happened, a maiden strayed
Close by where the breeze with the violets played,
And seeing but one—for they grew apart—
She pressed it quick to her throbbing heart
And took it away, and the flower was glad,
But the one that was left behind was sad,
And drooped its sorrowful head, and pined,
And paid no heed to the whispering wind
Until, as it chanced, next day, once more
The maiden came, and her breast still bore
The faded one that she'd taken away
With a song in its heart but yesterday.
And seeing its brother growing free
It cried with its dying breath: "Ah me!
I've seen the world, and behold my fate.
So hide your head ere it be too late."
But the one that was left said, "I'm not afraid,"
And lifted its face to the merry maid.
"Tomorrow I'll be content to die,
But let me now to the gay world fly."

Sold Cheap For Cash.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Aug. 16.—A large lot of various kinds of smuggled liquors landed from the schooner Sarah E. Babson and seized on June 20 was sold by Deputy Marshal McDonald. Champagne brought only 57 cents a bottle; gin 50 cents and brandy as low as 20 cents.

Died In a Fit.

NEWBURYPORT, Mass., Aug. 16.—John L. Jones, a patient at the Houston Institute, this city, jumped out of a chamber window, ran a short distance in a field and died. Medical Examiner Hurd pronounced the cause of death to be an epileptic fit.

Grover Went Fishing.

BUZZARD'S BAY, Mass., Aug. 16.—The president enjoyed another day's fishing down the bay yesterday with Dr. Bryant. The deer which escaped from Mr. Cleveland's premises Sunday was caught and returned to its pen at Gray Gables.

Wages Reduced.

ANSONIA, Conn., Aug. 16.—Wilkinson, Brother & Co., of Shelton, paper manufacturers, now making government postal cards, have notified their employes that a cut in wages of 15 per cent has been made.

The Vigilant Takes the Lead.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Aug. 16.—The Vigilant beat the New York Yacht club's fleet into the harbor by 25 minutes. The Ariel was second and the Volunteer third.

Man and Horse Killed.

OLDTOWN, Me., Aug. 16.—George Perry, a Frenchman, aged 65, with his horse, was killed while attempting to cross the railroad track ahead of the "Flying Yankee."

SNAPS FOR BARGAIN SEEKERS.—The stock of Henry L. Kincaide & Co. 5 to 25 per cent. lower than Boston prices.

A PLUCKY YOUNGSTER

Walks From Nebraska to Connecticut and Dies of Exhaustion.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Aug. 16.—John Treadwell, 12 years old, who started last spring to walk from Nebraska to Higganum, 2000 miles, arrived at Higganum Monday night completely exhausted, ragged and half starved. His father, John Treadwell, formerly lived there, but died in the spring of 1887, and the mother moved to Nebraska and died in the spring of 1893. The boy, who was left destitute, started off without a cent. He had two uncles living a mile out of Higganum village, but the boy was so weak that he died before reaching them.

A Generous Gift.

NORTH ATTLEBORO, Mass., Aug. 16.—Mrs. John A. Tweedy of Brooklyn, Edward Ira Rich of New York and Miss Harriet T. Richards of this town, children of the late Edward Ira and Lucy M. Richards, have decided to present the town with a magnificent building for the use of the public library as a memorial of their father and mother.

Mangled by a Train.

KEENE, N. H., Aug. 16.—An unknown man, who was stealing a ride on a Boston and Maine freight, when about to get off in the railroad yard, struck his head on a water tank, crushing his skull and throwing him under the train and terribly mangling him.

Testimony Kept Secret.

ATTLEBORO, Mass., Aug. 16.—The McCarthy inquest at Taunton is concluded. The testimony at the secret session cannot be obtained, but the officials admit that none was given warranting any criminal proceedings, although the case is left open. That McCarthy was murdered there is little doubt. There are some circumstances now being investigated, which place the crime very near and account for some of the difficulties in the case.

Case Wasn't Settled.

DOVER, N. H., Aug. 16.—James M. Ham and John Grant were arrested charged with a $22,000 bond theft at Mansfield, Mass., Grant being sent to prison for 18 months. Ham was too sick to stand trial and was allowed his liberty on $6000 bail, Mrs. Sprague of Somersworth becoming surety. She had understood from him that the matter was all settled, but Monday she received word that the bond had been called and defaulted. Yesterday she caused Ham's arrest here, and he will be taken to New Bedford for trial.

Big Crops of Cranberries.

MIDDLEBORO, Mass., Aug. 16.—The present indications are that the cranberry crop in Plymouth county will be the largest ever harvested. With few exceptions, the Middleboro and Carver bogs are loaded with berries in fine condition, and the same report comes from the rest of the county and cape district.

To Represent New Hampshire.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Aug. 16.—Hon. Charles W. Hoitt of Nashua, judge of the municipal court in that city, and one of the most popular and gifted lawyers in southern New Hampshire, has been nominated as World's fair commissioner in place of George F. Page of Concord. Declined.

Started Up Again.

ANSONIA, Conn., Aug. 16.—Erschel & Co. of Shelton settled the attachment suit of the Consolidated railroad yesterday and the factory resumed work.

LOOKS LESS BRIGHT.

Unconditional Repeal Appears to Meet With Disfavor.

THE BALANCE OF POWER

In the Senate Committee Is In Voorhees' Hands.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—The house yesterday showed a very slim attendance and a growing indifference to the important question which is now engaging the attention of that body. The belief is now very general that there is no prospect whatever of the repeal of the silver purchase act, without a compromise, receiving the concurrent action of the two houses. If a measure should get through the house it will be radically amended in the senate.

Whether a committee of conference could agree upon a measure which would receive the approval of the president is regarded as extremely doubtful by the most sagacious of both houses. The Democratic managers are now turning their attention to some other legislation which will meet the necessities of the situation and approval of the president and people.

The Senate Finance Committee.

The committee on finance of the senate had a meeting yesterday at which for an hour and a half the silver question in its various phases was discussed. The only result of the meeting was that authorizing Mr. Voorhees to favorably report the bill increasing the circulating notes of national banks to the par value of the bonds deposited. In the committee room there was some very persistent opposition to the reporting of this measure by Messrs. Jones of Arkansas and Harris of Tennessee.

The discussion only tended to show that the finance committee was as far removed as ever from common ground on the question of the financial situation and the repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman law in particular. It was decided that with the long time between the meetings of the committee the members could never come to a definite understanding, and it was agreed that the committee should, therefore, beginning with Thursday next, hold daily sessions.

No Signs of Yielding.

The members of the committee are as firm and unyielding as the day they first met. The anti-silver men on the committee are Sherman, McPherson, Morrill, Allison and Aldrich. The silver men are Senators Harris, Vance, Vest, Jones of Arkansas and Jones of Nevada, with Mr. Voorhees, as chairman, holding the balance of power. How he will vote may decide the action of the committee.

He has said that he is in favor of the repeal of the Sherman law, either with conditions or without, that he will vote for it without condition, but by so doing does not give up his allegiance to silver as a money metal. He has said that the vote on the repeal will not indicate the standing of the senate on the question of bimetallism at all, and for that reason is willing to go on record in that way.

On the other hand, should the ultra-silver men agree upon some measure not too radical in its character, it is said that possibly Mr. Voorhees might go with them. So far the committee is divided on the lines that show the extremes of the proposition. The silver men insist that they will submit to nothing but free coinage at the present ratio, and the other side, with equal emphasis, assert that the only thing they will endorse will be the unconditional repeal of the purchasing clause.

Great Scrap Is Off.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—The international prize fight for $20,000 between Jack Dempsey and Dick Burge is off. Burge will claim the first deposit of $1000 which Gus Tuthill posted for Dempsey, as articles of agreement had been signed and witnesses and a stakeholder selected by both principals. Dempsey was laid up in a hospital in St. Paul while negotiations were going on for the fight. Tuthill was not made aware of this. Since he has found it out he has declined to go on with the match owing to Dempsey being physically unfit to fight.

Union Office No Longer.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—The Journal of Commerce and Commercial Bulletin no longer employs members of the typographical union in its composing rooms. Last night the places of the union printers were filled by non-union men. The office has become non-union on account of its inability to get conditions from the union which were deemed necessary by the paper.

The Chicago Hotel Horror.

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—The inquest upon the bodies of the seven victims of the Senate hotel disaster is finished. The coroner's jury brought in a verdict against the proprietors of the hotel, holding them to the grand jury for criminal negligence. The verdict also severely censured the building department of Chicago.

An Important Personage.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 16.—Yung Yu, the new Chinese minister to the United States, a seven-buttoned mandarin, who comes accompanied by a suite of 82 persons, has arrived here. There were 80 tons of baggage and it was all passed by the custom house authorities without examination.

National Cordage Company's Case.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Police Justice Grady has written to the counsel of the complainant, D. A. Balch, against the officers of the National Cordage company, that he will entertain no further complaints in the matter, unless by express direction of the attorney general.

A Malarial Fever Case.

QUARANTINE, S. I., Aug. 16.—Mrs. Mary Wagner, a passenger on the steamer Simon Dubois, from Bocas del Torro, was removed yesterday to Swinburne Island hospital, suffering from malarial fever. The vessel was disinfected and allowed to proceed.

More Smallpox in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 16.—A case of smallpox was reported to the board of health yesterday. The sufferer is Katie J. Kerns of 3249 Salmon street. This makes the sixth case of smallpox in Salmon street since July 11.

Cholera In Berlin.

BERLIN, Aug. 16.—Three Polish laborers died of cholera in the eastern quarter of this city yesterday.

THE RAILROAD RIOT

North Abington People Resist the Employes of the Consolidated.

A DOZEN OR MORE INJURED

Great Damage Caused to Property of the Town.

NORTH ABINGTON, Mass., Aug. 17.—A bloody battle took place yesterday afternoon between the employes of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, and the natives of this usually quiet village. There were nearly a dozen people wounded, some perhaps fatally.

The battle began at 1:20 o'clock and did not end until nearly 4 o'clock. Those three hours were the most memorable in the history of this town.

The townspeople were in a state of frenzy, and hostilities were so fierce that the board of selectmen, the rulers of the town, had to call upon Governor Russell for the assistance of the state police. The scenes in the town during the progress of the battle will compare, according to eye-witnesses, with any of the memorable riots in more metropolitan localities.

Fathers and Brothers

left their homes and places of business and rushed to the battleground, while women were left at home behind barricaded doors and windows, trembling with fear.

The damage to private property is counted in the thousands. Windows and public buildings were riddled with stones and other missles. Among the buildings which were thus attacked was Uncle Sam's postoffice, over which Postmaster Groce presides.

Merchants on the streets stood at the entrance of their stores, armed with revolvers, and threateningly viewed the situation.

The cause of the trouble dates back more than a year, and is the result of a war between the Rockland and Arlington street railway and the New York, New Haven and Hartford corporation.

Yesterday's display of madness has been brewing for several days. There is no such thing as sleep in the town tonight, although the fight is over and a half dozen of Chief Wade's men are on guard, prepared for any new outbreak. Thousands of people are parading the streets viewing the scenes of the disturbance, and there is much harsh language used toward the railroad officials for making such strong opposition to the street railroad.

The Weapons of Warfare

were those usually resorted to by mobs. The employes of the New York, New Haven and Hartford had stones, picks, axes, shovels and sticks, while the townspeople used shotguns, revolvers and pretty nearly every other conceivable method of defense.

Deputy Sheriff Cushman, a veteran officer of 70 years, approached the mob before hostilities began and very impressively commanded the people to disperse in the name of the commonwealth. They would not obey, and the selectmen then rushed to the telephone office and telephoned to Brockton for assistance. Mayor Keith, who is a member of the governor's council, was in Boston, so the much desired assistance of the shoe city bluecoats could not be procured.

Governor Russell was then called up and made aware of the facts. He eagerly inquired into the extent of the riot, and asked the selectmen if they had exerted every effort to Quell the Disturbance.

The town fathers replied that they had, and asked that drastic measures be taken.

They asked his excellency if he could not send Company I, M. V. M., from Brockton, but the governor did not think it was necessary. The governor then notified Chief Wade of the state police of the affair, and ordered him to go to the scene of the riot at once, with such a force of men as was necessary.

This was about 3 o'lock, when the battle was raging the fiercest, and the chief, accompanied by Officers White, Moore, Mullen, Bardwell, Halstrick, Griffin, Plunkett, Rhodes and Pratt, was, in less than an hour, upon the scene of the fray.

They were armed to the teeth and would not have dealt with the mob very leniently. When they arrived the battle was over, and a decision by Judge Bond of the superior court made the big corporation give way.

IN MRS. STEVENS' FAVOR.

She Is Entitled to Retain Land and Securities Worth $130,000.

BOSTON, Aug. 17.—The litigation over the large estate of J. A. Whipple, formerly a well-known photographer, is settled. When Mr. Whipple died, some years ago, his heirs were surprised to find that instead of an estate worth $500,000 or more, he had not left nearly so much money, but only about $200,000. They consulted a lawyer and made an investigation of Mr. Whipple's affairs, and as a result a number of suits were brought against Elizabeth W. Stevens, who had for many years been associated with Mr. Whipple in the photographing business.

In these suits the heirs laid claim to tracts of land standing in Mrs. Steven's name in Hyde Park, Somerville, Cambridge, Newton, Watertown and Revere, valued at over $75,000; also to the contents of a safe deposit box in the Union Safe Deposit vaults; and also to a mortgage given by Mr. Whipple to Mrs. Stevens on property at 40 Temple place, which was worth $45,000.

The cases were referred to Judge Adams as master, and he found that Mrs. Stevens was a partner with Mr. Whipple, and that the land in question and all the other property belongs to her. A settlement has been made by which all litigation is terminated and the suits discontinued. Richard Stone was counsel for Mrs. Stevens, who is now entitled to property valued at more than $130,000.

RAILROAD FATALITY.

Miss Cutler Killed Outright and Her Companion Fatally Injured.

SOUTH FRAMINGHAM, Mass., Aug. 17.—Yesterday afternoon an empty engine, bound for Taunton on the Old Colony division of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, ran into a buggy containing Frank Graves and Miss Jessie Cutler, two South Framingham young people, who were bound for a grange picnic at Clovernook grove, Sherborn. The force of the collision threw buggy and occupants fully a rod.

Miss Cutler was instantly killed, her head being crushed. Graves was struck in the head and injured so badly that is not expected to recover. The horse escaped unharmed, but the buggy was demolished. The accident happened at Leland's crossing.

Graves was taken to the hospital, and Miss Cutler's body was taken in charge by Undertaker Smith, pending the arrival of Medical Examiner Adams.

Election of Officers.

LYNN, Mass., Aug. 17.—The Lynn District Ministers' association has elected the following officers: President, Mrs. J. O. Knowles; vice-president, Mrs. S. M. Leonard; treasurer, Mrs. J. Thompson of Wakefield; recording secretary. J. F. Allen of Lynn; corresponding secretary, Mrs. T C. Martin of Lynn; executive committee, Mrs. L. W. Adams, Mrs. A. W. Tirrell of Malden, Mrs. Edwin Hitchcock of Stoneham and Mrs. A. W. Thurston of Marblehead. The ministers have appointed the following advisory committee: Rev. L. B. Bates of East Boston, Rev. J. N. Short, Rev. C. F. Eaton of Salem, Rev. L. W. Staples, Rev. J. M. Leonard, Rev. C. E. Davis of Melrose and Rev. W. I. Haven of East Boston.

National Encampment of Veterans.

BOSTON, Aug. 17.—The eighth national encampment of the Union Veteran's union opened in Faneuil hall yesterday afternoon. The objects of the union are to unite in bearing each other's burdens; to care for the widow and orphans; to keep alive the memory of the participation of its members in the events and perils of the war, and to preserve and perpetuate the principles for which they fought.

The President Kept Busy.

BUZZARD'S BAY, Mass., Aug. 17.—The president, on account of callers yesterday, was unable to take his usual fishing trip. The side wheel steamer Clermont of New York, owned by Alfred Van Santvoord, anchored close to Monument beach yesterday. A launch was put off for Gray Gables, and it soon returned with President and Mrs. Cleveland, who spent an hour on board the steamer.

Temporary Shutdown.

SALEM, Mass., Aug. 17.—The Naumkeag cotton mills of this city are to shut down. This company is one of the last to adopt such a measure. A meeting of the directors was held yesterday, wherein the condition of the market was thoroughly discussed. It was the unanimous opinion of the directors that it would be for their best interest to shut down temporarily.

Put a Bullet In Her Breast.

TOLLAND, Conn., Aug. 17.—As a result of her father's objection to her lover Miss Jennie L. Loomis fired a bullet into her breast and is dying from the effects of the wound. Her father is B. F. Loomis, a wealthy Baltimore inventor, who spends his summers in Tolland. The young man for whose love the girl is dying is Everett Bunnell of Hartford.

Shoe Business Looking Up.

LYNN, Mass., Aug. 17.—The shoe business is improving, so the manufacturers say, and the labor leaders claim that more of the men are at work this week than there were last. The drummers have been over their territory and find that most of the retailers are nearly sold out, but do not care to purchase until there is more money in circulation.

Connecticut's Day at the Fair.

HARTFORD, Aug. 17.—It is decided to celebrate Connecticut at the World's fair Oct. 11. Governor Morris and staff and the state World's fair commissioners will leave New York in a special car on Oct. 8. At Chicago the delegation will be received by the Sons of Connecticut and Governor Morris will respond to the speech of welcome.

An Attempt at Suicide.

MARBLEHEAD, Mass., Aug. 17.—John Dougherty, 79 years old, attempted suicide at his house in this city last evening. He went to his room and soon after cut a gash about four inches long in his throat with a razor. Dr. Morse was called and took 15 stitches in the wound. The doctor says he will probably recover.

Large Icehouse Burned.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Aug. 17.—The large icehouse owned by Nathaniel Webster, near Rockport line, containing 5000 tons of ice, wagons and farming tools, was totally burned last night. Estimated loss, $15,000; insurance, $9500. The fire is supposed to have been set by tramps.

A Laborer's Fatal Fall.

BOSTON, Aug. 17.—Jacob Jacobson, a laborer in the employ of the Bay View Granite company of Gloucester, fell 40 feet down a precipice in the quarry yesterday, sustaining internal injuries from which he died at the Massachusetts General hospital. He was 40 years of age and leaves a family

HONORS WERE EVEN

In a Debate on the Silver Purchasing Act.

WORK OF ORGANIZATION

Still Being Pushed by House Steering Committees.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—The debate in the house yesterday was characterized by the ebb and flow of eloquence and by the absence of interest. It was started by McCall (Rep. of Massachusetts) in favor of the repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman bill, and was closed by Moses (Dem. of Georgia) in opposition thereto. Sandwiched between these two speeches were remarks by Coombs (Dem. of New York), Bryan (Dem. of Nebraska), and Henderson (Rep. of Iowa). The first named made an address from a business standpoint in favor of the Sherman law. Bryan was the apostle of bi-metallism. Taken altogether the day's debate might be put down as a drawn battle.

The senate spent only three hours in session, but that time was well filled up. Mr. Vest's bill appropriating $300,000 for a site and building in Washington to be known as the "Hall of Records" was passed. The bill to increase the circulation of national banks was postponed for a day, but before it was so laid aside an important amendment proposed to it by Mr. Cockrell—to authorize the redemption (at par and accrued interest) of such 2 per cent bonds (or $25,000,000 in all) as may be offered, and to authorize the issue of new treasury legal tender notes in payment thereof.

This produced considerable discussion. Another amendment to the bill was offered later on by Mr. Allen of Nebraska for the cessation of interest on the bonds on which the increased national bank circulation should be based. After that there were two speeches delivered, one by Mr. Berry in favor of bi-metalism, and one by Mr. Gallinger against tariff legislation before 1897.

Senator Peffer's Scheme.

Senator Peffer of Kansas came to the front yesterday with a bill directing the secretary of the treasury to coin or print $600,000,000 in aluminum or upon paper and pay off the entire indebtedness of the country at once. The bill had a lot of whereases which recited that "A nation which can make good bonds can make better money and a nation which can make a dollar of gold can make another of aluminum or paper, and a nation which won't or can't pay its debts has no right to exist on this earth."

The two house steering committees, silver and anti-silver, are assiduously at work organizing their forces and securing recruits. The free silver advocates claim that they are gaining every day and that the debate as a rule is helping them. The friends of the administration, on the other hand, manifest more confidence in their ultimate success than at any time since the contest began. A poll of the house has been practically completed by the canvassers in the interest of the anti-silver faction, which is said by one of the leaders to show an impregnable majority of 27 in favor of unconditional repeal of the purchasing clause as provided in the Wilson bill.

The Test of Strength.

There is substantial agreement of opinion among the silver and anti-silver leaders as to what is to be the real test of the strength of the two parties on the several questions to be voted on at the close of the present debate, but a wide divergence exists as to the number of votes that will be cast by the two sides thereon. Mr. Harter estimates that if the house successfully passes what he calls the danger point of the vote on free coinage at a ratio of 20 to 1, the majority for the Wilson bill, which will present the naked question of repeal or no repeal, will be 100 or more.

On the other hand, Mr. Bland says there are representatives who may vote against the coinage of silver at any specific ratio who will not vote to wholly abolish the use of silver as a money metal, which would be the effect, he says, of the passage of the Wilson bill. "If there are any representatives from a silver district who would thus vote," said Mr. Bland, "they had better make terms with the administration, for they cannot do it with their people."

The Result Doubted.

Mr. Harter's doubt as to the result of the vote on the proposition to coin silver at a ratio of 20 to 1 is said to be due to information conveyed to the anti-silver executive committee that there are upwards of 40 Republicans who will vote for establishing coinage at that ratio. Mr. Bland, however, believes that the ratio of 16 to 1 will be stronger in the house than any other, despite the reported 40 Republican votes for 20 to 1.

The members of the senate finance committee hold their first meeting today, and will continue in session daily with a view of trying to reach an agreement upon some measure that will be satisfactory to the two extremes. They admit that they have a very difficult task before them, but they are in hopes that some compromise will be effected.

Senator Voorhees said yesterday that he intended at the earliest opportunity to press the bill reported from the finance committee to allow the national banks to issue circulation up to the par value of their bonds. He has the assurance of both the Democrats and Republicans that they will support him in his efforts to secure an early passage of the measure.

Stopped Work.

LYNN, Mass., Aug. 17.—Work on the new Lennox building on the corner of Broad and Market streets has stopped. Contractor Manning was informed yesterday to quit work and his men were discharged. This is said to be on account of the tightness of money.

Another Missing Man.

LYNN, Mass., Aug. 17.—Leslie E. Warren, proprietor of the Electric restaurant, 718 Western avenue, is among the missing. He told his clerk Friday, of last week, that he was going out for a while, and since then he has not been heard from.

BRAINTREE.

The illegal liquor dealers of South Braintree received a call from the officers of the law Wednesday night. Officers Oliver of Braintree, Knights of Randolph, McAloon and DeForrest of Quincy conducted the raids. At the premises of Louis Latinvelle on Hancock street, three cases of beer and two quarts of whiskey was seized. Latinvelle and his bar-keeper, Henry Giraad, were arrested. At Patrick Carroll's on Pearl street, 62 bottles of beer was seized. Beer and whiskey were discovered at the place of Con. Spellman's on Washington street and the proprietor arrested.

Hen theives are still at work at East Braintree. Wednesday evening they visited the premises of Mrs. William Coleraine but only succeeded in stealing two fowls before they were frightened away.

Wednesday when Mrs. James Croke returned from a funeral she discovered her husband dead in bed. He was 73 years of age, and heart disease is given as the cause.

QUINCY FORTUNATE.

Our National Banks Able to Do What Boston Banks Cannot.

GOOD SUPPLY OF CURRENCY.

Over $50,000 Distributed Among Granite Workers This Week.

Many of the granite firms of the city have been visited by LEDGER reporters this week and Quincy is to be congratulated on the favorable showing. The firms, generally, report the usual number of orders for this season of the year, and none of them contemplate shutting down, as business in many places is doing.

Several of them report difficulty in making collections from their customers, but the accommodation which our National banks have given has agreeably surprised many. It has been comparatively full and complete and notes have been discounted below market rates.

The banks have undoubtedly been more conservative, and, with currency at a premium, could not be blamed for not cashing in some instances "foreign" checks. Quincy business men hardly realize the stringency of the money market so severely felt in financial circles. It is not a fact, as reported in Boston dailies, that there is stringency at Quincy and that granite men are unable to get money to pay off with. Both the Granite and Mount Wollaston banks met all the demands of pay day this week and distributed over $50,000 among the granite workers, and they have a larger cash surplus than has been the case after many pay days when times were better. They have been able to do more than most Boston banks, in that they have supplied all the currency wanted without extra charge.

THE DAY OF REST.

Another Mass Meeting Under Auspices of Y. P. S. C. E.

Rev. Mr. Crafts did not find the situation in Quincy to be as bad as he had imagined it might be relative to Sunday observance, as he admitted to the LEDGER representative after the mass meeting last evening.

There was a good audience assembled, one which filled about half the seating capacity of the Congregational church. Ladies predominated, but there were several representative citizens, including at least seven councilmen.

Rev. H. A. Philbrook of the Universalist church presided, and Rev. Mr. Wilder, a Wollaston pastor, offered prayer. Mr. Philbrook was glad to respond to the request to preside and sympathized in the movement. Nothing improper or unreasonable was expected. Christian methods were to be used, and efforts made to secure peace and quiet on Sundays. The public conscience needs to be quickened. He believed in band concerts, thought Wednesday a more appropriate day for them than Sunday, but regarded it unfortunate there was one this evening in the Square.

Rev. W. F. Crafts had intended to speak on "Sabbath Reform, National, Local and Personal," but he changed it and spoke on the Civil Sabbath and the Sabbath for Man." It was an interesting talk of about an hour. He gave several reasons for observing it as a day of rest, and said we should cooperate with those who accepted any. It was only those led on by dissipation and money getting who were opposed to Sunday observance. It had been scientifically proven that one day in seven as a day of rest is a necessity, and he quoted several authorities. It was a mistake to believe that any law in the country called for the enforcement of religious observance. No attempt was made to make people religious by law; that must be voluntary. He exhibited a chart showing the effect on the system of those who observe the Sabbath and those who do not.

The day of rest should be enjoyed by all in common so that people could have company in rest.

Subscription envelopes were passed and $35 raised for the Massachusetts Sunday Protective League.

An organization was formed to consist of the pastor and one layman of each church, Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, Woman's Christian Temperance Union, Young Men's Christian Association, Guilds, etc.

The following resolution was offered and unanimously adopted:

Resolved—That we heartily cooperate with our city officials in enforcing our Sabbath laws, that no one in our midst may suffer the loss of his right to rest and his rights of conscience, either through his employer or his competitor.

Resolved—That we respectfully request the Mayor to publish the Sunday laws of this State as a matter of news in order that those who are breaking the law ignorantly may be informed.

A novel race from Brockton to this place took place the other day between a bicyclist and a gentleman who came by rail in which the pedal pusher came out with flying colors. The contestants were Mr. Walter M. Steele and Mr. B. C. Leonard both of Brockton.

Mr. Steele rode the silent steed and Mr. Leonard trusted to the New York, New Haven and Hartford, and the Quincy and Boston street railway. Both left Brockton at the same time, their objective point being Mr. Leonard's cottage on Sea street near the Rock Island Road.

Great as is the power of steam and electricity, still, they were outrivaled in this case, for when Mr. Leonard alighted from the electric car and entered his cottage he was, no doubt, rather amazed to find Mr. Steele there ready to welcome him.

Mr. George Monk of Quincy caught several dozen of smelts off Peddock's Island yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bowen of Brockton are ensconced in the Bay View cottage.

Captain Hunt and Second Mate Pope of the steam yacht "Get" went mackerel fishing off Sheep island this morning.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hall of Brookline are at the Home cottage.

Mr. Charles McCarthy of Brookline is at the Geib's cottage.

Mr. William Thompson and family of Brockton are stopping at the "Happy Thought" cottage.

Mrs. Charles E. Leonard and son of Easton are visiting with Mrs. B. C. Leonard of Sea street. Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Manley of Brockton, who have been enjoying the hospitalities of Mrs. Leonard, have returned home.

Mrs. W. A. Donovan and son of Everett, are stopping at the "Even Tide" cottage.

Miss Hattie Allen of West Newton is rusticating at the "Eenerolf" cottage.

The race of the Monatiquot club off Fort Point, Wednesday, could be easily seen from the beach.

The good people of the beach are enjoying a quiet laugh over two signs which ornament one of the pavilions on Sea street. The first that meets the eye is a sign that informs the reader that the proprietor is a "Licenced victualler," while near by is another which says "Sandwitches 5 cents." As one gentleman remarked he had heard of Salem witches but never of "sandwitches." If you like tea insist on getting it free with your sandwitches; it's all included.

Those who long for a good east wind that smells of the briny sea, probably got the article they wanted Wednesday. To ride from Quincy to this place was like jumping from the temperate into the frigid zone. The air was so sharp and bracing that many no doubt, were obliged to take a "bracer" to feel anyway comfortable.

The conductors on the Manet Beach road are the most obliging set of men I have yet seen. They will do most anything for you from answering questions, to running after your hat when it blows away. So in case your hat blows off do not be alarmed, sit still and bear the gaze of your fellow passengers as well as you can, and in due time your recreant head covering will be returned to you even if the conductor has to run a couple of miles.

There will be a meeting at the cottage of Mr. Williams on Bird street tonight to see what steps can be taken towards the building of a chapel for the holding of religious services at this place.

A STOMACH LIKE AN INDIAN.

Why the Indians Never Have Dyspepsia, Yet are Careless Eaters.

No one could accuse an Indian of over-carefulness in eating. He ate what nature gave him—berries from the wood, spoil from his traps, game from his bow. He ate plenty of it, ate till he was full. It was not very well cooked sometimes, and he often ate fast.

When hunting or fighting a day would often pass without anything being eaten at all.

Yet he never had dyspepsia.

He never "dieted."

We hear too much about "dieting" these days.

A man musn't eat pie, or cabbage, or cake, or beans, or this and that.

He musn't eat very much and he must do it very slow. He must never drink when he eats. He musn't hurry. He musn't worry. And so it goes.

This is all very good advice. But it would worry a man to death to remember it all. Why can't we live like the Indian in a healthy, hearty, natural way? Because we have such weak stomachs. But how did the Indian possess such perfect strong, digestion? By taking that medicine of his, Sagwa, whenever he felt there was anything wrong with him. That Sagwa we have now employed him to make for us. If you would take the natural American remedy for dyspepsia, Kickapoo Sagwa, you, too, would not know what a weak stomach or dyspepsia was.

Thanks to the efforts of the Kickapoo Medicine Company, Indian Sagwa and other Kickapoo Indian remedies are obtainable of any druggist, and their genuine curative value is beyond comparison.

Kickapoo Indian Sagwa.

CATHOLIC PICNIC.

The Quincy and West Quincy Nines Beat at Base Ball.

THOUSANDS IN ATTENDANCE.

Medals and Premiums Distributed Among Members of Sunday Schools.

The annual picnic of the Catholic Sunday Schools of this city was held at Lovell's grove Wednesday, and, like its predecessors, it was a grand success both socially and financially.

The day was all that could be desired, a bright sunshine with just enough east wind to temper the heat.

The electric cars were crowded all day long and it is estimated that several thousand people visited the grove.

In the morning the boys' races occurred and were witnessed by an enthusiastic crowd. The junior base ball game for a purse of $5 between the Quincys and Atlantics resulted in a victory for the former by a score or 15 to 4 as follows:

Earned runs, Norfolk Jrs. 17, Atlantic Jrs. 2. Two-base hits, Deady, Flynn, Logan. Double plays, Deady to Dunn and Mullane to Deady. Passed balls, Boisclair 7, Welsh 2. Wild pitches, Cunningham 2. Hit by pitched ball, Welsh. Time, 2 hours 15 minutes. Umpire, B. Priest.

The boys bicycle race was won by Harry McCabe. David Meaney and John T. O'Hara won the three-legged race, and John T. O'Hara also won a running race.

At one o'clock the children of the Sunday Schools gathered in the upper grove where a bountiful dinner awaited them.

The sports for the adults took place in the afternoon and the results were as follows:

Base ball between a nine composed of Quincy and West Quincy players and a nine composed of Braintree and Atlantic players, was won by the former by a score of 17 to 2.

A bicycle race for a silver cup for novices was won by John McKenna.

In the free for all bicycle race John McKenna took first prize, Bartlett McLane second, and Michael McAuliffe third.

In the wheelbarrow race Thomas Ford was the lucky man, and, as a result he now owns a first-class wheelbarrow.

At four o'clock the medals and premiums given to those children whose work in the Sunday School during the past year has been of a high order were distributed. The awards will be published tomorrow, as Fr. Cunningham who has the list was called away last night and the LEDGER was unable to obtain the names of the prize winners.

The affair was an enjoyable one throughout and its success is due to the pastor Rev. F. A. Frigiglietti, his reverend assistants, the members of the committee, and the Sunday School teachers.

There was a young man from Bombay, who was rather inclined to be gay; he went to bed late, but we're happy to state our alarm clocks aroused him next day.

FRIGHT KILLED HIM.

A Pensacola Man Robbed Under Peculiar Circumstances and Then Dies.

DENVER, Aug. 17.—P. J. Cashman of Pensacola, Fla., registered at the Wellington hotel Tuesday. Yesterday morning he rang for the clerk and said that he was very sick and feared he was going to die. The clerk rushed out and meeting a man asked where he could find a doctor. The stranger said he was a doctor and returned with the clerk. The doctor asked for a pitcher of icewater, and while the clerk was after it the alleged doctor robbed the patient of every thing he had and skipped. When the clerk returned Cashman had died, presumably of fright. The police arrested the robber an hour later. He gave the name of J. E Stevenson.

Another Carnegie Reduction.

PITTSBURG, Aug. 17.—A circular was sent to the heads of all departments of the Carnegie Steel company, under date of Aug. 10, stating that, taking effect Sept. 1, 1893, a reduction of salaries of from 15 to 30 per cent would be made. This affects every officer and employe of the association excepting those working under wage scales. Between 900 and 1000 employes are affected.

Fatal Runaway Accident.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Aug. 17.—Mrs. S. F. J. Trabue, wife of Hon. S. F. J. Trabue, a prominent lawyer and politician, was instantly killed in a runaway accident near this city yesterday. Mrs. Trabue was formerly a Miss Berry, and a sister of Colonel Thomas Berry of the United States navy, and a cousin of Congressman Berry of Newport.

Murderer Captured.

LONG BRANCH, N. J., Aug. 17.—Information reached here late last night that Pete Dowling, the murderer of Robert Hamilton, the trusted agent of the late Anthony J. Drexel, has at last been captured, after a lapse of six years. Dowling was captured at Camden, and officers have gone to Camden after him.

JUDGE BUMPUS APPOINTED.

A Special Master to Settle Up at Once Defunct Endowment Orders.

It has fallen to the lot of a leading lawyer of this city and the commonwealth to settle up at once defunct short term orders. The Herald says, "There is over $3,000,000 in the hands of the commonwealth's treasurer, at the State House, awaiting distribution among certificate holders of defunct endowment orders. No end of trouble in settling up the affairs of the corporations under their charge has been experienced by the receivers, owing partly to many intricate legal difficulties, but principally to the wretched condition of the books.

"The supreme judical court has now taken the matter in hand for the purpose of facilitating settlements, and to that end Hon. E. C. Bumpus has been appointed by the court a special master to examine into the situation of the several endowment orders, to confer with the receivers, and to report to the court a plan for an immediate dividend to the claimants, with a draft of a decree ordering such a dividend.

"Judge Bumpus has addressed a letter to each of the 20 receivers requesting information as to the estimated value of the assets in their hands, and also for a detailed schedule of all bonds, mortgages, etc., held by them.

"It is expected that the line of policy pursued by Judge Bumpus will result in a practical solution of the endowment cases. The court's decision in this matter will be welcome news to the certificate holders. It is expected Judge Bumpus will be able to make his report in about two weeks."

WEYMOUTH.

There was never a time in the past fifty years when business was so dull in North Weymouth as at present.

Mrs. J. R. Orcutt is visiting at Lyndboro, N. H.

James Hawkes and family of Rockland, are visiting the family of Frank Hawkes.

It is understood that John A. Holbrook has settled with the insurance companies but he has not decided whether to rebuild or not.

The North Weymouths play with the Institutes at Weymouth, Saturday.

H. E. Kennison and wife, who recently moved to Campello, have been visiting friends at North Weymouth this week.

Mrs. Willis D. Leland, wife of the former pastor of the Pilgrim church, is in town this week the guest of Mrs. C. H. Newton.

Prof. Marusee, an eminent educator of Japan, will lecture on "Christian Education in Japan," in the Pilgrim church this evening. The lecturer will be dressed in native costume.

Arrangements are being made for another lawn party by the sewing circle of the Pilgrim church to be held at the residence of Mrs. Jenkins on North street.

Officer George B. Bailey of South Weymouth has been successful in breaking up the gang of young men and boys which have been making Rome howl for the past three months. At the premises of Austin Tirrell, windows have been broken and fruit stolen and other petty devilry committed. The nuisance finally became so great that Officer Bailey was detailed to investigate, and Wednesday he arrested nine young men, Chandos Poe, Ed. Morse, Walter Pope, Frank Morse, Henry Martel, Leo Martel, Lester Oris, Winnie Peiler and Henry Richmond. They have admitted their guilt, but owing to the fact that their parents have signified their willingness to pay for all the damage committed as well as the expenses attendant upon apprehending them, it is probable no criminal prosecution will be instituted.

Miss Clara Printess and Miss Ella T. Slaison of North Weymouth are at the Glencoe House, Onset Bay.

TODAY'S COURT.

God Only Knows.

Whither are going with hurrying feet
Forms that are passing tonight on the street?
Faces all sunny, and faces all sad,
Hearts that are weary, and hearts that are glad,
Eyes that are heavy with sorrow and strife,
Eyes that afe gleaming with beauty and life,
Pictures of pleasure, and crosses of care,
Going, all going, God only knows where!

Hands that have earnestly striven for bread,
Hands that are soiled with dishonor instead,
Hearts that are turned to a purpose sublime,
Hearts all discordant and jangled with crime,
Souls that are pure and as white as the snow,
Souls that are black as the midnight of woe,
Gay in their gladness or drunk in despair,
Going, all going, God only knows where!

Some to the feast where the richest red wine
And the rarest of jewels will sparkle and shine;
Some in their hunger will wander, and some
Will sleep, nor awaken when morning shall come.
The robed and the ragged, the foe and the friend—
All of them hurrying on to the end,
Nearing the grave with a curse or a prayer,
Going, all going, God only knows where!

A Plucky Woman.

The plucky wife of Police Officer Joe Barr foiled an attempted burglary at her residence Sunday night. It was after midnight when Mrs. Barr heard a noise as of some one rummaging in the lower part of the house. Getting out of bed she picked up her husband's big revolver. Then she quietly walked out of the room and turned on the light on the landing. In the hallway she saw a man, who had presumably been attracted out of the parlor by the glare of the light up stairs. On seeing that it was only a woman who disturbed his operations the burglar looked contemptuously at her and was about to return for the booty which he had been selecting. Mrs. Barr coolly walked down stairs and pointing the revolver at the intruder said, "You get out of this house."

The burglar saw by the brave look in Mrs. Barr's blue eyes and the steady way in which she held the revolver that she was not to be trifled with. After a moment's hesitation he broke for the window by which he had entered and disappeared. Mrs. Barr then securely fastened doors and windows and retired to her room again. Officer Barr talked of little yesterday but his wife's bravery, and there is some talk of making his plucky little wife an honorary member of the police department.—Denver Republican.

A MOOTED QUESTION.

The Behring Sea Decision Causes Wide Discussion.

WHAT NAVAL OFFICERS SAY

The United States Must Pay For Patrol Duty.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—Opinion in Washington over the decision of the Behring sea tribunal differs materially as to the measure of the benefits, if any, derived by the United States from the regulations established. Naval officers and others, whose duties have brought them in contact with the points in controversy, seem to think that the United States are the real victors so far as the practical effects of the decision go, but this view is not shared by prominent members of the diplomatic branch of the government.

Secretary Gresham is said to be anything but satisfied with the findings of the court, and it is asserted that this dissatisfaction extends to the regulations. Other cabinet officers share his views. As for the regulations, they are that the United States will entail on them the cost and worry of patrolling Behring sea without benefit to its sealers, while Russia, Japan and perhaps other nations reap a harvest, the regulations being binding only to Great Britain and this country. During the pendency of the arbitration British and American warships patrolled the sea to prevent sealing, and the question whether the vessels of this country shall be withdrawn is being given consideration.

The Second Sealing Season.

According to the decision of the tribunal the second sealing season shall begin Aug. 1. Information to this effect cannot reach the sealers for some weeks yet, and it is not likely that any definite policy respecting the guardianship of the sea will be outlined until the opening of the first season next year, because bad weather will put an end to the operations of the sealers in about two weeks, compelling them to return south.

Secretary Herbert is authority for the statement that the decision will hardly cause a reduction in the number of naval vessels to be maintained in Behring sea, and the likelihood of this is shown by a perusal of the regulations.

The regulations of the arbitrators appended to the Behring sea decision case are adopted under article 7 of the treaty of arbitration. These regulations were based on an agreement submitted by a joint commission appointed by Great Britain and the United States.

The Question af Damages.

In accordance with article 5 of the convention for the renewal of the modus vivendi, the decision of the arbitrators will compel the United States to make compensation to Great Britain (for the use of her subjects) for abstaining from the capture of seals in Behring sea during the pendency of the arbitration. It will be seen that this article deals only with damages for the short period during which the arbitration proceedings were being conducted, and does not touch the question of damages prior to that time.

Article 8 of the treaty proper states that the high contracting parties find themselves "unable to agree upon a reference which shall include the question of the liability of each for the injuries alleged to have been sustained by the other," and accordingly they agreed "that either may submit to the arbitrators any question of fact involved in said claims and ask for a finding thereon, the question of the liability of either government upon the facts found to be the subject of further negotiation.

Questions of fact, permitted by article 8, were submitted to the tribunal, and the arbitrators have handed down a special finding on them with reference to the seizure of British vessels in Behring sea in 1887 and 1889. Further information is awaited as to the nature of this finding, which will probably afford a clue to the measure of damages likely to be assessed against the United States.

Postmaster Dayton's Sentiments.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—"You can say for me that I would rather be on the bench of the court of common pleas than be postmaster. If the nomination were offered to me I would accept it." So said Postmaster Dayton when asked about the rumor that he intended resigning the postmastership to take the nomination for the judgeship to be made vacant by the expiration of the term of Judge Miles Beach on Jan. 1 next.

Buenos Ayres Under Martial Law.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—The Herald's cable despatch from Valparaiso, via Galveston, says: Buenos Ayres is under martial law. Advices have been received from that city that government forces have been stationed at all advantageous points, and that the president is being bitterly denounced by his opponents. The situation is extremely bad.

Serious Railway Collision.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Aug. 17.—A freight train on the C. and O. railway broke in two 13 miles east of this city yesterday, and the engine pulling the second section ran into the first. Engineer Hamilton and Fireman Lar of the second were badly injured, and a tramp sustained probably fatal injuries.

New York Republicans In Session.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—The executive committee of the Republican State league were in session yesterday. The whys and wherefores of the campaign for this fall were the matters under discussion, and the committee reconvened today to continue the discussion.

Will Resume Business.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—The First National bank of Rico, Colo., which suspended payment June 30, 1893, having complied with the conditions imposed by the comptroller of the currency, has been permitted to reopen its doors for business.

To Resume Business.

PITTSBURG, Aug. 17.—Lindsay & McCutcheon, iron and steel manufacturers of Allegheny, employing 800 men, signed the Amalgamated association wage scale yesterday and ordered that work be resumed at once.

Jackson For Governor.

DES MOINES, Aug. 17.—After two ballots had been taken F. D Jackson was unanimously nominated for governor. The nominee is in New York on business and has not been in Iowa for two weeks.

FOY'S EXECUTION.

A Stay of Proceedings Asked For to Prevent Accident.

ALBANY, Aug. 17.—Governor Flower is likely to postpone the execution of Martin Foy, the Saratoga murderer, who has been sentenced to be electrocuted at Clinton prison during the week commencing Aug. 28.

Since the breaking down of the dynamo used for electrocution at Auburn a short time since Warden Thayer has been fearful of the repetition of such an accident, as both dynamos used in Auburn and Clinton prisons are of the same make and voltage capacity. There being no second electric plant to use at Dannemora, as was the case at Auburn, Warden Thayer has asked Governor Flower to postpone Foy's execution until some time in October. In the meantime the second electric plant, capable of generating 7000 volts, which has been ordered to use in lighting the prison, will be put in operation. The governor has not yet taken any action in the matter.

ROOM FOR IMPROVEMENT.

Slight Increase of Gold in the Treasury. Subsidiary Coin.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—The net balance in the treasury yesterday in addition to the $100,000,000 gold reserve was only $11,500,000. There are large fixed expenditures, which cannot be curtailed to meet the falling off in receipts. In this situation treasury officials have been looking about them to see if something cannot be done to improve matters. There is in the treasury about $12,000,000 in subsidiary coin.

Many efforts have been made by Secretaries Windom, Foster, Carlisle and their predecessors to put this subsidiary coin out among the people. The suggestion is now made to coin these half and quarter dollar silver pieces into silver dollars and put them in circulation. It is believed they would remain in the channels of trade. The cost of this coinage would be, it is stated, about $300,000. This, however, could only be done by authority of congress.

BOMBAY RIOTING.

A Large Number Killed and Wounded in a Religious Race War.

BOMBAY, Aug. 17.—The religious race rioting was resumed in this city yesterday, and for several hours the streets were the scenes of desperate conflicts. The fighting was of the most sanguinary nature, and a large number of persons were killed and wounded. Yesterday being a Hindoo holiday, the authorities anticipated a renewal of the recent disturbances, but the police and the force of troops in the garrison were inadequate to cover the whole city, and before quiet had been restored in one district fresh outbreaks would occur in another.

The rage of the mob was directed especially against the mosques, several of which were sacked and burned. All the public buildings are now guarded by troops and the gunboats in the harbor have been cleared for action and brought into position to cover the natives' quarters. The local authorities are confident of being able ultimately to quell the rising.

SEVEN KILLED.

Two Passenger Cars Fall Through a Virginia Bridge.

DANVILLE, Va., Aug. 17.—As a passenger train on the Atlantic and Danville railroad was crossing the county trestle, east of Milton, yesterday morning, the engineer felt the bridge giving away.

He threw open the throttle, and the engine, tender and a box car got safely over, but the span then went down, carrying with it two passenger cars and a sleeper into the creek 60 feet below.

The cars were shivered into kindling wood and the escape of any of the passengers was a miracle. The water in the creek had risen to the depth of 12 or more feet, and it is believed that the rise had undermined the foundation of the iron piers, causing the trestle to settle. On the train at the time were about 16 persons, including the train hands. Seven persons were killed and four injured.

Kansas Miners' Strike Off.

TOPEKA, Kan., Aug. 17.—Governor Lewelling yesterday received a telegram from M. L. Walters, president of the miners in southeastern Kansas, stating that the miners' strike had been declared off. They accepted the proposition made by C. J. Devlin, superintendent of the coal properties of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe, by which it is agreed that the new schedule of wages shall be made exactly equal to the old.

Manola Mason Bitten by a Dog.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Aug. 17.—Marion Manola Mason, who recently appeared at Herrmann's theater with her husband, Jack Mason, in "Friend Fritz," while rescuing her daughter Adelaide from a vicious dog on July 21 was bitten by the animal and has since displayed symptoms resembling those of hydrophobia.

Harrison Goes to Philadelphia.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—Ex-President Benjamin Harrison came to this city yesterday on a Fall River line boat and went to Jersey City on a Brooklyn ferryboat. The ex-president then took a train for Philadelphia on his way to Cape May. He was unrecognized, save by one or two passengers on the ferryboat.

The Story Denied.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Aug. 17.—The village authorities of Niagara Falls, Ont., pronounce the sensational story that the Odd Fellows, while meeting in grand lodge there, had destroyed the American flags and also the American consul's coat of arms as a pure fabrication.

Benevolent Catholics In Session.

PITTSBURG, Aug. 17.—The 24th annual convention of the Irish Catholic Benevolent union of North America convened in this city yesterday. Two hundred delegates attended the convention. All of the national officers were present at the opening session.

Fatal Result of a Fire.

ST. PAUL, Aug. 17.—As a result of a fire which lasted 15 minutes last evening one fireman is dead and several others injured and the stock of goods of W. J. Dyer & Bros., dealers in musical instruments, is ruined.

Mrs. Morris' Sudden Death.

NORTHPORT, N. Y., Aug. 17.—The wife of Stephen Morris, a business man of Huntington, while seated at the breakfast table, suddenly became ill and died in a few minutes from heart disease.

Life Saving Stations to Be Manned.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—Orders were issued from the treasury department to have all the life saving stations on the Atlantic coast manned Sept. 1 and continue manned until April 30, 1894.

—A western man has harnessed electricity for a new use—that of making bricks. The inventor moulds 1,000 at a mould, baking them by the electric current at the same time. Only four hours are consumed in the operation, and it is claimed that they are better for building purposes than the ordinary kind. The electric age is coming.

Chilled Air.

Possibly you don't know much about refrigerators. Plenty don't who think they do. All season long selling at 20 per cent. discount,—a wonderfully little price and everyone knows it. But there are a few left, look at them, figure 30 per cent. discount from the manufacturer's list and the chest is yours. Nuff said. Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

—The Grand Army of the Republic is to be asked to declare its position in relation to pension reform at its September meeting in Indianapolis. The issue will come up indirectly on the appeal of Farnham Post of Brooklyn against the action of the officers of the department of New York in suspending the post. This whole matter will be thoroughly ventilated and discussed, and the Army asked to undo the injustice done this post under the guise of punishment for its techinal violation of a forgotton regulation. The Grand Army will also be asked to vote on resolutions approving a thorough examination and revision of the pension rolls, for the purpose of dropping from them all unworthy recipients of government bounty.

VERDICT OF GUILTY

Rendered at Brockton Against Rev. N. B. Thompson.

RESULT OF THE VOTING.

A Sigh of Relief Over the Ending of the Trial.

BROCKTON, Mass., Aug. 18.—"Guilty" is the verdict of the members of the South Congregational church in the trial of their former pastor, Rev. Napoleon Bonaparte Thompson. The three charges were sustained. Not satisfied with thus judging him, the church has summarily expelled him from membership.

It was by far the most interesting night of the trial. The attendance was not large, only 199 members being present, out of a total membership of 390. Of the 199 present, there were 119 women and 80 men. It was woman's night, and woman's rights, as well. There were 196 members who deposited ballots, and the ex-pastor had just 59 votes when the real test came against his opponents' 137.

The Ladies Thought Him Guilty.

Of the 116 woman who voted, about 20 voted in favor of the clergyman.

The minister witnessed the sight from his usual position at the right of the moderator, and looked his accusers squarely in the face while the work of prosecuting him proceeded.

Mrs. Swift, whose constant attendance at the trial has been a test of endurance to her, took a seat in the gallery. Previous to this, all who were not members of the church, excepting reporters, were requested to take seats in the gallery.

As Mrs. Swift arose to obey the mandate of the church, the latter rescinded its vote and granted her permission to keep her accustomed seat, but she did not remain.

Warren T. Copeland, the prosecutor and member of the committee of five, reviewed the evidence and argued for one hour and 45 minutes. He was interrupted only once and the ex-pastor tried to correct some statements which were being made, but Moderator Keith ruled him out of order.

There was a look of anxiety on the faces of Thompson's accusers all through the proceedings, and they uttered a sigh of relief when the long drawn out trial was ended.

The Result of the Balloting.

On the first charge, as to the ex-pastor making over frequent visits to the room of Mrs. Lillian M. Swift, the vote was as follows: Whole number of votes, 197; yes, 130; no, 62; scattering, 5.

On second charge, as to pastor dining with Mrs. Swift at United States hotel, going to Portland on steamer Forest City and stopping with her at Preble House, the vote was: Whole number votes, 192; yes, 116; no, 70; scattering, 6.

On third charge, as to making untruthful statements: Whole number votes, 192; yes, 127; no, 60; scattering, 5.

SAD DROWNING ACCIDENT.

A Boston Lawyer Loses His Life While Trying to Save Another.

BOSTON, Aug. 18.—Charles I. Giddings, one of the brightest young lawyers of this city, lost his life in the performance of an heroic deed at Lake Winnipisogee, N. H., yesterday.

He was a young man of generous and philanthropic inclinations, with a determination to do some good as he went through the world, and he took several poor boys from Boston with him on his vacation. He had them with him on the lake steamer Cyclonic yesterday forenoon going on a Sunday school excursion. When the boat was but a short distance from the landing one of the boys became dizzy and fell overboard.

Mr. Giddings jumped into the water and for several minutes succeeded in holding the boy's head above water being himself an expert swimmer. The steamer was stopped as soon as possible and a boat put out from it which hurried to the assistance of the struggling pair, but when it was within four feet of them they both went to the bottom in 30 feet of water.

Before Mr. Giddings sank the man in the rescuing boat shouted to him to drop the boy and swim for his own life, as it was thought the boy was already dead, but he disregarded their warning.

Mr. Giddings' body was afterwards recovered and word was telegraphed his relatives in Beverly, where he lived. They received the sad news last evening.

The boy drowned was about 12 years old and is said to have helped his blind father about the streets of Boston while the latter peddled small wares.

END OF THE RIOT.

Mackie Fined and Sentenced For Interference—Griffin Pleads Not Guilty.

ABINGTON, Mass., Aug. 18.—One of the sequels to the big railroad war at North Abington occurred yesterday in the second district court, Judge Bourne presiding. Edward Mackie was charged with stealing an engine of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad on Sunday, Aug. 13, with interfering with the duties of the engineer and with assault on the fireman.

The engineer, fireman and Detective Bailey gave testimony for the road. On the count of stealing the engine the case was put off one week; the assault charge was placed on file, and the charge of interference resulted in a fine of $70 and a sentence of 30 days in jail. Mackie appealed. C. F. Choate, Jr., appeared for the road and L. F. Donovan for Mackie.

John Griffin, a track walker on the Consolidated road, was charged with cutting a rope which connected the two ends of a trolley wire of the electric road at North Abington on Tuesday morning last.

Griffin pleaded not guilty. He was represented by Counsel Choate of the Consolidated road, and the electric road's interests were in the hands of Lawyer W. J. Coughlan. On the charge of tampering with the trolley wire Griffin was fined $25.

A SERIOUS CHARGE.

A Vermont Newspaper Man Arrested For Forgery and Held In $5000 Bonds.

ST. JOHNSBURY, Vt., Aug. 18.—At a meeting of the directors of the Caledonia County Publishing company, publishers of The Daily and Weekly Republican and job printers, yesterday, Charles I. Walters was removed from the position of manager. A few hours later Walters was arrested on the charge of forgery and brought before Justice Worcester for hearing.

He waived examination and was bound over to the December term of the county court under $5000 bonds. In default of payment he was committed to the sheriff's hands. Investigation showed that Walters had forged the name of Colonel Truman C. Fletcher, one of the most prominent men in St. Johnsbury, to the amount of $5700. The London Savings bank of Lyndonville discounted two notes over two years ago of $1000 and $3000.

Last January he presented a note of $1700 to the Citizens' bank of St. Johnsbury. This was discounted for a month, and several times Walters forged Fletcher's name. Walters' indebtedness is not far from $50,000, most of which is held by banks in this community. His relatives and friends were induced to sign these notes. Walters is a young man about 30.

More Cholera Cases at Naples.

ROME, Aug. 18.—Ten fresh cases of cholera and six deaths were reported in Naples yesterday. In Sulmona, province of Aquila, there were two deaths from cholera, but no fresh cases. Several cases of cholera developed yesterday in Campbasso, 55 miles from Naples.

Monson Woolen Mill Burned.

PALMER, Mass., Aug. 18.—The large four-story stone mill of the Monson Woolen company at North Monson was wholly destroyed by fire yesterday. The loss will be $50,000.

Hoke Smith Denies Responsibility.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—Secretary Smith was yesterday shown a press dispatch to the effect that the Atlanta Journal had called upon congress to pass a free coinage bill. He said that no significance should be attached to the editorials of The Journal on account of the fact that he still holds a block of stock in that paper, for the reason that he ceased to control that paper when he came into the cabinet.

Adjudged a Lunatic.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Aug. 18.—Judge Barned has filed his decision in the case of Meredith, who desires to be transferred as a convict from the insane asylum at Mattewan to Sing Sing prison. After an exhaustive review of the entire case the judge concludes as follows: "I find that Meredith is a dangerous lunatic. He should be remanded to the asylum at Mattewan and there held until he be discharged by due course of the law."

Counterfeit Bills Unearthed.

DENVER, Colo., Aug. 18.—Dan Arata, who brutally murdered Grand Army Veteran Lightfoot a few weeks ago and was lynched, was chief of a gang of expert Italian counterfeiters. United States Secret Agent Waller has unearthed a box containing $2500 in counterfeit $5 bills in the rear of Arata's saloon. The whereabouts of the remainder of the gang is known and several arrests will be made soon.

Brief Mention.

Sam Stacy, who jumped his bail at Barre, Vt., Tuesday, has been arrested at Plattsburg, N. Y.

Three young men found the dead body of a full grown male child in a box in a field adjoining the Catholic cemetery at Haverhill, Mass.

Frank Jordan, aged 7 years, was drowned in a mill trench at Arkwright, R. I., the bank on which he was standing while fishing caving in.

A man who gave his name as James Quinn and said he belonged in Boston was arrested in Providence, R. I., for stealing a pocketbook on the street from a girl.

A Gypsy woman attempted to kidnap a boy named George Lawrence of Manchester, N. H., on Morgan street, Hartford, but the boy's companions called the police, and the woman dropped the boy and escaped.

An excited individual reported to the Pawtucket (R. I.) police that he thought he had seen Dalton, who is wanted for complicity in the murder of an East Providence man, but the police place no confidence in the story.

The body found in the Connecticut river at Rocky Hill, Conn., on Tuesday is that of James Keeney, a Hartford street department employe, who was last seen alive on a river excursion last Sunday, and probably fell off the steamer.

Five hundred people attended the Androscoggin Valley Veterans' reunion yesterday at East Livermore, Me., and elected these officers: President, J. F. Lamb; secretary and treasurer, A. D. Brown, Livermore Falls; vice president, Shirley Morrill, Turner.

SNAPS FOR BARGAIN SEEKERS.—The stock of Henry L. Kincaide & Co. 5 to 25 per cent. lower than Boston prices.

Roberts the Veterans' Choice.

BOSTON, Aug. 18.—The second day's session of the annual encampment of the Union Veterans' union was opened yesterday by prayer by Chaplain-in-Chief Warriner of Connecticut. The first business of the session was the election of officers for the ensuing year. Nominating speeches in relation to the office of commander-in-chief were made by Comrades Gibbons, Jennison, Gould, Bridges, and others. The election resulted in the choice of General John H. Roberts of Chelsea.

Died at the Town Farm.

WORCESTER, Mass., Aug. 10.—Lawrence Trainor, aged 45 years, died at the town farm at Paxton yesterday from the result of a blow on the head from some blunt instrument. He was found in a barn in an unconscious condition, Tuesday, and never regained consciousness. Frank Bedard, who was last seen with Trainor, has been arrested on suspicion.

Shoe Manufacturers Assign.

HAVERHILL, Mass., Aug. 18.—An assignment has been recorded at Salem from John Searl and Abram L. Webster, shoe manufacturers doing business under the firm name of Searl & Webster, to Judge Ira A. Abbott for the benefit of their creditors. They owe, it is reported, about $100,000, with assets far below their indebtedness.

Meeting of Cleveland's Unemployed.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 18.—A meeting of 6000 unemployed persons of this city was held in the public square last night under the auspices of the Central Labor union. Resolutions were adopted calling upon Congressman Johnson to work and vote for the free and unlimited coinage of silver.

McDonald Turns Up All Right.

BOSTON, Aug. 18.—It was incorrectly stated that John A. McDonald of Gloucester was the unfortunate man drowned at Lewis wharf on Tuesday last. He was at the home of his sister, Mrs. William West, at Harbor View, East Boston, yesterday, and left for Gloucester.

The President Stayed Home.

BUZZARD'S BAY, Mass., Aug. 18.—Steam yacht Oneida left here yesterday morning for a short cruise down the bay. Mrs. Cleveland, with a party of ladies who had visited Gray Gables, were on board, the guests of the Benedicts. The president remained at home.

Colliers Tied Up.

SALEM, Mass., Aug. 18.—The colliers Wilkesbarre and C. R. R. No. 10 have been ordered to tie up at this port and await orders. The shutdown of the mills at Lawrence and Lowell has made the coal trade very dull and unprofitable.

Paper Mills Burned.

NEEDHAM, Mass., Aug. 18.—The Waban paper mills at Charles River village, owned by Frank H. Brown, were totally destroyed by fire yesterday morning. The fire is supposed to be of incendiary origin. The loss will be about $40,000.

Word has been received in Quincy of the death of Mrs. Joanna Cunningham, of Roxbury, mother of Rev. F. A. Cunningham of this city. Fr. Cunningham has the sympathy of the Catholics of the Quincy parish in his sad affliction.

Mrs. Jeremiah Tinkham of Boston entertained a number of friends last evening at her summer residence in Germantown. A bountiful collation was served, and the party dispersed at a late hour, after having spent a very pleasant evening.

Capt Leavitt of the Quincy Cycle club has decided to change the date of the moonlight run, so as to accommodate those who work in stores, to Thursday evening, Aug. 24; start to be made from the club rooms at 7.30. All riders in the city especially ladies are invited to participate.

The Opechee was a sure winner in the second class at the Monatiquot race Wednesday but for the accident which befell her. The first time she parted her throat halyards she lost ten minutes and the second time six minutes. But for this she would have won by eight minutes.

Mr. J. F. McKenna, the well known wheelman of Ward Six, paid a wager on a recent ball game in a novel manner. Two teams from the Wollaston iron foundry played a game of ball, the captain of the losing team to wheel the captain of the winning team from the foundry to Wollaston depot and return escorted by a band from the shop. Mr. McKenna paid the wager Tuesday noon before a large and enthusiastic audience, and Mr. Beasley had a delightful ride in style.

MOORE—SOUTHER NUPTIALS

Wedding of Quincy Young Lady and Brookline Gentleman a Society Event.

The beautiful new home of J. E. Moore on Winchester street Brookline, was the scene of a brilliant society event Thursday evening, says the Boston Advertiser, the occasion being the wedding of Mr. Moore and Miss Annie D. Souther of Quincy, a daughter of the late F. L. Souther, who was the first Massachusetts soldier to fall in the War of the Rebellion.

At 7.30 as the first strains of the Lohengrin bridal chorus were heard the bride entered the spacious front parlor leaning on the arm of her sister, Miss Marcella A. Souther, who gave her away, attended by the maid of honor, Miss M. M. Souther, her cousin, and the bridesmaids, Miss A. Clara True, and Miss Cynthia G. Souther. They took their station in an elaborately constructed bower of potted palms in the bay of the parlor, where they were met by the groom and his best man, J. H. Appleton of Cambridge. The nuptial ceremony was performed by Rev. H. F. Allen of the church of the Messiah of Boston.

The bride was attired in a fetching gown of cream bengaline and duchess lace, en train, and tulle veil, which fell in silvery folds, with trimmings of pearl. She wore diamond ornaments, and carried a large bouquet of carnations.

THE NEW DRUG STORE.

Charles C. Hearn Has an Attractive Store, Centrally Located.

A handsome and well appointed drug store is opened today in the new Faxon block by Mr. Charles C. Hearn, who also has a store at West Quincy. The store is a corner one, and thus has the advantage of large show windows on two sides, which furnish ample light by day, while brass chandeliers for four electric lights each, with another in the centre of the store, furnish the necessary illumination by night. In the show windows which are backed by drapery, are numerous druggist sundries and handsome colored show jars.

Entering the corner door upon a tile floor one at once sees the beauty of the store. On the left is an oak counter with oak bound show cases in which are fancy articles, stationery, etc. On the right is a handsome low art tile soda fountain, surrounding which is a handsomely carved and polished frame, in the centre of which is a large oval plate glass mirror.

Next is a counter on which are show cases containing choice brands of cigars and confectionery. Back of this is the bottle shelves, underneath which are numerous draws containing drugs.

The prescription case, or counter, is perhaps the most striking fixture of the store. It occupies a position at the centre of the back. This is also of oak and is handsomely carved. In the centre of this is an oblong oval mirror, on either side of which are shelves, with glass doors, containing perfumery, fancy soaps, etc.

The back of the safe is fitted with shelves for small bottles and in the centre is a set of shelves with a ground glass door labelled "Poisons." Cases for patent medicine occupy the space at the back of this counter.

In the centre of the room are round and oblong steam radiators, and about the room are numerous tropical plants, while choice cut flowers ornament the soda fountain.

Besides the store itself there is a back room.

Mr. Hearn, the proprietor, has been in the drug business for a number of years, having a store at West Quincy, where by strict attention to business he has won the confidence and respect of the citizens of our city.

An invitation is extended to all to inspect his new store.

Clapp Bros. "ad" is large enough to be seen today and they have also a large stock of goods obtained at a bargain which they will sell cheap.

The LEDGER is unable to give today the award of the medals and premiums to members of the Catholic Sunday schools, but hopes to be able to tomorrow.

—The First Universalist Society of Assinippi, whose church was burned on the morning of June 21st, have decided to build a new church on the site of the old one.

FIRE ALARM IN CIRCUITS.

Four of the Six Already Run—How the Boxes Are Located.

The single fire alarm circuit in this city is a thing of the past as the circuit was cut up Thursday into four circuits. It is the intention to divide the line into six circuits but the wires at present have only been run for four circuits. The other wires will be run as soon as possible.

The circuit repeater is located at the central station and is a handsome as well as a very sensitive piece of apparatus. On the table with the repeater there is a galvanometer for each circuit and a switch board.

The galvanometers show at all times at a glance whether there is any trouble on the line and all it is necessary to do to locate it is to throw the switches and watch the movement of the needle on the galvanometer.

Back of the room where this apparatus is located is the battery room which is used exclusively for that purpose. The batteries are located on a rack in the centre of the room so that they can be reached from all sides. There is also in this room a sink in which there is city water.

In order to explain the working of the repeater it would be necessary to use technical terms which the general public would not understand, suffice to say that when a box is pulled on one circuit it throws a drop and works through a series of coils on all the circuits so that while an alarm from one circuit is working it is impossible to make another box work.

The several boxes and tappers are now located on the circuit as follows:

Circuit No. 1,—Boxes 34, 75, 73, 72, 71, 25, 12, 14, 26, Engineer Newcomb's tapper, the Quincy Point and Stone church bells and tapper in Capt. Littlefields house.

Circuit No. 2,—Boxes 35, 23, 28, 54, 57, 51, 61, 52, 53, 56, Central station gong, Engineer Packards gong, Tubular Rivet and Capt. D. J. Nyhan's tappers.

Circuit No. 3,--Boxes 21, 59, 58, 48, 47, 45, 46, 49, 43, 42, 41, 39, 38, 37, 31, Hall place bell tappers at Chief Ripley, Engineer White, Driver Gragg and at pumping station, and the steam whistle.

Circuit No. 4,—Boxes 68, 64, 62, bell at Atlantic chemical houses.

As will be noticed all the boxes in one ward are not on the some circuit, with the exception of Wards Three and Four which will be changed as soon as the new wires are run.

In Ward One it will be noticed that the fire boxes are divided up so that they are on three circuits, boxes 25 and 26 being on No. 1, 23 and 28 on No. 2, and 21 on No. 3.

In Ward Five boxes 54, 57, 51, 52, 53 and 56 are on No. 2, and boxes 59 and 58 on No. 3.

In the thirties, box 34 is on No. 1, 35 on No. 2, boxes 39, 33, 37 and 31 on No. 3.

In the sixties, box 61 is on No. 2, boxes 68, 64 and 62 on No. 4.

SOME POINTERS.

How to Advertise Quincy Granite Throughout the Country.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

I have before me the LEDGER of August 11. I notice with pleasure the article signed "Alphia." My object in writing is to stir up the granite dealer to doing something. "Alphia" has the advantage of me in knowing about granite. I may have some advantage in understanding about advertising. In my article in the LEDGER of the 14th, I made it pretty plain that advertising was like steam. We go into a factory, all is silent when the steam is not on. Now let the steam on and how quick everything is on the move.

So it is with all kind of trade. I say all kind, including grocery, dry goods, furniture, etc.; let the steam on, or rather advertise and they move. So the question comes, will it pay to advertise, also how shall we do so. In addition to what I said in my last letter, I will now state that perhaps the best way at present to advertise at the World's fair is by two ways, one of which I have in a previous letter mentioned.

The people that visit the World's fair are looking for something to take home for a souvenir, and the best that can be had as far as our city is concerned is a small sample of Quincy granite. Let a few barrels of small pieces of granite, about as large as a man's thumb be sent to the Fair at once, then let them be placed on a table, that is, a few hundred pieces each day, let signs be placed near by stating that they are free samples from the birthplace of John Adams, the second president of the United States, and with each sample let the attendant give a circular.

These samples would go all over the world and if the circular was strong they with the sample would be kept for years and would do much good.

In my next article, which may be my last, I shall tell what I think is the proper way to advertise Quincy granite so it can hold its own against inferior goods. What must be done so that the jobber will be obliged to sell Quincy granite.

Within a few days I have returned from the West and never was there a prospect of good times in this country as now. The West had last year good crops so they were able to pay what they were behind. This year the crops are good, no grass hoppers or clinch bugs, and within a few weeks the crops will be sold and the money sent east for shoes, monuments, etc.

A RIOT AT GOTHAM.

Police and Unemployed Come Together With Serious Results.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—The first of the riots which labor leaders and others have been predicting for some time, as the result of the large number of men out of employment, occurred yesterday. A crowd of more than 5000 men attacked Walhalla hall on Orchard street, because admittance was denied them. They broke the plate glass windows into atoms, forced in the door, which had been turned against them, and forcibly took possession of the place.

At 2:45 o'clock the proprietor asked Captain Devery to clear the hall of the 1000 excited Hebrews that were howling inside, and with a dozen men he entered the hall by a side door. Some one foolishly locked the main door on the outside. When the speaker caught sight of the police he shouted, "The police, the police; escape." Then a chorus of shouts went up all over the hall. Several arrests were made.

Some one cried, "We'll stay here till our comrades are released." Captain D'Every ordered them out. Then a scene of wild confusion followed. The men were so enraged at the proprietor that they began to wreck the place.

The mob that gathered smashed windows, gas fixtures were pulled down and a new piano was destroyed.

The women shopping in Grand street ran into the stores. The Hebrews fired missiles of every description at the police and Captain D'Every narrowly escaped being struck by a flying brick. The police arrested the ringleaders and the rest fled in every direction.

IN CONGRESS.

Amendment to National Bank Circulation Bill—Mr. Mantle's Case.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—In the senate yesterday Mr. Gorman offered an amendment to the bank circulation bill preventing national banks from withdrawing circulation without a previous six days notice to the comptroller of the currency, and without the approval of the secretary of the treasury, and limiting the aggregate amount of such withdrawals to $3,000,000 within any calendar month. The vote on the question of Mr. Mantle's claim to a seat by appointment from the governor of Montana was fixed for 5 p. m. Monday. The joint resolution for the payment of mileage for the present session was passed. After three speeches on the silver question the house adjourned out of respect to the memory of the late J. Logan Chipman of Michigan.

WILL USE CERTIFIED CHECKS

To Move the Southern Cotton Crop—Convenient as Currency.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—Leading bank presidents of the city said, when questioned, that in all probability the currency difficulty in the south would to a great extent be relieved by the adoption in that section of a plan similar to that adopted by the business men, manufacturers and others in Buffalo and its vicinity.

Certified checks for small amounts will be paid out by the cotton factors and others, and as they will only be payable through the clearing houses they will pass current from hand to hand and be as convenient as ordinary currency. As certified checks are always passed and are accepted as cash anywhere there can be no question as to the legality of their issue or use, only it is not usual, of course, to ask for the certification of checks for small amounts

Professor Guiteras' Decision.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—Professor Guiteras, the yellow fever expert from the University of Pennsylvania, who went to Brunswick, Ga., to determine the case of Dr. Branhan, has telegraphed Surgeon General Wyman confirming the decision that the patient had the yellow fever, but so far it does not appear that the city is in any way affected.

Observed Its Bicentennial.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Aug. 18.—The town of Newcastle observed its bicentennial yesterday. New York residents and places of business were decorated, and a number of addresses were delivered.

Raimondo's Case Continued.

BOSTON, Aug. 18.—Antonio Raimondo, who was complained of for assault with intent to kill Peter F. Beatty, had his bail reduced from $25,000 to $1500. The case was then continued to Aug. 24.

Run Over and Killed.

WAREHAM, Mass., Aug. 18.—Harry Batterson, an employe at the Standard Horseshoe works at South Wareham, was run over and killed by a freight train at Parker Mills yesterday.

THE VIGILANT FIRST.

Her Nearest Competitor Five Minutes Behind Her.

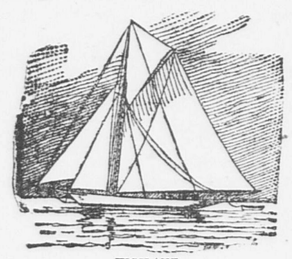

THE PILGRIM DISABLED.

The Four Yachts Will Race Again Today.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 18.—A victory again for the Herreshoffs is the result of the best race the new cup defenders have yet had.

Vigilant has again borne her colors to the front, and made another strong argument in favor of her selection for the defense of America's cup. The disablement of two of her antagonists did not spoil the splendor of her victory.

The big sloops had all preceded her and were playing around the lightship for signals. Jubilee, with five tons of dunnage taken out of her, moved easily through the water, and General Paine did not look in the least worried as he faced the south-southast wind, which freshened every minute. The tide was at the flood.

VIGILANT.

The four new sloops were working easily under mainsails, foresails, jibs and club-topsails. The course was signaled and at 11:25 the preparatory signal was made.

Jubilee adopted her old tactics and ran back from the front of the line. Jubilee was the first boat to windward, with Pilgrim passing through her lee and Colonia behind them, with Vigilant in the rear.

All the yachts had been on the starboard tack when they crossed, but Pilgrim concluded, a few miles out, to split tacks and make a long stretch over behind Vigilant.

Vigilant's Great Work.

Vigilant was doing great sailing and her sails set like boards, being far better than Colonia's or Jubilee's in this respect. Vigilant was well to windward and Jubilee could hardly have split tacks and come about ahead of her.

Jubilee was yet leading, but Vigilant was hauling on her and sailing so fast that Colonia, seeing that she was being bested, split tacks with her sister wonder. Vigilant then tacked and Jubilee also tacked and stuck to her boats. Pilgrim was still on the port tack, away off to leeward.

Vigilant, as the boats came into their new position on the port tack, was outpointing Jubilee and Colonia, although to leeward of Jubilee, and outfooting them both. Pilgrim stood in shortly after on the starboard tack and crossed Colonia's bow at 12:45, but was over 200 yards astern of Vigilant.

At 12:50 Pilgrim came about and was probably the second boat, with Jubilee very close to her and Vigilant but little ahead. Her tactics had been successful. She had been the leeward boat at the start and was now to windward of one boat and ahead of two.

Pilgrim Outfooted.

At 1:07 Vigilant came about on the port tack, followed by Colonia three minutes later. Vigilant crossed both Pilgrim and Jubilee, and Colonia passed Pilgrim, but Jubilee luffed.

As the boats beat down to the mark later, tacks brought the Jubilee in ahead of the Colonia, while the vigilant was constantly increasing her lead. The Vigilant's windward work was of the first order, and her handling showed plenty of good seamanship and judgment. She had no flukes, did not overstand on a single tack, as did the Jubilee and Colonia, and she outpointed the fleet.

The Colonia put on her little jibtopsail again to help her out with the Jubilee, but the Boston boat had her, although the Colonia lessened her lead from two minutes to less than a minute by the time they reached the outer mark.

Round the Outer Mark.

The racers rounded the outer mark on the port tack, and gybed booms to starboard as they cleared away for the run home. The order at the outer mark and official times of rounding were:

Vigilant, 2:05:37; Jubilee, 2:12:20; Colonia, 2:13:15; Pilgrim, 2:16:42.

It was fully five minutes after Vigilant rounded the mark before she set her spinnaker to starboard, and as long again before her balloon jibtopsail bellied out with the falling breeze. Colonia and Jubilee were both quicker with these sails, although the latter's spinnaker broke out poorly, and her balloon jib did not work properly.

Pilgrim was virtually out of the race, and she broke the jaws of her gaff and her club, but the damage will be repaired and she will be in today's race. Colonia gained 10 seconds upon Jubilee, and Jubilee gained two minutes and 20 second. on the run in.

This was the result of a deviation of Colonia's compass, whereby she ran too far to the northward of Breton's Reef lightship and had to furl her light balloon jibtopsail and spinnaker and gybe her mainboom to fetch by at all. She clearly outfooted Jubilee all through the second leg.

Jubilee also carried away the jaws of her gaff, near the lightship, but will race today.

Vigilant's performance, when her late start and the loss by her compass deviation is taken into account, is an even greater victory than appears from the official summary:

	Start. H. M. S.	Finish. H. M. S.	El. time. H. M. S.
Vigilant	11 36 19	3 39 11	4 02 52
Jubilee	11 35 21	3 43 34	4 08 13
Colonia	11 35 58	3 44 19	4 08 21
Pilgrim	11 35 26	No time taken.

Found With His Throat Cut.

MOUNT HOLLY, N. J., Aug. 18.—George Henderson, about 50 years of age, was found dead with his throat cut yesterday. Patrick Mulligan, a farm hand, was arrested on the charge of having committed the murder and was locked up.

MANET BEACH.

A rainy day at the beach is one of the most disagreeable events that mar the enjoyment of the cottagers. Thursday was a day well calculated to develop an epidemic of the blues. The air was raw and cold while the rain at times came down in regular sheets, which kept the streets deserted and gave a general air of desolation to this little hamlet.

A few ladies from Quincy braved the cold and the wet and came down in the afternoon. They immediately sought shelter in the club house, and, for a while, enlivened things with the aid of the piano. Taken altogether it was a most disagreeable day, and when Old Sol again shows his face he will be heartily welcomed.

The plans for the illumination which takes place a week from Wednesday, are beginning to assume a definite form. In order that the illumination may be a success the committee are desirous of having the hearty co-operation of every resident at Houghs Neck, Manet Beach and Rock Island. A number of gentlemen who have been appointed by the committee will call at every cottage for a subscription of one dollar.

The programme as now contemplated will consist of sailing parties, band concert, fire works, bon fires, punch and judy show, games, etc. The Quincy and Boston Street Railway have placed their car house at the disposal of the committee, and in this building the children will be furnished with refreshments free of expense.

The committee hope that, as in the past two years, the ladies will give a loaf of cake each, which can be left at J. L. Harvey's pavilion before 1 o'clock on Wednesday, August 30. The subscription committee will furnish tickets for sailing and refreshments when the subscriptions are received. Many of the cottagers will keep open house and it is safe to say that the season of '93 will end as gloriously, if not more so, than its predecessors.

Mackerel have struck in and every day, rain or shine, the disciples of Izaak Walton may be seen leaving for Sheep Island. Despite the storm of Thursday, "Billy" Harrison and the Globe man went down to the sea in quest of the "spoils of the deep." Lest it might lead people to doubt the young men's veracity, I will refrain from chronicling the result of the expedition. Capt. Hunt went them one better, and brought in one solitary specimen which will save the Lazy club from going down to Anderson's for their weekly fish dinner.

Pierce's dance hall is becoming the place of rendezvous for the young people of the beach and every afternoon and evening it is thronged with the merry admirers of terpischore.

Capt. Brown of Station 16 who has been at the "Milton" cottage for two weeks has returned to duty, but his family will remain another week.

Councilman Johnson went down to the beach on Thursday to see about some common victualers licenses that had been asked for.

A party of nine from Randolph dined at Pierces' on Thursday.

Last Day But One.

Miss Holley of Boston makes the largest gain in popularity contest today and moves up from 11th to 8th place. If she could move up in the list as fast as that in each of the few remaining days she would be secure that $100 seashore lot. Others also make gains and today's standing is:

Arthur H. Dunham, Houghs Neck	4872
Mrs. J. M. Emery, Loretto cottage	4753
Mrs. Hattie Connors, Brockton cafe	974
C. A. Hutchins, Manet Beach	600
Benj. C. Leonard, Brockton	315
Miss Sarah C. Meehan, Babcock St.	164
Mrs. A. L. Macomber, Winthrop cafe	155
Miss Edith Rose, Stoughton	107
Charles W. Hall, Quincy	94
F. G. Morse, Holbrook	90
Miss C. L. Holley, Boston	111
W. H. Shaw, Great Hill	50

Chilled Air.

Possibly you don't know much about refrigerators. Plenty don't who think they do. All season long selling at 20 per cent. discount,—a wonderfully little price and everyone knows it. But there are a few left, look at them, figure 30 per cent. discount from the manufacturer's list and the chest is yours. Nuff said. Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

—At a meeting of the Newburyport city council, Monday evening, a special election was ordered for Aug. 31, to vote on the water works question. The city has made a proposition to the company now operating the works to purchase the plant, and the vote will be "yes or "no" on the matter of closing the bargain.

BRAINTREE.

The Veterans Capture the Third Prize with the Butcher Boy.

The Braintree veteran firemen entered the Butcher Boy engine in the tournament of the New England Veteran Firemen's League at Worcester yesterday, and the veteran prize winner is still "in it," the boys bringing home a lot of new brooms. The engine was manned by 75 men, George Sumner, captain, and they were accompanied by the Rockland drum corps. There were 21 contestants and the Butcher Boys had their second trial. The Peabody tub led off with 193 ft. 6 3-4 in., but the Braintree men put the mark up to nearly 200, the exact distance being 199 ft. 10 1-2 in. Brockton, Lowell, Newton and Providence tried in vain to do better, but the "Haycart," a double-decked Jeffers engine from Pawtucket played 204 ft. 7 1-2 in., and later the Gardner tub wet the paper at 203 ft. 5 1-2 in. All the others were below the Butcher Boys, one playing only 140 ft. 3 in. The third prize of $100, therefore, came to Braintree.

MILTON.

James Daley, meat cutter at T. L. Pearce's store, is on his vacation this week.

Mrs. B. R. Fuller and Miss Bertha Robertson have gone to New Castle, Me., for two weeks.

A number of young people attended the band concert at Dedham Tuesday evening.

A party of young people composed of George Berry, James Rooney, John Dolan, James Gallagher, Miss Margaret Kelliher, Miss Annette Kelliher, Miss Josie Gallagher, Miss Belle Berry and Miss Susie Berry will occupy the Seaweed cottage at Houghs Neck for two weeks.

Miss Mamie Kelliher, bookkeeper at T. L. Pearce's store, goes on her vacation next week.

More Postal Carriers Wanted.

The Civil Service Commission at Washington has ordered that an examination be held in Quincy on Saturday, Sept. 9, 1893, commencing at 9 o'clock, A. M., for the grades of clerk and carrier in the city post office. Only citizens of the United States can be examined. The age limitations are as follows: For carrier, not under 21 nor over 40; for all other positions, not under 18 years. No application will be accepted for this examination unless filed with the undersigned in complete form, on the proper blank, before the hour of closing business on Sept. 2, 1893.

The Civil Service Commission takes this opportunity of stating that the examinations are open to all reputable citizens who may desire to enter the postal service, without regard to their political affiliations. All such citizens, whether democrats or republicans, or neither, are invited to apply. They shall be examined, graded, and certified with entire impartiality, and wholly without regard to their political views, or to any consideration save their efficiency, as shown by the grades they obtain in the examination. For application blanks, full instructions, and information relative to the duties and salaries of the different positions, apply at the post office to C. G. Souther, Secretary, Board of Examiners.

The pay for carriers is $600 the first year and $850 the second.

September Magazines.

Godey's Magazine for September contains a variety of matter and many attractive features. First comes the complete novel, Si's Daughter, by Frederick B. Mott. The Woman Question in Japan is a timely illustrated article by Helen E. Gregory-Fletcher. The water color portraits are those of Mrs. Francis C. Carolyn of San Francisco and Mrs. Arthur J. Caton of Chicago.

The September number of Short Stories is bright and readable to a degree unusual with even this enterprising magazine. Worthy of special mention is the careful and elaborate study of a New England family by Pauline Wesley, called "A Crisis in Heredity," and "Her Decision" by Abbe Carter Goodloe is an equally clever satire on the literary aspirations of a young and beautiful woman.

Metropolitan Parks.

The Metropolitan Park Commissioners will make an examination of the Blue Hills on Monday next. They have already visited the Lynn Woods, Lynn and Swampscott shores and Middlesex Fells. The commission has removed to new rooms in the Ames building, Boston.

Holbrook's Valuation.

The assessors of Holbrook report the value of real estate to be $987,357, and personal property amounting to $167,250, making a total valuation of $1,154,607. This is an increase of some $13,550 over last year. The rate of taxation remains the same, $20 on $1000.

Appointed Inspector.

Daniel C. McCarthy of this city was on Thursday appointed by Secretary Carlisle as inspector of the new post office building at Washington, D. C. Mr. McCarthy is a prominent Democrat, a member of the city committee, and has served as an election officer.

THE BEHRING SEA.

This Country Must Pay Damages to Great Britain.

THE BASIS OF SETTLEMENT.

The Canadian Minister Has His Little Say.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—The main interest officially in the Behring sea decision now centers in the question of damages that this country will be oblized to pay Great Britain for the use of seal-hunting subjects, who were kept out of Behring sea through the operation of the modus vivendi or were seized as poachers prior to an agreement.

In accordance with article V of the convention of the renewal of the modus vivendi, the arbitration tribunal, which must decide how much compensation is due Great Britain from the United States to be used for British subjects for abstaining from the exercise of right to take seals in Behring sea during the pendency of the arbitration, have already passed on the subject, but their report has not been made public. So much is definitely settled with regard to the damages this government will be obliged to pay, and they must be paid promptly by agreement in the treaty renewing the modus vivendi.

Claims For Damages.

But the main question of damages for seizures made is not in so definitable and settled a condition. Nothing in the arbitration treaty or the convention for a renewal of the modus viviendi makes provision for allowing damages to persons who have been injured through the unlawful seizure of sealing vessels, and it is stated at the department of state that the matter must take the course usually followed in diplomacy.

Claims againt the United States either individually or in bulk will be filed by the owners of the vessels seized.

The United States will enter into correspondence with the government of Great Britain with reference to their settlement. If it is seen that a settlement as to the justice of the claim made and the compensation to be made can be reached the matter will proceed through the ordinary diplomatic channels.

Basis of Settlement.

In the event of failure to come to some basis for a settlement without resort to arbitration, and it is predicted that failure will result, the two governments will agree to leave the question to the judgment of an unprejudiced tribunal, and to this end a claims commission will be appointed. It is therefore to be seen that some time must elapse before a definite arrangement will be reached respecting the course of procedure with reference to the assessment of damages.

Canadian Minister's Opinion.

LONDON, Aug. 18.—Charles H. Tupper, Canadian minister of marine and fisheries and British agent at the Behring sea arbitration, sailed from Liverpool for Montreal on the steamship Parisian yesterday. Shortly before going aboard he said he believed that the United States would agree to regulations which would protect seal life in the Behring sea, while not stopping profitable pelagic sealing.

Austrian Opinion.

VIENNA, Aug. 18.—In a leader on the Behring sea arbitration The Neue Friere Presse says that the regulations can be viewed as a moral success for the United States and a kind of a consolation for the defeat on all legal points.

The Cherokee Allotments.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—Secretary Hoke Smith yesterday directed Agent Duncan to notify all persons who have made selections for allotments in the Cherokee outlet that they will be allowed to file at the interior department proof and argument in support thereof until Sept. 1. Agent Duncan's written report transmitting descriptions of the 70 allotments made by him was read at the interior department this morning.

Condition of the National Banks.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—The abstract of the reports made to the comptroller of the currency showing the condition of the national banks in the United States July 12 last has been made public. A comparison shows a decrease in individual deposits of $193,000,000; in loans and discounts of $137,000,000; in specie of $21,000,000, and in undivided profits of $13,000,000.

Accepted the Reduction.

PITTSBURG, Aug. 18.—About 1000 miners employed by the W. E. Scott Coal company in the Youghiogheny valley held a meeting to consider a proposition made by the company to operate the mines in full at a reduction of 5 cents a ton. The men accepted the company's terms. The reduction is from 79 to 74 cents. The mines will be started full at once.

Trainmen to Meet In Boston.

BOSTON, Aug. 18.—On Oct. 16 in Faneuil hall the biennial international convention of the Brotherhood of Railroad and Trainmen will begin. The organization, which includes conductors, baggagemen, yardmen and brakemen, will be represented at the convention by at least 550 regularly elected delegates.

Probably Drowned.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., Aug. 18.—Sub-Inspector Sturgis of the new Lock pit is missing. Tuesday evening he started in the direction of the rapids in a rowboat. Fragments of the boat were picked up below the rapids yesterday, and it is supposed he was drowned by being drawn into the whirlpool.

Colored Desperado In Custody.

YELLOW SPRINGS, O., Aug. 18.—Whaley, the colored desperado who made a murderous assault on Farmer Hopple a few days ago, was captured yesterday in a hayloft. He surrendered at the muzzle of a shotgun in the hands of the sheriff and posse.

Plagued by Grasshoppers.

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 18.—An invasion of grasshoppers occurred at Fort Scott, Kan., recently. They appeared from the south and laid waste all lawns, stripped trees, and were so thick on the street that the ground was almost covered.

The Situation Unchanged.

ST. PAUL, Aug. 18.—There has been no change in the situation with the Manitoba and Northwestern railroad, which is practically paralyzed by the strike which now extends through every department.

HELLISH WORK.

Children Crippled For the Purpose of Rendering Them Objects of Charity.

VIENNA, Aug. 18.—A gang of men have been arrested in Biskupitz, Croatia, because they have mutilated young children. The men have for years made a trade of crippling children and then sending them out to beg or selling them to others for the same purpose. Children were stolen or were misled with promises to visit the house kept by the gang on the outskirts of the town. Once there, they were bound and tortured.

When the police forced their way into the house they found two girls of 12 or 13 years with their legs broken. Another girl of about the same age lay bound on a bed with her right arm broken and both eyes gouged out.

Two other children, hardly less horribly mutilated, were found on cots in the cellar. Many instruments which had been used in producing physical deformities were uncovered in the cellar and were seized for evidence.

Riotous Striking Miners.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Aug. 18.—Forty miners who went into the shaft yesterday when the Riverside resumed operations were pelted with rocks by a gang of strikers. Several of the number who resumed work quit at noon, owing to the fact that their wives and families had been threatened with extermination by the secret order of the strikers. Further trouble is feared and the sheriff has sworn in many deputies.

Will Represent Hamburg.

BERLIN, Aug. 18.—Herr Holkenbuhr, social Democrat, was elected yesterday by 4500 majority to succeed August Bebel, social Democrat, as parliamentary representative of the first Hamburg district. The vacancy was left by the resignation of the seat by Bebel after the general election, in order that he might sit for Strasburg, where he was also returned.

Morrill Heard From.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Aug. 18.—Mrs. C. A. Morrill, wife of the missing cashier, stated yesterday that her husband is ill, and is under a doctor's care, but as soon as he recovers sufficiently he will return to town and assist in making things straight. His illness was the cause of his leaving town. She declines to state where he is.

The Maine Grangers.

AUBURN, Me., Aug. 18.—The worthy master and the executive committee of the state grange yesterday fixed upon Dover as the place of the annual meeting on the third Tuesday in September. They also incorporated the state society. Arrangements have been made for the national grange to visit Maine next month.

Cholera on the Increase.

VIENNA, Aug. 18.—Seven new cases and 10 deaths from cholera are reported from Newodanna, a town of 5000 inhabitants in Austrian Galicia. In Sniatyn on the Pruth, there were no fresh cases and but one death. A dispatch from Moscow says that the epidemic is abating rapidly in the city and province of Orel.

Hop's Bail Reduced.

BOSTON, Aug. 18.—The bail of Hop Yick Lung, who was arrested several days ago, for assault and battery with a stool, with intent to kill William J. Mann, was cut down yesterday from $20,000 to $1500, by Judge Hardy in the municipal criminal court. The hearing in the case was then put over until Aug. 25.

Economy of the Northern Pacific.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—The receivers of the Northern Pacific railroad have ordered the following economies: Salaries from $1200 to $500 to be reduced 10 per cent; salaries from $5000 to $1000 to be reduced 15 per cent; salaries above $10,000 to be reduced 15 per cent.

THE PRELIMINARIES

For the Bay State Republican Gubernatorial Nomination.

THE HART MEN DEFEATED.

The Call For Caucuses Issued For Sept. 22.

BOSTON, Aug. 19.—The friends of Hon. Albert E. Pillsbury have won the first skirmish for the control of the Boston delegation to the Republican convention.

The skirmish was fought at the meeting of the executive committee of the Republican city committee at headquarters yesterday afternoon.

Chairman Everett W. Burdett led the Hart supporters, and Representative Presho of Charlestown marshaled the friends of the attorney general.

A. E. PILLSBURY.

Both sides used up many hours in talk. Those who want Thomas N. Hart's name at the head of the state ticket went in for the calling of the city caucuses at the earliest possible date, saying that they had agreed upon Sept. 13 as the time. This was too early for the Pillsbury men, who fought to have the caucuses put off till Sept. 22.

Hart Men Confident.

The Hart men felt that Boston could be depended upon to send a solid Hart delegation to the state convention, and they have confidently relied upon this showing of their strength to influence results in the caucuses held outside the city.

Boston's delegation has always to a more or less degree decided close results in the state convention, and the ex-postmaster's friends knew that their missionaries at their back could do some heavy work among the friends of candidates seeking for the minor nominations.

Pillsbury's adherents went into the meeting fully aware of every one of these moves and fully determined to checkmate them. They knew that their candidate would be sure to make so handsome a showing in the cities and towns outside of Boston that by the time the Boston caucuses were held there would be so overwhelming a demand for Mr. Pillsbury's nomination that the Hart men would find it politics not to oppose him.

Thus to Mr. Pillsbury's adherents late caucuses in Boston only the more assured their candidate's nomination.

Pillsbury's Adherents Victorious.

It was a close fight and the Pillsbury men won by a vote of 15 to 12. The full membership of the committee is 29, and the Hart men claimed last night that the two absentees would have voted with them. On the other hand, the Pillsbury men say that even if they had been present the late caucuses would still have one vote to the good.

The caucuses will be holden on Sept. 22.

The Hart men left the meeting not altogether pleased. There had been something done preliminary to the voting that caused them to grumble.

There was a member of the committee from ward 23 expelled for neglect of duty whose vote the Hart men claim, and there was a new member admitted from ward 11, whose vote went with the Pillsbury company, at least that is another claim of the Hart men.

In other words, the Hart men had a majority of the full committee, and yet they were beaten, and the Pillsbury men have called the caucuses.

Hart's friends say they will carry the city's caucuses all right. This boasting had only the effect last night of causing the Pillsbury men to "wink the other eye."

WAS SHE MURDERED?

A Boston Woman Found Dead Under Suspicious Circumstances.

BOSTON, Aug. 19.—An autopsy today is likely to result in the detention of Miss Maggie Crowley and Malachi Watson on a serious charge. Yesterday afternoon John Flannigan accosted two police officers and in an excited manner declared that his aunt, Mrs. Malachi Watson, was murdered. The officers accompanied him to a house at the corner of Pleasant and Roach streets, where they found the woman lying dead. Her clothing was disarranged and the exposed part of her body was covered with bruises and showed marks of violence. Malinda Watson, her husband, and Miss Crowley were in the room, both beastly intoxicated. They were arrested, and young Flannigan was also locked up as a witness.

A neighbor who lived in the house stated that she heard the noise of a lively row in the evening, which lasted until midnight. A short time afterward she was summoned by the Crowley woman and found Mrs. Watson kneeling on the floor, her head resting on the bed, dead.

Watson, when questioned by the officers, grew very ugly and ordered them to leave the house. He would say nothing tending to throw light on the death of his wife.

Watson, who is 54 years of age, lives on a pension from the government, most of which was spent in debauchery. His wife also was addicted to the use of liquor. The frequent presence of the Crowley woman in the house is said to have been the cause of much tronble between husband and wife.

UNRULY PRISONERS.

They Objected to Their Dinner and Started a Row, but Were Squelched.

BOSTON, Aug. 19.—Yesterday afternoon Superintendent Gerrish of Deer island telegraphed for assistance. Commissioners Jenks and Pillsbury were in town and at once hastened to the scene of action. They spent all the afternoon at the island investigating the disturbed state of affairs and returned to the city in the evening. To a reporter Commissioner Pillsbury told the following story:

When we reached the island everything was quiet. The strike on the part of the prisoners was entirely unjustifiable. We have, I think, too many men at Deer island, some 1700 being incarcerated there. The new drunk law has thrown some 500 new ones on our hands. The prisoners are fed at four tables. Yesterday fish chowder was served. The potatoes were objected to. They were rather small, but good and sound, and were raised on the island. The chowder was perhaps a little thin. Toward the end of the dinner some of the prisoners at one of the tables began to rattle the dishes, knives and forks.

The signal was given that dinner was over, and the men were marched into the yard. At 1 o'clock the whistle sounded for work, and many refused to answer the call. The prison officers immediately rushed upon the ringleaders. This took the spirit out of the uprisal, and when our city officers arrived general quiet reigned. That is why I think the call for the police was really unnecessary. The ringleaders are now in cells. The other prisoners are all quiet and were at work all the afternoon. It was really a petty trouble, with but little seriousness in its nature. We look for no further disturbance, and the police have returned to the city.

SHORT OF FUNDS.

Mayor Sargent of New Haven Announces a Scheme to Raise Money.

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 19.—Because of the fact that the date on which the city taxes will fall due was prolonged two months by the late general assembly the city government is in the need of $100,000. Taxes are not payable until December, and the above sum must be raised at once to meet the city's current expenses. Rather than borrow the money outright Mayor Sargent has hit upon a plan which he thinks is much better and has announced that the city would run a bank of its own and that hereafter until further notice sums of $100 or more would be received at his office and 5 per cent city bonds would be issued for the same. By doing this he hopes to get many of the small sums now tied up into circulation again.

The Rumor Denied.

Story Denied by a Stockholder.

LYNN, Mass., Aug. 19.—President C. A. Coffin of the General Electric company was in New York last night, so also was E. W. Rice, Jr., superintendent of the Lynn plant, and Elihu Thomson, the inventor of the company, is at present at the World's fair. The story printed in a Boston paper last evening, which claims that the New England stockholders of this concern have been robbed of $50,000,000, has caused a great stir and then general laughter. Patrick Lennox, who is a stockholder, claims that the story is not true, and that the paper will be made to retract it in short order.

Charged With Bigamy.

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 19.—John Thomas Gallagher is again in trouble. A few days ago he was arrested for obtaining a marriage license under false pretences, and yesterday he was arrested for bigamy in marrying Miss Emily A. Lawless of this city when he had a wife living. The first wife is said to have been named Emily Johnson and the marriage to have taken place in 1890. Gallagher pleaded not guilty and was held in $1000 bonds for trial Aug. 29 and has not yet obtained bail.

Langner's Coming Trial.

DEDHAM, Mass., Aug. 19.—Arrangements are being made for the trial of August Langner, for the murder of Miss Mary Emerson at West Dedham, June 2, 1891, and Sheriff Endicott has engaged Memorial hall, Dedham Centre, in which to hold the trial, the date of which has been fixed for Tuesday, Sept. 5.

Arraigned For Murder.

WORCESTER, Mass., Aug. 19.—Frank Bedard of Paxton was arraigned in the central district court yesterday charged with the murder of Lawrence Trainor, Aug. 15. He pleaded not guilty and the date of the preliminary trial was fixed for Aug. 28.

Want the Silver Clause Repealed

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Aug. 19.—Petitions are being circulated among the bankers and business men of this city calling upon congress to repeal the silver purchase clause in the Sherman act. They are being generously signed.

A Political Discovery.

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 19.—It has been discovered that the Democrats adjourned the house of representatives to a date a week before that to which the senate adjourned, as there are five Tuesdays in January, 1894.

SENATE AND HOUSE.

New House Members Coming to the Front as Leaders.

SENATOR VOORHEES' BILL

For Repeal of the Sherman Act Authorized to Be Reported.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—The new members of the house continue to come to the front. The star speech of yesterday was delivered by Mr. Sibley of Pennsylvania, the only member of the Keystone state who is opposed to placing the United States on a single gold standard and who is a firm advocate of bimetallism. He is about 53 years old, gifted with a fine voice, a vast fund of wit and a great flow of language. He immediately took his place among the orators, the logicians and the humorists of the house.

On the other side of the question there appeared another new champion. Mr. Everett of Massachusetts, who succeeds Mr. Lodge, is a fine speaker and attracted the attention of his colleagues. He, besides having a good delivery, has a keen appreciation of humor and commanded an interested audience.

Messrs. Haines of New York, and English of New Jersey, both Democrats, spoke in favor of repealing the silver purchasing clause. At the night session the discussion was continued until 8 o'clock, when the house adjourned.

A Bill For Repeal.

The senate committee authorized Senator Voorhees to report a bill for the repeal of the purchasing clause in the Sherman act. It is coupled with a declaration in favor of bimetallism and the bringing of the two metals on a parity. The vote was 6 to 5—all the Republicans, excepting Jones of Nevada, voting for, and all the Democrats, except Voorhees and McPherson, voting against it.

Senator Voorhees says he intends to call the bill up for consideration as soon as the bill allowing national banks to increase their circulation to par value of bonds shall have been disposed of. The opponents of the above repeal bill say they will antagonize it at every stage unless a provision providing for free coinage on a ratio of 20 to 1 is incorporated.

A substitute for the bill was reported from the minority of the finance committee (Messrs. Harris, Vance, Jones of Arkansas, Jones of Nevada and Vest), fixing the number of grains of silver in United States coin (464 4-10 grains of pure silver per dollar and proportionately for minor silver coins). The bill and substitute were ordered printed and placed on the calendar, and Mr. Voorhees gave notice that he would call them up next Tuesday.

Gold and Silver Payments.

A long communication from the secretary of the treasury was presented and read on the subject of gold and silver payments. It is therein stated that on several occasions recently gold coin has been presented at the treasury in exchange for silver dollars, and that the exchange has not been made because silver dollars were required to be held in the treasury to cover outstanding silver certificates and treasury notes; and that at present the department would not, and could not, exchange silver dollars for gold if requested to do so.

The bill to allow national banks to increase their circulation up to the par value of their bonds on deposit occupied the attention of the senate most of the day. There was a long discussion on the amendment offered by Mr. Allen (Populist, Neb.) for the creating of interest bonds on which increase is to be based and on the amendment offered by Mr. Cockrell (Dem., Mo.) for the redemption in greenbacks of such 2 per cent bonds as may be offered. Mr. Allen's amendment was defeated, 39 to 11, and Mr. Cockrell's had not been acted upon when the senate adjourned at 4.39 p. m. until Monday.

The President Is Not Ill.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—President Cleveland is devoting some attention to public affairs at Gray Gables. Evidence of this is given in the bundle of papers that arrive at the White House nearly every day postmarked "Buzzard's Bay." Mr. Cleveland is not working very hard, but he does not let a day pass without doing something. While at his summer home the president will give some attention to filling offices, and a few new nominations may be expected. He will return to Washington about Sept. 1.

Rumored Resignation of a Judge.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Aug. 19.—A rumor is current that Judge Charles Almy of the Third Middlesex court intends to resign on account of the condition of his health. A reporter called on him at his law office at 50 State street yesterday and questioned him in regard to the report, but the judge had nothing to say on the subject and would neither deny nor affirm the truth of the rumor.

Killed His Brother.

PUTNAM, Conn., Aug. 19.—Three sons of Edward Lamondy of Pomfret yesterday saw a dog supposed to be mad, and the oldest, 16 years old, went into the house and got a gun. After cocking the gun, he met Willie, aged 13, in the kitchen, when the weapon was accidentally discharged, the contents entering Willie's side, killing him instantly.

Couldn't Fool the Doctors.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—The man Gregory, who created a sensation by barking and biting like a dog, frothing at the mouth, and who was supposed to have been suffering from hydrophobia, was discharged from the hospital and sent to his home, as it was shown that he was suffering from a combination of epilepsy and whiskey.

Four Iowa Banks Closed.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 19.—A special from Lamar, Ia., says the four banks at that place failed to open their doors yesterday. All have a large surplus of accounts and have been ranked among the best institutions in the state. They closed because of the impossibility of getting cash.

Stoughton Musical at Fair.

Mr. Galen V. Bowditch, who accompanied the Stoughton Musical Society, has kindly forwarded the musical programme of Monday at the Worlds Fair. Most of the hymns sung were published about a hundred years ago. Mr. Bowditch is very enthusiastic over the Columbian Exposition and the success of the musical society. The Chicago Record says, "The members appeared clad in the queer old costume of a century and a quarter ago. The women wore bombazines and calicoes of loose and baggy pattern, had white kerchiefs around their necks and wore their hair done up in coiffures of curls or brushed smoothly down over the ears. The men were attired in gay-colored velveteen and satin coats, knickerbockers, white wigs and long hose.

Of the programme the Record says, "It is not exactly the kind of music to which modern tastes are attracted, but it is vigorous, and was sung with much fervor."

TODAY'S COURT.

John Dunn of Weymouth was fined $40 for the larceny of $22 worth of fowl from Ada L. Salisbury. Officer George B. Bailey who was instrumental in convicting Dunn, will receive the reward of $200 offered by the electmen.

Friday was another cold, dreary day at the beach. There was a good crowd at the Club house during the afternoon and helped to lighten the mental depression of the beach by rendering "all the latest and most popular airs."

The illumination committee report that subscriptons are coming in quite generously and everything points to a successful time.

There came near being occasion to pull in box 14 last night. About 5 30, as Mr. Hoey entered his "Moondyne" cottage, he found the oil stove all ablaze. A cool head and prompt action on the part of Mr. Hoey preveted a conflagration, and the blaze was extinguished before any damage was done.

Mr. Dixon, manager of the Bostonian Opera Company, has left the "Bostonians" cottage to join the opera company in Chicago. Mrs. Dixon leaves next week.

Master Moses Hoey, the eight-year-old son of Mr. L. A. Hoey, is becoming quite a successful little fisherman. Yesterday he caught a two-pound tautog off Nut island. The tautog is a fish rarely caught around these shores.

The guests of the "Loretto" and their friends enjoyed a hayrick party to Melville Garden, Downer Landing, one evening this week. The party consisted of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Hoey, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Fitts, Misses Theresa and Eliza Russell, Misses Kate, Delia and Mary Shaughnessy, and Messrs. Nicholas Thornton, Joseph Gallagher, Frank McDermott, Lester Fitts and Henry L. Hoey.

Mr. Tuckerman and family of the "Sunset" Cottage have returned to their home in Wollaston.

It is said that "Bart" Derry is so charmed with this place that he will remain here all winter.

Misses Anna and Esther Comerford of Vieth street, Cambridgeport, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Hoey at the "Moondyne" cottage.

Masters Edward Swett and Charles Walsh, two little fellows ten years of age, rode from Boston Highlands to this place on their safeties one day this week.

Mr. G. L. Stanberg of Roxbury is at the "Danielson" cottage, and has as his guest, Miss Clara Stanberg of Cambridge.

Messrs. John M. Cowing and Charles F. Fitts of the Savin Hill yacht club came over in their yacht "Moia" on Wednesday. They visited the "Creber" cottage and were the recipients of numerous hospitalities. During their stay at the beach they took out a large party for a sail in their handsome yacht. The party consisted of Miss Alice Baxter, Miss Wilson, Misses Flora, Violet and Carrie Creber, Messrs. Harold Berry, Edward Swett and Charles Walsh, all of the "Creber" cottage.

The "Harbor Light" has been missed this season, but is now shedding its rays and will be one of the most brilliant cottages, as usual, on illumination night.

Jordan, Marsh & Company's famous band will give a band concert at Mears' on Sunday.

Quite a large gathering of those interested in building a chapel at Houghs Neck met at Mr. Williams' cottage on Thursday evening and decided to take steps to build a house for worship at once. Much interest was felt in the subject and over $300 was raised at the meeting. The following ladies and gentlemen were chosen a committee to solicit money and attend to the erection of the building: Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Tuckerman, Mrs. F. F. Squires, Mr. J. D. Ray, Mr. W. S. Williams, Mr. Ormand and Mr. W. W. Boynton.

The following are registered at the "Loretto": Mr. J. Munroe Fitts, Roxbury; Mr. H. R. Whittemore and wife, Boston; Mr. D. A. Cronin and family, Boston; Mr. A. Brady, Egleston Square; Miss Theresa I. Russell, Boston; Miss Elizabeth E. Russell, Boston; Miss Aggie Duggan, Charlestown; Mr. John Brown and family, Boston Highlands; Miss Katie V. Whittemore, Dorchester; Misses Mary E., Katie and Delia Shaughnessy, of Malden; Mr. George W. Brown, Boston, Mr. Joseph R. Lomasney and family, Roxbury; Deputy Sheriff John J. Cronin, Boston; Mrs. Pfeffer and family, South Boston; Mr. C. E. L. and Mrs. Holley, Boston; Mr. Joseph Baxter, Boston; Mr. Wilson, Roxbury; Mr. Harry Martin, Boston; Miss Baxter, Boston; Miss Wilson, Roxbury; Master George Brown, Boston.

Two young men who gave their names as A. S. Eldrige and John Lynch, and their residence as Avon, entered the fish market yesterday evening, and it is alleged, began calling the proprietor names and using obscene language. The proprietor and his assistant removed them from the store.

The young men did not relish this for they went to the Quincy police station and told Chief of Police Ferguson that they had been kicked and stoned, naming George Peterson and William Igo as their assailants. They were told to be in the Quincy District Court room this morning at nine o'clock if they wanted to swear out warrants. They promised to do so, but this morning they failed to appear. Upon second thought they probably realized that Messrs. Peterson and Igo were more sinned against than sinning.

"THE CITY OF CRANKS."

Dr. Everett Gave Quincy a Little Notoriety in Congress Yesterday.

Congressman Everett of this city made his maiden speech in Congress yesterday and is said to have "captured the House."

"From first to last" says the Herald, "he received the compliment of the strictest attention, and, though at times it seemed as if he was speaking over the heads of most of his hearers, all his good points seemed to be appreciated. He was repeatedly applauded. The House received with something like gratitude the witty remarks, and especially his allusions to himself as a crank, which it apparently had not expected from one whom it regarded as a solemn scholar, and it was apparently delighted when the doctor said first didn't and later on you ain't, as though rejoiced to find that he was not the pedant it had supposed.

"His hymn story brought out repeated laughter. The happy way in which he corrected himself when he twice addressed the speaker pro tempore, Mr. Outhwaite of Ohio, as Mr. President, saying the first time, I mean Mr. President to be, and the second time, I find myself falling into that natural blunder again, greatly pleased the House.

"He was

Eloquent Throughout

But when he came to repeat the Coriolanus lines he became dramatic, and his peroration, with its description of the impregnable English squares at Waterloo, was impressive.

"At the beginning of the speech he stood quietly in the aisle and made few gestures, but during the second half he walked back and forth in the aisle and gesticulated freely. He referred to his notes from time to time until he came to the conclusion of his speech.

"He was not quite through when his hour expired, so, on motion of Henry St. George Tucker, son of John Randolph Tucker, his time was indefinitely extended.

"Democrats and Republicans, with a vigor which showed enthusiasm, applauded when he finally sat down, ex-Speaker Reed leading the applause, and members thronged around the doctor to congratulate him."

After expressing his profound diffidence, and stating his inexperience in legislative matters, and the ease with which old members might deposit me in a cavity, he said:

"My speech has been spoken a great many times over. The work was taken up by my friend from Ohio (Mr. Harter) who has the reputation of being almost as great

A Crank as I am Myself.

"Most of the gentlemen who have spoken in this debate have informed the House very carefully that they were bimetallists or monometallists—silver monometallists or gold monometallists.

"I wish to announce, Mr. Speaker, in the beginning of my remarks, and to have it remembered in any remarks that in the future I may have the honor of offering to this House, that I am not an "ist" at all. I am not attached to any "ism."

"I believe the city of Boston, and the country around us is supposed to be rife in "isms," I believe there is a theory that all the "isms" that ever existed in the world sprang up in the neighborhood of Boston. I have the honor of living in the city of Quincy, and that, I believe, has produced more cranks than any other city of the same size in the United States. [Laughter] But among those cranks it produced two Presidents of the United States who were born and whose bones are buried there.

"But, sir,

I am not an "ist."

I have no views on the subject of currency that I am not perfectly willing to change if the circumstances of the nation require me to.

"It is entirely in vain to settle the issues of the present day by appeals to what Mr. Jefferson or Gen. Hamilton thought in 1792, or what Mr. Madison thought in 1816, or what Mr. Webster thought in 1835, or what Secretary Carlisle thought in 1878.

The question is what we need now. The question is what the present circumstances require to heal the present wounds, and then at the proper time to restore the patient to health.

"We can do nothing with the nation until we go into the sisterhood of nations on the common principles which all nations are adopting, one after another, in a sure and never varying succession. When we do that, then, and not until then, can we pretend to be one among them and to work with them.

"But we are told that this is against the Declaration of Independence. New England, we are told, has forgotten the Declaration of Independence. The gentleman from Pennsylvania says that if that document were read here it would be strange to some of us.

Why, Mr. Speaker,

I had an impression that New England had taken some part in forming the Declaration of Independence. I had an impression that John Adams had had a good deal to do with forcing it upon the unwilling representatives from the state of Pennsylvania who were doubtful of the propriety of the measure. [Laughter and applause.]

"No, sir; if is these gentlemen who have forgotten where the Declaration of Independence put us. It did not put us outside the sisterhood of nations. It did not put us on another planet. It did not explode this earth and make a collection of little asteroids, on one of which the United States should be set, and on another Africa. It put us among the nations of the earth, then as the weakest, destined to be the strongest but still as one of them.

"It is a definite thing that we have got to do; to repeal these clauses of the Sherman act, and then I would add, and my constituents would add, to go home and wait.

"However, it may be well to adopt plans at this moment. I confess that the plan of my friend from Ohio (Mr. Harter) seems best to me at present."

A STOMACH LIKE AN INDIAN.
Why the Indians Never Have Dyspepsia, Yet are Careless Eaters.

No one could accuse an Indian of over-carefulness in eating. He ate what nature gave him—berries from the wood, spoil from his traps, game from his bow. He ate plenty of it, ate till he was full. It was not very well cooked sometimes, and he often ate fast.

When hunting or fighting a day would often pass without anything being eaten at all.

Yet he never had dyspepsia.

He never "dieted."

We hear too much about "dieting" these days.

A man musn't eat pie, or cabbage, or cake, or beans, or this and that.

He musn't eat very much and he must do it very slow. He must never drink when he eats. He musn't hurry. He musn't worry. And so it goes.

This is all very good advice. But it would worry a man to death to remember it all. Why can't we live like the Indian in a healthy, hearty, natural way? Because we have such weak stomachs. But how did the Indian possess such perfect strong, digestion? By taking that medicine of his, Sagwa, whenever he felt there was anything wrong with him. That Sagwa we have now employed him to make for us. If you would take the natural American remedy for dyspepsia, Kickapoo Sagwa, you, too, would not know what a weak stomach or dyspepsia was.

Thanks to the efforts of the Kickapoo Medicine Company, Indian Sagwa and other Kickapoo Indian remedies are obtainable of any druggist, and their genuine curative value is beyond comparison.

Kickapoo Indian Sagwa.

BRAINTREE.

Mr. I. W. Horne, superintendent of schools, is expected home from his vacation some time next week.

Mr. and Mrs. Will W. Mayhew leave on Monday morning for Point Allerton, where they will stay for two weeks.

Rev. William B. Heath, a former pastor of the M. E. Church, and his wife are visiting their son, Mr. W. H. Heath, the jeweller.

Rev. Wm. H. McBride of Taunton will occupy the pulpit of the First parish tomorrow. Service begins at 10.30 A. M. All are cordially invited.

Mr. Ansel O. Clark, chairman of the board of selectmen, is putting up what will be when completed a nice cottage on Pond street. Thomas Penniman is the carpenter.

Rev. W. W. Main, State Secretary of the Mass. Baptist Sunday School Association, will preach at the Baptist gathering tomorrow. Service to commence at 2.45 o'clock P. M. All are welcome.

William E. Maybury, superintendent of the Water Works, has been busy this week with a gang of men, laying water pipe on French's avenue, South Braintree; and on part of Union street East Braintree. This finishes the extension part of the business for the present season.

William H. Cuff of South Braintree and family, have gone to Brant Rock, the favorite outing place for the people of Braintree.

Samuel A. Bates, town clerk of Braintree, has in his possession, a copy of the Quincy PATRIOT of July 10, 1847, giving an account of a celebration of Mount Wollaston Lodge, I. O. O. F., at which a beautiful banner was presented to the Lodge at Stone Temple from the young ladies of Quincy. The presentation speech was made by Maria Frederick and responded to by Mr. Bates, who at that time was Vice Grand of the Lodge. After the surrender of the charter by the old Lodge, the banner came into the possession of Mr. Bates, where it remained until the charter was redeemed by the present Mount Wollaston Lodge of Quincy, to which it was afterwards presented, thus being restored by the owner to the source to which it originally belonged.

—A most effective way to relieve financial stringency, remarks the Portland Argus, is to keep money in circulation by the payment of "little bills," to which the Danvers Mirror adds: "To pay as you go is always the best, but some persons are occasionally compelled by circumstances to ask for credit. It is wise to pay bills at short intervals for many reasons.

—One of the curious features of the New York subtreasury count is the number of bags which have never been emptied since they left the mint. Most of the silver dollars now being handled bear upon their coverings the dust which has accumulated since the last count, four years ago. There has been no call for them and they have remained in the subtreasury vaults like ore in a mine.

CONEY ISLAND'S MILLS.

O'Donnell of Australia Defeats Cattanach. Cahill Knocked Out by Sullivan.

CONEY ISLAND, Aug. 19.—In the preliminary bout for a purse of $1000, of which the loser was to receive $300, Pat Cahill was knocked out in the third round by Sullivan. It took five minutes to revive Cahill. It was the cleanest knockout ever witnessed in the club.

The bout of the evening was between John Cattanach of Providence and Steve O'Donnell of Australia for a purse of $2500, the loser to receive $500.

In the fourth round Cattanach was so badly beaten that he was a pitiable sight, and as he was staggering about under the tremendous punishment he was receiving Referee Eckhardt attempted to stop it out of humanity, but just as he pulled O'Donnell away Cattanach broke past him and landed several blows. O'Donnell then went at him like an infuriated bull and landed many vicious blows. It was only the gong that saved Cattanach from being knocked out. Cattanach was carried to his corner, and the battle was brought to a close by Cattanach's second throwing up the sponge.

Cattanach was so badly used up that it was necessary to send for a physician, who did considerable lancing about his mouth and nose, which were badly cut. A deep gash was cut over his left eye and a lump as big as a goose egg raised on his cheek.

After the O'Donnell-Cattanach bout a number of admirers of Dan Creedon and Bob Fitzsimmons gathered in front of the ring and a bet was made or offered to be made at odds of 900 to 1000 that Creedon could lick Fitz. There was considerable talk and bluster, at which Fitzsimmons only smiled, and the upshot of the affair was that nothing came of it.

TO TAX INCOMES.

A Kansas Plan For Raising Money For Pensions and Other Purposes.

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 19.—Lieutenant Governor Daniels of Kansas has sent to Washington for introduction in congress his gradual income tax bill. It provides for a tax of 1 per cent on estates of less than $2,000,000; of 3 per cent on estates between $2,000,000 and $5,000,000; of 18 per cent on all estates of over that amount. The tax is to be used for pensions and for equalizing the pay of soldiers of the war; for internal improvements and for equipping the national guard. Adult male immigrants are to be taxed $200 and immigrant children over 12 years of age $100. Inheritancies and legacies are also to be taxed.

An address goes with the bill charging all the ills of the country to legislation in favor of the rich and appeals to congress to enact just laws.

CAUSE OF THE TROUBLE.

French Workmen Objected to Italians Working For Low Wages.

PARIS, Aug. 19.—The riot at Aigues-Mortes in the department of Card, in which 10 men were killed and 25 severely wounded, had its origin in a dispute between workingmen regarding wages. Considerable salt is produced in Aigues-Mortes and the works employed many men, some of whom were Italians. These Italians were working for wages considerably lower than those demanded by the Frenchmen employed at the works.

The latter were expecting to be replaced by Italians and some of the Frenchmen and Italians became involved in a fight over the wage question and a general riot was precipitated.

There is no apprehension of further trouble, as no Italians will be employed in the salt works hereafter.

Boston Coming Home For Repairs.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—Orders have been telegraphed to Captain Barker of the cruiser Philadelphia, at Callao, Peru, to proceed at once to Honolulu to relieve the cruiser Boston, which is to set sail for San Francisco on the arrival of the other vessel. The Boston has been in a bad condition for some time, and the delay in ordering her home for repairs indicates that the condition of affairs in Hawaii is considered so uncertain that the government deems it wise to protect American interests by two vessels.

Sold Liquor Without U. S. License.

LYNN, Mass., Aug. 19.—William Gay of 61 North Federal street, was arrested yesterday by a United States deputy for selling liquor without a United States license. Gay has been convicted in the local court of selling and was fined $100 and sentenced to nine months' imprisonment. Just as fast as the local court makes such a conviction the United States officers intend to prosecute the persons further.

Appointed by the Attorney General.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—Attorney General Olney has appointed John H. Casey assistant district attorney for the district of Massachusetts, and George Edmunds and Nathaniel Hammond special assistants for the northern district of Georgia to assist in prosecutions under the interstate commeece law.

More Cholera In Roumania.

BUCHAREST, Aug. 19.—Nine cases of cholera and two deaths have been reported in Brahilov, the principal port of Roumania. At Soolina, near the mouth of the river of that name, there have been nine cases and three deaths, and at Galatz 10 cases and seven deaths.

Arrival of Mrs. Leslie.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Mrs. Frank Leslie was a passenger on the Hamburg-American steamship Fuerst Bismarck which arrived yesterday. Mrs. Leslie looked very well. Marie Tempest, the well-known comic opera singer, was also on the Fuerst Bismarck.

A Mysterious Murder.

DENVER, Aug. 19.—A man, supposed to be George Martin, was shot and killed while asleep yesterday at Sheridan park, six miles from Denver. The affair is very mysterious, as the motive was not robbery.

Interior Department Appointments.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—The president has sent to the senate an additional batch of recess appointments. The appointments are 50 in number and are all under the interior department.

Statuary in Granite.

One of the most beautiful works of art ever produced in this city or ever cut in granite, has just been completed at the stone yard of Adam Vogel & Son at West Quincy.

This beautiful piece of work represents an angel clinging to a cross and stands over five feet in height.

The sweet pure facial expression of the angel is so natural that one scarcely seems to realize that it is but an inanimate figure. The garments hang loosely about the angel and so perfect is the artist's work that they seem almost to sway in the breeze.

The statue will rest on the top of a monument which is being cut for a Mr. Horgan of Boston, and will when completed stand in Calvary cemetery. The model was made by Quincy's famous young sculptor, R. F. Brooks, who made the model for the bust of Governor Russell.

The statue is cut out of a solid block of granite, the work being done by Mr. Frank Record. Mr. Record considers it to be his master-piece and he may well be proud of his effort.

Many sculptors from Boston and Westerly have come to Quincy this week to see the statue and all declare it to be the finest piece of work ever cut in granite.

The statue will be on exhibition at Mr. Vogel's shed, on Willard street, on Sunday, all who wish to see it will have an opportunity of doing so.

A Fine Circus.

An exchange has the following notice of the coming show:—

"Walter L. Main's circus on Monday was an eye opener for those who, because the show is a stranger in this section, anticipated that it was a cheap concern. The immense auditorium and menagerie tents were none too large for the features which made up one of the best shows yet seen here. The morning parade was a clean, bright and handsome display of new wagons and magnificent horses. The acts in the three rings and the racing features in the hippodrome course were first-class in every particular. There were no confidence men hanging upon the outskirts of the show, and all the employes were a well behaved lot of people. A show given for the pleasure and entertainment of the people, rather than for every dollar which can be squeezed or stolen out of their pockets, is worthy of high praise. The Main show justly bears a fine reputation.

Y. M. C. Association.

The team will practise basket ball this afternoon at Merry Mount Park. They will also practise throwing the hammer, putting the shot, and pole vaulting.

The men's meeting Sunday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock will be addressed by Mr. Oliver of Dorchester.

President Wason and family returned from New Hampshire yesterday.

Mr. Arthur Bailey is taking the place of the secretary, who is on his vacation.

The basket ball team has received an invitation from the Brockton Association to play on the occasion of their field day, September 4. It is quite likely that the Quincy field day will be postponed until the middle or latter part of September, and will then be held jointly with the Hyde Park Association. This will give member a longer time to prepare for the contests.

—Thirty-five New England post offices have been robbed within three months. Is it not about time that the authorities put a stop to this kind of business.

Colonel Auchmuty's Training Schools.

If ever there was an American in spirit and purpose, of that high type of patriotism of which the pride is not merely in what the country is but in trying to make it what it ought to be, it was Colonel Richard T. Auchmuty, who died at his home in Lenox on the 18th of July. Beginning his service to his country by four years in the army of the Union, a gallant, faithful and intelligent officer, he devoted many years of his later life to the foundation and development of his now famous trade schools in New York city. The original and constant aim of these schools was to give to young men of American birth the chance to earn a living by an honest trade.

In Colonel Auchmuty's schools all the building trades and tailoring as well are taught, not for nothing, for they are not a charity, but at moderate rates and in a thorough scientific and practical manner. And the system is gradually extending to other cities, enlisting the support of intelligent employers and slowly of the trades unions. To this work Colonel Auchmuty gave nearly all his time and strength and large sums of money, though he was not a man of great wealth. Happily, by an endowment of $500,000 by Mr. Pierpont Morgan added to the previous gifts of Colonel Auchmuty and his wife, the schools are now permanently established. It was a very noble work, nobly and modestly done.—Harper's Weekly.

The Trouble Between France and Siam.

The trouble between France and Siam had been brewing for months, and the active hostilities date back to the early part of the present year.

They grew out of the disputes over the border line between Siam and Anam, over which latter country France has a protectorate. At one of the border towns in the spring a force of Anamites and Frenchmen was attacked and routed by Siamese troops. For this France demanded reparation, as well as a settlement of the boundary difficulties, and sent a gunboat to Bangkok.

The Siamese government immediately began to act on the defensive and sunk a number of scows on the Menam river to prevent the near approach of French vessels to Bangkok, the capital of Siam.

Siam has a population of about 7,000,000, which in lower Siam is clustered about the rivers and canals. The Portuguese were the first Europeans to establish any intercourse with Siam. This was in 1511. English traders were in Siam early in the seventeenth century. The treaty of 1856 with England practically gave Europeans free admittance to Siam, and the English, owing to the nearness of their Indian dependencies, have had a strong diplomatic influence in the affairs of the country. So strong has this been that many believe that a war with France will ultimately result in an English protectorate.—Boston Advertiser.

FROTHY ANARCHISTS

Preach Violence and Destruction In New York City.

EMMA GOLDMAN PRESENT.

Conferences In Crowded Halls and In the Streets.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—There was devil's work yesterday in the East Side, and defiance of law was openly preached. The hand of anarchy, which worked under cover in the quickly suppressed riot of Thursday when the interior of Walhalla hall in Orchard street was wrecked, became fully revealed in the events which followed the arraignment of prisoners in the Essex Market Police court.

Anarchy stalked through Rivington, Delancey and Allen streets scowling at the police. Anarchy lifted up its voice in at least two halls where meetings of the unemployed were held, and urged hungry workingmen to greater violence in the next conflict with the law. Anarchy made hay while the sun shone. The time was ripe to influence the minds of the bewildered foreigners with empty stomachs, who were quick to receive as fact the statement that the rich were directly to blame for their idleness.

There Was Plotting

in the dark places. Workingmen who still had employment were induced by some one to send word to one of the meetings that they stood ready to lay down their tools at an instant's notice and assist in rescuing the prisoners from the police.

Ten thousand copies of a circular, printed in Hebrew, from the press of the Freie Arbiter Stimme, calling upon all persons to boycott Walhalla Hall, were thrown broadcast through the district.

One of "Silver Dollar" Smith's henchmen shouted coarse epithets at the committee of the unemployed, in session at 91 Delancey street, and told them to go back to Russia, and a crowd of 1000 pursued him through the streets as he fled for his life.

At every meeting which the workingmen held Emma Goldman appeared. She is the

Fluent and Impassioned Orator,

"The Queen of the Anarchists," and the friend of Bergman, the anarchist, who shot Henry C. Frick of Pittsburg. Wherever that women went her voice was raised to inform her hearers against capital and property.

It is the fault of Police Captain Devery of the Eldridge Street station that she and the men who echoed her sentiments are not now locked up for inciting to riot.

Against the rising of anarchy, Joseph Baronders seemed to stand like a wall. Every public act and utterance of his yesterday was in favor of order, and tended to calm the storm that others were trying to create. There was little actual violence done yesterday, however, and the storm may soon blow over.

BRUTAL SALOONKEEPER

Threatened With Lynching For Refusing to Shelter Little Fire Sufferers.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—At the big Cooper street fire, Brooklyn, yesterday three children, who were injured in jumping from a burning building, were removed to a saloon owned by Charles Meyers, and it is alleged that Meyers refused to admit them. They were then taken to St. Mary's hospital. Last night an armed force attacked Meyers' house, threatening to lynch him.

Meyers escaped by a rear window and soon returned with an armed force of deputy sheriffs. They found the saloon in the possession of the mob, which numbered over 3000. Then began a battle between the mob and the officers. Shots were rapidly exchanged.

The riot was in progress at midnight and three men are reported to have been shot by the deputy sheriffs. Several other persons were injured, among whom were two men who carried ropes and who were yelling "Hang the saloon keeper."

Strike on a Small Scale.

LYNN, Mass., Aug. 19.—Some 10 cutters employed by Francis W. Breed in his shoe factory went out on a strike yesterday morning on account of a 10 per cent reduction in prices on women's button shoes. The same reduction has been made in Mr. Breed's factory in Rochester, N. H. Mr. Breed claims that the stagnant money market and the dullness in business caused him to make the reduction.

Appointed a Receiver.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Walter P. Butler of Saratoga has been appointed receiver in supplementary proceedings for Christine M. L. Gunning of Saratoga, a niece of the late Senator Leland Stanford of California, in the suit of the Lincoln National bank, which obtained a judgment against her for $5650 on Feb. 2, 1891. Papers in the case were filed in the county clerk's office yesterday.

Ended In a Fizzle.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 19.—The race of the cup defenders off Brenton's reef yesterday was as dismal a failure as the previous day's contest was a brilliant success. The Vigilant, however, was again the favorite, and when the three big sloops were taken in tow at 5:30 o'clock she led the Colonia and Jubilee more than a mile.

Dullness In the Sugar Trade.

BROOKLYN, Aug. 19.—Owing to the dullness in the sugar market all the large refineries in Brooklyn, with the exception of two, those of Matthiessen & Mollenhauer, have closed down temporarily.

BASEBALL.

St. Louis, New York, Brooklyn, Chicago and Louisville the Winners.

BOSTON, Aug. 19.—Inclement weather caused a postponement of the game yesterday afternoon between the Bostons and Pittsburgs. As the attendance would have been very small, the managers of both sides thought it would be better to "double up" today; consequently two games will be played this afternoon.

SPECTATORS COMPLAIN

Of the Brutality Practiced by Indians at the World's Fair.

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—Numerous complaints have been made to the World's fair officials on account of the savage brutality displayed at the sun dance held by the Quackahl Indians. The Indians, with heavy twine strings fastened through slits in their bare backs, raced around the narrow platform driven by two other Indians, who seemed to take a wild pleasure in the act.

Little rivulets of blood ran from the cuts down the bronzed backs. Around and around they ran, leaping, twisting and diving till it seemed to the horror stricken spectators that each instant would see the flesh torn from the bodies. This was kept up for an hour or more in the presence of an assemblage of over 5000 people. As the dance proceeded the Indians became frenzied, and many of the spectators were so sickened by the horrible sight that they left. In spite of the protests, however, the performance will be repeated next Thursday evening.

Crushed His Son-in-law's Skull.

KINGSTON, N. Y., Aug. 19.—While Jonathan Todd and his son-in-law, Alfred Ganaung, were drawing hay at Delhi Ganaung accidentally ran a pitchfork into his father-in-law's leg. This enraged Todd, who seized a pitchfork and hammered his son-in-law over the head, crushing his skull and rendering him senseless. Doctors say Ganaung cannot live.

Thompson Held In $1000.

BOSTON, Aug. 19.—Thomas G. Thompson, who was arrested charged with obtaining money from numerous individuals by means of false pretenses in representing that district assembly 50, Knights of Labor, would have a banquet, was in the municipal criminal court yesterday. He was held in $1000 for examination next Monday.

A Receiver to Be Asked For.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—It was said yesterday that an application would be made to Chancellor McGill on Monday for a receiver for the Hoffman House corporation, which is incorporated in New Jersey. Mismanagement and misappropriation of funds and insolvency are given as the cause.

Confirmed by the Senate.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—The senate has confirmed the following nominations: George B. Anderson of the District of Columbia, to be secretary of the legation at Rio de Janeiro, and Richard Dalton, surveyer of customs at St. Louis.

Sage Denies It.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Russell Sage denies very emphatically the report that he has been offered the position of chairman of the board of directors of the Northern Pacific Railroad company or that he will take it if tendered to him.

THE SILVER PROBLEM

The Senators of the Silver States Growing Timid.

AN INCREASE OF CURRENCY

Would Almost Be Sure to Meet With their Approbation.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—The men who are talking compromise at present are not the repealers, but the silver senators, who, while they declare their ability to prevent repeal unless given something in its place, feel the awkwardness of their position and the danger of standing out against public opinion too long.

The only thing at present in the way of an agreement is the stubbornness of the silver men, who are willing enough to have the Sherman law repealed if they are given free silver, but there is no repealer willing to agree with them.

It was stated some days ago that Senator Gorman and the members of the steering committee had under consideration a general and comprehensive measure which included among other features the repeal of the purchase clause, free silver at an increased ratio, increase of the national bank circulation to par and the exchange of bonds for currency.

The introduction of Mr. Voorhees' bill to allow national banks to increase their currency to par is the first step in that compromise.

The passage of the bill would at once place in circulation some $20,000,000 additional, as the national banks would immediately increase their circulation to pa but in the opinion of Senator Sherman would have far wider and more reachi.. effects.

He believes that if the banks were permitted to issue in currency the full amoun. of the bonds deposited it would stimulate and encourage national banks to very greatly increase their circulation, as an additional 10 per cent would make circulation profitable, while now it is claimed that so long as the circulation is restricted to 90 per cent there is absolutely no money in the business.

Senator Sherman's Opinion.

Senator Sherman stated the other day to a friend in discussing the bill that its passage would put in circulation almost immediately $50,000,000 and perhaps an additional $10,000,000 or $20,000,000.

That is one reason why the silver men, a great many of whom have always been opposed to national banks and to the passage of any legislation favorable to those institutions, are now anxious for its passage, as they believe, with the banks availing themselves of the power to increase their circulation, the currency famine would soon be a thing of the past, and, with the revival of business, attention would be diverted from the Sherman law and the demand for its repeal be much abated.

It would therefore be far less difficult for them to keep up their stubborn opposition and to finally succeed in tiring out the repealers and securing the adoption of a compromise measure which would be agreeable to them.

Another use will also be made of the bank bill.

It is not unlikely that before the bill is finally voted on there will be amendments offered which will to a great extent serve to show the relative strength of the silver and anti-silver men in the senate.

It has been suggested that a free coinage measure be offered to the bank bill as an amendment, and thus the sense of the senate could be taken and such action would not in any way jeopardize the position of the silver men on the repeal bill.

That is, if a silver amendment should be carried by the senate, it would, of course, be useless to further prolong the fight on the repeal bill by the hard money men, but if, on the other hand, the votes should show that the silver men were in the minority, and their amendment should be defeated, they would still be able to continue their policy of obstruction and delay by talking on the repeal bill to prevent it from coming to a speedy vote.

Claims of the Silver Men.

The silver men have always claimed that they have a majority in the senate, but it is a claim not conceded by the other side, and it is not unlikely that both would be willing to have a test vote taken in an indirect way so as to let them see exactly where they stand.

But it must be remembered that unless the repealers are absolutely convinced that they have a majority they would not permit an amendment of this kind to be voted on, as it would then render all their further efforts fruitless and the silver men would have obtained all that they are fighting for in the way of silver coinage.

Such an amendment, if passed by the senate, would have to be also passed by the house before it could go to the president.

It is hoped by the silver men to be able to prevent a vote being taken on the bank bill until after the house has voted on the repeal bill, so as to understand more clearly which proposition will command the greatest strength in the house.

The prospects, however, are that no silver proposition of any kind can be passed by the house, and if the silver senators attempt to use the bank bill as a club with which to kill the repeal and load it up with a lot of amendments it will simply result in the defeat of the bill and prevent the country from obtaining the immediate relief that might be given it in case the bill was speedily passed without amendment.

ROME'S AGITATION.

French Priests Attacked In Consequence of the Trouble at Paris.

ROME, Aug. 21.—The anti-French agitation, started in consequence of the massacre of Italians at Aigues-Mortes, has gained great rapidity since the first demonstrations were made. A mob attacked the Santa Chiara seminary of French priests, tore down the escutcheons from the facade, trampled them under foot, smashed the windows and tried to force the doors. Further damage was prevented by a strong force of police, who dispersed the mob and guarded the seminary until yesterday. A company of police are stationed at the French embassy, as the anti-French agitators have threatened to sack it. In both Milan and Turin incendiary anti-French manifestos have been issued.

BERLIN, Aug. 21.—The relations between France and Italy are regarded here with considerable anxiety, in view of the popular demonstrations against the French in Italian cities since the massacre of Aigues-Mortes. The hostility displayed is believed to threaten very grave consequences, as it will irritate the French government just at the time Italy is making her demands for reparation. Even the possibility of a Franco-Italian war and Germany's obligations under the triple alliance treaty in such an event are generally discussed.

ORIGINATED THE SCHEME.

A Washington Editor Responsible For the Invitation to the Capital.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—The man who originated the scheme of inviting to the national capital an army of the unemployed to make such a demonstration as would compel congress to heed their demands for relief is A. E. Redstone, editor of a weekly paper called The Tocsin, published in Washington. It is devoted to a dissemination of the principles of socialism, and he claims for it a circulation of several thousands. Mr. Redstone says the idea first found a place in one of his editorials two or three weeks ago, and immediately attracted attention, and that work of organization of these bodies of the destitute is going on in all the large cities.

Must Stay In Prison.

DENVER, Aug. 21.—The second attempt to secure the release of "Maneater" Packer from prison has failed. An attempt was made in the state supreme court some time ago to secure his release on the ground that the accumulative sentences were unconstitutional. The court decided otherwise and an application was made for a commission to test his mental soundness. This commission reported that while Packer's powers of concentration were not strong, his memory was unimpared.

To Regulate Inspection of Immigrants.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Superintendent of Immigration Stump and Dr. Senner, the commissioner of immigration for the port of New York, will go to Canada this week to try to induce the officials of the Canadian railways to send immigrants over certain routes, and to determine upon points of entry into the United States at which immigrants shall be closely inspected, to protect the country from the importation of paupers and criminals.

Conference of Trades Unionists.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—The first conference of the delegates from the various trades unions of New York to take action on the existing condition of affairs in the labor world and to devise means of assisting the unemployed was held yesterday. Resolutions were passed and committees appointed with a view of improving the condition of affairs. One or two persons present advanced socialistic ideas, but they were promptly sat upon.

Chinese Assurances of Safety.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—It transpires that some days ago the state department received a message from Li Hung Chang, the Chinese viceroy, to the effect that for the present no retaliatory measures will be initiated as regards the citizens of the United States resident in China, and that every effort will be made to protect them and their interests in peace and safety till the assembling of congress in regular session.

Supposed Work of a Jealous Lover.

HOLLIDAYSBURG, Pa., Aug. 21.—Walter Geiser, a young Altoona druggist, while departing from the house of Joseph Reed of this city, where he had made a social call upon the daughter of Mr. Reed, was struck in the breast by a bullet. The would-be murderer, who is supposed to be some discarded lover of the girl, escaped. Geiser's wound may prove fatal.

Indians Attack Mexican Troops.

CITY OF MEXICO, Aug. 21.—Official advices just received here from Guyamas state that a band of 200 Yaquis encountered a company of 45 National troops, who had been sent to guard certain carts loaded with corn. In the fight which followed seven men of the troops were killed.

Disagreement Anticipated.

TRENTON, Aug. 21.—The jury in the Shann murder case will, it is believed, disagree. When last heard from they stood three for acquittal and nine for murder in the second degree. Cots have been furnished for them to sleep on and their meals come from a hotel.

One Man Caused the Trouble.

GREENVILLE, Ills., Aug. 21.—One hundred and fifty coal miners employed in the Sorrento mines in the north part of this county went out on strike Friday morning because of the discharge of one of their number, and refuse to return until he is taken back.

Four Senatorial Candidates.

DES MOINES, Aug. 21.—The Register yesterday announced the candidacy of A. B. Cummins of Des Moines for the United States senate. This makes a field of four on the Republican side—Hepburn, Year, Cummins and Stone.

Sudden Death in a Carriage.

OSWEGO, N. Y., Aug. 21.—Orville J. Hardman, about 30 years of age, died suddenly of hemmorhage in his carriage yesterday. Mr. Harman was a very prominent man in this city.

Drowned at Niagara Falls.

NIAGARA FALLS, Aug. 21. — Edward Brennan of New York, while boating off Grass island at noon yesterday, was drowned. His body has not yet been recovered.

ELECTION IN FRANCE.

No Unusual Excitement Attendant Upon That Ceremony.

SOME CURIOUS FEATURES.

All the Cabinet Ministers Will Be Re-Elected.

PARIS, Aug. 21.—The general parliamentary election in France yesterday was unexpectedly free from disorder, and even excitement. Except slight disturbances in the Var, where M. Clemenceau, the Radical leader, had a hot fight with his slanderers, no trouble has as yet been reported.

PRESIDENT CARNOT.

In Paris the poll, although much larger than usual, was quite featureless.

The returns have come in slowly from all districts outside of Paris. The only results ascertained here at midnight are as follows: In Paris, Alphonso Humbert, member of the Commune and present president of the municipal council; Gustav Mesurer, Radical Socialist; Alexandre Millerand, Radical; Edouard Lockroy, Republican Radical; Desire Barondet, Republican Radical, and M. Denecheau, editor of The Eclair, have been elected. Mesurer, Millerand, Barondet and Lockroy sat in the last chamber.

Charles Floquet, who resigned the presidency of the chamber because he was besmirched by the Panama scandals, headed the list in his district, but was obliged to try his fortune in a reballot.

Ex-Premier Goblet, described by himself as a Radical Socialist, polled the largest number of votes in his district, but must await the final decision of the reballot. His principal opponent is M. Yves-Guyot, Radical, and member of the last chamber.

Reballotting Necessary.

M. Andrieux, ex-prefect of police and chief wirepuller in the Panama scandal, polled more votes than any other candidate in his district. In his case also, however, a reballot will be necessary.

In the district of the Var, M. Clemenceau received the heaviest vote, but failed of election. A reballot is necessary.

Paul Louis Peytral was elected in Marseilles.

In Bordeaux Jean Labat, Bonapartist, was elected over M. Chice, Boulangist.

M. Devilers was elected for Cochin China.

Baron de Mackau, member of the last chamber for the Argentan district of the Orn, has been returned. Gustav Paul Cluseret, Republican Socialist and member of the last chamber, must try in a reballot to regain his seat in the Var.

One of the most notable results of the election is the defeat of Count de Mun, leader of the Catholics, and formerly an ardent Royalist in the following of the Count of Paris. In the last chamber he represented the second Pontivy district of Morbihan.

M. Drumont, the notorious Hebrew baiting editor of La Libre Parole, was defeated in Amiens.

The Government Denounced.

Premier Dupuy's order that no excursion trains should be run from Paris caused great irritation. The opposition press denounces the government as acting with a high-handed and inexcusably disregard for popular rights.

All the cabinet ministers have been re-elected, none meeting with serious opposition.

M. Wilson, son-in-law of the late President Grevy, and who was implicated in the Legion of Honor scandal, is elected by a large majority in the Loches district of of the Indre-et-Loire.

M. Delehaye, who was prominent in the Panama canal exposure, is defeated in his district of the Indre-et-Loire.

The returns received up to 4 o'clock this morning show the election of 150 Republicans, five of the "rallied," three Revisionists and 15 Royalists. In 83 of the districts heard from reballots will be necessary. According to the results already ascertained, in about half of the districts the Republicans have gained a more decisive victory than was expected.

New Jersey's Fatal Storm.

ATLANTIC HIGHLANDS, N. J., Aug. 21.—The storm along the New Jersey coast yesterday caused the loss of two lives. John Leolson, aged 26, was struck by lightning and killed. The other man was H. E. Hurne of South Plainfield, N. J., who was crushed to death by the collapse of a building.

Canadian Forger Captured.

DENVER, Aug. 21.—Leon M. Carrier, aged 25, was arrested here after an exciting chase of four months, since he left his home in Quebec. By means of forged bills of lading he converted 75 carloads of flour to his own use and fled the country. He is supposed to have obtained $200,000.

Charged With Embezzlement.

KOKOMO, Ind., Aug. 21.—J. K. Armstrong and his son, treasurer and assistant treasurer, respectively, of Tipton county, are in jail here for embezzling $40,000 of the public funds. They failed to come up with the cash at the end of their term of office and were turned over to the proper authorities.

TELEPHONE, 213-3 QUINCY.

The Boston Record of Saturday, speaking of Manet Beach and the street railways, said: "The building of the interjoining street railway system, of which this fiercely contested Abington road is one, goes briskly on. The immediate building of the road from South Braintree to Randolph, from South Braintree to Holbrook and from South Braintree to the Quincy line now seems a certainty. This will give Brockton, Whitman, Randolph, Avon, Holbrook and Braintree direct communication with Manet Beach and Boston by way of the street railway, which has been the dream of the street railway projectors for years. Of course the roads are not all owned or managed by the same concern, but they are friendly and will make favorable connections. It will be interesting to observe the effect of these roads on the business of the steam railroads. The Whitman and Brockton cars have already cut into the Old Colony traffic between those two points so as to cause some of the trains to be taken off."

The Decreasing Birth Rate.

The Boston Courier speaking on the subject of births and the small number of children to a family says,—"The French government is evidently growing anxious at the decreasing birth rate in that country which has been stationary for a number of years, and has now fallen somewhat below the death rate. This matter has long been carefully looked to in Prussia, where, even more than in France, the keeping up of the supply of men for the army is of vital importance. The mere increase in numbers of the population is of no advantage to a country unless accompanied by an increase in the means of subsistence. This France already has; and as she is well able to clothe, feed and educate a far larger population than she has at present, there seems to be no need for the falling off. The experiments of the Chamber of Deputies in their efforts to increase the French population through the proposed changes, which include a tax on married men having no children; the diminution of the land tax in proportion to the number of children; permission to leave the bulk of property to one son if desired, and other measures, will be watched with much interest by other countries."

We think there need be no general alarm on that subject in this country, particularly among the new comers. As to Quincy, the increase of births over deaths is immense; so much so as to be quite noticable in the granite portion. Some have thought there should be a way to diminish the rapidly increasing birth rate, as the cost of educating the children in these times requires about one-third of all the money the city can raise by taxation.

A Quiet Sunday.

It is evidently the intention of Mayor Fairbanks to preserve order in the streets on Sunday and to enforce the ordinance forbidding bicycle riding on the sidewalks. Sunday morning there were ten special officers on duty and good order was maintained. Two bicycle riders only were captured and these were early in the morning in front of Merrymount Park.

Severe Accident.

On Sunday a party of young men and women were returning in a barge from a day's outing at Squantum. They were driving quite fast, and as they turned the corner off Atlantic street into Hancock, the team struck the fence, throwing one of the women out. She was picked up unconscious, taken into a house, and a physician summoned. After she regained consciousness she was placed in the team and carried home. Her name could not be ascertained.

Counting the Coin.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20. The count of the standard silver dollars in the Treasury vaults was completed Saturday evening. Work was begun on June 15, and during the two months succeeding 149,760,000 standard silver dollars were counted. The gold was weighed Saturday. It amounted in all to $11,460,000. The bags of $5 pieces amounted to $20,000 each and weighed 1075 ounces, troy weight. The fractional silver was $235,000, the current minor coin $26,500 and the non-current minor coin $8797. This completes the count with the exception of going over the books.

Mrs. M. Elizabeth Green, who has been enjoying a rest at St. Johns, Halifax, Yarmouth, and other noted places in the Provinces, for the past six weeks, returned yesterday.

The Quincy Cycle club held a joint run to Nantasket Sunday with the Suffolks of Boston. Owing to the lateness of the Suffolk in arriving the run through Brockton was given up and the Shoe City Wheelmen met the Quincy boys at Nantasket.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Elmer Morrison of Braintree have issued cards for the marriage of their daughter, Lizzie Curtis, to Mr. Henry Munroe Faxon of Quincy, Wednesday evening, Aug. 30, at the Congregational Church. Mr. Faxon is the only son of Henry H. Faxon, the well known temperance reformer.

The Quincy Cycle club have received an invitation to be present at the midsummer illumination and open house of the Union Bicycle club of Dorchester Monday evening, Aug. 28. The programme for the evening's entertainment includes music, refreshments, sea-bathing, tub-racing etc. The club rooms are at 235 Savin Hill avenue.

The Sunday Globe says,—"Probably the proudest man present at the beach last Thursday, was Corp. Bernard Hart, known as "Barney" of West Quincy. He wore a huge smile on his face and a badge on his breast which was inscribed "Corp. Bernard Hart, from Lieut. Col. Waldo Merriman, com. 16th Mass. Vols." On the reverse side was inscribed, "For saving the colors at the battle of Chancellorsville, May 3, 1863."

World's Fair.

This week just closed was a record breaker in point of attendance. The number of visitors during the seven days was 790,476, an increase over last week of 110,378. The average for the week, omitting last Sunday, when there were but 18,340 paid admissions is 128,695. Saturday's attendance was 165,981, being the best day of the fair, with the exception of July 4th, when 283,273 paid admissions were registered.

—The much talked-of cable to the Isles of Shoals was completed last Saturday evening, and the first message sent across the water to the islands. It took seven hours to lay the cable, which weighed 40 tons and was 7 3-4 miles long.

MANET BEACH.

There was a good crowd at the beach yesterday despite the lowering clouds that threatened to send down a copious amount of rain at any moment. Bicyclists were undoubtedly in the majority and every available space along the water front was occupied by the silent steed. The electrics were run every half-hour, sometimes two and three at a time, and they were always crowded.

A band concert rather enlivened things and drew a large crowd. Nearly every store and booth on the beach licensed and otherwise were open and did a good business. The crowds that patronized these places were all orderly and respectable people.

During the afternoon two immense pleasure yachts passed by close to the beach crowded with people who seemed to be enjoying themselves in no small degree.

Rev. Fr. Friguglietti celebrated mass for the second time in the new church yesterday morning, before a large congregation. Fr. Francis announced that the church was, with the consent of Archbishop Williams, to be known as St. Francis' Church.

Mr. George Peterson, the proprietor of the Davy Crockett fish market, in an interview with the LEDGER representative yesterday, said that the story told by the young men who were ejected from his store, is absolutely false in every particular. Mr. Peterson says that neither he nor Mr. Igo stoned or kicked the young men as the latter alleged. The young men used such vituperous epithets and obscene language that Mr. Peterson was obliged, for decency's sake, to remove them from his store.

Chief of Police Ferguson took a run down to the beach but finding everything in shipshape he immediately returned to Quincy.

Chief Engineer Ripley also paid a visit to the beach and tested box 14. It was found to be in good working order and many in Quincy thought that a conflagration was raging at this place.

One of the largest and most successful dances ever held at the beach took place at Pierce's pavillion, on Saturday evening. Lucas' Orchestra of Randolph furnished the music for the dancers, and everything was merry as a wedding bell.

Several fishing parties from Pierce's have been out the past week and have returned loaded down with fine mackerel.

The green along the water front is dotted with white camping tents until it looks a military camp.

Mr. H. L. Woodworth of Cambridge and Mr. William M. Stewart of Avon are stopping at Pierce's.

The following young Quincy and Milton people are at the Seaweed cottage for two weeks: Miss Mamie Kelliher, Miss Josie] Gallagher, Miss Annie Kelliher, Miss Mary Berry, Miss Susie Berry, and Messrs. James Rooney, John Dolan, George Berry, and James Gallagher.

Main's Grand Circus.

Walter L. Main's grand circus and menagerie which exhibited here yesterday afternoon and evening was one of the best and cleanest shows that has ever visited our city, and the large crowds which attended will bear us out in our statement. The menagerie contains a fine lot of rare animals, birds, etc. The ring performance was a success from start to finish, the performers being of the best, and the horses the finest that have been seen here in many a year. We recommend the Main show to press and people.—Streator Daily Monitor.

Diamond Tips.

McGarr has become very popular in Cleveland.

The New England league season has just two more weeks to run.

Frank Foreman won 10 games out of 12 in which he pitched in the south.

Brooklyn made an unsuccessful effort to secure Second Baseman Eagan of the Albanys.

A deal is said to have been made by Barnie exchanging Pitcher Stratton for Decker.

Manager Seelee may give Bostonians a chance to behold those wonderful new uniforms this week.

Dr. Conant says that Stivetts has strained his abdominal muscles and will be unable to pitch for a week.

Chicago made overtures to Manager Tom Burns for several of the Springfield (Mass.) players, but could not get them.

The Dovers have transferred their games with Fall River, arranged for today and tomorrow, to the latter city.

Larkin will not play any more with the Washingtons. Manager O'Rourke would like to secure Dan Brouthers.

Armstrong, a player formerly with the Stocktons of the California league, has been secured by the Louisvilles.

Fred Clausen, formerly with the Louisvilles, and later with the Southern league, has been signed by the Chicagos.

It is not impossible that the Bostons may give a trial to Outfielder Sheehan after the New England league season is over.

"Cyclone" Ryan has put a ball over the Portland center field fence, a feat that Jack Newell accomplished twice in 1891.

Northampton, Mass., will have plenty of league ball next month. The Bostons are booked to play there on Sept. 7 and the Cincinnatis on the 9th.

Motz and McCarthy haven't helped Cincinnati a bit up to date. Playing with a winning and a losing aggregation are two very different things.

Manager Seelee has been trying to get at Bannon, but his telegrams have not been answered. When in Pittsburg Manager Watkins said that Boston was welcome to him.

After Buried Treasure.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 21.—W. A. Langworthy of Yellville, Ark., writes to the board of directors of the Merchants' Exchange of St. Louis, asking consideration for a scheme involving a search for buried treasure. He states that he knows the location on the coast of Florida of $2,000,000 in gold buried in the 40's by Spanish pirates, and asks the Merchants' Exchange to organize a company, with a capital of $10,000, to search for this gold.

Texas Democrats Displeased.

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—A special to The Inter-Ocean from Texarkana says: The majority of the Democrats in this section are strongly in favor of the free coinage of silver and are naturally much depressed with Cleveland's late message to congress on that question. At Buchanan the president was hanged in effigy and afterwards shot and riddled with bullets. The effigy is still hanging and it is understood that it will be publicly burned.

Medical Congress Postponed.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—The following has been transmitted to the marine hospital service from the deparment of state: "A cablegram has been received from the United States legation at Rome announcing the postponement of the International Medical congress until April next." The delegates from the United States to this congress are already in Europe en route to Rome.

Died From Cholera.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—The following bulletin was posted yesterday at Quarantine, Staten Island: Antonio Carlove, aged 50 years, who was convalescing from cholera on Swinburne island, died at midnight. The autopsy confirmed the diagnosis. The detained passengers will be sent to Ellis island tomorrow. All the preparations for their departure are complete.

Mass Meeting of Chicago's Unemployed.

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—At the call of the Chicago Tailors' union for a mass meeting of the unemployed, over 2000 people attended. The addresses were by well known labor agitators and anarchists, foremost among whom was Lucy Parsons. She delivered an address against the dominating capitalists that set her auditors in a freezy of wild applause.

OPEN RACE, Q. Y. C.

Twenty-two Boats Enter in the Three Classes.

'TWAS AN IDEAL RACING DAY.

The Winner in the First Class in Doubt. Aurisa and Imp Winners in Their Class.

The open regatta of the Quincy Yacht club was sailed off the club house at Houghs Neck on Saturday afternoon under conditions that could not have been more propitious. It was an ideal yachtsman's day. The sun shone bright and warm while a spanking breeze from the eastward kicked up a heavy sea that at times washed clear over the judges' float, causing those gentlemen to elevate their pedal extremities, or else go all day with wet feet.

There were twenty-two boats in the contest, many of them being the crack flyers of Boston Harbor, who came over to whip the Quincy boats, but who failed most signally.

The balconies of the club house were crowded with the wives and sweethearts of the jolly tars, while the green in front of Mears' was crowded with vehicles of every description.

Great interest was centered in the old Erin since named the J. T. C., and as she came in ahead of some of the fast ones, the heart of Commodore Cavanagh beat fast and his countenance showed unmistable signs of joy.

The start in the first class was a poor one, the Beatrice, Moondyne and White Fawn being all bunched together, so that it was some time before they were separated. The Beatrice led all the way around and crossed the line first, though on time allowance she lost to the Eulalie, R. G. Hunt's new boat. As the Eulalie has not yet been officially measured according to the Quincy rules she may yet forfeit first place to John T. Cavanagh's pet. Just before the boats of this class crossed the line, the Moondyne ran afoul of the White Fawn, breaking the topmast stays of the latter so that on the run down she was obliged to lower her topsail.

In the second class the Aurisa and the Opechee had it nip and tuck, but the Aurisa proved herself a stayer and crossed the line with 28 seconds to spare.

The Mab and the Imp had a struggle to the finish in the third clsss. The Mab's mast swayed in an unenviable manner which seriously hampered her in her windward work but despite this she finished first but lost on time allowance.

The judges were P. H. Gavin, C. F. Pettengill and W. P. Whitmarsh.

Must Stand Together.

The Daily Lynn Item has the following flattering notice of our distinguished townsmen, who made an able speech in the House of Representatives last week:

Dr. Everett is all right on the silver question, and in his opening speech, the first he ever made in any legislative body, he made his own position clear, and he also very frankly told his Democratic associates what he thought they ought to do. He demonstrated that he is rather proud of the title of "crank." There were several hits in his speech that will be remembered. He declined to be interrupted, for fear that some old member might put him in a hole, and he used better language to express the idea when he said, they might deposit him in a cavity out of which he would find it difficult to emerge. He told the Democrats that they must "play ball." You never can win a game of base ball, said he, solely by catching the other side out. "You have got to make the runs off your own bat before you can really win the victory."

This is the right kind of advice, but it must have sounded strange to those who have been more used to negative than to positive action. And speaking of the necessity of honest money standing together in this crisis without regard to parties, he said, "When a great city is on fire, we do not care what old woman's cow kicked over the lantern which may have set fire to it; we care only first to put the fire out." The speech was as bright as a new dollar and had the ring of a silver bell.

The Boston Journal says,—"Dr. Everett's speech in the House was a funny performance, but so far as the silver question goes, the doctor's heart is in the right place."

Knee Deep In June.

Tell you what I like best—
Long about knee deep in June,
'Bout the time strawberries melts
On the vines—some afternoon
Like to jes' git out and rest
And not work at nothing else.

Orchard's where I'd ruther be—
Needn't fence it in for me!
Jes' the whole sky overhead
And the whole airth underneath—
Sort o' so's a man can breathe
Like he ort and kind o' has
Elbow room to keerlessly
Sprawl out lengthways on the grass
Where the shadder's thick and soft
As the kivvers on the bed
Mother fixes in the loft
Allus when they's company.

March ain't nothin new!
April's altogether too
Brash for me, and May—I jes'
'Bominate its promises—
Little hints o' sunshine and
Green around the timberland—
A few blossoms and a few
Drap asleep, and it turns in
'Fore daylight and snows ag'in!
But when June comes! Clear my throat
With wild honey! Reach my hair
In the dew and hold my coat!
Whoop out loud and throw my hat!
June wants me, and I'm to spare!
Spread them shadders anywhere.
I'd git down and waller there
And obleeged to you at that!
—James Whitcomb Riley.

RESULTED IN DEATH.

Edward Phinney Fires Four Times at Edward M. Shine.

SURRENDER OF ASSAILANT.

The Victim Was a Respected Fireman of Boston.

BOSTON, Aug. 21.—Edward M. Shine of South Boston lies dead at the city hospital from bullets discharged by a lad named Edward Phinney, 20 years of age, who lived in the tenement above him on West Sixth street.

Phinney is now under arrest at station 6 and will be arraigned in the South Boston district court this morning on the charge of murder.

Phinney fled precipitately Saturday evening after firing at Mr. Shine and escaped, but put in an appearance at station 6 at noon yesterday and surrendered himself.

Mr. Shine failed steadily from the moment he reached the hospital, being unconscious most of the time. He talked disconnectedly at intervals about the fire department, the words "horses, engine and truck" being frequently repeated. He was a machinist by trade, but the fire department has always been his hobby.

The doctor hoped Shine would be strong enough yesterday afternoon to undergo an operation, that the bullets might be extracted, but he could keep nothing on his stomach, and the physicians sent word that their patient could scarcely live the night out. The end came, however, earlier than was expected.

The Cause of the Trouble.

Various annoying misstatements have been made concerning the origin of the differences between Shine and Phinney.

Mr. and Mrs. Shine had been creditably informed that young Phinney had in his possession a photograph showing two nude figures, to which he had affixed the names, "Mr. and Mrs. Shine." Mrs. Shine indignantly denies that young Phinney ever attempted to show her any obscene photographs. She says that her late husband was highly indignant over the display of this photograph, and for more than a week had been expostulating with Phinney over the matter. Saturday night he again heard about the photograph and went upstairs to find Phinney soon after he reached home, but learned that he was out. Not long after, as Mr. Shine was fastening his shoelaces, preparatory to stepping out, Phinney appeared in the hallway and asked Shine what he wanted.

An animated discussion followed, during which Mrs. Shine says Phinney told her husband he "could wipe the floor with him," etc. Mr. Shine gathered his fists, but his wife held him back, and there was a war of words over the bannister. Finally Shine started up the stairs, and then Phinney jerked a revolver out of his hip pocket and fired four times.

Two of the bullets entered Shine's body, one just below the heart, the other in the groin, while the other two were embedded in the casing of the front door and the wall.

Shine managed to get into his own apartments, and Dr. Redmond was called. After a thorough examination, he directed that the patient be taken to the hospital. Rev. John Harkins was also summoned, for it was feared that Shine was dying, although he was able to make an antemortem statement to the effect that "Eddie Phinney shot me."

The Victim's Good Record.

Edward Shine, the murdered man, was 33 years old and leaves a wife and a boy and girl, both about 5 years old. He worked for S. A. Wood. His record in the fire department was especially good, he being at first attached to hook and ladder 5, and later to engine 2 as a call man. Mrs. Shine is a thrifty housekeeper and well liked by all who know her.

Phinney has a sister who went nearly crazy over the affair, while Michael Clinton, a boarder in the Shine family, was locked up for assaulting the eld Phinney.

Young Phinney carried the revolver away with him, and if he visited Nantasket, as is believed, the weapon is probably at the bottom of the harbor. It is believed Shinney had a serious row with Shine Saturday morning, which will be brought out by the evidence.

Supposed to Be An Accident.

WALTHAM, Mass., Aug. 21.—Miss Bertha Porter is at the hospital in this city suffering from a bullet wound in her breast. Her friends claim it to be a case of accidental shooting. Miss Porter is one of the employes of the American Watch company who was laid off two weeks ago. She protests that her injury was the result of an accident caused by the discharge of her revolver, which she was attempting to clean.

New Railroad For Maine.

WISCASSET, Me., Aug. 21.—This town has ratified the contract made by the Wiscasset and Quebec railroad directors and George H. Crosby, whereby the latter, with other prominent men of means, when the subscribed stock amounts to $50,000, are to commence the construction of the long projected railroad, beginning at tide water in Wiscasset and running through Alna, Whitefield, Windsor, China, Albion and Unity to Burnham station.

Artificial Rainmaking a Failure.

HARTFORD, Aug. 21.—An experiment in artificial rainmaking was conducted Saturday on the farm of a large tobacco grower in Bloomfield. Everything was favorable for the experiments, the sky being overcast with fog clouds, which ought to have yielded a liberal shower when bombarded with dynamite. But there were no results whatever, and in fact the sun was shining brightly within an hour after the experiments began.

Awaiting the Result of the Autopsy.

BOSTON, Aug. 21.—In the Dorchester district court Malachi Watson and Maggie Crowley were held in $1000 each on charge of assault and battery on Mrs. Mary Watson, the wife of Malachi, who was found dead Friday morning in the Dorchester district. The court awaits the result of the autopsy. The hearing on the charge of assault and battery will be held Thursday.

A Colored Cannibal.

BENNINGTON, Vt., Aug. 21.—Charles Weeks of Saratoga and George Valney Smith of Sandy Hill, both colored, quarreled in the former place, and Weeks bit off his antagonist's ear. He was at work on Smith's cheek when an officer interfered and put the cannibal in jail. He will remain there until the grand jury acts upon the charge of mayhem against him.

Contemplates a Fishing Trip.

BUZZARD'S BAY, Mass., Aug. 21.—President Cleveland spent the Sabbath quietly with his family at Gray Gables. The air was damp and muggy, and the family remained in doors all day. It was reported last night that the president, Dr. Bryant and Joseph Jefferson are to go on a fishing excursion to Wakeby lake during the coming week.

Chances Even For Recovery.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Aug. 21.—It was stated at the hospital last evening that Leo Nolan, the 14-year-old boy who was accidentally struck by a baseball bat Saturday afternoon on Spruce street, North Cambridge, had sustained a compound fracture of the skull, and his chances for recovery are about even.

Saturday's Race For the Astor Cup.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 21.—The cup defenders made another attempt Saturday to decide the ownership of the second Astor cup, but as the Vigilant failed by 11 minutes to cover the course within the limit time, the race was declared unfinished and another must be sailed.

Dry Goods Dealers Assign.

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Aug. 21.—The first failure among local business houses directly attributable to the present stringency in the money market was reported by the assignment of David Harley & Co., the leading dry goods house in this city and one of the largest in the state.

Not Printer McGarrity.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Aug. 21.—There seems to be more of a mystery than ever as to the identity of the man whose body was found in a Swansea pond Wednesday. The supposition that the man was a printer named McGarrity is proven erroneous by McGarrity's appearance.

Had His Back Broken.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Aug. 21.—Lawrence O'Brien, 35 years old, is at the Massachusetts General hospital in a very critical condition, his back being broken. He jumped from a car he was riding on to the ground in front of an approaching car and was knocked down.

Suicide at Cambridge.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Aug. 21.—Directly owing to the depression in business circles Silas A. Wilder of 20 Howard street was driven to suicide yesterday. The act was committed shortly before noon by hanging himself with his son's swing rope in the cellar.

Alcohol Paralyzed His Heart.

LYNN, Mass., Aug. 21.—Patrick O'Brien was taken with violent vomiting Saturday evening in Costello's stables. He died shortly afterwards. Dr. Bangs pronounced it a case of alcoholic paralysis of the heart.

Will Change His Location.

LYNN, Mass., Aug. 21.—Patrick Lennox, the morocco manufacturer, who has a factory in Peabody, is making arrangements to remove his entire plant from that town to this city.

Sad Drowning Accident.

WALTHAM, Mass., Aug. 21.—Peter D. Ross, aged 20, was drowned yesterday while bathing in a small pond on the Hazeltine estate. The body was recovered.

Burned to the Water's Edge.

ERIE, Pa., Aug. 21.—The steamer Oneida of Bay City took fire in midlake yesterday off Dunkirk. The captain and his crew of 19 men were driven to the small boats when some distance from the shore. The Oneida reached the beach near the state line and burned to the water's edge. She was owned by Captain Davidson of Bay City and was worth $50,000.

Seven Men Killed.

GALVESTON, Aug. 21.—Advices have just reached here from Coahuila, Mex., that a riot occurred there on the 18th in which seven men were killed. The cause of the trouble was the recent removal and imprisonment of the mayor and the appointment of another in his place who had acted in a tyrannical manner since his induction into office.

New York's Heavy Storm.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—A heavy storm prevailed in New York city and vicinity Saturday night and the greater part of yesterday. Five deaths are reported to have been caused by the storm. The damage will reach thousands of dollars. In Brooklyn a man was caught in a cellar which was overflooded with water and was drowned.

A Murderer Lynched.

MEMPHIS, Aug. 21.—Six masked men stopped a passenger train on the Mississippi valley branch of the Illinois Central railroad yesterday and held up Marshal Stockton. They then took his prisoner, Charles Tait, from the train and shot him to death. Tait had murdered his employer, a farmer named R. C. Pete, last September.

Heroic Red Cross Members.

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—From each of 25 members of the Red Cross society a small piece of cuticle will be taken today, which will be grafted on Minnie Yeager of this city, a member of the order, who was so seriously burned two weeks ago by a gasolene explosion that on parts of her body every particle of the skin peeled off.

Alleged Dishonest Bank Officials.

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 21.—E. C. Sattley and J. C. Darragh, cashier and president of the suspended Kansas City Safe Deposit and Savings bank, were arrested yesterday on warrants charging them with receiving a deposit knowing the bank to be insolvent. Both gave $5000 bonds for their appearance today.

Awful Work of a Crazy Drunkard.

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—Crazed by the excessive use of whisky Douglas Curtis, a railroad brakeman, shot and instantly killed his 7-year-old daughter, seriously, if not fatally, wounded his wife and then blew out his own brains.

Work of a Welsh Mob.

CARDIFF, Aug. 21.—There was a disturbance at Blaenavon, and 50 soldiers of the Devonshire regiment were sent there. A mob looted the shops at Ferndale, smashed the windows and was charged by the police.

Drowned In the St. Lawrence River.

CLAYTON, N. Y., Aug. 21.—The steamer North King ran into a skiff at Fine View park, just below Thousand Island park, in the St. Lawrence river, and its occupant, Willis Miller, was drowned.

A Volcano Reported.

TACOMA, Aug. 21.—A party who have just returned from an ascent of Mt. St. Helena report that the mountain is an active volcano. The climbers experienced a distinct earthquake.

Nothing can be substituted for the Royal Baking Powder and give as good results.

No other leavening agent will make such light, sweet, delicious, wholesome food.

If some grocers urge another baking powder upon you, it is because of the greater profit upon it. This of itself is evidence of the superiority of the "Royal." To give greater profit the other must be a lower cost powder, and to cost less it must be made with cheaper and inferior materials, and thus, though selling for the same, give less value to the consumer.

To insure the finest cake, the most wholesome food, be sure that no substitute for Royal Baking Powder is accepted by you.

Other House Business.

Taken as a whole, the committees are approved. The silver debate was dull, and the large audience which had assembled to listen to Mr. Breckinridge of Kentucky was disappointed.

Mr. Powers (Rep., Vt.) spoke for the Wilson bill, Mr. Hooker (Dem., Miss.) against it; Mr. Cooper (Dem., Ind.) thought it inexpedient to adopt free coinage at this time, and Mr. Sperry (Dem., Conn.) took the opposite view.

Mr. Cox (Dem., Tenn.) advocated free coinage, and Mr. Settle (Rep., N. C.) spoke in opposition. Other speeches were made at the evening session.

Proceedings In the Senate.

The veteran senator from Vermont, Mr. Morrill, occupied the attention of the senate with an argument in support of the bill discontinuing the purchase of silver bullion. The case of the Montana senatorship was then taken up. Two speeches were made against the claim of Lee Mantle and against the constitutional right of a state governor to appoint to the senate save only in cases of a vacancy happening on account of the resignation or otherwise during the recess of the legislature. The vote upon the resolution to seat Mr. Mantle was postponed until Wednesday at 3 p. m.

Senator Peffer of Kansas presented to the senate the petition of the Anaheim Co operative Beet Sugar company of California, protesting against any change in the sugar bounty clause of the McKinley tariff law. With America self-sustaining in the product of sugar, the document says, it would give employment to 1,000,000 workingmen, render productive and profitable thousands of farms, and save the deportation of $150,000,000 in gold, adnually paid to producers of sugar in alien lands.

The bill to aid the midwinter national exposition at California was passed, and the senate adjourned at 4:15 p. m.

To Return to the White House.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—President and Mrs. Cleveland, it is understood, will return to the White House the last days of this month. The work which has been in progress about the mansion for some weeks past has been nearly completed and, excepting the red parlor, the house will be in perfect trim for the return of the family.

DENVER, Aug. 22.—The Union and People's National banks, which suspended on July 18 and 19 respectively, have opened their doors for business.

FALL RIVER WAGES.

The Owners of Mills Now Considering a Reduction.

VIEWS OF LABOR LEADERS.

Over-Production the Cause of the Present Trouble.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Aug. 22.—The news of an impending cutdown in wages has turned the attention of people in this city to the seriousness of the present trade situation in all parts of the country. Last night cloth and the prices obtained for it were the great topics of discussion in every local circle. The manufacturers who voted to appoint a committee to meet with like committees from other New England centers say they not care to enter into any revision of the wage schedule alone.

They have learned by long experience that what is done in Fall River will be done in other centers, but in enforcing their ideas of trade they have been the losers, while their neighbors have prospered at their expense. By sending a delegation to confer with other manfacturers they hope to impress upon cutsiders that their first duty is to secure uniformity in the wage schedule in all cotton mills.

Revising the Scale.

At the present time the schedule furnished by the Spinners' union is in reality the one under which most of the large mills are working, and it has long been recognized. This scale is based on boom prices. To revise the wage schedule is the first purpose of most manufacturers of influence here. They contend that such a revision may have no effect on the demand for their products, but it will reduce the cost of production to a basis more nearly akin to the present selling price of their goods. They do not expect that operatives will take kindly to a reduction, but if the mills are to be run no better wages can be paid than are to be offered when the new schedule goes into effect.

The factories that stopped did not close their gates because the help were earning too much money, but because they could not dispose of their output at any figure. Some of them would have shut down had spinners been working for their board and weavers for 10 cents a cut. There is no assurance that they will commence operations when a panic scale has been established, but if they are to commence again on the regular goods or marketable odd goods that may be stored at the risk of the manufacturers, they propose to begin piling up goods on a rock-bottom basis of wages.

Views of the Leaders.

Representatives of the operatives in the various trades unions take a very gloomy view of the outlook. Secretary Howard of the Spinners' union is spending his annual vacation at Halifax, but the other officers agreed that it would be useless to combat a cut down under present conditions. If a reduction went into effect tomorrow they would be compelled to put up with it, but at the first opening they would demand an increase and would enforce their demands as far as they were able.

Officers of the Weavers' union hold substantially the same views, but join with the manufacturers in saying that reduction can in no way benefit trade throughout the country. It is understood here that six printing companies, with which Fall River mills deal, are now carrying 2,000,000 pieces or more of printed fabrics. There are 500,000 pieces of gray goods on hand here, for which there is no inquiry and no sale.

AFFAIRS BADLY MANAGED.

The People's Fire Insurance Company Votes to Reduce Its Capital Stock.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Aug. 22.—A very largely attended meeting of the stockholders of the People's Fire Insurance company was held in the city hall yesterday. Early in the meeting it was announced that the call had not been legally issued and that no positive action could be taken at this time. The advisory committees stated that they were not prepared to make a written report at the present time, and Hon. James F. Briggs, chairman of the special committee of the stockholders, said that the committee was not yet able to state specifically the status of the company. One thing was apparent, he said—$100,000 must be had at once. It ought to have, to put it on a solid, substantial basis, $150,000 or $200,000. The pressing needs of the company are funds.

The company has not power to make assessments. There were two propositions, one to reduce the capital stock to $100,000, and then increase it $100,000 or $200,000 by the issue of new stock, said stock to be taken at par within 10 days; the other to look for opportunity to reinsure in companies and wind up the concern. After a long discussion, extending over three hours, it was voted to appoint a committee to investigate the affairs of the company, employing experts, and, if results warranted it, to prosecute the offenders to the full extent of the law. It was voted to reduce the capital stock to $100,000 and to issue new stock not exceeding $200,000, to be paid for in cash within 10 days, stockholders of record of Aug. 28 to be given the preference pro rata.

Germany Looking to Her Navy.

BERLIN, Aug. 22.—Vice Admiral Hollmann, secretary of state for naval affairs, is said to have obtained the approval of Dr. Miquel and several other ministers for his plan of spending 40,000,000 marks on new warships, in order that Germany may not fall too far behind France and Russia in naval armament.

Destructive Fire at Halifax.

HALIFAX, Aug. 22.—The extensive hardware house of William Stairs, Son & Morrow in Lower Water street was destroyed by fire yesterday morning. Loss, $125,000. Rufus Keating, fireman, fell from a ladder and was fatally injured.

Governor and Staff Will Be Present.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 22.—Governor Pattison and staff, accompanied by Major General Snowden and Brigadier Generals Cobin, Dechert and Wiley, will leave for the World's fair Sept. 4 to participate in the ceremonies of Pennsylvania day.

The address was full of good points, interesting and instructive to the hearers.

THE PEACE Congress at Chicago went a little too far when it seriously proposed to eliminate from religious literature and hymnology all martial allusions and metaphors, because they influence the young mind unwisely in warlike directions. It is almost as absurd as the proposition made by a Brooklyn gentleman some time ago to taboo Longfellow's "Building of the Ship" because of the indelicacy of the allusion to the vessel leaping into the ocean's arms.—Boston Herald.

TAX RATE $15.80.

An Unexpected Reduction from Last Year.

VALUATION $1,073,650 LARGER

A Low Rate Considering the Increased State Tax and Large Debt Payment.

The unexpected has happened. The tax rate of 1893 is lower than last year, which was below the average of Massachusetts cities. And this in face of an unusually large payment on the city debt, requiring about $4 on a $1000, and a greatly increased State tax. A reduction in the tax rate is the exception among the cities this year as is shown very conclusively below. It is at the same time much below a majority of the towns, four of which are $18 or over.

The assessors' figures for Quincy for this year are as follows:

	Real Estate.	Personal Property.	Total Valuation.
Ward One,	$4,271,980	$1,527,290	$5,799,270
Ward Two,	1,517,350	323,760	1,841,110
Ward Three,	1,840,760	363,245	2,204 005
Ward Four,	1,983,395	343,200	2,326,595
Ward Five,	2,382,425	210,770	2,593,195
Ward Six,	1,609,765	55,350	1,665,115
Bank Tax,		208,780
Total,	$13,605,675	$3,032,695	$16,638,070

The Levy of 1893.

A Strong North-easterly Storm Kicks Up a Big Sea.

YACHT SUNK AT RACOON ISLAND.

Sloop Driven Ashore at Nut Island.—Minor Personal Gossip.

The storm which raged all day Monday was very severe at Houghs Neck. The wind came from the north with cyclonic force kicking up a sea that threatened to swamp the many yachts anchored off the Club house.

It was indeed a sight well worth going miles to see.

Along the west shore where the wind blew with all its fury, the waves rose to enormous heights, rolled shoreward as if driven by a typhoon, and dashed themselves upon the rocks with a sullen roar and a boom that betokened disaster to the unwary mariner.

Along the east side the spectacle was not less appaling in its grandeur. The huge billows rolling shoreward, caught the float at the Club house and lifting it up till the timbers seemed to creak and groan in agony, then would suddenly recede, causing the float to fall into the watery abyss, leaving it covered with seaweed and other debris.

Out at Pig's Rock Beacon where the wind blew down the West Gut with unabated fury, the boiling spray would dash with a roar upon the rocks, and then leaping upwards would completely envelop the beacon from sight.

Down at Raccoon Island the billows were enormous. Here a little white yacht was anchored. Suddenly an enormous breaker caught the boat, and rising up with fiendish-like glee, dashed the pleasure boat upon the cruel rocks.

The boat immediately filled and sank, while the foam-flecked waves rolled over its grave.

The sight from the top of Great Hill was one not often witnessed at Houghs Neck. The harbor seemed to be a writhing mass of foam which stretched as far away as the eye could see.

The sloop Marion of Gloucester, owned by John Crowley of that place, was anchored in the West Gut. The storm caused her to drag her anchors and before ... realized what had happened, she ... She was

The yachts off the club house ... time of it, but luckily they all weathered the storm.

The high wind blew down many branches, tore awnings and did other trifling damage.

THE CITY COUNCIL

Accepts the Report of the Committee on Fire Department.

AFTER A LENGTHY DEBATE

Orders Passed for Abolishing Water Street Crossing and Grade of Winthrop Avenue.

The City Council held its regular meeting Monday evening, every member being in his seat at roll call, and the spectators' seats were well filled.

Communication.

A communication was received from the Mayor informing the council that the contract with the Electric Light & Power Co. expired in September, and requesting council when renewing said contract to have some of the arc lights in dark places burn all night. To Committee on Contracts.

A communication was received from the Mayor, stating that the $30,000 water bonds could not be negotiated at 4 per cent., and requesting authority to issue them at not more than 4 1-2 per cent., also for authority to borrow money on temporary loans in case the bonds could not be negotiated.

Upon motion of Councilman Moxon the communication was placed on file.

Fire Department Report.

Under the head of unfinished business the report of the Committee on Fire Department, which had been before the Council for some time, was taken up.

Councilman Robbins said the statement has been made that this matter was not an agreeable one to the committee, but they were ordered to do so and therefore had to do it. He thought it strange that such a statement should be made. He did not think this was the case; the investigation was not by any order of the Council. A resolution was offered requesting that an investigation be held in relation to the action of the department at Ward 5, and to inquire into the condition of the fire alarm and apparatus. The adopting of that resolution cannot be construed into an order to investigate the fire department, ... officials and men. The report, therefore, goes out of its way in trying this official. It was entirely out of the power of the committee and contr... ...moved ... the Council adjourn it be until Monday, Sept. 11, at 7.35. Voted.

Upon motion of the same gentleman the report of the committee was laid on the table until after the regular business was transacted.

Reports of Committees.

The Committee on Fire Department and Police in relation to petition for police on West street, reported it be referred to the executive department. Accepted.

The committee on Fire Department on petition for a fire alarm box at the corner of Brooks avenue and Centre street, reported it be referred to the executive department, recommending that it be granted. Accepted.

Licenses.

The Committee on Licenses reported orders granting a license to Main's circus on the payment of $25; auctioneer's to Horatio Nelson; job wagon to Nelson C. Hersey; victualler's to Jesse Milton and J. A. Stetson Pierce; to sell naphtha to C. W. Jenness; to collect junk to Edw. Haynes; one carriage to J. H. Lord; and to sell gunpowder to John W. Nash; all of which were adopted.

The same committee also reported that the petitions of Mrs. R. W. Brown for an innholder's license, of Mrs. C. M. Lapham, Thomas Clarkson, William Slanheigh, and Geo. W. Peterson for common victualler's license have leave to withdraw; all of which were adopted.

Grade Crossing.

The Committee on Finance reported ought to pass, with a slight amendment, on order appropriating $1000 to secure plans and surveys for the abolishing of the grade crossing on Water street. Under suspension of rules the order was passed to be ordained.

Combination Engine.

The Committee on Finance reported ought to pass an order appropriating $1300 and the proceeds of the sale of the Atlantic chemical for the purchase of a combination chemical engine and hose wagon. Under suspension of the rules the order was passed to be ordained.

Adams Street.

The Committee on Streets reported an order appropriating $7,000 for the widening and establishing grade on Adams street. To Committee on Finance.

The Committee on Streets reported ought to pass on petition of the Electric Light & Power Co., for location of one pole on Chestnut street. To second reading.

The Committee on Finance reported ought to pass an order appropriating $650 for establishing grade of Winthrop avenue. Under suspension of the rules order was passed to be ordained.

The Committee on Streets on petition of Lester M. Pratt, et al., for electric light on Goddard street, recommended said petition be referred to executive department. Accepted.

New Orders.

Councilman Moxon offered an order changing the interest on the $30,000 water bonds from 4 per cent. to 4½ per cent. also authorizing the city treasury to borrow money on temporary loans until bonds were negotiated. To Committee on Finance.

Councilman Anderson offered an order for the adoption of Chapter 51 of the Public Statutes known as the betterment act. Passed.

Councilmon Lennon offered an order instructing the City Clerk to collect $25 from Haskell & Stickney for running flying horses in Ward 4, for the week ending Aug. 26, 1893. Passed.

Councilman Smith offered an order appropriating $5000 for the purpose of paving Granite street from Swithin's corner to Quarry street, and Quarry street from Granite to Kidder streets. Referred.

The Fire Department Report.

Upon motion of Councilman Sherman the report of the committtee on Fire Department was again taken from the table.

Councilman Moxon.

Councilman Moxon did not believe the Council had the right to proceed to investigation as it had done in this case. He did not think there was a member who believed the Council had a right to investigate the qualifications of the chief engineer. There was a proper way provided by the charter for it.

He then read from the stenographic report of the Mayor's hearing at Wollaston, in which it appeared that Councilman Federhen had asked 88 questions which went to show that the investigation on that occasion was not unfair as it had been claimed. He did not believe it the kind of business the Council ought to get in.

Councilman Holbrook

Said if this report is true, what is the need of this whitewash to cover up the heads of the department. He cared nothing for politics, but when the committee state the report is the truth he was bound to support it. He denied that heads of department had any authority by the charter to get up and enter into an argument with members of the Council. The opposite side have accused some of the committee of signing the report before they read it. It was a pleading to escape the judgment. If the Mayor does not take any notice of it, it informs the people that we are doing our duty.

Councilman Federhen.

Councilman Federhen made a lengthy reply to arguments made by Councilmen Robbins and Moxon. No one has denied that a single fact in the report was not the truth. The order was broad enough to include anything connected with the department. Five of the commit... ...do. He thought the chief engineer had no right to speak in the council but he was willing to give him a chance to answer the charges against his management. The report made by the chief engineer was not the same statements that he made before the committee. The report read by him was not written by himself but by some one else.

Councilman Donahoe.

Believed that the committee were unfortunate in not having heard the defence of the chief engineer before having made its report. The very words of councilman Federhen were a challenge. He said we should not be led or influenced by those who would whip us into line. I believe with him. He could not be whipped into line to censure a man who he believed was doing the best he could. He believed we should be lenient with the firemen. It is easy to get criticisms from subordinates. In order to have discipline we must have harmony. The chief has had four or five years' experience and the fact that harmony does prevail has been one of the causes of complaint. The pay is small and the reward they look for is a little praise. We should be careful of censure.

Councilman Sherman.

Councilman Sherman said the chairman of the committee has made ascertions that a vote against the accepting of this report was dishonest. He should vote against the acceptance. We have got to deal with human beings and whoever is Mayor will get the best he can for his heads of departments. He saw nothing in this report that the chief had not handled fires properly.

Councilman Moxon moved the vote be taken by the Yea and Nay. Voted.

The report was then accepted by a vote of 12 to 10 as follows:

YES—Adams, Baker, Brown, Drake, Federhen, Holbrook, Lennon, O'Connell, Owen, Rooney, Smith, Williams,—12.

NO—Anderson, Badger, Donohoe, Grindell, Holden, Johnson, Moxon, Robbins, Shackley, Sherman,—10.

Adjourned at 10.15.

Burglars.

Wouldn't it be a funny sight to see a burglar trying to tug off one of our $18.75 beautiful antique chamber sets? Its out of their line of business, but could they see one, the temptation would be almost irresistable. Other sets in great variety; the prices melt your eyes. Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

—The ways of auctioneers in different parts of the world vary greatly. In England and America the seller bears the expense of the sale, but in France the purchaser pays the cost, 5 per cent being added to the price he pays. In Holland it is still worse, the buyer being required to pay 10 per cent additional for the expenses of the sale.

—One day last week the young son of a Mr. Davis of Roslyn, Va., found in a rat's nest a valuable watch. It is of solid silver, it is claimed, with 18 jewels, a compass and several other features that are not found in the modern watch.

The Chinese emperor had 260 pairs of boots made for himself some time ago.

A Seaside Sensation.

A young Newark widow named Mrs. Angeline Allen created quite a sensation at that fashionable watering resort known as Asbury Park last week.

She had been at Coney Island, Bar Harbor and Narragansett Pier and her ideas of bathing costumes were framed upon what she had seen at those resorts.

Accordingly, she donned a suit of tight fitting flesh colored silk, cut very low in the neck and very high at the nether extremities, flung a woolen wrap about her shapely limbs and started for the beach.

Arrived at the edge of the beach she dropped the wrap from her shoulders and stood there in the full glory of her pink silk, like another Pygmalion's statue, or a modern Venus sprung from the sea.

The attractive costume soon gathered a large crowd and the tongues of the dudes begun to move:

"Good morning, Eve. How's Adam?"

"Hello, Venus! Just washed up?"

"O, for a kodak!"

Poor Mrs. Allen stood this fusilade of ridicule for a moment, then dashed from the beach. So close was she followed by the crowd that she had to be protected by the police, who procured a close carriage and took her to her hotel.

The whole number of males in the United States is 32,067,880, and the whole number of females 30,554,380.

PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

Is a positive cure for all those painful

Ailments of Women.

It will entirely cure the worst forms of Female Complaints, all Ovarian troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Falling and Displacements, of the Womb, and consequent Spinal Weakness, and is peculiarly adapted to the Change of Life. Every time it will cure

Backache.

It has cured more cases of Leucorrhœa than any remedy the world has ever known. It is almost infallible in such cases. It dissolves and expels Tumors from the Uterus in an early stage of development, and checks any tendency to cancerous humors. That

Bearing-down Feeling causing pain, weight, and backache, is instantly relieved and permanently cured by its use. Under all circumstances it acts in harmony with the laws that govern the female system, and is as harmless as water. It removes

Irregularity,

Suppressed or Painful Menstruations, Weakness of the Stomach, Indigestion, Bloating, Flooding, Nervous Prostration, Headache, General Debility. Also

Dizziness, Faintness,

Extreme Lassitude, "don't care" and "want to be left alone" feeling, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, flatulency, melancholy, or the "blues," and backache. These are sure indications of Female Weakness, some derangement of the Uterus, or Womb Troubles.

The whole story, however, is told in an illustrated book entitled "Guide to Health," by Mrs. Pinkham. It contains over 90 pages of most important information, which every woman, married or single, should know about herself. Send 2 two-cent stamps for it. For His Fruits Shall Follow.

The books say well, my brothers. Each man's life
The outcome of his former living is.
The bygone wrongs bring forth sorrows and woes;
The bygone right brings bliss.

If he who liveth, learning whence woe springs,
Endureth patiently, striving to pay
His utmost debt for ancient evils done
In love and truth alway—

If he shall day by day dwell merciful,
Holy and just and kind and true, and rend
Desire from where it clings with bleeding roots,
Till love of life have end—

He, dying, leaveth as the sum of him
A life count closed whose ills are dead and quit,
Whose good is quick and mighty, far and near,
So that fruits follow it.

HOME RULE DEBATE.

The House of Commons Votes to Apply Closure on It.

FRIDAY THE DAY FIXED ON.

Argument Against Its Adoption Made by Chamberlain.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—In the house of commons yesterday Mr. Gladstone moved the adoption of the resolution, notice of which was given on Friday last, to apply the closure to the report stage of the home rule bill on Friday next.

Joseph Chamberlain then submitted his amendment declaring that the government's proposal was calculated to degrade the house into a voting machine, depriving the British majority of its constitutional rights, and ought therefore to be withdrawn.

In speaking to his amendment, Mr. Chamberlain said he could not recognize the necessity of passing the home rule bill at one session. The real necessity for rushing the bill through was that the government did not dare to stand on one measure, the only chance of the adoption of which, if any such chance had ever existed, had been destroyed by the government's alteration of the ninth clause of the financial arrangements.

Mr. Chamberlain's Prediction.

If the government went to the country tomorrow, Mr. Chamberlain added, it would meet with crushing defeat. Knowing this from its own agents, it wanted the bill hustled out of the way in order to enable it to patch up its reputation with other measures.

Sir William Harcourt, chancellor of the exchequer, replied to Mr. Chamberlain. The government, he said, had allowed 80 days for the discussion of the home rule bill, twice the time ever before given up by parliament to any one measure. Sir William quoted from an article written by Mr. Chamberlain several years ago advocating the American plan of placing a time limit on parliamentary obstruction.

Balfour's Allusion to This Country.

Mr. Balfour, leader of the Unionists, reminded Sir William that in America the provisions against sweeping alterations of the constitution would prevent such a measure as the home rule bill from being made law by a majority of but 5 per cent of the people's representatives.

The house then divided on Mr. Chamberlain's amendment. It was rejected by a vote of 200 to 162.

Mr. Gladstone's resolution to closure the home rule debate on Friday was adopted without division.

Good News From Pittsburg.

PITTSBURG, Aug. 22.—The Sligo works of William Nimick & Co. have gone into full operation and 3000 men are at work at Jones & Laughlin's. The United States Iron and Tin Plate company's works are in partial operation, as is also the Lockhart Iron and Steel company at Chartiers. The Black Diamond steel works started in full, giving employment to 4000 people. Three open hearth furnaces were placed in operation at the Carnegie Homestead plant. Before the end of the week it is said that other large plants will be placed in operation.

Navahoe Makes a Poor Show.

TORQUAY, Eng., Aug. 22.—The Navahoe, Britannia, Satanita and Calluna started in the regatta yesterday with a rattling single reef breeze. At the start the Navahoe took the lead and held it in good shape to the first mark. Then she fell away to the windward, and in a single round of 11 miles was beaten 2m. 20s. by the Britannia, the order in which they were timed being: Britannia, Calluna, Navahoe, Satanita.

Left Nothing to Mary.

LOUISVILLE, Aug. 22.—The will of the late Dr. Hamilton Griffin, stepfather of Mary Anderson, has been submitted to probate. He left all his property, consisting of several houses and lots in various parts of the city, to his wife, and at her death to his four children. No bequest whatever is made to his stepdaughter, Mary Anderson-Navarro.

Jumped to Liberty.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 22.—John Albert, an army deserter, escaped by jumping through the window of a Missouri Pacific train, while it was running through the city limits. He was in charge of two officers, and was being taken from Washington to Fort Supply, I. T., for trial.

No Truth In It.

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 22.—There is no truth in the story of the killing of four boomers by soldiers on the Cherokee strip. Messages from all points on the strip show that there has been no collision of any kind between the soldiers and the boomers.

BASEBALL.

Rain Postpones the Boston-Pittsburg Games—Other League Contests.

BOSTON, Aug. 22.—The games set for yesterday with the Pittsburgs were postponed. It is doubtful if the games are played, as the Bostons' first open date is Sept. 1. The Pittsburgs play at home on the following day.

The Cincinnatis will be the Bostons' opponents at the South End grounds this afternoon. Comiskey has several new men on his team, including Motz, who took his place as the guardian of the first bag. Mike Sullivan will pitch. He is the club's winning twirler. Gastright will probably pitch for the Bostons.

ANARCHISTIC UTTERANCES.

Emma Goldman and Others Urging the Unemployed to Deeds of Violence.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—There was another meeting of the unemployed held in Covenant hall yesterday. The first speaker, whose name could not be ascertained, denounced the authorities generally, and when a reporter walked into the hall he was denounced by the speaker, who said that the crowd should rise and kill the representative of the press.

Emma Goldman then entered the hall and was loudly cheered. She was more rabid in her utterances than ever. She told her hearers to remember the fate of the men who had been killed at Homestead by the Pinkertons. She told them that if they went to another meeting at Union Square not to even look at a policeman. Then she capped that with the advice: "Don't go to Union Square tonight unless you are armed." When she had finished a young man took her place on the platform. Among other things he said that the Jews should not work with the Christians, and that more particularly they should not affiliate with Irishmen as Irishmen were owned by capitalists.

CHOLERA PREVALENT.

Ninety Deaths Reported In a District of Hungary the Past Two Days.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—The Daily News sent a medical commissioner to Hungary to investigate the cholera. He reports that in a short valley of the Black Theiss 205 persons were seized, of whom 90 died since the 19th.

At the town of Delatyn in Nadworna there is one doctor for 1500 persons. Sixteen were seized on the 15th and all died. The inhabitants believed that the doctor poisoned his patients in order to stop the infection. They now draw a black line around the wall of an infected house instead of calling the doctor.

The commissioner concludes that there is no doubt that the government has concealed the existence of cholera in Hungary for commercial reasons.

Other reports state that 2000 Italian laborers working on a railway in Lemberg were panic stricken owing to the death of 17 of their comrades from cholera and abandoned their wages rather than remain.

Killed by the Sheriff.

BELOIT, Kan., Aug. 22.—On Aug. 10 W. C. and Maurice O. Stevens broke jail here. On Sunday Sheriff Cochran found them at the house of James Griffits. A posse surrounded the place and called on the fugitives to surrender. They answered with a volley from their revolvers. The sheriff returned the fire with a shotgun, killing Will Stevens.

STRIKE THREATENED

Over Proposed Reduction of Mill Operatives' Wages.

NEW BEDFORD IS EXCITED

By the Action of Fall River Manufacturers.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Aug. 24.—Intense excitement prevails in local textile centers over the threatened reduction of wages by the manufacturers of Fall River. Since the news was printed yesterday it has been the sole topic of conversation among the operatives, and loud denunciations are heard on all hands. The spinners here say they will resent to the bitter end any attempt of the local corporations to enforce a reduction anywhere near the amount determined on at Monday's session of Fall River mill men. A reduction of wages in Fall River will mean a reduction of wages in New Bedford, as it has always been so. The local labor unions are taking action in the matter, and no branch of industry will submit peacefully to a reduction.

Secretary Samuel Ross of the Spinners' union was interviewed on the subject and stated in his opinion such a course would not have the slightest tendency in righting the existing difficulty. He thought that Such a Course Would Be Hasty.

Mr. Ross further said: "No sooner do indications point to a depression in the cotton market than mill men meet in council and talk reductions, but when the market booms and large profits are being realized from sales not a word is mentioned about increasing wages. The only real remedy for such a crisis as this is to suspend operations, a course satisfactory to all concerned."

It is the prevailing opinion that the spinners in both this city and Fall River will strike rather than submit to the proposed reduction. The weekly textile pay roll of this city is $60,000. The enforcement of a 20 per cent reduction would reduce it $12,000.

Secretary Ross has received information that notice of a 10 per cent reduction in wages has been posted in the mills at Salmon Falls, N. H., and spinners feel like resisting its enforcement, and have sent for Secretary Ross to hasten to the scene. Secretary Ross has issued a call for the national spinners' executive committee to meet in Boston Monday, at which time the situation of the Salmon Falls spinners and also those of other sections where reductions are threatened will be acted upon.

CAUGHT IN THE ACT.

A Boston Clerk Who Is Charged With Stealing About $9000.

BOSTON, Aug. 23.—A clerk in whom the utmost confidence has been placed for 14 years by his employer, Patrick Canny, wholesale grocer of Hanover street, is accused of stealing $110 from his employer. It is also claimed that sums of money have been missed from this establishment at various times for years past, and he is also accused of taking this money.

Some time ago Mr. Canny began to believe that he was being systematically robbed, and decided to consult the police. Inspector Cogan was detailed to investigate the case. Yesterday the inspector was in a room in the store from which, he claims, he could see what was going on in the main part of the store, and he saw the clerk, whose name is Herman, go to the safe, place in the lock a key, which he took from his pocket, open the safe and take out the money. It was then that he was placed under arrest.

Canny alleges that during the past 10 years $9000 has been stolen from him, but Herman denies that he ever stole such an amount. It is stated that when the man was arrested, besides the $110 that he took from the safe, there was found upon him a key which fitted the safe, and which, it is supposed, he had made from a wax impression of the lock; also three skeleton keys. Herman is a German, 38 years old.

BIT TWO WOMEN.

Victim of Hydrophobia Creates a Panic In a Maine Town.

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 23.—Neighbors have not the slightest doubt that Alfred Cole of East Stoneham is afflicted with rabies. Cole created a panic in the village. He was down in a swamp on his farm cutting underbrush when he complained of being sick. Some neighbors carried him to a house near by.

Mrs. Merrill was bathing Mr. Cole's head when the patient uttered a frightful snarl and suddenly seized the woman. He bit her in the arm, making a painful wound, which had to be cauterized.

Mr. Small, who witnessed the affair, clutched the madman and choked him until Mrs. Merrill's arm was released from Cole's teeth.

Cole struggled fearfully, and throwing off his coat and vest, ran through the streets of the village shouting and crying at the top of his voice. He ran into the residence of Mr. Ricker, and, seizing Miss Alma Ricker, bit her on the neck and on the arms, making three bad wounds. Assistance arrived or else he would have killed her.

He barked and snarled like a mad dog. Miss Emma Ricker, a sister of Alma, fought the madman with all her might and kept him at bay until some of the men in the neighborhood arrived.

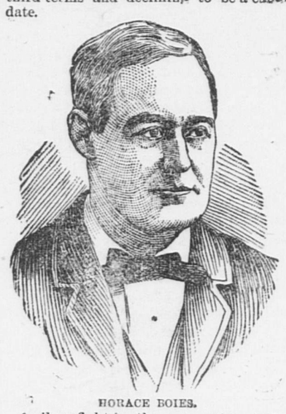

Cole was then secured, and was taken to the asylum at Augusta. Miss Alma Ricker is severely ill.

BOIES FOR GOVERNOR

Belief That He Will Be Nominated For the Third Time.

DES MOINES, Aug. 23.—It is generally believed that Governor Boies will be renominated at the Democratic state convention. He has twice held the office of governor and has written a letter declaring himself conscientiously opposed to third terms and declining to be a candidate.

HORACE BOIES.

A silver fight in the convention similar to the controversy over prohibition in the Republican convention of a week ago is greatly feared by the Democratic leaders

GRESHAM AND BLOUNT

Will Say Nothing In Regard to Their Conference on Hawaii.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—The conference between Secretary Gresham and Minister Blount at the state department was held in the diplomatic room and lasted nearly three hours. Secretary Gresham sent for Mr. Blount's report on the Hawaiian situation and the two considered them at length. Mr. Gresham refused to be interrupted by some callers of prominence who sent in their cards, and Secretary Lamont was fortunate enough to get only a few minutes with him.

When the conference was over Secretary Gresham declined to make any statement whatever or to give even an idea of his talk with the minister. Mr. Blount was quite as reticent, and referred all who inquired to Secretary Gresham.

Ellis Mills of the state department, who accompanied Mr. Blount to Honolulu in a confidential position, left the minister at Meir. Rumor accused him of being engaged to Miss Ah Fong, the daughter of a very wealthy Chinese merchant in Honolulu. Mr. Mills has written to friends in Washington denying this report.

Preparing For the Scramble.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—Now that the president's proclamation opening the Cherokee outlet at 12 o'clock Saturday noon, Sept. 16, has been issued, the work of constructing land office buildings and making other preparations for the opening day will be pushed with vigor. Contracts for four buildings, one each at Enid, Woodward, Perry and Alva, have already been let at a cost of $40. Tents will be used for the nine booths. Secretary Hoke Smith has now under consideration a number of applications of parties for permission to enter the outlet prior to the day set for the opening in order to establish stores of various kinds.

Postoffice Discrepancies.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23.—The postoffice department is informed of the arrest of Dr. Matthew Taylor at Mount Winans Md., on a charge of sending scurrilous matter through the mails. Jacob Keppler and Sarah Jones were arrested in Baltimore on similar charges. George H Makepeace, late postmaster at Sanford N. C., has been arrested on a charge of embezzling registered mail matter.

Prominent Politician Drops Dead.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Aug. 23.—Hon. John J. Bell of Exeter dropped dead in the railroad depot here of apoplexy. He was very prominent in the state. He was a lawyer by profession and was interested in many enterprises in the state. He was a 33d degree mason and stood high in other bodies. He was 66 years old and leaves a wife and two sons, aged respectively 5 and 2 1-2 years.

Coal Strikers Giving In.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—Many of the strikers in South Wales are known to be willing to return to work without the desired 30 per cent advance in wages. The Monmouthshire strikers show a tendency toward wavering. In Glamorgan the men from four large collieries in the Merthyr district have voted by a large majority for going back to work.

Lucky Mr. Redmond.

BUFFALO, Aug. 23.—While Michael Redmond was in his backyard he saw something brilliant in the dirt and picked it up. It was a diamond. Continuing his search he found three more. The find is explained by the fact that the debris of a hotel fire was dumped on the ground where Redmond's lot now is.

For the Third Time.

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—Mayor Carter Harrison is to be married some time in September. The lady is Miss Annie Howard of New Orleans. She is about 30 years old and is worth about $3,000,000. Mayor Harrison is 68 years old, and this will be the third time he has gone through the marriage ceremony.

Cutting Down Expenses.

BROOKLYN, Aug. 23.—Admiral Gherard sent word to the heads of all Brooklyn navy yard departments to discharge all employes whose services could be dispensed with. In consequence of the order 42 mechanics were discharged. More dismissals are expected.

Poisoned by Bad Whisky.

AMSTERDAM, N. Y., Aug. 23.—John Tenger, a demented man, was given a quantity of bad whisky yesterday by a companion and he died of alcoholic poisoning. A thorough investigation will be made.

A Thieving Sheriff.

LITTLE ROCK, Aug. 23.—Captain W. L. Lythe, sheriff of Miller county, is short in his accounts with the state to the amount of $17,000. He used the funds in private enterprises.

EXCITABLE SICILIANS

Make a Savage Attack Upon a French Consulate.

MUTUAL REGRETS IN ORDER

France and Italy on the Aigues-Mortes Affair.

ROME, Aug. 23.—The popular ferment arising from the Aigues-Mortes affair shows no sign of subsidence, although there has been no further rioting in this city. The agitation is spreading in the provinces. At Milazzo, on the north coast of the island of Sicily, a mob paraded the streets and acted in a most disorderly manner. Finally the leaders of the rioters proposed that an attack be made upon the French consulate, and the proposal was greeted with shouts of approval.

Arming themselves with stones and other missiles the mob marched to the consulate and smashed about every window in the building. The escutcheon of France over the doorway was torn down and borne off by the mob. An attempt was made to burn it, but the police somewhat tardily arrived and drove the rioters off. Some of the officers espied the escutcheon and rushed into the crowd and recaptured it. The attack is likely to further complications.

The agitation in Genoa, though nominally directed against the French, is said to be actually the work of anarchists who are ever ready to make riotous demonstrations. Troops have been sent to Genoa to assist the authorities to prevent a recurrence of the rioting.

The Incident Closed.

According to a semi-official announcement, made last evening, Admiral Brin, minister of foreign affairs, has instructed Signor Ressman, Italian ambassador to France, to inform the French government that in view of its spontaneous dismissal of the mayor of Aigues-Mortes, the Italian government, appreciating the friendly disposition thus shown and placing complete confidence in the efficient and impartial action of the French magistracy for the punishment of the guilty parties, is happy to be able to consider the incident satisfactorily closed.

Both Sides Feel Sorry.

PARIS, Aug. 23.—The Italian ambassador, in an interview with M. Dupuy, after expressing the regrets of the Italian government for excesses committed in Italian cities against France, informed him that the prefect of Rome, Senator Calcada, the chief of police, Signor Landrie, and Inspector of Police Magnetti, the officials who are responsible for maintenance of order in Rome, had been dismissed, and that reparation would be made for any injury done to French property.

M. Dupuy, in his reply, expressed the French government's regrets for the Aigues-Mortes affair and assured the ambassador that the safety of Italian workmen would be guaranteed. He added that the French intended to show that the Italians were the aggressors. The mayor of Aigues-Mortes, however, was compromised by the proclamation which he issued and had been dismissed.

The Cholera's Progress.

VIENNA, Aug. 23.—The mayor of the Hungarian city of Szolnok, where cholera is epidemic, has been suspended from office in view of his responsibility for the fatally bad sanitary condition of the whole district under his supervision. The cholera has now spread to the county of Szarboles, in Hungary.

ROME, Aug. 23.—There were nine fresh cases of cholera in Naples on Monday and six deaths, seven fresh cases on Tuesday and five deaths. Deaths from cholera are reported from Oviglio Roccaverano and San Giuliano-Vecchio.

BUCHAREST, Aug. 22.—No cholera exists in this city. At Soolina the epidemic spreads rapidly. The mortality is exceptionally large.

Concerning Absentee Landlords.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—An interesting debate took place in the house of commons on a proposal offered as an amendment to the home bill providing that the Irish parliament should be forbidden to impose disabilities or confer privileges on anybody on account of parentage or birthplace. The amendment brought up the question of taxing the absentee landlords of Ireland. The amendment was agreed to.

A Close Shave.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Aug. 23.—Harry Watson, a tinner working on the steeple of the Crescent Avenue church, was sitting in a swing suspended from the top of the steeple, when two of the ropes attached to the chair broke, and he fell. Watson was saved by a rope, which he had a short time before tied around himself. He hung in midair 190 feet from the ground until he was rescued.

Girl and Schoolmaster Missing.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Pretty Carrie Vondersmith has disappeared from her home at Brooklyn, and her mother believes that she has left home with a principal of one of the public schools of that city who has of late displayed great affection for the girl. The girl is not yet 16 years of age.

Church Among the Sufferers.

LEXINGTON, Mo., Aug. 23.—A fire at Wellington destroyed a livery and feed stable, the Methodist Episcopal church and parsonage, the town calaboose and a residence. Only hard work saved the entire town from burning.

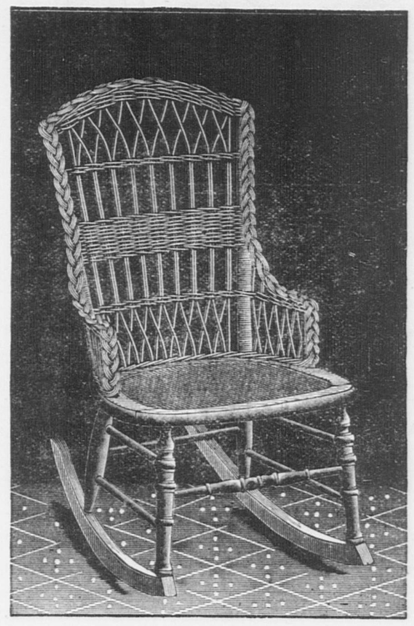

Business Picking Up.

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 23.—The Browne & Sharpe Manufacturing company, one of the largest tool making concerns in the country, will resume operations on Monday, after a shutdown of four weeks.

Over Three Millions Involved.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—The Farmers Loan and Trust company has begun an action in foreclosure of a mortgage of $3,300,000, held on the property of the New York and Northern railroad from One Hundred and Fifty-fifth street to Brewsters. The mortgage was given on Oct. 1, 1887.

ON A SILVER BASIS.

Malt Extracts are standard remedies, and are prescribed by all physicians. We carry the following brands, which we have reduced to Boston prices :—

Johann Hoff's (imported) Malt Extract, 35 cts.
Wyeth's Liquid Malt Extract, - - 25 cts.
Beefmalt (Beefmalt Co.) - - - 30 cts.
Best Tonic, - - - - - - - 25 cts.

The last named is the latest Malt preparation put in the market, being a combination of Malt and Hops. Malt Extracts are especially good for persons convalescing from severe illness, in cases of Dyspepsia, and for mothers nursing; also for sick and weakly children.

Dr. W. G. Kendall of this city was awarded a gratuity or extra prize for his exhibit of vegetables at the Massachusetts Horticultural Society show on Saturday. His collection consisted of radishes, kohl rabi, cucumbers, mulberries, leek, and petit pois, or French peas, such as are usually seen in this country only in cans.

A peculiar accident happened to a freight train in the Boston yard of the Old Colony this morning. As a train of dump cars was backing over the D street bridge the forward car jumped the track and crashed into the second story of a tenement house completely demolishing the car and the side of the house. Breakfast was interrupted.

How to Sell Quincy Granite.

Editors Daily Ledger:

Trade is divided into two parts; one the manufacturer and one the merchant. One makes, the other sells. One cannot do without the other. Not many manufacturers are as capable in selling goods as the merchant; on the other hand, the merchant often knows how to make the goods he sells. The manufacturer has tools suitable for his work, and the merchant also has tools with which to sell his goods—men and printers' ink; one is as important as the other.

Some years ago I manufactured a line of goods for druggists. At first the wholesale dealers would sell them for me, but not until the retailers wanted them, and the retailers did not want them until the people who used the goods called for them; hence I was obliged to create a demand for the goods by advertising among the people, who went to the retailer, and he to the wholesaler, and then to me. I well remember when Elijah A. Morse went from house to house with his stove polish; then he went on the road and sold to the dealer, but before he did so he advertised his polish so that the people would call for it, and one thing he always claimed that his polish was the best in the world; and today he is worth $500,000. Please notice he had to reach the people before he could reach the dealers.

We can also remember when Dr. Ayer of Lowell started to advertise his medicines. He went to the people with advertisements and made a demand for his goods, and when he died he left millions of money.

We also know how Hood's Sarsaparilla is advertised in all kind of manner; to get near home look at Douglass of Brockton, who is known all over the United States because he advertises direct to the people.

An advertisement in a trade paper is read by a small line of dealers. But there is not much object in reaching the dealer unless the goods which you have to sell are well advertised, or are a line already advertised.

An advertisement may pay in a trade paper but not often. If Quincy granite was well advertised today, and its good quality was known, it would not be easy for a dealer to sell Barre, or any other kind in place of it. Men are apt to think the people all over the land know about their goods, but I suppose the larger portion never knew that there was granite in Quincy.

I suppose when a person wants a monument he goes to a dealer near him and is shown a sample of stone from Barre, or some other place, and when the customer asks which is the best, the dealer will say it is a matter of choice, for all are good.

If the dealer can get the stone made in Barre at a lower price than the Quincy, he will talk in favor of the Barre granite, as he would get the same price. But if Quincy granite was well advertised among the people they would say, we want to set a monument that is the best, and we know the Quincy granite is the best, and the dealer might try hard to sell other stone, yet it would be in vain. If people knew about the quality of Quincy granite they would not be in favor of other granites for monuments.

When they buy a monument they want it to last forever. The only way the Quincy manufacturers can reach the people and let them know that Quincy granite is the best is by advertising in the principal papers, that go all over the land, and when the people find out that Quincy granite is the best, they will oblige the dealer to carry Quincy, and not monuments made of inferior granite. I would like to see about $10,000 used at once in small ads. something like this:

MONUMENTS
MADE OF QUINCY GRANITE
WILL LAST WHEN OTHER STONE HAS CRUMBLED TO DUST.
Send postal for circulars, etc., to the Quincy Granite Manufacturers' Association,
QUINCY, MASS.

An ad. of one inch or less is enough. My check is ready at any time for $50, to be used when the Manufacturers' Association is ready to spend $10,000. I will pay $10 toward $100 to be used in the Youth's Companion. That paper goes all over the land.

A BUSINESS MAN.

Home Again.

In October, last year, Miss Mae McPhail of Hancock street, started on a sailing voyage with her uncle. The first port touched was Sydney, Australia. Here quite a long stop was made while the vessel was unloaded and a new cargo loaded on. While here Miss McPhail made many friends among the American colonies. From Sydney they sailed to Honolulu, from Honolulu to San Francisco, and from San Francisco to British America. Miss McPhail feeling the American soil beneath her feet decided home was a pretty good place and accordingly started overland, arriving this morning. She is looking in the best of health, having grown stouter and browner. The vessel is probably on its way to South America, ere this but Miss McPhail seems content to be on terra firma.

Obituary.

The funeral of George R. Smalley will take place this afternoon at 3 o'clock from the Congregational church, of which he was the senior deacon. He died in Lebanon, N. H., on Monday at the good ripe old age of 83. For over half a century he was an honored and respected citizen of this town.

Hummers.

Need a stove, did you say? See the finest line in New England. The product of the six leading N. E. foundries at our store—there you learn the good features of them all. Of course it seems unusual, a guaranteed discount to everyone from the lowest Boston prices. Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

MANET BEACH.

By consent of Archbishop Williams and Rev. Fr. Friguglietti, the new Catholic church has been named St. Frances-by-the Sea, in memory of the late Frances E. Tracy, wife of Hugh P. Tracy. The parishioners are well pleased with the name as it recalls to mind one of the foremost and most charitably disposed persons who aided the building of the new church.

Fair Luna has added much to the pleasure of the evenings here and every night the bay is crowded with moonlight sailing parties.

Mrs. William J. Dooley of Findlay, Ohio, is the guest of Mrs. Jane Dooley at the "Cymbeline" cottage.

Wednesday will be a hustling day for the newspaper reporters of Quincy. There is a reunion of the 39th Regiment, the marriage of Commodore Faxon, the illumination at this place, and the unexpected, which generally turns up when the scribes are up to their ears in work.

Mr. Brennan of Randolph arrived at the Belleview cottage yesterday.

Miss Alice Kelly and party of West Quincy are occupying the Happy Thought cottage for a week.

Although the beach season is supposed to be on the wane, it has not decreased the population or popularity of Houghs Neck. New arrivals continue to come every day and the indications are that the season of '93 will be mustered out with flying colors.

It is surprising to note how many Brockton people are quartered at the beach. Houghs Neck has got to be quite a household word in Brockton and every day notes some new arrival from the Shoe City, while on Sundays the crowds are sometimes enormous. The Brockton people who visit and make a summer home at the beach are not those upon whom fortune has showered riches, but they are quite industrious people who earn their living by the sweat of their brow, and who are not afflicted with that offensive pride which characterize many people who have become famous on account of their monetary resources. Our Brockton residents are peaceable, intelligent citizens with a business enterprise that has helped make Houghs Neck what it is today.

A grand literary and musical entertainment will be held Friday evening in aid of the new Union Chapel.

Mr. Henry G. Reynolds, book-keeper at the Brockton Street Railway Office, and family, are stopping at this place for a month.

Mr. King of Worcester who has been stopping at the Snowflake cottage, returned home yesterday. The cottage did not remain unoccupied long, however, for Mr. Johnson of Brockton immediately moved in.

Mr. F. C. Parry, the Brockton artist, has gone on a sketching trip along the North Shore, taking in Gloucester and Squam river.

Read the Manet Beach DAILY LEDGER every day and learn what is going on around you.

BOSTON FIREMAN SAVED

Rescued on the Shadowy Shore of Spirit Land.

His Friends Summoned to His Dying Bedside—All Hope Abandoned—The Doctors Said He Could not Possibly Live—Then Kickapoo Indian Sagwa Cured—Greatest Triumph on Record.

(From the Boston Globe.)

The strong and positive assertions of the great curative value of Kickapoo Indian Sagwa are easily susceptible of proof.

JOHN C. HARRINGTON.

Wonderful cures right here in New England which have been wrought by this famous medicine of the Red Men—Sagwa—attest to its value.

The following testimonial is the unsolicited indorsement and grateful tribute of an old Boston fireman, Mr. John C. Harrington, now living in Brockton, Mass.

Under date of Oct. 27, 1892, he writes:

"A year ago last Christmas I was taken sick with the grip. A complication of troubles followed which developed Dropsy in its worst form, and for months I was obliged to sit in a chair, day and night, never once lying down in bed. During that long period I had the best medical skill obtainable, and seven doctors attended me at different times, but they could do nothing for me. I was tapped thirteen times and they took from me in all seventy-eight gallons of water.

The physicians told my wife that mine was a hopeless case, and told my family to prepare for the worst. My friends and relatives were notified of my condition, that they might take a last farewell.

Among my friends was one who urged me to try Kickapoo Indian Sagwa. I did so and soon after I began taking it there was a marked change for the better; the bloat commenced to leave my bowels and the swelling of my limbs decreased quite rapidly, and in less than a month I was back to my normal size. I have been gaining health and strength ever since.

TODAY I AM A WELL MAN THANKS TO KICKAPOO INDIAN SAGWA.

I think it is the best medicine in existence, and all of my friends think my cure nothing less than a miracle.

I will gladly answer anybody seeking information about this great medicine. J. C. HARRINGTON, 23 Court av., Brockton, Mass."

Kickapoo Indian Sagwa is the grandest remedy of the universe.

The simplicity of its grandeur is the strongest tie that binds it to the confidence of the people.

It is nature's remedy!

Nature provides a cure for every disease of every living creature.

Man in his wisdom can best understand these remedies, and the Indians who have been obliged to depend upon nature alone for their curative helps, best understand nature's remedies.

That is why Kickapoo Indian Sagwa is the safest, the best and the surest Liver, Stomach and Blood Renovator—the best remedy for all seasons—the world has ever known.

Kickapoo Indian Sagwa, made by the Indians from roots, barks and herbs of their own gathering and curing, is obtainable of any druggist at one dollar per bottle; six bottles for five dollars.

Striking a Cait

That well balanced furniture line in the Hollow.—Not like the Frenchman's razors, made to sell and not to use. Genuine scalper's rates on everything. Parlor Sets—you save enough on the prices, $35.00 to $80.00, to pay for a handsome table. Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

VALUATION OF QUINCY.

A Handsome Showing Both in Real and Personal Property.

We give below the valuation of this city, both real and personal for the past eleven years. It will be noticed that it has more than doubled its wealth during the last decade; and that the Assessors' present valuation is over sixteen million dollars.

The valuation appears below by Wards. Each Ward shows a very satisfactory gain except Ward 2 and 4. The former has gained only about fifty thousand dollars the past year; while Ward 4 has made a loss of about fifty thousand in personal property. Ward 5 has made the largest gain, owing no doubt to the large number of houses built at Wollaston Park; Ward 1 has made a gain of nearly three hundred thousand.

Year	Real Estate	Personal Property	Total Valuation
1883	$6,071,660	$1,665,278	$7,736,937
1884	6,332,795	1,765,691	8,098,486
1885	6,604,975	1,884,490	8,489,465
1886	6,887,800	1,931,266	8,819,066
1887	7,434,350	1,950,370	9,384,720
1888	7,825,250	1,932,710	9,757,960
1889	9,736,625	2,582,620	12,319,245
1890	10,468,200	3,209,210	13,677,410
1891	11,157,925	3,268,905	14,426,830
1892	12,272,575	3,291,845	15,564,420
1893	13,605,675	3,032,695	16,638,070

Comparison of Wards.

Moonlight Bicycle Run.

All bicycle riders in the city, both ladies and gentlemen, are invited to participate Thursday evening in the moonlight run of the Quincy Cycle club. The pace will be a slow one and cannot fail but be enjoyable. The following route has been laid out for that evening:

Leave the club house on Temple street at 7.30 sharp, Washington street to Quincy Point, Bridge street to North Weymouth, North street to King Oak Hill, Commercial street to East Weymouth, Broad street to Weymouth centre, Middle street to King Oak hill, North street to North Weymouth, Bridge street to Quincy Point, Washington street home. The total distance is less than ten miles and the roads are as good as any in this neighborhood and but few hills to climb.

Burglars at West Quincy.

The store of Callahan Bros., on Willard street was entered by burglars Monday night. The parties gained entrance by breaking the window glass and turning the catch. The safe was then opened and $20 in money taken. It is thought the break was made by someone familiar with the premises, as the safe was opened by the combination.

New Hampshire Fish Story.

Mr. Charles H. Brigham, who has been enjoying a pleasant vacation at his summer cottage on the shores of Lake Winnipisaukee has just returned with a good fish story.

Mr. Brigham has always had the reputation of being one of Izaak Walton's most devoted disciples. Last Friday he went fishing. He fished from six o'clock in the morning until one o'clock in the afternoon, seven hours, and didn't catch a fish.

What is more wonderful than that, Mr. Brigham came home and said that he had not caught a fish or even had a bite.

This is the first instance on record where a man, who was in his right mind, has told a fish story like that. The millenium cannot be far distant, Lieutenant Totten is to be vindicated.

Burglars.

Wouldn't it be a funny sight to see a burglar trying to tug off one of our $18.75 beautiful antique chamber sets? Its out of their line of business, but could they see one, the temptation would be almost irresistable. Other sets in great variety; the prices melt your eyes. Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

DIED.

CRONIN—In Quincy, Aug. 20, Mary J., daughter of Mr. John F. and Mrs. Margaret E. Cronin, aged 4 months and 16 days.

DELL—In Quincy, Aug. 21, Mr. Joseph Dell, aged 53 years 3 months and 11 days.

SMALLEY—In Lebanon, N. H., Aug. 21, Mr. George R. Smalley, formerly of this city, aged 83 years and 9 months.

SAWYER—In Boston, Aug. 18, Mr. Henry R. Sawyer, formerly of Quincy, aged 68 years and 18 days.

Novel Election Suit.

GREENFIELD, Mass., Aug. 23.—Mrs. Mary E. Fisher of South Deerfield, in behalf of the women voters of Deerfield, has brought suit against Henry Wait, Alden Briggs and E. C. Cole, members of the board of registrars of voters, for $500. Through the registrars' interpretation of the law the women were not allowed to register last fall, and thus lost the right to vote for school committee. The suit is believed to be the first of its kind. The town will defend the registrars.

Found by "Gypsy Mothers."

IPSWICH, Mass., Aug. 23.—A new tree nest has been discovered in this town by the agents of the gypsy moth commission. Several of these insects were first found on a black walnut tree in front of the First church parsonage. The agent sent specimens on to Boston to be examined. These insects were also located in other parts of the town.

Phinney Held Without Bail.

BOSTON, Aug. 23.—In the South Boston court Edward F. Phinney was arraigned, charged with the murder of Edward M. Shine on Saturday night. He pleaded not guilty, and after two policemen and Mrs. Shine had testified briefly, Phinney was held without bail for trial in the superior court.

Trade Continues Dull.

WARE, Mass., Aug. 23.—The Otis company's four cotton mills in this town, employing 1800 hands, with a payroll of $2000 a day, that have been shut down for nearly a month and were expected to start up the 28th, will not do so owing to the continued dullness of trade.

Potter Must Stand Trial.

BOSTON, Aug. 23.—Asa Potter must stand trial Sept. 11. Judge Putnam has decided that both the motion for continuance and for delay must be overruled. The court gives Mr. Potter a week's delay beyond date asked for by the government.

Trefethen's Second Trial.

BOSTON, Aug. 23.—The second trial of James A. Trefethen for the murder of Deltina Davis has been fixed for Sept. 18 at East Cambridge. The assignment was made at a meeting of the superior court judges in this city.

Ray Mill Starts Up.

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 23.—The Ray cotton mill, No. 5, formerly the Harris mill, of Woonsocket started up on full time today after a three weeks' shutdown. The Eagle cotton mills of Woonsocket have shut down for a week.

Soon to Leave Gray Gables.

BUZZARD'S BAY, Mass., Aug. 23.—The president, Dr. Bryant and Joe Jefferson took a fishing trip down the bay yesterday. The president and family contemplate leaving Gray Gables next week.

Tinkering on the Puritan.

TARPAULIN COVE, Mass., Aug. 23.—Commodore J. M. Forbes is fitting out the Puritan, mending sails and fitting her up in general, and it is stated will put her in the race with the new cup defenders.

Fire Fiend Busy.

DOVER, N. H., Aug. 23.—Following upon the attempts Saturday night to burn several churches some one tried to set fire to the Broadway Baptist church. The man was seen, but made his escape.

Vigilant Won Easily.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 23.—In the re sail for the second Astor cup the Vigilant won the second one easily. The only other entry was the Pilgrim, the Boston syndicate boat.

Orders Are Coming In.

SALEM, Mass., Aug. 23.—The Naumkeag steam cotton mills will start up immediately after Labor day. The demand for goods necessitated this move.

Double Drowning Accident.

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 23.—Two girls named Splan and Walker, each about 12 years old, were drowned in the Quinnipiac while bathing.

Brief Mention.

An attempt will be made to have the Yale-Harvard football match played on the Waltham (Mass.) bicycle park.

Lucius Tuttle, vice president of the New Haven railroad, was elected president of the Boston and Maine Railroad company, to enter on his duties Oct. 11.

Manuel Luis Bateilda, a deck hand on steamer Gay Head, is under arrest for larceny of $121, a suit of clothes and a silver watch from Jose Muniz in Fall River, Mass., Feb. 19, 1892. Bateilda confessed the crime.

Framingham, Mass., voted recently to renovate the high school building, and appropriated $15,000. It has been found that the amount appropriated is not sufficient, and a special town meeting will be called and an additional sum of $5000 asked for.

Love's Faith.

Love can wait!
Being so patient, it is strong.
If in this world it wait in vain,
It surely shall not suffer long;
For in some other state,
Some life of larger scope,
It ultimately shall attain
The full fruition of its hope.
This is love's faith—defying fate,
Time, change, neglect and laughter,
It can wait
For the hereafter.

Say that this life is all we know,
And death has nothing to bestow
Beyond the grave's duress
But silence and forgetfulness;
Then if I count the cost,
Seeing love's self is sacrifice,
I surely have not lost
If with this life love dies.

But love's desire,
Being so patient and so sure,
Though it may pass through tears and fire—
Aye, through the portals of the tomb—
Will yet endure
Till its own time shall come.
Therefore, though never while we live,
It may be mine to ask or yours to give;
Though you may pass beyond my ken,
And I be lost
Among the crowd of nameless men;
Though both be tempest tossed
To earth's extremest ends afar,
I know that we shall meet again,
Meet and be one in perfect love:
But when and where—
Whether in this earth here, or heaven above,
Or in some unimagined world or star—
I neither know nor care.
Early or late,
Love can wait.
—Charles Lotin Hildreth.

OFFICIALS DISAGREE

As to the Extent of Illegal Liquor Selling at Danvers.

DANVERS, Mass., Aug. 23.—The Law and Order league of this town is still on the warpath against the sale of liquors which is being sold through the kitchen barrooms. The selectmen and the chief of police have met the members of the league, and there was a clash. One of the selectmen offered to go with any member of the league and the chief of police to any suspected place where they thought liquor was sold, but the members refused to do that. A committee of the league then showed the selectmen a presumed list of the Law and Order league. The selectmen claimed to have found two names of men that own places where liquor is sold, letting them to tenants who are among the suspected kitchen barroom keepers. The others own places where the police have suspected that gambling is carried on. The selectmen informed them that it they had any places where they would like to have the police raid such request would be carried out.

DISPUTE OVER A CHAPEL

Which Will Have to Be Settled by Bishop Williams of Connecticut.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Aug. 23.—Bishop Williams has been asked to decide a controversy between St. John's Episcopal church of Bridgeport and St. Paul's church of Fairfield over the possession of St. Mary-by-the-Sea, a new chapel being built at Black Rock. The chapel is being built by subscription, and over $1500 has already been raised.

Mr. Pearsall gave the promoters land for a site, ex-President Harrison sent $10 for the fund and his letter will be sold to the highest bidder, $50 having already been offered for it. Rev. W. Strother Jones of St. Paul's claims the chapel is in his parish and Rev. W. H. Lewis of Bridgeport holds that it is in the jurisdiction of his church.

A Grand Success.

BETHLEHEM, N. H., Aug. 23. — The White mountain coaching parade for 1893, the event anticipated with doubts and fears during this rainy week, took place under most favorable auspices. Arrayed in stunning gowns, eyes twinkling from beneath gay sunshades and escorted by gallant outriders, queens of the White mountains were carried in triumph along the roads of Bethlehem in the pageant—coaches decked with flowers from garden and dell, with ribbons of entrancing hues, and with silk, bunting and garlands of green, drawn by gaily caparisoned prancing steeds made a delightful scene. The hotels were resplendent with colors.

Dixon Strikes a Snag.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—In the boxing contest at Madison Square Garden between Dixon and Plimmer the decision was given to the latter, who did the best work throughout the entire bout.

To Meet Sept. 12.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—A meeting of the national executive committee of the American Republican College league has been called to meet Sept. 12 at 2 o'clock at the Fifth Avenue hotel.

Baby Meyer Is Dead.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—The 5-weeks-old baby of Dr. Henry C. Meyer, the alleged poisoner, born while the mother was in Detroit, died at the post-graduate hospital.

Odds and Ends.

It can't be helped, they will accumulate. Short lengths in mattings, regular 25c. goods, 10 to 12 cents per yard. Oil cloths in the same fix. The time to buy is when the other fellow wants to sell. Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

MOB ON THEIR TRAIL.

Two Men Will Soon Become Victims of Lynchers.

BOTH ARE WICKED MEN

And Will Strongly Resist Attempts at Capture.

MATTON, Ala., Aug. 23. — Two men named Meyers, both accused of heinous crimes, are fleeing from avenging mobs in this vicinity. One has taken refuge in a dense wood near Brushy Fork and the other in a big swamp, north of Charleston. Both are surrounded by posses of citizens, and both will almost certainly be lynched if captured. Gill Meyers is the name of the fugitive at Brushy Fork, which is 12 miles north of this city. Last Friday morning he went to the house of a neighbor named Will, and finding no one at home except Mrs. Will, assaulted her.

Afterwards he met his 11-year-old daughter and assaulted her and hanged her to a tree. Then he went home and beat his wife and one of his own little girls, after which he fled to the woods after arming himself. Before going he ordered his wife to send him that night a basket of provisions. The little girl, when cut down, was unable to talk. She managed to write the story of her treatment.

Lynchers Are Waiting.

A mob sighted him in the woods and 50 shots were fired at him. Meyers returned the fire and slightly wounded one of the citizens. That night his little girl, whom he had whipped, carried him a basket of provisions. The posse have surrounded the woods and tried to captured him. Should he be captured he will certainly be hanged.

The other Meyers is the Big Four brakeman who slashed Will Rusie to death a few days ago in a row over a girl with whom he was in love. A mob of 200 persons armed has been searching for him ever since and his escape is almost impossible.

Meyers is a desperado and well armed and is an excellent shot. He has a host of friends among the searching party who will fight desperately before they will permit him to be lynched.

WIDEAWAKE POLICE

Head Off a Scheme of Anarchists to Hold a Big Meeting.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—The anarchists tried to hoodwink the police yesterday and hold a meeting at 97 Stanton street. They had given out that the meeting would take place at 2 o'clock, but they decided to hold it at noon. At 1 o'clock Police Captain Devery, with two roundsmen and 30 policemen in full uniform, moved suddenly down upon the reds.

The greatest excitement ensued. Fully 2000 persons blocked the street and the sidewalk as soon as the police appeared. Clubs were drawn and the mob scattered in every direction. Some of the anarchists made a futile attempt to stand and fight, but a vigorous use of the clubs soon dispelled them. Finally the mob was driven away and order restored. Half a dozen officers were left to guard the place.

To Relieve Chicago's Unemployed.

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—At a meeting of delegates from all the large bodies of organized labor and a committee from the business men a committee of relief and safety was organized, composed of 25 labor leaders and 25 business men. This committee will try to find work and bread for the unemployed residents of Chicago.

Forced to Quit Work.

DENVER, Aug. 23.—A mob of unemployed laborers visited the scene of the north side sewer and drove out of the trench 75 men who were working eight hours at $1.20 a day. Later the mob drove off the laborers at work on the Capitol hill sewer.

A Stitch In Time.

Prices for northern and eastern beef cattle pr lb, dressed weight—Choice, 5½@6½c; first quality, 5@5½c; second quality, 4½@4¾c.

Hides, tallow, etc—Hides, 4½@5c pr lb; tallow, 3@4c pr lb; calf skins, 70c each; lamb skins, 50c each; sheared skins, 25c each; branded hides, 3c pr lb.

Northern and eastern beef cattle—There was a fair demand, but drovers complained loudly that they could not sell the cattle for the prices offered by the slaughterers without a severe loss. They claimed that the prices offered showed a decline of ¼cent pr lb. This, however, was not corroborated by the buyers, who said that values were not off more than ⅛c pr lb. Western cattle are selling about the same as last week.

Milch cows and springers—Trade was slow. Speculators and jobbers were on the market and after considerable bantering bought a few head. A few first-class buyers looked over the stock. Drovers claimed that these buyers were anxious enough to purchase, but had not the wherewithal.

Sheep and lambs—Trade was fairly active and a clearance was effected at values showing no change from those received one week ago.

Veal calves—Among the arrivals were a large number of "grassers" and quite a few "bob veals." The good calves sold quickly at prices which showed no material change from those quoted one week ago. A clearance was effected.

Western beef cattle—The stock was consigned to the shippers and exporters.

Western swine—Western swine were quoted from 5½@6c pr lb, live weight.

A FIGHT AT THE START

But the Bostons Overcame It and Won Hands Down.

BOSTON, Aug. 23.—It was hard work for the champions for five innings. They could do nothing with Chamberlain during this time, making only two hits. The Reds, on the other hand, did all their batting in these innings, and poor fielding and bases on balls gave them four runs. In the sixth inning, however, the Bostons had the first good chance to work their tricks, and they kept to them so well in the seventh that they won hands down. They ceased lining the ball out and bunted with great effect, and they scored and stole bases without a slip by boldly coaxing throws.

HUNGRY WORKMEN

Appease Their Appetite With the Stock of a Candy Dealer.

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 23.—Over 200 unemployed laborers marched the streets to the court house and called for the mayor yesterday morning. When Mayor Koch made his appearance he was greeted with cries of "bread" and "work." Several of the workmen made speeches and demanded that the city officials go to Washington and have the law which made hard times repealed. They said they must have work or their families would starve.

Mayor Koch advised them to return to their homes and procure work wherever they could. He said the city would soon have money enough to prosecute public improvements and give many men work. The mob then retired. On the way to the courthouse the crowd looted a candy stand and appropriated some of a fruit merchant's stock.

Expelled For Unprofessional Conduct.

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 23.—Walter Sanger, who holds the world's bicycle record for a mile competition, and who is champion of England, was last night expelled from the Telegram Bicycle club for conduct unbecoming a member of the club's racing team. Sanger had refused, after being advertised, to appear on the track in a meeting which had been arranged by the club.

Emma Is Safe For the Present.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Acting Superintendent of Police Conlin says that Emma Goldman will not be arrested for her speeches at the meetings of the unemployed Hebrews, as they contained nothing to warrant the arrest of the woman. As long as those people keep within the law the police will not interfere with them.

HIS CLAIM REJECTED

Lee Mantle Not Entitled to a Senate Seat.

A SETBACK FOR SILVERITES

Delay Is the Only Weapon They Now Have.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—The senate refused to seat Lee Mantle, appointed a senator by the governor of Montana, by five majority yesterday afternoon.

LEE MANTLE.

Although the case was hung up on a motion to reconsider, growing out of a misunderstanding as to Senator Morgan's pair with Senator Quay, it is believed by senators that the decision will stand.

This means that Governor Osborne of Wyoming will not appoint a successor to Mr. Beckwith, and that ex-Senator Allen of Washington, also appointed by the governor of his state, will not be seated. It is now known that Allen, if admitted, would have voted for unconditional repeal, while Mr. Mantle and the Wyoming man would have voted against it and for free coinage. Thus the silverites, according to the vote yesterday, lose two recruits and one vote net.

Vote Is Significant.

The vote was not strictly a test of the comparative strength of the repealers and the silverites, although the silverites, especially on the Republican side, did all that they could in the circumstances to get votes for Mantle. But senators in many cases divide rather on the legal aspects of the case, so that the roll call does not indicate how they would vote on the question of unconditional repeal. There is no longer, however, any doubt on either side of the senate that the majority for unconditional repeal would be larger than the majority against Mr. Mantle rather than smaller.

Ranging all the 85 members of the senate (there being a vacancy from Washington, from Wyoming and from Montana) as they are expected to vote, if present, on the Voorhees bill, the estimates of the best judges in the senate give 47 in the affirmative against 38 in the negative. The repealers do not wish to give the names of the senators whom they expect to vote for the Voorhees bill at present, for obvious reasons, but there can be no question that they have at least 45 votes now and a good prospect of two or three more by the time the vote is reached.

Free Coiners Must Hustle.

There are half a dozen southern senators, who would rather vote the other way, but who are willing for the sake of the administration to cast their votes for unconditional repeal if they are needed. Delay is the only weapon the silverites have now in the senate (although they are still talking of fastening on a free coinage amendment, without seeing how they will do it), and that cannot be used indefinitely.

Senator Voorhees has already notified them that they will not be allowed to use the national bank ciaculation bill as an obstruction, and Democratic senators who will vote against repeal have notified the Republican silverites that they will not go into a filibustering movement with them.

The prospect, therefore, for early action, perhaps some time next month, in the senate is good, after the house shall have passed the Wilson bill by the large majority now expected, and shall have practically suspended business until the senate disposes of the matter, as the house now proposes to do.

BAY STATE POLITICS.

John E. Russell Said to Be Democrats' Choice For Governor.

BOSTON, Aug. 24.—It seems to be generally settled in the minds both of Republicans and Democrats that Hon. John E. Russell will be the Democratic candidate for governor this fall. Hon. Howes Norris, Attorney General Pillsbury's chief of staff in the gubernatorial campaign, expressed the opinion that Mr. Russell was the most dangerous antagonist the Republicans could meet, and that he was the only man who could divide the Republican farmer vote with Mr. Pillsbury.

The attorney general has made himself popular with the farming community because of his efforts to enforce the laws to regulate the sale of oleomargerine; but Mr. Russell has been secretary of the board of agriculture, and he can talk more eloquently and more influentially to the farmers on agricultural matters, and therefore upon political questions, than any other man in the state. Beside this, Mr. Russell is a fighter who would make things lively.

LOOKS BAD FOR DR. LEE.

Charge of Murder In the Second Degree In the Schloss Case.

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 24.—Dr. J. Edward Lee, charged with murder in the first degree for having caused the death of Maggie Schloss by criminal malpractice, and William Cash, charged with aiding and abetting the same, were both brought before Judge Cavle in the city court yesterday. Their cases were continued until Sept. 2, Dr. Lee under $10,000 bonds. Both were remanded to jail in default of bail. Cash has dismissed his attorney, and this is known as an indication that he has turned state's evidence and is being held merely as a witness. Dr. Lee has sent for his father, James Lee of Listowel, Ont. The prosecuting attorney has changed the charge against Lee from murder in the first degree to murder in the second degree.

Its Thirty-second Annual.

WORCESTER, Mass., Aug. 24.—The 32d annual reunion of the Twenty-first Massachusetts regiment was held in this city. Nearly 200 veterans were present. It was voted to hold the next reunion in the city of Fitchburg. The organization of the association for the coming year was perfected by the choice of John Collis of Portsmouth, N. H., as president, General George P. Hawkes of Templeton as secretary, L. E. Stewart of Royalston, treasurer, and Rev. George S. Ball of Upton, chaplain.

Gunning For a Burglar.

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 24.—A burglar broke into the house of Dwight Baldwin, in Ward street, and stole a gold watch, jewelry and a purse containing a large sum of money. Mrs. Baldwin heard him and began screaming at the top of her voice. About 20 men hunted for the burglar with guns, but he escaped.

Death Will Result.

CONCORD, N. H., Aug. 24.—Daniel Bussey, a lineman of the New England Telephone company, while at work on a pole in front of the opera house, received a shock from the trolley wire of the electric railroad of a 500-volt capacity. After he was free Bussey fell to the pavement below, receiving a fatal injury.

THE ABINGTON RIOT.

Railroad Men Found to Have Started the Trouble.

TRIAL IS QUICKLY ENDED.

Defendants Sentenced to One Month's Imprisonment.

ABINGTON, Mass., Aug. 24.—One of the most interesting trials in the history of Plymouth county occurred here yesterday. Division Superintendent John C. Sanborn, Detective Christopher B. Bailey and Roadmaster Bryant of the Old Colony division of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company were placed on trial as an outcome of the arrests made at the riot at North Abington last week Wednesday.

Judge Bouve of Hingham was on the bench, the regular occupant, Judge Kelley of Rockland, being a director in the electric road company, which was interested in the war, not being available. The New York, New Haven and Hartford officials were represented by Charles F. Choate, jr., counsel of the road. In order to enable the witnesses, court officers and reporters to get in, the sheriff had to clear the courtroom, but it was immediately filled again. William Coughlan, counsel for the town, looked after its interests.

The Charge

under which the men were arraigned was as follows:

John C. Sanborn, Chris T. Bailey and Emery H. Bryant, together with diverse and other evil-disposed persons, to the number of 12 or more, whose names to the complainant are not known, on the 16th day of August, in said Abington, unlawfully and riotously did assemble and gather together to the disturbance of the public peace, and being so then and there assembled together, then and there unlawfully, riotously, did make an assault upon one John F. Hollis, and did beat, wound and otherwise ill-treat the said Hollis.

Before pleading Mr. Choate asked to be heard upon a continuance. Counsel Coughlan put in a vigorous protest, and the result was that Judge Bouve ordered the case to proceed. Mr. Choate took up the charge and cited law cases to prove that it was illegal, claiming that it did not plainly set forth the crime for which the men were to be tried. Counsel Coughlan showed that Mr. Choate knew that he was counsel for the town, as he had talked with him about the cases last week. After Judge Bouve had ordered the case to proceed, Counsel Choate asked for a dismissal of the case, on the ground that the warrant was illegally drawn. The judge decided it drawn in a proper manner.

The Testimony.

Sheriff Cushman was the first witness and told his story of the day's proceedings substantially the same as has been published. Road Commissioner Wright's testimony showed that the railroad men made the first move. Mr. Brady of the road brought his men over and he talked with them and told him to go back with his men to their legal position on the railroad tracks. Then Superintendent Sanborn came, and witness informed him that the feeling was running high, and should his men attempt to take up the electric road track there would be trouble, and if people were hurt the crime would be on his head. Sanborn replied, "I will look out for that, young man."

Then the witness was kicked, and upon looking around the fight was in progress. Neither witness nor any of the electric road or roadmen of the town had made any move to do work upon the crossing and had no men there to do the work. The move was made by the railroad men under Superintendent Sanborn's orders, and Mr. Sanborn also took part in the work and battle.

President E. P. Reed of the electric road told of his talk with Detective Bailey and Roadmaster Bryant on the morning of the day of the trouble, and how he and Judge Kelley, after a meeting of the board of directors of the electric company, on Roadmaster Bryant, informing him that the electric road would lay its tracks across those of the Consolidated, but would do no damage to the tracks of the latter. Mr. Bryant stated that the matter could be fixed up without much trouble, and asked the electric road people to wait for the 9:20 train, when Superintendent Sanborn and Manager Allen were expected.

Served a Notice

Officer Hollis' testimony was corroborative of the previous witnesses in regard to the riot, but he created a sensation when he said that during the forenoon Superintendent Sanborn sent for him and tried to induce him to leave the employ of the town as a policeman and enter the employ of the Consolidated. He already being an officer of the railroad police, the offer was refused. Officer Hollis was one of the most severely hurt in the fight.

Officer Russell's Testimony.

Officer Hervey B. Russell testified that he did not know who struck him first, but he knew that one of the men taken off his back after he was down was Detective Bailey. The town officers did nothing to create a riot. Roadmaster Bryant was one of the men who was a leader in the riot, and took part in the fighting. He said he was armed with a billy and a revolver, and had carried them since and before. The first move was made by Mr. Brady of the Consolidated, and the orders were given afterward by Sanborn and Bryant.

Russell said that he used his revolver, the first time firing into the air, but the last time firing into the crowd. He did not fire to shoot any one in particular, only to hit some one, as he thought his life was in danger from the gang of railroad employes.

The Sentence.

After further evidence the government rested its case. The defense introduced no evidence, and by agreement the case was submitted without argument. Judge Bouve said he should like to transfer the case to the grand jury, but under the recent law giving jurisdiction to the district court, he could not do so consistently with his duty, therefore he felt the jurisdiction belonged to him. He should have to impose sentence. He dwelt upon the case at length, reviewing it carefully. The sentence was one month imprisonment in the house of correction.

A large crowd gathered at the Pine Point House Wednesday evening to listen to an excellent concert by the Jordan, Marsh & Co. band.

There was a small gathering of the members of the Granite City club at their rooms on Wednesday evening; and the prizes were won by John F. Merrill and Fred L. Jones.

Assistant Assessor Albert Keating was a passenger on the Steamship Carroll which left Halifax for Charlottetown in the gale on Monday and about whose safety some anxiety is felt.

Runaways.

Wednesday was quite a day for runaway accidents. It was about 2 o'clock when a colt attached to a gig became frightened in the Square and dashed upon the sidewalk, piercing a shaft through the show window of J. W. Nash. The colt then turned into the street and ran as far as the fountain, where he stopped.

The second runaway was about 3.30 o'clock, when a horse of Swithin Bros., attached to an express wagon in which were several pieces of granite, became frightened in the depot yard and dashed through the Square into Granite street, where he was stopped near the railway bridge.

Obituary.

A Bright Congressman.

The Boston Herald has the following to say of our townsman:

"Mr. William Everett has created surprise among not a few people who have heard or read his speech in Congress in view of what may be termed its unconventional quality. It is so very different from that of the Boston "literary fellow" as they have understood him! They had no idea that William Everett was half so breezy a person as this proves him to be. The fact is that he is a man of a keen sense of humor, and has an open eye for the picturesque. His frankness, too, is at times his most taking quality. Massachusetts has not produced such a kind of scholar as he is for a long time, if ever."

DIED.

BOSTON FIREMAN SAVED

Rescued on the Shadowy Shore of Spirit Land.

His Friends Summoned to His Dying Bedside—All Hope Abandoned—The Doctors Said He Could not Possibly Live—Then Kickapoo Indian Sagwa Cured—Greatest Triumph on Record.

(From the Boston Globe.)

The strong and positive assertions of the great curative value of Kickapoo Indian Sagwa are easily susceptible of proof.

JOHN C. HARRINGTON.

Wonderful cures right here in New England which have been wrought by this famous medicine of the Red Men—Sagwa—attest to its value.

The following testimonial is the unsolicited indorsement and grateful tribute of an old Boston fireman, Mr. John C. Harrington, now living in Brockton, Mass.

Under date of Oct. 27, 1892, he writes:

"A year ago last Christmas I was taken sick with the grip. A complication of troubles followed which developed Dropsy in its worst form, and for months I was obliged to sitin a chair, day and night, never once lying down in bed. During that long period I had the best medical skill obtainable, and seven doctors attended me at different times, but they could do nothing for me. I was tapped thirteen times and they took from me in all seventy-eight gallons of water.

The physicians told my wife that mine was a hopeless case, and told my family to prepare for the worst. My friends and relatives were notified of my condition, that they might take a last farewell.

Among my friends was one who urged me to try Kickapoo Indian Sagwa. I did so and soon after I began taking it there was a marked change for the better; the bloat commenced to leave my bowels and the swelling of my limbs decreased quite rapidly, and in less than a month I was back to my normal size. I have been gaining health and strength ever since.

TODAY I AM A WELL MAN THANKS TO KICKAPOO INDIAN SAGWA.

I think it is the best medicine in existence, and all of my friends think my cure nothing less than a miracle.

I will gladly answer anybody seeking information about this great medicine. J. C. HARRINGTON, 25 Court av., Brockton, Mass."

Kickapoo Indian Sagwa is the grandest remedy of the universe.

The simplicity of its grandeur is the strongest tie that binds it to the confidence of the people.

It is nature's remedy!

Nature provides a cure for every disease of every living creature.

Man in his wisdom can best understand these remedies, and the Indians who have been obliged to depend upon nature alone for their curative helps, best understand nature's remedies.

That is why Kickapoo Indian Sagwa is the safest, the best and the surest Liver, Stomach and Blood Renovator—the best remedy for all seasons—the world has ever known.

Kickapoo Indian Sagwa, made by the Indians from roots, barks and herbs of their own gathering and curing, is obtainable of any druggist at one dollar per bottle; six bottles for five dollars.

Anarchistic Breezes.

The anarchists in New York are having lots of fun just at this time. They are holding nightly meetings in this big town, generally at small halls at the east side immediately adjacent to the beer saloons, so that when the anarchists get dry they can quench their thirst in Milwaukee nectar instead of the in blood of capitalists, policemen and reporters. Emma Goldman who has an 'idea that she was placed on earth to reform it, is one of the most savage talkers of all the anarchistic horde, though they all have tongues that are hung in the middle.

At Monday night's meeting Miss Goldman made harangues in two languages and denounced presidents and kings, police and Pinkertons, reporters and their capitalistic employers. She referred to the fate of Alexander the Second of Russia and entreated her hearers to take sticks and stones and show the hard hearted American public what they could do. The police were referred to as the ghouls most to be dreaded after nightfall, and the public press came in for a scorching as the natural enemy of all unemployed people in the country.—Brockton Enterprise.

Order of the Solid Rock.

The certificate holders of the order of the Solid Rock will receive 70 per cent. of the amount that they paid into the relief and reserve funds.

About 700 have proved their claims and are entitled to share in the distribution of assets.

Receiver Morton appeared Tuesday before Judge Barker in the Supreme Court and presented his last account, in which he asks for an order of final distribution.

The Court issued an order of notice for those who desire to oppose the account to appear in court Sept. 12, otherwise the account will be allowed.

The Universal Opinion.

The Ottawa Journal says, The verdict of the people who attended Walter L. Main's circus yesterday afternoon and evening, pronounces it to be one of the best ring shows ever given by any new aspirant for favors in the saw-dust arena. The crowd both afternoon and evening was very large, the applause frequent and loud. The group of performing elephants was good. The trained dog "Shepherd," was simply a marvel. The Fisher brothers have no superiors as gymnastic artists.

The performing horse introduced by Mr Jos. Berries elicited marked applause. Other features worthy of personal mention were the riding of Chas. Fish, the acrobatic feats of the Reno brothers and Walton, and the two-horse act by Cousins were productions of high character. Walter L. Main's circus is deserving of patronage on its merits.

The Herald says the money market is appreciably easier, and the cause is obvious. Boston has just received $500,000 in gold from abroad. That helps through the addition to the available money and through sentimental effect. A greater help comes from the increase in the supply of currency and slackened demand. One bank would only bid two-fifths of 1 per cent. premium on Wednesday. The commoner quotation was 1 to 1½ per cent. It looks for the moment as if the premium might soon disappear altogether.

THE WILSON BILL.

Estimated Majority of Seventy-Five In Favor of Its Passage.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—At a meeting of the executive committee of silver men in the house the final figures were presented to the roll of the members upon the questions contained in the bill now pending. One of the members stated that if the friends of free coinage could concentrate their whole strength upon any one of the ratios the majority against it would be 38.

But as this is concededly impracticable, there being some who will vote in favor of retaining the present ratio of 16 to 1, who will not support a change to 20 to 1 and some who will oppose 16 to 1. The majority against either one will be upwards of 50. When it comes to the naked question of repeal or no repeal, as presented in the Wilson bill, the member stated, the majority in favor of its passage would be at least 75.

Presidential Appointments.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—The president sent to the senate the following nominations: Joshua E. Dodge of Wisconsin, to be assistant attorney general, vice William A. Maury, resigned; G. M. Brumby of Louisiana, register of the land office at New Orleans; C. P. Johnston of Louisiana, receiver of public moneys at New Orleans; William D. O'Toole of Washington, register of the land office at Seattle; I. J. Wooten of Delaware, agent for the Indians of the Nevada agency in Nevada. Also a number of recess appointments, including the collector of customs at New Orleans and half a dozen postmasters.

Eight Officious Whippers.

COLUMBUS, Ind., Aug. 24.—Twelve miles back on the hills, near Waymansville, eight men with faces blackened went to the residence of Andry Schruder and covered him with revolvers, then whipped him with hickory switches while others whipped his wife in a horrible manner. Schruder and wife are respectable, but their domestic relations are not very pleasant.

Bissell Will Try to Be There.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—The postmaster general has been invited to attend the fourth annual convention of the National Association of Letter Carriers, to be held at Kansas City Sept. 19 to 22. Mr. Bissell will accept if his official duties will permit, and if not will be represented there.

IN DAYS OF YORE.

Bits of Local History Possibly Overlooked.

QUINCY'S PUBLIC HOUSES.

Interesting Facts and Anecdotes Connected With Them.

The first public house in Quincy, that we have any record, dates back to 1639. Martin Saunders appears to be the gentleman to have the honor of being the landlord of Quincy's first public house. History fails to tell us where this inn was situated, and as to its career and end, history is equally as dumb.

Near to the place where the Old Plymouth road joins Franklin street was the place selected by Mr. Penniman to build a public house. This was in 1675, thirty-six years after Martin Saunders had opened his hospitable doors. The ruins of this inn are said to be still in existence near the residence of Henry Hardwick on Franklin street.

There is some dispute as to the location of the Crosby House, which was established by Thomas Crosby about 1739. Some claim that it stood where the house of the late Lemuel Brackett on Hancock street now stands. This authority claims that a stone post in front of Mr. Brackett's home designates the place where it stood, and though I have walked down Hancock street to discover some trace of this post, I have found none along the side of the street with the exception of a few stone hitching posts which do not differ from the ordinary ones.

Mr. Whitney in his history of Quincy says that it was situated on Adams street, near the estate owned by one Peter Boylston Adams, which place is now occupid by Mr. William B. Rice.

Mr. Crosby had some difficulty in procuring a license, for Boston at that time was striken with the smallpox and Mr. Crosby being afraid that he would succumb to the disease if he undertook to appear before the General Court in Boston, in order to procure a license, remained at home and did not receive his license until the epidemic had abated.

It was in this house that Daniel Allen, the famous Indian soldier, died. Allen was an Indian in the service of the government at Fort George. He was discharged on account of infirmities contracted in the service, and started to join his friends at Cape Cod. While passing through Quincy his infirmities increased so that he was unable to proceed to his destination, and he was obliged to stop at the Crosby House. The government hearing of their faithful servant's condition instructed Mr. Crosby to make the Indian comfortable. After an illness of ten weeks this noble red man breathed his last and was buried at the government's expense.

Another public house was opened on Hancock street near the present residence of Col. A. B. Packard, shortly after the Revolutionary War. It was first opened and conducted by a Mr. Cleverly and he was succeeded in 1794 by a Mr. Marsh. Shortly afterwards he was succeeded by a Mr. Arnold who conducted the establishment till 1802. It was then removed, but in the following year another one was opened on the site of the present residence of Mr. Packard and was conducted by Mr. John Newcomb.

History tells us that "It was at this public house that Josiah Bemis, George Stearns, and Michael Wild, the three worthy knights of the Iron Wedges resorted to in 1803 to enjoy their convivial repast on that memorable Sabbath after having achieved the remarkable success of splitting for the first time, a large stone with iron wedges. At that time this was considered a great and important event in establishing a system that would enable them more readily and expeditiously to work stone for building and other purposes.

The Neponset Hotel was opened at Atlantic in 1812, and was situated on the easterly side of Hancock street about 250 feet north of Atlantic street. It was opened with a great dinner at which ex-President John Adams was present. The first landlord was Abraham Pierce of Roxbury, and the last one was Mr. Labian Adams, the father of "Oliver Optic." It was here that the famous Jockey Club of Boston met continually from 1812 to 1815. In 1828 the officers and crew of the famous battleship "Constitution" took the entire control of the house, and the proprietor, for that matter, for a space of three days.

In 1830 Noah Davis secured the premises and started a candle manufactory there. Mr. Joshua Cushing of Scituate purchased it from Mr. Davis in 1836 and utilized it as a shoe manufactory and a dwelling house. Its eventful career was ended on the 27th of August, 1858, when it fell a prey to the incendiary's torch.

The "Hen" Tavern was situated on the westerly side of Washington street where now stands the residence of our well known citizen John R. Graham. An interesting anecdote is told concerning the manner in which the tavern received its name.

The proprietor, who was a true blue American, ordered a sign for his house on which was to be painted a large American eagle. When the sign arrived from the artist, it was discovered that the artist was not skilled in ornithology for in place of an eagle he had painted a large fat hen. This house was kept by Joseph Baxter and was a great place of rendezvous for the gunning fraternity. It was discontinued about 65 years ago.

James Brackett erected a large and fashionable hotel at the corner of Hancock and Elm streets. This place was patronized by the wealthy classes and was well known all over the state for its luxurious accommodations. In 1836 it was purchased by Mr. Francis Williams, and later came into the possession of his son, our well known citizen, Mr. John S. Williams and is now occupied by Col. Wm. B. White.

Another famous place was the "Ben Faxon" House which was situated near the present site of Plummer's Block on Hancock street. On the 24th of May, 1843, it was swept away by a conflagration which destroyed two dwelling houses, two shops and one stable.

The famous Hancock House was built early in the century and was first kept by Col. Thayer, followed by Capt. Young, Deacon Savil and Daniel French. A new place was built in 1837, at a cost of $5,000. It was kept by Daniel French and he was succeeded by his son George H. French. It's proprietors since then were George H. Bundy, April, 1855, till November 1856; Albert Webb, November, 1856, till February, 1861; W. P. F. Meserve, February, 1861, till November, 1865; J. F. Willey, November, 1865, till October, 1870; Samuel T. Allen, October, 1870, till July, 1873, when it was bought by Henry H. Faxon. It was at this house that Daniel Webster always stopped while on his way to and from his home in Marshfield.

The Central House was first opened in a small dwelling house at the corner of Granite and Hancock streets. It was destroyed by fire in August, 1875, and the next year a brick block was erected on the spot. In this building William P. F. Meserve opened a hotel which he called the Robertson House, in honor of the owner of the building. It has passed through various hands till it was discontinued about a year ago. Since then it has been thoroughly repaired and will soon be opened and known as the Greenleaf House.

DEMOCRACY OF IOWA

Say That McKinley and Sherman Bills Must Go.

BOIES IS AGAIN NOMINATED

Chairman Vollmer Has Hot Shot For Republicans.

DES MOINES, Aug. 24.—The Democratic state convention was called to order by Chairman Fullen of the state central committee. After the reading of the call of the convention, Rev. Howard A. Johnson of the Presbyterian church offered prayer. Chairman Fullen introduced temporary Chairman Vollmer of Davenport, who said:

"We have met at a critical time. Our country and our party have alike reached a crisis in their affairs. From all parts of the land comes the wail of financial distress. The whirling wheels and ringing hammers of industry no longer join in the glad music of prosperity. A spirit of dread and anxiety floats like a threatening cloud over all the marts of trade, and the ban of witchcraft seems to have palsied the arm of public works.

"The Republican Serpent."

"Waving fields and bursting granaries attest the kindness of Providence, but condemn the weakness and folly of man, whose governmental policy compels thousands to want in the presence of untold riches, since the absence of a medium of exchange prevents the willing, all-supplying tiller of the soil from bringing to the mouth of the consumer the superabundance of food which he has again received from nature's horn of plenty.

"Meanwhile the army of the discontented unemployed swarms over the land. Meanwhile up and down the highways in their midst the Republican Pharisee, with the assurance of inbred hypocrisy, pointing his finger at us and our party as the authors of this widespread misery. It is high time that we repudiate this foul slander and stamp the life out of this crawling serpent of Republican deception. We live, it is true, under a Democratic administration, both state and national; but both in state and in nation we are cursed by Republican laws.

Poisonous Protection.

"Let us not forget, nor permit the people to forget, that we still have that 'blessed McKinley bill'—that latest but most developed offshoot of the poisonous plant protection. Let us not forget, nor permit congress to forget, the unanswerable thesis of sound political economy that our industries can never get on a healthy, natural basis until this obnoxious weed is destroyed, root and branch.

"Panics are the necessary outgrowth and never failing accompaniments of this artificial system, which stimulates growth abnormally in certain directions, while it prevents expansion in others and finally compels the pampered favorites to choke in their own slime in the ever recurring spasms of over-production. Both the McKinley and Sherman bills have got to go, and the people will sustain us in the good work."

Mr. Vollmer's speech was frequently applauded. At its conclusion the convention began the selection of members of the regular committees.

Governor Boies was nominated by acclamation. Bestow was nominated for lieutenant governor on the first ballot. The governor said that his letter declining to run a third time was sincere, but he was willing to subordinate his wishes to the wishes of the Democratic party.

Further Evidence of the Awful Storm Off Nova Scotia's Coast.

HALIFAX, Aug. 24.—J. C. Potts of Porter Lake arrived here from the scene of the wreck of the tug Dorcas and the barge Etta Stewart, with the story of the disaster. The wreckage was first discovered on the shore at Porter Lake. The seas were running mountains high, and the two vessels were fast breaking up. The body of Captain Ferguson of the tug Dorcas was found. Both his temples were smashed in and his body badly bruised.

Six or seven bodies were seen floating in the surf under the bluffs at Half island. The bodies of Mrs. Hennis and her daughter were recovered early yesterday. Her husband was engineer of the tug and he was lost with the others. The Hennis family had been at Sydney visiting relatives and were returning home.

There are grave fears entertained here for the safety of the schooner Walleda. She left here Sunday in ballast, bound to Pictou to load.

PARRSBORO, N. S., Aug. 24.—The steamer William M. Weatherspoon picked up the wreck of the schooner Enterprise in the basin and towed her into Partridge island pier. The body of a young man was found in the cabin. The vessel was seen off Partridge island on Monday night with two men and two women on board.

RETURNING GOLD

Has Contributed Largely Toward Restoring Financial Confidence.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—Viewed from a treasury standpoint, the general financial situation of the country shows improvement, slight perhaps, but, it is believed, permanent. Bank failures have almost ceased, banks that have suspended under the financial stringency are resuming business, gold which poured out of the country is returning, and a general feeling of confidence is being restored.

This changed condition was felt last week and has day by day increased. Money is still scarce, but not so much so as it was. During the time that gold was being shipped to Europe the United States sustained a net loss of $63,000,000. This gold is now coming back, and it is estimated that already $25,000,000 has returned. This specie has found its way into the interior of the United States, much of it now figures in the bank balances, but much of it was absorbed by American securities. To this is attributed to some extent the improvement in the general stock market.

Government revenues continue light which shows that less money than usual is being sent abroad for foreign goods, which is also considered in the circumstances a good sign.

A SPECIAL MESSAGE

On the Hawaiian Question Likely to Be Sent to Congress.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—Secretary Gresham and Minister Blount had another long conference over Hawaiian affairs yesterday morning at the state department. They entered into a practical discussion of Mr. Blount's several reports, Secretary Gresham asking fuller explanation of the various topics treated and Mr. Blount giving his views in a manner plainer than he was allowed by his instructions to assume in the preparation of his official documents. It is learned that Mr. Blount was told by the secretary, or that the two agreed, that there was no necessity for the minister to go to Gray Gables for consultation with the president. The situation will be considered by Mr. Gresham and Mr. Blount until the return of the president.

From the speedy manner with which the question was taken up after the return of Mr. Blount it is believed that the president will send to congress a special message giving his views on the subject on the relations this country should bear to Hawaii before the present session comes to an end. It is said that the administration has come to no conclusion in regard to the policy it will recommend.

CAB DRIVERS STRUCK.

It Leads to a General Riot In the Streets of Naples.

NAPLES, Aug. 24.—The cab drivers of this city went on a strike yesterday and tried to induce the drivers of other vehicles to join them. In their efforts to stop the running of trains and omnibuses they set fire to a kiosk and five cars near La Touretta. In the Piazza Depretis the strikers met and attacked a body of police. Five strikers and four policemen were injured in the fight. On account of the rioting many shops were closed and the train and omnibus service was suspended. A detachment of cavalry now guards the company's yards.

Political Murders In Mexico.

EAGLE PASS, Tex., Aug. 24.—A conflict occurred near Abasalo between 250 Cardinistas and a party of Galan men, resulting in the route of the latter party and the killing of four of their number. President Diaz has issued imperative orders for both political parties to disperse and return to their homes. He guarantees a fair election and protection in all their constitutional rights to further this object.

Railway Leaders to Combine.

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—It is rumored that President A. A. McLeod of the New York and New England Railroad company is about to form some sort of an alliance with Russell Sage. From an authentic source it is learned that such an alliance is probable.

Dan Lamont Leaves Washington.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—Secretary Lamont has left the city and will not be back before the middle of next week. It is probable that he will make a visit to Buzzard's Bay, Mass., for the purpose of conferring with the president.

WIRES BLOWN DOWN

Much Destruction Wrought by the Easterly Gale.

MUCH DAMAGE TO SHIPPING

Many Reports of Loss of Life by Drowning.

BOSTON, Aug. 25.—The rattling north easter which struck Boston yesterday paid its respects to the City Point district in a manner more forcible than elegant. All day long and late into last evening the wind blew a regular hurricane, changing to all points of the compass. The storm began in the northeast, the wind blowing at the rate of about 30 miles an hour. The wind then shifted around several points, finally coming from the southwest, from which quarter it blew still harder and steadily.

On Castle island last night a scene of wild desolation met the view of the few who dared the wind and rain in paying a visit to the fort. Around on every side fallen tents and scattered boxes, wood, chairs and other articles used by the proprietors of the 30 or more booths gave evidence of the violence of the storm. Only about three tents of the entire number are left standing. In many instances the contents were badly injured.

The yachts in the bay were remarkably fortunate and no great damage was done. The Hagar and Wahneta of the Commonwealth club dragged their anchors badly, but were secured before getting adrift. Captain Howard Stickney made up a crew for the purpose of saving any yacht that might get adrift. The men did considerable good work during the day. Late in the afternoon the owners of boats moored in the most dangerous places made them doubly secure in case the storm should continue all night.

New Haven's Report.

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 25.—New Haven was visited by the most destructive storm which has been witnessed here in 40 years. Wires are down in all directions and hundreds of trees were blown down. Street cars failed to run for some time. The damage to the harbor is the greatest known in years. The oyster beds have suffered greatly, as they are thought to be completely banked in mud by the action of wind and waves. If the beds are a total loss the money damage will be hundreds of thousands of dollars. The shipping on the harbor was also badly damaged. The sloop Hydros of Boston was driven into the south sea wall and crushed so badly that she sank. At Short beach the launch Ella, owned by Ella Wheeler Wilcox, the poetess, was sunk in a collision, and a number of small yachts were driven on the beach and destroyed. There were many narrow escapes to human beings, but so far as known no fatalities are reported.

Fishermen Lose Their Lives.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—The fishing schooner Chocura reports that her captain and mate were washed overboard in the storm yesterday. The Chocura was in company with the fishing schooners Empire State and Ella M. Johnson off the Squanon, on the Jersey coast. The storm broke over them about midnight. At 1 o'clock the Johnson disappeared. The men on the Chocura think that she foundered, carrying down with her the crew of ten men and her captain. The men saw the tops of the Empire State's masts projecting about three feet above the water, a few miles above the Squanon. The Empire State had eight dories on board, but the sailors say they could not live in such a sea. Sailor Kelly said that Captain Ericson and the crew of the Empire State were undoubtedly lost.

New London's Share.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Aug. 25.—The velocity of the wind was considerably over 50 miles an hour. The sloop yacht Kulia, which broke from her anchorage, dashed against Shaw's bridge, breaking a hole in her side, and sank immediately. Those on board escaped. The New York Yacht club's clubhouse was carried away. The big wharf at Ocean Beach went out and considerable other damage was done at this point. At Niantic the schooner James Bayley, New York for Providence, drove ashore, and it is thought will prove a total loss. She was coal laden. Her crew came ashore in safety.

How Hartford Fared.

HARTFORD, Aug. 25.—No telegraph or telephone wires are working between here and New Haven or Springfield. Trains from New York are delayed. It is reported that a washout at Mt. Vernon causes delay. The New York and New Haven railroad is also interrupted and its wires fail to work. On the Berlin branch of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad a large tree fell on a passenger train as it passed. No one was hurt, but the engine was wrecked. It is feared that the peach crop about here, as well as other fruits, is badly damaged.

Sad Story From Halifax.

HALIFAX, Aug. 25.—There is no longer any doubt that fully 25 persons perished in the wreck of the steamer Dorcas and the barge Etta Stewart. Twenty bodies have been recovered.

The schooner Invermay, Captain Stoddart, is reported at Channel, N. F., with loss of all sails.

The schooner Dorold Borden, coal laden, from Sydney, N. S., for Bay of Fundy, capsized off Wolfville, and it is feared that all hands were lost.

Small Craft Suffered.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Aug. 25.—The gale here was very heavy, accompanied by rain. The force of the wind was from 23 to 40 miles an hour. Trees suffered considerably and fruit was blown off. Travel across the New Bedford and Fairhaven bridge was uncomfortable on account of the water blowing over it. Numerous small craft met with minor casualties in the way of spars and rigging, while many others had to be towed to safety.

Much Damage at Long Branch.

LONG BRANCH, Aug. 25.—The fierce northeast storm caused considerable damage at this place, and it will be some time before the branch entirely recovers from the effects of the storm, which was the severest experienced at this place for years. Fortunately there was no loss of life. It is impossible to foot up the loss caused by the great storm as yet, but it will prove one of the severest ever experienced along the coast.

At Ocean Grove.

OCEAN GROVE, N. J., Aug. 25.—The storm here was one of the severest that has ever visited this neighborhood. The boardwalk is demolished at several places and the pavilions are partially ruined. Lillagore's pavilion, at the far end of Ocean avenue, is a complete wreck. All of Mr. Lillagore's fixtures are completely wrecked.

Big Hotel Unroofed.

BALMAR, N. J., Aug. 25.—The storm did considerable damage here. The entire roof of the big Columbia hotel was carried away and the timbers crashed through the floors below. None of the 200 guests were hurt. Much damage was done to the beach. The board walk was ruined and many bathing houses demolished.

Wind Forty-Eight Miles an Hour.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Aug. 25.—The southeast storm in this vicinity was very severe, the rain falling in sheets and the wind averaging 48 miles an hour for three hours. No serious damage is reported. There is a very heavy sea on in Mount Hope bay, and several small sailboats have been blown ashore.

Eighteen Lives Lost.

SOUTHAMPTON, L. I., Aug. 25.—Two vessels, a coal barge and a towing vessel, were wrecked off the coast at this point. Up to the present six men from the wrecked vessels, three of whom were beyond resuscitation, have been washed ashore out of a total crew of 21 men on both vessels.

Lumber Schooner Wrecked.

ROCKPORT, Mass., Aug. 25.—Schooner Lottie B., 87 tons, lumber laden, from St. John, N. B., for Boston, struck on the Londoner and then drifted upon Thatcher's island. The captain and crew of four men were saved. The vessel will be a total loss.

Crops Damaged.

TUCKERTON, N. J., Aug. 25.—A heavy storm broke over this section and did much damage to fruits and crops generally. Several washouts on the Long Branch railroad necessitated the suspension of travel.

Boston Schooner Ashore.

BEVERLY, Mass., Aug. 25.—The sand schooner A. Baker of Boston, went ashore here and is pounding on the rocks. The schooner discharged her cargo yesterday. The schooner was going to Ipswich to load for Malden.

Fruit Ruined.

MILFORD, Mass., Aug. 25.—Very great damage was done by the storm throughout this section of the state. Early apples, pears, peaches and plums were blown from the trees, and many trees were ruined.

A Missing Steamer.

LAUREL, Del., Aug. 25.—It is reported that the steamer Chesapeake, which left Seaford for Baltimore, with passengers and freight, sank in the bay during the storm.

Crew Saved.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Aug. 25.—Fishing schooner Farragut, 48 tons, owned by John F. Wonson & Co., is a total loss at Shag Harbor, N. S. The crew was saved.

PROTECTION THEIR IDOL.

Proposed Tariff Changes Held Accountable For Hard Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 25.—A meeting of the board of directors of the Manufacturers' club was held here, at which there was a good attendance of the members, who take more than usual interest in public affairs. A resolution was proposed by William Wood, and seconded by George W. Elkins, to the effect that the chief thing needed to restore public confidence at this time and to set the wheels of industry in motion in every direction in a profitable way, was the Wilson bill, repealing the silver purchasing clause of the Sherman act of 1890. The proposition was vigorously sustained by its author; but it received only three affimative votes—Thomas Dolan and the two gentlemen above named—while 14 were recorded against it.

Immediately another set of resolutions, which in effect stated that no improvement of existing conditions can be reasonably looked for unless there shall be an authoritative declaration that the protective tariff system will not be violently assailed, were presented and, after some discussion, were adopted by a large majority, there being in fact but three negative votes cast, these being cast by the gentlemen who sustained the first resolution, which was so overwhelmingly rejected.

Senate Confirmations.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25.—The senate, in executive session, confirmed the following nominations: George W. Caruth of Arkansas, minister to Portugal; Stephen Bonsell, secretary of the United States legation to China; George B. Anderson of the District of Columbia, secretary of United States legation at Rio Janeiro; N. T. N. Robinson of Louisiana, assistant solicitor of the treasury; William C. Renfrew, governor of Oklahoma; James Sheakley, governor of Alaska; Charles M. Bruce, secretary of Arizona; Charles C. Richards, secretary of Utah; Henry C. Lett, member of the board of registration of Utah; George W. Snow, surveyor general of Utah; Charles B. Howry of Mississippi, assistant attorney general; Holmes Conrad of Virginia, assistant attorney general; Jefferson A. Huff, judge of probate in the county of Grand, Utah; United States attorney, Charles E. Gorman, district of Rhode Island; Sherman Hoar, district of Massachusetts.

Passengers Were Lucky.

ALBANY, Aug. 25.—A Deleware and Hudson passenger train was wrecked near Altamont last night. The cause was the spreading of the rails, which threw the engine from the track followed by the baggage, drawing room and three passenger coaches. Beyond a few bruises the passengers escaped injury.

CHICAGO'S BIG FIRE

Creates a Panic Almost Equal to That of 1871.

FIVE BLOCKS DESTROYED.

Burned-Out Families Provided For by Neighbors.

CHICAGO, Aug. 25.—A fire, which in the extent of territory it covered almost rivaled Chicago's historic conflagration, began in that part of the city known as South Chicago about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. From a three-story brick building at the corner of Ninety-first street and Superior avenue the flames ate their way over block after block of small frame residences until they reached the lake.

Within two hours the fire had consumed at least 30 buildings and five blocks of the greatest industrial suburb of Chicago. The 50,000 residents of the town were precipitated into a panic, second only in this city to that which characterized the fire of 1871.

The Fire's Rapid Progress.

Before the few fire engines of the district could make the slightest impression upon the flames, house after house fell before the sweep of the fire. The Central fire alarm office sent to the fire every engine that could be spared in the south side of the city. Before the fireboat Yosemite reached the harbor at Chicago the fire had eaten away the five blocks between Superior avenue and the lake, and the Yosemite turned its attention to the immense lumber yards on the river front.

It spread with rapidity. The crash and panic at one time choked up the streets. No lives, as far as known, were lost. Four men were more or less injured by the heat and smoke.

Very shortly after the fire attacked 12 Buffalo avenue, the store of M. Johnson, there was a violent explosion of 20-gallon cans of gasoline. The proprietor, Johnson, was severely burned about the face.

Hundreds of people, deprived of home comforts with scarcely a warning, gathered along the street. But they were not to be homeless for the citizens of South Chicago came to their assistance. The word was passed down the line that the houses of those who were not losers by the fire, were, without exception, open to any and all who had been driven out on the streets.

A Thriving Suburb.

South Chicago is almost entirely a manufacturing suburb and is situated at the mouth of the Calumet river, about 13 miles from the city hall. The principal establishment in the place is the Illinois Steel company, which employs at the present time about 6000 men. The river front and lake shore are occupied for a long distance by immense lumber and coal yards and shipping docks. It has a population of about 50,000 people.

Most of the buildings destroyed were light frame affairs and were occupied almost exclusively by the workmen of the Illinois Steel company.

The loss to the residence district is estimated at $400,000. The Sunday Creek company has lost fully $250,000, and the Beck Lumber company $200,000. The Sunday Creek company is a large coal establishment well known in this vicinity.

TO BE SENT BACK.

Many of the British Prince's Passengers Found to Be Paupers.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 25.—A more disgruntled lot of want-to-be citizens of the United States was never inspected than the 400 or 500 immigrants on board the British Prince that were examined by the commissioners of immigration. The examination was very strict. Passengers who claimed to have £10 ($50) were made to produce, and if not forthcoming and the other points being against them, they were set aside until such time as their case could be examined into.

The examination, while always strict and thorough at the port, went more into the vitals this time by reason of the fact of the constant demand being made on the commissioners by immigrants to be sent back across the water by reason of not being able to obtain work.

As a result of the inspection, 27 people were detained pending an investigation of the statements made by them. Eight of the 27 are entirely destitute, and at present it looks as though they must be retained, as the adoption of this country as their home would only result in their being a charge on the public bounty.

A Bad Give-Away.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—A lot of Hebrews were enjoying a free meal in a restaurant on Canal street. Some one walked in and reported that a bank on Canal street had gone up. There was a chorus of groans from the so-called starving men, a sudden clutching of inside vest pockets, and a score of them who were being fed rushed out of the restaurant with bankbooks in their hands, leaving their meals unfinished.

Milwaukee's Mystery.

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 25.—Two bodies are at the morgue, one of a woman about 30 years of age and the other of a little girl of 6 years, each with a huge stone tied to their waists. The bodies were found in the river. It is probably a case of murder.

Not Wanted.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—Of the steerage passengers who arrived on the steamer Zandam from Amsterdam all but 10 were detained for further examination on the ground that they were likely to become public charges.

For a Six-Rounder.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—Billy Madden, backer and manager of Tom Ryan, has arranged that the latter and Billy Smith shall meet at the Madison Square Garden on Tuesday evening next in a six-round bout.

Murderer Captured.

BUFFALO, Aug. 25.—The man who murdered Detective Harvey of Syracuse on July 31 last was captured here. He gave his name as George Calhoun.

Owing to the death of his mother Chief Engineer Ripley is off duty for a few days and Engineer Packard has been appointed acting Chief by Mayor Fairbanks. The funeral will take place Sunday. instead of today as announced yesterday.

A gentleman who is well known in yachting circles and prominently connected with the Squantum Yacht Club, has suddenly departed from Wollaston Park, where he has lived, for parts unknown. The reason given for his hasty departure is, that owing to the present stringency of the money market, he is unable to meet his obligations.

Handsome Wagon.

One of the most attractive delivery wagons in this city is that of the W. H. Doble Co., which will be turned out by Tirrell & Sons this week.

The wagon is painted entirely white, with gold letters. On the lower panel is the firm name in black letters and on the second panel the words choice butter a specialty in gold scrip letters. On the sides of the top besides the lettering are two Maine views, one side representing a life boat going to the rescue and on the other the same boat returning with the shipwrecked crew. The running part is also white with a fine brown stripe. The whole effect is very handsome and when it makes its appearance on the street it cannot fail to attract much attention.

The Circus.

The parade of Main's circus this morning was a disappointment to many who gathered in the square to see it pass as they expected to see a few teams, but instead of that the circus people gave the best parade ever seen in our streets. There were many chariots, animals, music and riders; and, if anything can be judged by the parade the entertainment will be a good one.

MANET BEACH.

There were many members of the shooting fraternity along the beach yesterday but they were unsuccessful. Why? Well, because "Jim" Maxim, Quincy's Nimrod was on the ground before them and carried the gun presented to him by the Thirteen Club.

It is said that some more of the people who deliver the lacteal beverage to the cottagers and storekeepers will soon be up before the court on the charge of selling poor milk.

Capt. Charles Hunt took a large party out in his steam yacht "Get" this morning.

Houghs Neck must be famous as a watering place to people in all parts of the country. There have been people here this season from Virginia, Colorado, New Mexico and other places, while last year many foreign consuls graced the place with their presence.

William L. Carty has as guests at his cottage, the Orrietta, this week, Miss Ryan, Mrs. T. J. White of South Boston, Mrs. Sanborn of Somerville, Miss Lily Carty and Miss Mabel Pitts of Jamaica Plains. Other guests expected are Mr. and Mrs. G. R. White, well known in musical circles. Mr. and Mrs. John T. White and daughter of Weymouth.

It now looks as though the season at this place would not be over till late in the fall, or perhaps till early winter. The owners of cottages say that some of their cottages are already hired for the month of September, so that illumination night instead of ending the old season may mark the beginning of a new one.

One of the residents of the beach in talking with the LEDGER reporter about the subject said: "No doubt there are many people who would stop at the beach till winter if they could only be assured that the electric cars would run until that time. Of course I do not expect the company to run their cars as frequently as they do at present; indeed if the company would run a trip up and down in the morning and another at night, it would induce a great many men whose business is in Boston, to remain here till the snow begins to fly.

"The residents of Houghs Neck have nothing but praise of the manner in which the company served the people here this season.

They have run the cars at frequent intervals, and on special occasions and Sundays they have furnished extra cars. It is the opinion of everyone here that the Quincy and Boston Company is one of the most obliging companies in the state, and I think they might be induced to run a trip morning and night till the residents are gone." This is the opinion of a person who does not belong in Quincy. What will the railroad company do about the matter?

Mr. Charles Frazer of New Mexico is at Ferris'.

Mrs. Ellen Alger, Mr. Sanford Alger, Misses Eliza and Frances Manley and Mr. Clesson Field have been spending a few days at the Leonard cottage on Sea street.

The family of Capt. Brown of Station 13 Boston, will remain at the Milton cottage for another week.

Mr. E. Bowen and family of the Bay View cottage have left for their home in Brockton.

Thursday was a wild and blustery day on the beach. A heavy south east wind filled the bay with whitecaps and many feared a repetition of Monday's storm. Yacht owners patrolled the beach all day keeping a sharp lookout for any boat that might part her moorings. They all rode the gale out safely, however, though one yacht moored in front of the Linden house filled and sank. She suffered no damage however and only requires a bailing out.

Personal Gossip.

REDS TOOK THE LEAD

And Held It Easily Till the End of the Game.

BOSTON, Aug. 25.—In the second, third and fourth innings the Bostons had ample opportunity to defeat the Reds hands down, but they either showed infantile judgment at the bat or fell victims to Dwyer's slow, high balls and pop flys resulting time and and again, when apparently the clever pitcher was in a hole. The Reds scored three runs in the first inning on a base on balls, three hits and a wild throw by Nichols. The champions made only one run in the second inning, when they should have at least tied the game. Nash got his base on balls, went to third on Tucker's hit, and was forced home on Bennett's base on balls. With the bases full Nichols made a foolish bunt to Dwyer, and a double play resulted. Long struck out.

IN CONGRESS.

Populist Senators Ventilate Their Views on the Silver Question.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25.—A rather amusing scene took place in the senate chamber on the question as to whether Mr. Peffer of Kansas or Mr. Stewart of Nevada should have the privilege of addressing the senate. The Kansas senator claimed precedence because he had been the first to give the notice, while the Nevada senator insisted that that had nothing to do with the question and that, as he had been already recognized by the chair, he was entitled to the floor. The vice president took that view of the situation and recognized Mr. Stewart's rights. As the latter then offered to yield to Mr. Peffer, the vice president treated that offer as an abandonment of the floor and immediately recognized Mr. Peffer, who thereupon began a three-hour speech upon the silver question.

He was followed by another Populist senator, Mr. Allen of Nebraska, who spoke for an hour and a half in support of his amendment proposing to add to the Voorhees bill a provision for the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1. At 2 o'clock Mr. Peffer's speech was interrupted to allow the regular business to be presented. That was the motion to lay on the table the motion to reconsider the vote whereby the senate declared Lee Mantle not entitled to a seat as senator from Montana. Notice was given by Mr. Vance that he would call up the question today.

It was a field day in the house. Mr. Pence, the Populist member from Colorado, spoke and strengthened his position as one of the rising men of the house. A quiet, dignified speech by Mr. Dingley was the feature of the day, but his poor delivery detracted materially from the able presentation of his case.

Striking Cabbies Make More Trouble.

ROME, Aug. 25.—The striking cab drivers mobbed several small groups of policemen yesterday. A large force of police dispersed a crowd of strikers after a sharp fight. Some 10 or 12 men and boys were injured. Last evening about 500 men who were in the fight went to the prefecture of police with the dead body of a boy, whom, they said, the policemen had killed in the last charge.

Spain Guarding Against Cholera.

MADRID, Aug. 25.—The Spanish government has decided to quarantine all vessels arriving from Rotterdam and Maasls in the Netherlands, from Antwerp and from Taganrog on the sea of Azov, Russia. This step is taken because the seaports are infested with cholera.

A Fatal Explosion.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—By an explosion in a laundry at 248 East Tenth street nine persons were injured, two of them fatally. The explosion is supposed to have been caused by a too large amount of steam being forced into a machine used for ironing purposes.

Killed on a Crossing.

FRANKLIN, O., Aug. 25.—At a railroad crossing between Lexington and West Alexandria, Mrs. William Hapner and her daughter, aged 17, were struck by a train and instantly killed. A little girl, aged 3, was seriously injured.

Safe Robbers Get $11,000.

HELENA, Mont., Aug. 25.—The Dillon National bank has gone into voluntary liquidation. The officers of the bank say it will pay all claims in full.

Died of Yellow Fever.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Aug. 25.—C. B. Harris, the second victim of yellow fever at Brunswick, died late last night. No new cases are reported.

WEYMOUTH.

Mrs. H. W. Pratt of Milwaukee is the guest of Mrs. W. Tyler Shaw of North Weymouth during the month of August.

The severest storm of the season, and what might easily pass for the annual "liner gale," raged all day Thursday on the Atlantic seaboard, raising havoc with the shipping and yachts and also with the heavily laden fruit trees. The storm appeared off the South Atlantic coast on Wednesday morning, and, increasing in intensity, moved slowly northward. The storm reached its height in this city at about 8.30 A. M., when the wind attained a velocity of forty-six miles an hour from the southeast. Early in the evening the wind hauled to the southwest and the storm broke, but the wind continued with unabated fury.

The Circus.

The Marion Daily Leader, says: The parade was first class, better by far than that of any other circus, with the single exception of Barnum's, that has visited our city for some years.

The performances, both afternoon and evening, were largely attended; in fact, the tents would have held no more than were there, and during the afternoon several hundreds were turned away at the door, the canvas not being large enough to admit them.

The circus is one of the very best now travelling in America. While this circus does not advertise as many or as varied specialties as the great Barnum show, it is no whit behind that monster aggregation in point of excellence or the merits of its performers.

The Walter L. Main's circus is a first-class aggregation and deserves big crowds everywhere.

AN ATTRACTIVE RESIDENCE.

Elegant and Commodious House In Modern Romanesque Style—Cost, $7,500.

[Copyright, 1893, by American Press Association.]

I have the pleasure of showing herewith perspective and floor plans of a very attractive residence designed in the style of modern Romanesque and suitable for erection anywhere. As a suburban residence, surrounded with ample grounds, it is very effective. Its comparative breadth gives it an air of sturdiness and stability, while the delicacy of its details adds a certain refinement that is very satisfactory. It is well constructed and furnished throughout.

PERSPECTIVE VIEW.

On the first floor are eight commodious rooms, including a large reception hall. The entrance is from the side porch into the dining room, or from the front porch through the vestibule into the sitting hall —a beautiful room containing the main stairway—all finished in red oak. An open fireplace, with beautiful tile setting and oak mantel, faces the entrance. The hall is lighted by several stained glass windows located at different heights on the stairway. This main stairway terminates in a large hall above, from which the rooms on the second floor are all easily accessible.

From the hall to the left opens the front parlor, which is connected with the rear parlor by sliding doors. Both of these apartments have open fireplaces, which may be employed in mild weather for keeping the apartments at a comfortable temperature.

To the right of the back parlor is a library, with a passage leading to the rear entrance and also to the kitchen. The dining room is beyond the back parlor and to the left of the kitchen and is fitted with an open fireplace and a large bay window. At the right of the fireplace is a large china closet having a small window opening into the kitchen just over the draining board of the sink. The dining room can be entered from the outside by way of the rear hall and the side porch.

FIRST STORY.

The kitchen is easy of access, but so situated as to effectually shut off all smells from the other rooms on that floor and is fitted with all the modern conveniences. Opening from the kitchen is a commodious pantry, fitted with shelves and provided with a window opening over the entrance to the cellar. Back of the dining room is a small hall, from which a stairway leads to the second floor, landing in the finished attic over, while below it are the stairs leading to the cellar. From this back hall open the laundry and a small bedroom.

The second floor of the house is fitted with five sleeping rooms and a bathroom, the latter being fitted with tub, washbowl and water closet. The attic above is floored and serves as a storeroom. The three large sleeping rooms on the second floor are furnished with washbowls. All inside work is finished natural in best manner, the principal rooms being polished. The dining room floor is of maple. Kitchen, pantry and back hall floors of straight grained yellow pine. The front hall is laid with strips 3 inches wide, alternately of red oak and hard maple. A dumb waiter is placed in the lobby between the kitchen and dining room to run to basement.

SECOND STORY.

The house is completely plumbed, heated by hot water and lighted by electricity. A cellar extends under all, except front parlor and hall, varying in depth from 6 feet under the rear wing to 8½ feet under the center, where the heater is located.

Specifications—Size, 44¼ by 70 feet; foundation and cellar walls of stone, with division walls of brick; superstructure of frame; 2 by 4 studdings sheathed diagonal, covered with heavy rosined sized paper and weatherboarded with clear siding; roofs shingled with best 5-inch cypress shingles; cellar as above noted; first story, 11 feet; second, 9 feet; first floor laid double, with paper between; plastering, three coats; doors in rooms trimmed with hard wood are veneered with same. This house was built in Carthage, Ills., as described above at a cost of $7,500.

E. A. PAYNE.

MILTON.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Sharpley have gone to New Hampshire for a week.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard W. Elden have gone to Maine on a visit.

It is rumored that Watson & Gallagher, granite manufacturers, are to dissolve partnership.

Granville Webster and family have returned from their visit to the World's Fair.

A young son of Mr. Edward Allen has been unconscious for over two weeks. The boy is suffering from a spinal trouble.

The taxes are so high in Milton this year that there will not be many new improvements next year.

Birthday Party.

Mr. George Monk, the well known violinist, who has been connected with the Tremont theatre orchestra for several years, was agreeably surprised at his residence on Washington street, Wednesday afternoon, the occasion being his forty-ninth birthday anniversary. The festive board, under the supervision of Mrs. Monk, fairly groaned beneath the burden of its savory viands and as the party gathered around the table it would have been hard to have found a more happy party. The out of town guests left on the 6.30 train for Boston, after wishing him many happy returns of the day. Mr. Monk was the recipient of many substantial tokens which spoke louder than words of the high esteem in which he is held by the profession.

A Daughter's Birthday.

A very enjoyable party took place at Mr. and Mrs. Lavalle's, Woodbine street, Wollaston on the 9th, it being the occasion of their little daughter's birthday. It was a gala day for the little ones. Games, singing and recitations were enjoyed, and early in the evening each child helped to hang Japanese lanterns which pleased them exceedingly. Miss Mary E. Lavalle received many handsome presents, and to add to the enjoyment of the day, Miss Fanny McNally of Quincy rendered some very fine vocal selections. Plenty of good things were served all day, and the little ones were only to sorry when the hour for departure arrived. With many loving adieus the day came to a close.

Not Very Pleasing.

The public will be sorry to learn that one of the greatest losses by the absorption of the Old Colony by the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. is the abandoning of the gardening department which has the care of the station grounds along the line. For several years the Old Colony has been beautifying the grounds by setting out flowers and shrubs, keeping the lawns in trim, a feature that has added greatly to the pleasure of riding along the lines. All this will now be done away with. The N. Y., N. H. & H., not believing in this æstheticism, believing in dollars and not in beauty, have discontinued this department, discharged the score of men employed in the work, and have abandoned the hot houses at Halifax, which are now for sale. We understand that Mr. Parker will continue, for the present, the only man to look after the neatness and beauty of the station grounds, in fact he will only see that the gravel walks and what few lawns there are, are kept in respectable shape. Thus taste and beauty give way to utility.—Whitman Reporter.

—Another smart financier of our own Moody Merrill clan, has evolved in Sioux City, Ia., in the person of E. M. Donaldson, president of the Marion First National bank, secretary of the Union trust company, who has stolen hard on to a million and gone on a picnic to some unknown dell. He was the projector of 11 banks in Iowa, all now in receivers' hands. His principal victims are in the east and in New England states. Of course New England was liberally treated. By-and-by New England capital will learn the wisdom of staying at home.—Milford Journal.

—The Chicago Post says a dish of peaches is better than a dish of medicine. There seems to be a difference of opinion as to whether or not the fuzz on the skin is injurious, but the doctors agree that ripe peaches rank with the best of summer foods. Seed fruits, particularly figs, strawberries, blackberries and cranberries, aid digestion; grapes, grape fruit, limes and oranges are prime aperients; apples, dates, melons, cherries and plums are nourishing and refreshing, but peaches are a tonic, an aperient, a food and a drink combined, or to put it briefly, they are meat and medicine.

—The Milford Journal talks plainly and to the point when it says, "the authorities in New York will do well to profit by Chicago's experience in the Haymarket riot, and summarily squelch the first over acts of the anarchistic element looking to violence. Lower the black flag on the spot, whenever and wherever it appears! There is safety in no other course."

—The Maverick bank trials will be resumed Sept. 11. The trial of President Potter will first be in order and that of Hon. Jonas H. French, director, will follow. The case of Cashier Work has been postponed until the next term of the Circuit Court.

—Ex-Gov. Ames favors free silver coinage at a ratio of 24 to 1.

Burglars.

Wouldn't it be a funny sight to see a burglar trying to tug off one of our $18.75 beautiful antique chamber sets? Its out of their line of business, but could they see one, the temptation would be almost irresistable. Other sets in great variety; the prices melt your eyes. Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

For the Ledger.

Information Wanted.

MESSRS. EDITORS: Reading with interest the History of our City by "Manet," we should like to have him give us his authority for the old road, or in short, any road ever leading over the present Summer street, through the woods to the base of Penn's Hill. As we have been deeply interested in the history of our native city, we have studied these old roads for the past ten years, and should be much pleased with any information of the kind, and of this road in particular. In short, all records that we can find convince us that the old Plymouth road was exactly as now—Franklin street to School to Hancock to Adams street to Milton line—and in support would give extracts from the old Colonial records now in Boston.

We find that on the death of Rev. Mr. Thompson, the property now owned by Mr. C. H. Spear on Franklin street, the house lately removed back from the street, was sold to Rev. Mr. Fiske. Book 13, Page 37, date 1682-3; bounded easterly on the country road, westerly on land of John Needum and Samuel Savil, northerly on Mill street, now School street, south on Mill Fields.

Again, we find in the same records that on the death of William Penn that his estate, now occupied by Mr. Kendrick, Nov. 3, 1716, bounded as follows: northerly on land of Samuel Belcher, easterly by land of Moses Paine, southerly on way leading from the great roadway to the Town Common, near the house of John Penniman, and westerly by said Great Roadway which leads to Weymouth.

Again, we find date Sept. 23, 1720, James Penniman to John Adams, father of President John Adams, deed of the oldest Adams House in which President was born: "Six acres Orchard and Arable land adjacent to the country road in north precinct of Braintrey, bounded easterly on said country road, north on land of Moses Curtis, southerly and westerly on land of Gregory Belcher." Perhaps he has found better authority than these records, if so, would like to examine them. We also find the present Summer street was laid out as follows:

May 14, 1755.

To lay out a way to South Common. Beginning at the way near Mr. Apthorp's, situated near the residence of Mr. Pattee, thence adjoining all along the land of the proprietors in that quarter until the corner of Mr. Isaac Newcomb's fence, near his house, late Mr. Job Faxon's residence, and have allowed the said way one rod and half wide and no more, excepting in some places by reason of sure inconvenience.—Pattee's History, Page 555. X.

Newburyport Water Works.

The citizens of Newburyport are to vote August 31 on the purchase of the plant of the Newburyport Water Company, and the local papers are filled with communications as to the course to pursue. Mayor Gurney advises the people to vote not to buy the old plant and to accept the water act allowing the city to establish new works.

☞Times are hard, and money is scarce, therefore he is a wise man who takes advantage of the dullness in business to replenish his home with furniture, as everything in that line can be bought of C. W. Guy lower than ever. Remember it is bargain day at his place of business every day in the week. 1polt

A TABLE-CLOTH PAD. There are pads and pads. One of the very best is made of wool felt. An ingenious woman has one of these pads cut out to fit a round table which is large enough for a family of four persons. This pad is bound with an edge of heavy cotton and through this binding is run a strong tape. When the cover is on the tape is drawn tightly, and tied so that the edges of the cloth come under the slightly projecting top of the table. This has its convenience in that it is impossible for the tablecloth to be dragged or slid off the table, as it sticks to the soft cushion.

—The special State committee on revising the taxation laws will hold a meeting September 8. This was the committee appointed by virtue of the bill introduced by Representative Garfield at the last session of the legislature.

—The old Whittier homestead at Haverhill has been made to resemble as nearly as may be the home as it was in the poet's boyhood and the number of pilgrims who visit it is daily increasing.

TODAY'S COURT.

James Mattson of Quincy, was fined $5 for drunkenness.

William O'Keif of Randolph, was fined $10 for disturbing the peace.

Austin Hayden of Braintree, was fined $50 for keeping intoxicating liquor with intent to sell.

William T. McCormack and Dennis Borden of Cohasset were arraigned for embezzlement of $60, from Alvin H. Howe. Case continued.

Hummers.

Need a stove, did you say? See the finest line in New England. The product of the six leading N. E. foundries at our store—there you learn the good features of them all. Of course it seems unusual, a guaranteed discount to everyone from the lowest Boston prices. Henry L. Kincaide & Co.

Our Only Day.

Were this our only day—
Did not our yesterdays and morrows give
To hope and memory their interplay—
How should we bear to live?

Not merely what we are,
But what we were and what we are to be
Make up our life—the near days each a star,
The far days nebulæ.

At once would love forget
Its keen pursuits and coy delays of bliss
And its delicious pangs of fond regret
Were there no day but this.

And who, to win a friend,
Would to the secrets of his heart invite
A fellowship that should begin and end
Between a night and night?

Who, too, would pause to prate
Of insult or remember slight or scorn;
Who would this night lie down to sleep with hate
Were there to be no morn?

Who would take heed to wrong,
To misery's complaint or pity's call,
The long wail of the weak against the strong,
If this one day were all?

And what were wealth with shame,
The vanity of office, pride of caste,
The winy sparkle of the bubble fame,
If this day were the last?

Aye, what were all days worth
Were there no looking backward or before—
If every human life that drops to earth
Were lost forevermore?

But each day is a link
Of days that pass and never pass away;
For memory and hope—to live, to think—
Each is our only day.

—Coates Kinney.

SMUGGLING CHINESE

The Business Engaged In by Three New Englanders.

TWO ARE UNDER ARREST.

Timely Discovery of an "Underground Railway"

BOSTON, Aug. 25.—Another "underground railway" for the introduction of Chinese into Uncle Sam's domain has been brought to an abrupt end by the special treasury agents in this city. For some time the special agents have had considerable evidence against a gang that has been smuggling the Chinese over the Canadian line and into the states. Within the past year a large number of them have succeeded in eluding the vigilance of the custom officers stationed on the frontier, being aided by the smugglers who managed the trip across the border.

Two of the gang were placed under arrest at St. Albans, Vt., yesterday by Special Agents Smith and Buckingham, both of whom are connected with the Boston office. Their names are John A. Vanderpank, alias John A. Wilson, alias Harry C. Noyes of Lowell, Mass., and Dennis Sheehan, alias Daniel Bau, of Quebec.

The third man and leader of the gang is George B. Noyes of Wilmington. Up to the present time he is a fugitive from justice. Noyes claims to be a Boston merchant, and has issued business cards that bear his name and give his places of business as Boston office, Quincy market; Chicago office, 369 South Clark street; New York office, Fulton market.

The treasury agents have searched in vain for a man by that name, but are unable to locate him at either of those places. About 20 Chinese are now secreted in Boston or the suburbs that have been smuggled in by this gang, but the agents are not in a position to arrest them till the smugglers' cases are disposed of in Vermont.

The Modus Operandi.

These men would first start from St. Albans, Vt., with a hired team for the Canadian borden. At that place they represented themselves as a hunting and fishing party desirious to camp out. After leaving that place they would drive to St. John, P. Q., where Noyes would leave the party and go by rail to Montreal. In the meantime his confederates would camp out until his return, which would be the following night on the last train running between those points. Through agents stationed at Montreal he always had a number of Chinese waiting for him and never returned to St. John without a dozen or more.

They were placed in the team, and sometime during the night the party would drive across the line into Vermont, where they had a second camp near Highgate. Here they remained till the next night and would then drive through to St. Albans. At this place, and directly under the eyes of the custom officers, they have succeeded in smuggling large numbers of Chinese into the New England states.

The Chinese were taken from the team and herded in the rear of the railroad station among the box cars until the Boston express, which arrives at St. Albans at 11 o'clock, came along.

It is customary for the United States custom officials near the line to board the train after it leaves Canada, and inspect the passengers and their baggage.

By the time the train reaches St. Albans they have concluded their investigations and leave it at this point. As soon as the officials are comfortably seated in their office, which is connected with the station, Smuggler Noyes and his confederates then hustle their Chinese on to the train

Opposite the Customs Headquarters, but only within a few minutes before the train leaves St. Albans for Boston.

After a few successful attempts at smuggling them with the hired team Noyes concluded to secure a large covered team, which he was the owner of at Wilmington, Mass. It was shipped to him and it proved of greater value than the one he hired. For every Chinamen he carried into the states it meant an extra $100, and as his own team was a spacious one he managed to bring from 10 to 15 Chinamen each trip.

The smugglers and the contrabands camped out at a small expense, by raiding farms of their chickens, green corn and milk. The night express after leaving St. Albans makes no other stop until Essex Junction is reached, hence St. Albans was selected, under the very eyes of the officers, to enter the train. Tickets for the Chinese were bought of a scalper in Boston in blocks and sent to the smugglers in small amounts.

They were stubs of return tickets dated back 10 days, that it might appear to the conductor, or to any inquisitive passenger, that they had come from Boston and Were Merely Returning.

One of the confederates, Vanderpank, was captured, with the camp outfit and wagon, as he was making for the Canadian side yesterday, where Noyes had already arrived ahead of the officers. It appears that word was sent to him just before the officers made the first arrest, and it is probable that some person at St. Albans, who knew the Boston officers, gave him the tip. He immediately crossed the border, after a hot chase, and as long as he remains there he will be out of reach of the officers.

Noyes announces himself as a very bad man and carries two huge revolvers with which to defy the officers, and when last heard from was quartered at St. Armands, just over the Canadian line.

This is the second "underground" unearthed in Vermont by Special Agents Buckingham and Smith of the Boston office during the present summer. It is expected that some interesting developments will follow the arraignment of these men, and it is said that wholesale arrests of Chinese in Boston and other place will be one of the results.

Governor Russell at Buzzard's Bay.

BUZZARD'S BAY, Mass., Aug. 25.—The scene about Gray Gables yesterday was simply grand. The sea as it broke about the gables was plainly seen from this village. The president remained within doors all day. Governor Russell arrived here last night, the guest of Joseph Jefferson, and when he left the train he was given quite a reception. Today there is a grand fishing excursion to Peters' pond in Sandwich. The party includes the president, Governor Russell, Dr. Bryant, Dr. McBurnley of New York, Joe Jefferson and A. H. Woods of Boston. They will return Sunday morning. This is Governor Russell's first visit to Buzzard's Bay, and before he returns to Boston on Saturday he will probably call at Gray Gables.

A Keeper In Charge.

BOSTON, Aug. 25.—Creditors of a man supposed to be E. F. Sanderson, in whose name a store was opened some time ago at 1154 Tremont street, are wondering if such a man really exists, and, if he does, who and where he is. The store was stocked with paints and oil, and the firm who supplied them are in danger of losing at least a part of the money due them. The store is in the hands of a sheriff, and a keeper receives what little money comes in. The amount of goods in the store is insufficient, it is thought, to pay much of a dividend to creditors.

Illegal Interment.

MALDEN, Mass., Aug. 25.—The board of health has been investigating the charges of illegal interment at the Holy Cross cemetery. In the section in relation to which the charges were made, 64 graves were opened, and the bodies were ordered to be reinterred in nearly every case, owing to the fact that they were buried too near the surface. The number of bodies in each grave averaged from three to five, the highest number being seven and the smallest two.

Each Got a Year.

BOSTON, Aug. 25.—About a week ago a Mrs. Watson died at her home in Dorchester under suspicious circumstances. At the time of her death her husband and a girl named Maggie Crowley were arrested on suspicion of having something to do with her death, but yesterday they were released on that charge, as the autopsy showed that she died from natural causes. They were both, however, sentenced to one year in the house of correction for drunkenness.

Would-Be Murderer Held.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Aug. 25.—Benjamin C. Hosford of Westfield, who attempted to take the life of his wife Aug. 2 by shooting her, was arraigned here yesterday. Mrs. Hosford was so far improved as to be present. Hosford sat unconcerned and refused to answer questions put to him by the court. He was held for the grand jury in $15,000.

Raimondi Held For Trial.

BOSTON, Aug. 25.—Antonio Raimondi, who was arrested for assault with intent to kill Peter F. Beatty by shooting him, was given a hearing yesterday. The court was satisfied that there was probable cause to hold the defendant for the grand jury, and Raimondi was held in $1000 for the superior criminal court.

Overworked His Employes.

WORCESTER, Mass., Aug. 25.—Superintendent Akarman of the Consolidated Street Railway company was found guilty of violating the new law for the employment of street railway conductors, drivers and motormen, having worked them over 10 hours' time in 12 hours. Sentence was postponed.

Boston Man Missing.

BOSTON, Aug. 25.—Is Nelson A. Morkill a defaulter? That is what his friends and acquaintances were asking each other yesterday. He has disappeared and ugly rumors are flying about. He is treasurer and assistant manager of the firm of L. G. McIntosh, cloaks and dry goods.

Sick and Discouraged

MARLBORO, Mass., Aug. 25.—Cyprian Marchand, who had been in ill health a long time, took a large dose of poison and died from the effects. His age was 41. He leaves a widow and 10 children. Despondency from inability to get work is alleged as the cause.

Carroll's Position.

BOSTON, Aug. 25.—This morning's Post is authority for the statement that if the Democratic party want him to stand again James B. Carroll of Springfield will gladly accept another nomination for lieutenant governor.

A Lynn Elopement.

LYNN, Mass., Aug. 25.—Miss Mary Ellen Leary, 24 years, and Robert Jack, her senior by five years, have eloped, presumably to Canada. Miss Leary has been cashier of the Winthrop hotel cafe.

Auburn Gazette Suspends.

LEWISTON, Me., Aug. 25.—The Auburn Daily Gazette suspended publication with last evening's issue. The suspension, as stated by the paper, is due to the present financial stringency.

Brief Mention.

Weil, Dreyfus & Co. of Boston expect to pay all creditors in full.

The cruiser Marblehead is to receive her colors from the old town about Christmas time.

This year's tax rate at Portland, Me., is $20.50 per $1000, or $1 higher than last year's rate.

A 2-year-old daughter of Bernard Schurer of New Haven died from the effects of falling into a tub of boiling water.

A drunken riot occurred among Italian laborers on the Lowell, Lawrence and Haverhill railroad, a mile above Haverhill, Mass. Several shots were fired, but no one was injured.

During the past week there have been nine cases of diphtheria in the Chase Home for Children at Portsmouth, N. H., and one little girl died. The spread of the disease was due to a foul cesspool.

Signs of Another Squabble.

LONDON, Aug. 25.—The Bangkok correspondent of The Times says of the negotiations between France and Siam: The French have prohibited the Siamese from receiving the assistance of their foreign legal diplomatic advisers, apparently in the attempt to overreach Siam. The demands of M. DeVilers, France's special envoy, exceed those of the ultimatum.

Geary and the Chinese.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25.—Representative Geary, author of the Chinese exclusion act, called on Secretary Gresham and urged him to enforce the law with the small amount of money on hand for that purpose. It is understood that Mr. Geary received very little satisfaction.

Poor Satisfaction.

OTTAWA, Aug. 25.—Several posters advertising for recruits for the American army have been conspicuously displayed in a window on Rideau street for some days past. During the night the window was demolished and the posters destroyed.

Couldn't Sleep.

WESTCHESTER, Pa., Aug. 25.—Abraham Fetters of Upper Uwchland, the owner of six fine farms, and a director of the Phœnixville National bank, committed suicide by hanging himself. Insomnia was the cause.

A TALE OF THE DEEP

The Awful Experience of Sailors Aboard the Waimea.

EXPLOSION OF FIREWORKS

Seriously Damages the Ship and Causes a Death.

BOSTON, Aug. 26.—A blazing day in the southern tropics. Not a breath of wind rippling the Atlantic plain. The sun a red hot, glowing focus, slowly traversing the coppery dome of the sky. And in the center of this laudless desolation a large bark, the stout Waimea, Captain W. W. Reston, master, of the New Zealand Shipping company, bound from Wellington N. Z., to Boston with a cargo of native flax. It was April 26, and a dead calm prevailed.

The sailors of the Waimea were grouped under the shadow of the sails, dozing and smoking. Aft, the hatchway was open and below that again the door leading to the lazarette storeroom was open. Down in the lazarette the steward, James Hannah, and a sailor named Frank C. Clement were cleaning out the storeroom. It was dark and murky and a lamp and candle illuminated the place.

Soon after 10 o'clock the steward made his way to the galley to confer with the cook concerning the weighty problem of dinner, leaving the sailor Clement to finish the work. Suddenly a peculiar sound made every man on board the Waimea jump to his feet and look sternward. It was a muffled, vicious which came from the lazarette. It was followed by another and another until it seemed as though a fusilade of musketry were being fired in the depths of the hold.

Captain Reston, who had been writing at the cabin table, rushed through the doorway and glanced down the hatchway. He remembered that the ship's rockets and powder supply were stored in the lazarette. The bombardment kept on and a cloud of blue smoke poured out. Down below the captain saw a swarm of fiery serpents hissing, coiling and sputtering fire. "Smother it! Smother it!" he shouted to the sailors, who turned to grasp sails and anything to check the blaze.

But almost before the sound of the captain's voice had died away the deck heaved beneath his feet, the stout planks were torn asunder, and with an earsplitting report, a vivid flash and the rending of timbers the whole after part of the Waimea was Torn Into a Splintered Ruin.

The vessel shook through all her length and breadth, and a dense cloud of sulphurous smoke arose from where the hatchway had been.

For a moment discipline was overcome by panic, but the crew quickly rallied. The hose was attached to the hand pump, and water was soon being poured into the crater.

Captain Reston was horribly burned, his throat and face being literally blackened by the explosion. Hair and moustache were gone and he was totally blind.

Seaman David Wilson was working below and was found groaning with pain. He was also burned severely, and in being blown through the poop deck his hip joint was dislocated.

But Clements, who must have been accountable for the explosion,

Had Vanished,

vanished as completely as though he had never existed. No drop of blood, no fragment of clothing, no part of his body could be found. A few shattered beams and planks floated on the swell alongside, but no vestige of the lost sailor was ever discovered.

When the confusion on the Waimea had abated it was found that there was no fire on board. But the force of the explosion had completely wrecked the stern and cabin of the bark. Fortunately the rudder and steering gear had escaped injury. First Mate Alexander took charge of the vessel and the more gaping holes were patched up somehow and the ship's course laid for Rio Janeiro, then distant a fortnight's sail.

It was a perilous voyage. The calm gave way to a violent gale, through which the disabled Waimea was with difficulty navigated. Water poured into her shattered hull, flooding the remains of the cabin and threatening to sink the ship.

The blinded captain lay on a pile of old sails, suffering intensely, and the plight of the sailor, Wilson, whose dislocated bone no one could set, is too painful to contemplate.

However, Rio was at length reached. The injured were treated at the hospital and the shipwrights set to work to repair damages.

Arrival In Boston.

The Waimea, salt-rimed and dingy, after her many months' buffetings with the ocean, dropped anchor in Boston harbor yesterday, and Captain Reston came ashore to report to the consignees, Henry W. Peabody & Co.

The captain is a typical British shipmaster. He is stout and sturdy in physique, with light hair, moustache and whiskers, and years of seafaring have imparted that singular deep red tinge to his skin that is always associated with the traditional sailor's complexion.

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—The Illinois Steel company, which employed a great number of those who lost their all in the conflagration of Thursday night, will close down its South Chicago plant next month. About 3000 men will be thrown out of employment.

A ROMANTIC STORY

Dealing With a Widow's Remarkably Good Fortune.

WALTHAM, Mass., Aug. 26.—Mrs. Frank F. Gibbs, a widow resident at the corner of Main and Weston streets, has fallen heir to a fortune estimated at from $15,000 to $20,000 in a manner as romantic as it is unusual. Mrs. Gibbs and Mrs. Charles Landrock of Omaha have been lifelong friends, commencing their intimacy when they were very little girls together at school. At that time Mrs. Landrock's name was Millie Page, her father being proprietor of the Central House. When she was married, 28 or 30 years ago, she went west, where she has since been making her home. Mr. Landrock became the owner of valuable land in Omaha. He died two years ago and the property fell to the widow.

A very short time ago Mrs. Landrock died, and now Mrs. Gibbs is notified that she has been left sole heiress to this large property. A year ago a large sum was offered Mrs. Landrock for this land, but she declined to accept it. It is rapidly growing in value. As yet it has not been decided what disposition will be made by the administrator, and so Mrs. Gibbs does not yet know exactly the sum she will realize.

KILLED BY ELECTRICITY.

A Boston Man Receives a Fatal Shock While on a Roof.

BOSTON, Aug. 26.—Thomas Wall was killed while at work on the building 483 Washington street. Wall was a roofer, employed by Moore & Wood, Province court. He was 30 years old and married.

It appears that Wall was killed by taking hold of a "live" incandescent light wire of the Boston Electric Light company. His hand was frightfully burned the minute it touched the wire. He fell back and expired instantly.

The wire which the roofer took hold of was an old one, and though ordinarily perfectly safe, lost its insulation. The greatest mystery of the whole thing is that the man did not fall to the ground, 60 or 70 feet, as the roof on which he was standing sloped at an angle of almost 90 degrees.

Parade, Dinner and Concert.

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 26.—The Odd Fellows of Portland and vicinity yesterday celebrated the 50th anniversary of the founding of the order. There was a procession in which many lodges took part. After the parade the Odd Fellows proceeded to Peak's island, where dinner was served. Last night there was a promenade concert at city hall.

Plenty of Assets.

ATTLEBORO, Mass., Aug. 26.—The old-established firm of William Coupe & Co., tanners, have assigned. The assets are over $200,000 and liabilities only $70,000. For the protection of their creditors the firm was compelled to take this action, owing to their inability to extend a small note except at ruinous rates.

Clergymen Talked on Temperance.

WINTHROP, Me., Aug. 26.—A grand state temperance mass meeting was held at Lake Maranacook, under the management of Rev. E. Webber. There was a large attendance. Among the speakers were Rev. E. J. Prescott, Rev. J. S. Jones, Rev. C. B. Linn, U. A. Caine, Dr. J. C. Stewart and others.

Two Russians Drowned.

NORWICH, Conn., Aug. 26.—Samuel and Solomon Sternfield, two Russian Jews, aged respectively 23 and 21, were drowned in the Shetucket river. Solomon saw an empty cask in the river and swam out to get it, when he was taken with cramps. His brother went to his rescue and both perished.

MR. NORTON'S STORY

Of His Singular Disappearance From New Haven.

KIDNAPPED BY STRANGERS

From Whom He Escapes in a Remarkable Manner.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 26.—According to his version of it, the case of Louis Norton, who was washed ashore here Thursday night, appears more plausible than it did upon first appearance.

Norton says that on the afternoon of Aug. 12, he went in bathing near New Haven, having gone out in a boat and leaving his clothes and valuables there. While he was swimming about, a boat in which there were two swarthy appearing men, was rowed up to his and there the occupants began rifling his clothes. He objected to this, when one of the men hit him on the head with an oar, knocking him unconscious.

When he recovered his senses he was lying in the cabin of the boat belonging to the men. He stayed at that place all night, and in the morning the boat set sail out through the day until night and then anchor was cast at what Norton thinks was the upper part of Long Island sound. The two navigators went ashore here and their prisoner managed to loose himself of his bonds and cut the boat adrift. Through the night it kept up its course out to sea, and when morning broke no land was in sight. He passed several vessels during his trip.

Washed Ashore by Waves.

Last Wednesday evening she was struck by a storm and on Thursday morning the vessel capsized and he grasped a plank as a last resort. For 18 hours he drifted about on this plank, clinging for his life, and was about giving up hope when he struck the end of Young and McShea's pier here. He worked his way in from piling to piling until his cries were heard. He was brought ashore in an unconscious condition.

After recovering he told a seemingly incredible story. Norton is an intelligent man and well educated. He appears to be thoroughly honest in what he says, and certainly bears the marks of a strong battle.

ATE POISONED CRABS.

Series of Fatalities Thereupon Give Rise to a Cholera Scare.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—On Sunday last a party consisting of Mrs. Lewis, aged 52, John Morse, a negro, Catharine Collins, 75 years old, and Gus Hasslacher, aged 16, at West Bergen, were enjoying a crab supper. Suddenly Morse staggered across the room and shouted that he was poisoned. He was in terrible agony, and died within 18 hours. A post morten examination revealed the fact that he died from cholera morbus.

The incident did not break up the revelry, for it is shown that the party kept on eating and drinking until Tuesday, when some one of the party went fishing and caught a large number of crabs which were boiled from water taken from the steel works. Three victims were taken sick the same night. Gus Hasslacher was taken to his home, where he died on Thursday. Mrs. Ann Lewis died the same day.

The last victim, Catharine Collins, died yesterday at her home. At first it was thought that cholera had broken out, and excitement ran high. A consultation among the health officers last night ended in the unanimous opinion that the sewerage of the steel works, which empties into the river, poisons it with animal matter. The crabs eating the seaweed take the poison into their system, and thus become dangerous as food.

Robbers Surprised by Officers.

NASHVILLE, Aug. 26.—There was a desperate fight between negro burglars and highwaymen and officers near Thompson Station. The officers surrounded the house which the robbers used as a rendezvous. In the fight one of the posse was badly wounded and the leader of the robbers' gang was killed. The house was found full of plunder. Three of the robbers were captured.

Freight Wreck at Chicago.

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—A Pan Handle freight train, moving slowly on the "Q" tracks, was run into by a Chicago, Burlington and Quincy stock train at California avenue. Four cars of freight were wrecked, and the engine and five cars of the stock train were destroyed. The engineer and fireman were injured by jumping from the colliding engine.

Gold For New York.

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 26.—Ten million dollars in gold, packed in canvas sacks, came into Kansas City yesterday from San Francisco. The money was guarded by ten United States deputy marshals. The gold is for the sub-treasury in New York city. The shipment left San Francisco Monday, and will reach New York tomorrow.

Seeking Homes.

ARKANSAS CITY, Kan., Aug. 26.—The rush of home seekers to the Cherokee strip, which will be opened to settlement Sept. 16, has begun and hundreds of men and women and children are arriving on every train. About 350 arrived yesterday.

Work For Two Thousand Men.

WHEELING, Aug. 26.—The Benwood and Ætna mills and the Bellaire nail works, three of the biggest concerns in this vicinity, announce that they will resume in a few days. They will employ about 2000 men.

Mother and Son Drowned.

PARRY SOUND, Ont., Aug. 26.—The young son of John B. Miller was drowned while bathing. The mother plunged in to save her son, but was seized with cramps and was also drowned.

Cashier Commits Suicide.

MANITOWER, Wis., Aug. 26.—The body of George Burnet, cashier of the defunct bank, was found in the river. It is probably a case of suicide

With the only complete bicycle plant in the world, where every part of the machine is made from A to Z, is it any wonder that Victor Bicycles are acknowledged leaders?

There's no bicycle like a Victor, and no plant so grandly complete as the one devoted exclusively to the manufacture of this king of wheels.

John Hancock Lodge.

A charter having been granted for a lodge of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows to be located in Wollaston and to be known as John Hancock lodge, will be instituted about Sept. 13. An opportunity is now offered to those who would like to become members to send in their application at this time and receive the benefit of a low rate of admission. Knights of Honor hall has been leased and refitted and with the other requirements which will be at hand in due time, a thriving and prosperous lodge is expected.

—Every steamship sailing from British ports brings gold as a portion of her cargo. Fridays withdrawals of the metal from the Bank of England for shipment, says the Philadelphia Record, amounted to $3,980,000. With current funds at from 2½ to 3 per cent. premium in New York, the profit to be derived from these large shipments is considerable. It rests with Congress to enact such legislation as will keep the gold here, when once it shall have entered into the channels of trade.

ATTEMPTED MURDER

A Quincy Baker Shoots His Wife in Boston.

A SHORT WAY OF COAXING.

John Wallace shoots his Wife in the arm, but not seriously. He says he did not mean to shoot.

The Boston Globe this morning has the following account of a shooting affray by a Quincy man in Boston last night:

About 7.20 last evening the people who live in the neighborhood of Oswego street were aroused by a pistol shot, followed by a cry of pain.

Immediately there appeared a woman who emerged from No. 6 crying, "I am shot."

Several men who were attracted by the outcry brought her to a drug store in the Grace building, where she said that her name was Ellen Wallace, and that her husband shot her.

The bullet wound in her forearm was temporarily dressed.

In the meantime John Wallace, the husband, came in. He asked his wife if she believed that he fired purposely.

She said "yes," whereupon he declared that he would give himself up, and left the store.

Officer Crowley of division 5 was informed of the trouble, and while hurrying down Washington street met Wallace in the custody of two civilians. He took the accused back to the presence of his wife.

She again charged him with having shot her and he was accordingly arrested.

At the police station he gave the name John Wallace, and said he was 43 years old and lived in Quincy Adams. He declared that the shooting was accidental.

His story is that while taking the pistol out of the inside pocket of his vest it went off unexpectedly. He was searched but no weapons were found on his person. He told the officer that he threw the pistol down the chimney.

It is said that he is a brother of William Wallace, who keeps a bake shop on Washing street, Roxbury.

His wife is 35 years old. Her maiden name was Ellen Cronin.

She was taken to the city hospital, together with a little daughter who was brought in weeping bitterly just before the father was arrested.

The wounded woman told a Globe reporter the following story:

She had not lived with her husband for three months. On coming home from work at 5.30 last evening she found him in the house. He asked her if she would live with him, to which she made reply, "Yes if you will do right."

He then went out and bought a pint of beer and asked her to drink with him. She finally consented, after which he became more persistent in his demand that she should return to live with him. She stepped into the next room and he pulling out a pistol, she says, followed and shot her.

Neither party husband or wife appeared to be under the influence of liquor.

David J. Bornstein of 5 Genessee street was the person who went for a police officer. He will appear as a witness against Wallace.

He told a Globe reporter that he was seated in the back room eating supper, and while looking out of the window he could see the Wallaces, who were in the upper tenement at 6 Oswego street.

Bornstein declares that he saw the revolver explode in Wallace's hand, but could not swear that the shooting was done intentionally.

Wallace was employed in Quincy at Doble's bakery on Water street, but not much is known of him. The two children in this city have been taken in charge by the poor department.

MANET BEACH.

Taber's spacious hall was filled with an appreciative audience last evening, the occasion being a literary and musical concert in aid of the contemplated Union Chapel.

The hall was tastefully decorated with flags, bunting and Chinese lanterns.

Many people came down from Quincy, among whom were Theophilus King and Henry H. Faxon.

The concert was of a very high order, and enthusiastic applause greeted every artist, many of whom were obliged to respond to encores.

The committee have every reason to feel encouraged by the result of the affair, for it was a grand success, socially and financially.

Following is the program:

Death of Patrick F. Shea.

Mr. Patrick F. Shea a well known and highly respected young man died at his home on Larry Place, West Quincy yesterday. Mr. Shea was a member of St. Mary's Temperance Society, and by the many noble qualities which he possessed, endeared himself to everyone who made his acquaintance.

His death will be sincerely regretted by a large host of friends who deeply deplore the fate that cut him off in the prime of life.

Main's Circus.

Main's circus, which exhibited in this city yesterday, was the centre of attraction for a large number of people, especially children. Two performances were given, one in the afternoon and the other in the evening; the young people attending in the afternoon and the older people in the evening. Both performances were largely attended, especially that of the evening, every seat being occupied, and many were obliged to stand.

Main's circus has always been a good one, but that of yesterday exceeded anything he has ever given in Quincy before. That the numerous acts were thoroughly appreciated was apparent by the frequent and loud applause.

TODAY'S COURT.

Cornelius Spellman of Braintree, for violating the liquor law was fined $60.

John, Jeremiah and William Moynihan, for disturbing the peace at Quincy, were fined $5 each.

Gilbert E. Holbrook of Randolph, was fined $8 for drunkenness.

JOHN C. HARRINGTON.

Wonderful cures right here in New England which have been wrought by this famous medicine of the Red Men—Sagwa—attest to its value.

The following testimonial is the unsolicited indorsement and grateful tribute of an old Boston fireman, Mr. John C. Harrington, now living in Brockton, Mass.

Under date of Oct. 27, 1892, he writes:

"A year ago last Christmas I was taken sick with the grip. A complication of troubles followed which developed Dropsy in its worst form, and for months I was obliged to sitin a chair, day and night, never once lying down in bed. During that long period I had the best medical skill obtainable, and seven doctors attended me at different times, but they could do nothing for me. I was tapped thirteen times and they took from me in all seventy-eight gallons of water.

The physicians told my wife that mine was a hopeless case, and told my family to prepare for the worst. My friends and relatives were notified of my condition, that they might take a last farewell.

Among my friends was one who urged me to try Kickapoo Indian Sagwa. I did so and soon after I began taking it there was a marked change for the better; the bloat commenced to leave my bowels and the swelling of my limbs decreased quite rapidly, and in less than a month I was back to my normal size. ❋ I have been gaining health and strength ever since.

TODAY I AM A WELL MAN THANKS TO KICKAPOO INDIAN SAGWA.

I think it is the best medicine in existence, and all of my friends think my cure nothing less than a miracle.

I will gladly answer anybody seeking information about this great medicine. J. C. HARRINGTON, 25 Court av., Brockton, Mass."

Kickapoo Indian Sagwa is the grandest remedy of the universe.

The simplicity of its grandeur is the strongest tie that binds it to the confidence of the people.

It is nature's remedy!

Nature provides a cure for every disease of every living creature.

Man in his wisdom can best understand these remedies, and the Indians who have been obliged to depend upon nature alone for their curative helps, best understand nature's remedies.

That is why Kickapoo Indian Sagwa is the safest, the best and the surest Liver, Stomach and Blood Renovator—the best remedy for all seasons—the world has ever known.

Kickapoo Indian Sagwa, made by the Indians from roots, barks and herbs of their own gathering and curing, is obtainable of any druggist at one dollar per bottle; six bottles for five dollars.

Braintree and Randolph.

As an indication of the progress being made in the matter of the electric road, we are informed by Mr. Hobart, the president, who, as soon as he returned to his home from his vacation among the wilds of the White Mountains, took hold of the matter. Orders have been given for eight elegant cars of the latest improved pattern. The engineers are at work locating "turn-outs" and "sidings." Specifications called for 24,000 ties, and other contracts are being made. Mr. Hobart thinks that before snow flies the tracks will be laid on the entire line.—Braintree Observer.

Burglars.

A Turkish Priest In the Toils.

In the Turkish village on Midway plaisance there is a muezzin named Drenar Effendi, a priest, very zealous in the performance of his religious duties. Yesterday afternoon he was arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct and given a ride in the patrol wagon to Woodlawn station.

The trouble arose from a growing disposition on the part of the Turks to treat the duties of their religion with indifference. When Drenar Effendi called the Turks to prayer yesterday afternoon they did not respond with what seemed to him a proper amount of alacrity, and incensed at their slowness he seized a club and began to beat them over the head. This attracted a large crowd at once, and a guard arrested the priest. By the time he reached the station the Turks began to be very much frightened at the thought of their priest's being locked up like a common criminal in a Christian jail, so a delegation was sent over to Woodlawn to bail him out in time for the sunset service, attendance upon which was secured by moral suasion instead of a club.—Chicago News-Record.

A Rare Blossom.

A rare flower can be seen in the garden north of the fountain in the northwest section of the public square. It is a yucca gloriosa, commonly known as glorious Adam's needle, and it is stated this is the first time the plant has bloomed for 30 or 40 years. Fears are entertained that the blossom may kill the plant, and an effort will be made to preserve it. An authority on botanical subjects says that the yucca can be seen to best advantage by moonlight while in bloom.

As the yucca grows old the lowermost foliage decays, leaving a thick bare stalk; in fact, giving the stalk quite an arborescent character. Its height is extremely variable; its age before flowering also varies from 5 to 15 years, and its subsequent intervals are quite uncertain. The flowers are white and bell shaped, and are in a cluster at the end of a long stalk.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Too Far Off.

He had wandered about into dozens of stores hopelessly trying to match a piece of goods for his wife. At last he quit and leaned up against a post with the sample in his hand.

"What's the matter?" asked a passing friend. "Sick?"

"Yes. I guess I'll have to go to heaven," he replied, sticking the sample out ainlessly toward the inquirer.

"What do you mean?"

"Well, they say matches are made in heaven, and I guess they're right. I'll swear they're not made anywhere around here."—Detroit Free Press.

BRAINTREE.

Rev. A. A. Ellsworth is at Bar Harbor.

We are sorry to learn that Mrs. E. F. E. Thayer is seriously sick.

Charles O. Miller has had another pretty cottage finished on Orient Heights, East Braintree.

There will be services in Mayflower Park chapel by Rev. Wm. Hyde on Sunday, at 3.30 P. M. All are invited.

Mrs. Morrill Williams of this town is seriously sick at the residence of Dr. W. Record of Wollaston, her son-in-law.

Albert Hobart of East Braintree left yesterday forenoon on a visit to friends living in Nova Scotia. Will be gone for three or four days.

Rev. W. L. Tenney of Holbrook will occupy the desk of the First Parish tomorrow. Service begins at 10.30 A. M. All are cordially invited.

Wednesday evening Dr. T. H. Dearing and wife, Orace W. Allen, and son, returned home from the World's Fair, having gone thither as part of the Old Stoughton Musical Society.

Rev. W. H. Eaton, secretary of the Massachusetts Baptist State Convention, will preach to the Baptist Society at the Town Hall, Sunday. Services at 2.45 P. M. All are invited.

Thursday morning Ally White and his cousin Frank C. White of East Braintree, left for the "Coot shooting grounds, Nantucket. Henry Gardner of the same village left the same morning for the same place. They were all armed cap-a-pie. They are all excellent shots and will give a good account of themselves unless they get "deposited in a cavity."

Mr. Chas. A. Pitkin and family of South Braintree are having a gay summer at the Stag and Hounds, West Campton, N. H. Last week Thursday evening the guests of the house enjoyed a delightful bean-bag party, arranged by Miss Ethel Pitkin, and this week Thursday Mrs. Pitkin gave a birthday party for her young daughter Miss Carol W. Pitkin.

Mrs. Thomas South of East Braintree died Thursday evening after a long sickness patiently borne. Mrs. South has left a husband, a well known and highly respected citizen, three sons and four daughters all married, we believe to mourn their loss. The funeral takes place this afternoon from the family residence on Quincy avenue. Peace be to her memory.

A Serious Accident.

Tuesday evening, about seven o'clock, the ten year old son of Albert Delano of East Braintree, was amusing himself in pulling at a rope on the deck of the schooner J. F. Sheppard, while sitting with his back to the hold protected round its mouth by a rail rising a foot perhaps from the deck, when the rivet either came out of the water cask in which it was fastened, or the rope at that point broke, and the poor boy went backward and fell into the hold a distance of seventeen feet. He was immediately fished out and conveyed home in an unconscious condition. Dr. Bullock of Weymouth was called, who found that the boy had been seriously injured, at the base of the brain, on the neck.

Up to the time of our writing the boy is still alive but he has never recovered consciousness to any great extent and the fear is he never will.

Great sympathy is felt for the father, who is employed by I. W. Jordan, blacksmith; a hard working man who has had trouble enough to have driven any ordinary man crazy.—Observer.

—An alligator recently escaped from his tub in Taunton and took a stroll along the highway. He is not much more than a foot long, but he caused fifteen or twenty yards of consternation. Two or three women were thrown into hysterics and several men who have been defying the liquor law were almost frightened into signing the pledge so sure were they that the "jim-jams" had set in worse than a dog-day swelter.

—There are 3700 national, 3000 State and 1300 private banks in the United States, a total of 8000, somewhat diminished since May by isolated suspensions and insolvencies, but still in excess of 7800, several suspended banks having, after suspension, resumed. The gross deposits in national banks of the United States amount to $1,500,000,000; in State banks to $650,000,000, and in private banks to $100,000,000, a total of $2,250,000,000. The gross deposits in American banks are 50 per cent. greater than the national debt and equal to about 60 per cent. of all the gold coin in the world.

MR. MORSE'S REPLY

To an Attack Made Upon Boston Bankers by Mr. Pickler.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—During the debate of Thursday Congressman Morse sent to the clerk's desk and had read a number of letters on the present financial situation from business houses in Boston and elsewhere. Pickler of South Dakota interrupted Morse and made an attack on the banks of Boston. Morse is reported in The Congressional Record in reply as follows:

I say to the gentleman from South Dakota, there are on the face of the earth no more high-toned, honorable, patriotic men than the bankers of Boston, and they have done what in them lies to tide over the present appalling business situation. Why, Mr. Speaker, I have heard these same bankers of Boston denounced on this floor as "gold bugs," "shylocks," "extortioners." As a representative of Massachusetts, I am stung by these cruel, unjust epithets as applied to the bankers of Boston. They may not have as many votes as some other class, but, Mr. Speaker, who built your western railroads? Who built your lofty buildings whose summits pierce the sky?

In the dark days of the war, when the government wanted money, who responded to the call and poured out their treasure like water to save us, a nation among the nations of the earth? When fire or famine or flood overtakes any section of our country, to whom do they go for contributions and relief? When the fellow wings of pestilence flap themselves in the southern sky, who contributes of her treasure to relieve the distress? What city gives more than any other city? Why, these same "extortioners," "gold bugs" and "shylocks," the bankers of Boston.

I repeat, Mr. Speaker, more honorable, patriotic business men do not walk on God's green earth than these bankers of Boston that I have heard unjustly derided and denounced on this floor, and at no time in the history of the country has their patriotism and public spirit and helpfulness to the great business interests of the country been more thoroughly demonstrated and shown than since the present appalling financial situation has come upon us.

IN CONGRESS.

Senator Hill Defines His Attitude on the Silver Question.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—The speech made by Mr. Hill in the senate yesterday was remarkable in many respects. When he declared that the president, if he deserted bimetallism, could not rely upon support from him or from Democratic senators and would have to rely upon the votes of Republican senators, a significant smile of amusement and self-complacency passed through the whole Republican group, while on the Democratic side of the chamber there were looks rather of annoyance than of pleasure. He announced that the wishes, views and suggestions of the administration would have no influence on him, but that himself and his colleagues would vote for the bill uncorrupted by federal patronage.

The speech occupied in its delivery a little over an hour and a half, and attracted close attention on the floor and in the well-filled galleries. For the next hour there was a far different scene in the chamber. Not a score of senators were present, the galleries were almost empty, and Mr. Stewart of Nevada was on the floor making a speech on the silver question.

Afterwards the house joint resolution as to the town site selections in the Cherokee outlet was taken up, discussed and passed, the amendment of the committee on public lands, requiring the trustees to be bona fide residents of Oklahoma territory, being defeated by a large majority. Notice was given that one of the financial measures (Mr. McPherson could not particularize which) would be pressed to a vote next week, and the senate adjourned until Monday.

Nothing sensational transpired in the house. A large number of members addressed the house, but for the greater part they wasted their eloquence on empty benches.

A Peculiar Case.

DENVER, Aug. 26.—Frank Ladd called at police headquarters with a woman whom he wanted held for two murders alleged to have been committed in Philadelphia 17 years ago, the victims being her lover and a hostler who discovered the first murder. The woman denied the story and was discharged, whereupon Ladd said he would swear out a warrant charging her with the murders.

Determined to Fight.

KINGSTON, N. Y., Aug. 26.—James A. Brady, Corbett's manager, says that Mitchell and Corbett will surely fight for the championship of the world. He would not give Mitchell any chance to escape meeting Corbett, even if he had to dare Mitchell to fight in London before an athletic club.

No Room For Them.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Seventy-two contract laborers were returned to Italy and Austria today on the steamships La Tourraine, Ems and Wesel. All these men have been landed at Ellis island since Tuesday last. Most of them were miners bound for various Pennsylvania points.

Poles Wanted Work.

DETROIT, Aug. 26.—Some Polish laborers attempted to interfere with the men who were working on a paving contract here. The Poles demanded that they be given work in place of the regular laborers. They were refused and several wordy altercations ensued.

Forty-Five Killed.

EAGLE PASS, Tex., Aug. 26.—A serious fight took place between armed bodies of opposing political parties at Puerto del Armen, near Nadodores. The Calanists were the attacking party, but were repulsed. The total number of killed on both sides is 45.

"Messiah" In a New Role.

ROCKFORD, Ill., Aug. 26.—Schweinfurth, the bogus Messiah, with one of his prettiest angels, visited many residences yesterday and disposed of a large quantity of vegetables. The bogus Savior says the panicky times have struck heaven.

Suspicious Deaths In Antwerp.

ANTWERP, Aug. 26.—The Precurseur declares that 26 cases of illness closely resembling Asiatic cholera have been admitted into the hospitals since the beginning of August, of which 14 have died.

Took Carbolic Acid.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Lily Clifford, 17 years old, attempted suicide by taking carbolic acid at her home at 388 East Thirty-fifth street. She was taken to Bellevue hospital, a prisoner.

Editor Dropped Dead.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 26.—Dr. William H. Williams, editor of The Central Baptist of this city, dropped dead on the depot platform at Alexandria. Cause, heart disease.

The Ox Team.

I sit upon my ox team, calm,
Beneath the lazy sky,
And crawl contented through the land
And let the world go by.
The thoughtful ox has learned to wait
And nervous impulse smother
And ponder long before he puts
One foot before the other.

And men with spanking teams pass by
And dash upon their way
As if it were their hope to find
The world's end in a day.
And men dash by in palace cars:
On me dark frowns they cast
As the lightning driven Present frowns
Upon the slow old Past.

Why do they chase, these men of steam,
Their smoke flags wide unfurled,
Pulled by the roaring fire fiend
That shakes the reeling world?
What do ye seek, ye men of steam,
So wild and mad you press?
Is this—is this the railroad line
That leads to happiness?

And when you've swept across the day
And dashed across the night
Is there some station through the hills
Where men can find delight?
Ah, toward the depot of Content,
Where no red signals stream,
I go by ox team just as quick
As you can go by steam!

BOSTON, Aug. 26.—John G. Abbott, aged 21, was run over by a shifting engine at Prison Point and instantly killed. He attempted to get out of the way of an approaching train, and ran directly in front of a shifting engine.

Canned Goods Will Be High Next Season.

A. E. Wetmore, representing a syndicate of California fruit canners, was in Helena yesterday. He came to judge how much fruit the Montana market would take at low prices this season. In explanation of his trip, he said: "The Pacific coast canneries will be able this year to can very little fruit. Money is so tight that it is impossible for them to get the cash to buy tin, sugar and other necessary supplies and pay their labor. They have already contracted for the growers' crops, and these they will have to take. The peach and other crops will be large, and the canners will try to ship all the fresh fruit possible. What they do not ship will be dried. Naturally California fruit will sell at low prices this year, but canned goods next season will be high."—Cor. Chicago Tribune.

CHEERFUL OUTLOOK.

Business in General Beginning to Brighten Up.

FEWER FAILURES REPORTED

The Scarcity of Money Still Remains Unexplained.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—The improvement observed last week has become much more distinct and general. While actual transactions have increased but little the change in public feeling is noteworthy. There are fewer failures, either of banks or of important commercial or manufacturing concerns, than for some weeks past Many disasters have been avoided by a more general pooling of resources, and a greater spirit of mutual helpfulness and forbearance than were seen some weeks ago.

The market for securities has been extremely dull without material decline. Money on call is more abundant and lower. The difficulty of collections and the interruption of exchanges are nearly as serious as ever.

Work For the Unemployed.

The number of industrial establishments resuming begins to compare favorably with the number stopping work. It cannot yet be said that the army of the unemployed has begun to decrease, but the additions to it are much smaller than in previous weeks.

The shipment of boots and shoes from Boston show a decrease, compared with last year, of 36 per cent for the week, and 21 per cent since June, and countermands still offset new orders at the east, though somewhat more activity is reported here and at Philadelphia on account of southern buying. The textile manufactures show no improvement, and dispatches mention 24 mills as having closed indefinitely, and seven others temporarily, one for the first time in 50 years, and it is also stated that 20 of the largest in Maine have determined to close next week

On the other hand, 12 mills, which have temporarily closed, have resumed. Of machinery reported to The Textile World in answer to inquiries, 24 per cent in cotton and 43 per cent in woolen mills were idle Aug. 10. The demand for goods is very narrow, and uncertainty about collections and supplies of currency for hands turn the scale in many cases. Sales of wool are about the smallest ever known at this season, amounting last week at the three chief markets to 1,633,912 pounds, against 7,164,602 ponnds for the same week last year.

The Financial World.

The markets during the past week have not been active. In stocks the average of prices changed very little and sales for the entire week have been less than have sometimes been recorded in a single active day. Though currency is at a premium of 1 to 2 per cent, the demand is less than a week ago. Some banks have opened special accounts for customers making currency deposits, while these and many others request ordinary checks to be stamped for payment through clearing house only.

Receipts of gold from Europe during the past week have been $6,700,000, but the Bank of England has raised its rate to 5 per cent, which is expected to stop further shipments of gold to this country, and the Bank of France has lost during the past week about $1,600,000.

Where Is All the Money?

Men ask in vain what has become of the money. Although $32,000,000 in gold has been received in August the New York banks held $3,800,000 less specie, $6,400,000 less legal tenders than at the end of July, and the treasury also holds about $1,000,000 less gold and $4,900,000 less legal tenders, and has outstanding $6,000,000 more treasury notes. The absorption of money, it is evident, has not yet ceased, and credit substitutes in use are as yet poorly supplying its place.

The failures for the past week number 410 in the United States and 20 in Canada. Of the commercial failures in the United States 149 were in eastern states, 67 in southern and 180 in western.

Seventeen Lives Were Lost.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 26.—Assistant Engineer Albert Smith of the Reading Railroad company's steam collier Panther, which, with the barge Lykens Valley, was lost off the Long Island coast, arrived here yesterday. Of the 20 persons on the two vessels only three were saved.

To Help Italy's Finances.

PARIS, Aug. 26.—M. Develle, minister of foreign affairs, has promised Signor Rissmann, the Italian ambassador, to withdraw from circulation in France as many Italian silver coins as possible and send them to Italy, so as to relieve the scarcity of currency in that country.

Looking After Anarchists.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—The police are preparing to make a wholesale raid upon the anarchists, who for the past few days have been holding many meetings and endeavoring to stir up trouble and incite their followers to violence by the most incendiary speeches.

The End of a Feud.

ATHENS, Ala., Aug. 26.—A difficulty occurred between Bruce Hoffman and Clytus Glanton. Hoffman was shot through the head and killed, while Glanton was severely cut. A feud had existed between the two young men for some time.

Actor Curtis Acquitted.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 26.—The jury in the case of H. B. Curtis, "Sam'l of Posen," for the murder of Policeman Grant, returned a verdict of acquittal. This was the third trial of Curtis. The jury in the first two trials disagreed.

Satanita Won.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—The regatta of the Royal Dart Yacht club took place yesterday. The course was sailed over four times, making the total distance 40 miles. The Satanita won the race. The Navahoe finished second.

Another Bank Opens.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—The First National bank of Dallas, Or., which suspended payment July 31, 1893, has been permitted to reopen its doors to business.

Falling Into Line.

PORTLAND, Or., Aug. 26.—The First National bank, which suspended July 31, reopened for business today.

PERFECT PLAYING

Enables the Bostons to Defeat the Cleveland Team.

BOSTON Aug. 26.—Perfect playing and Gastright's pitching won a creditable victory for the champions. The Cleveland's runs were all due to Ewing's splendid work with the bat. Brilliant fielding abounded in almost every inning. Long, Duffy, McCarthy, Nash and Tucker did phenomenal work and McGarr of the Clevelands kept them company. Tucker was fined $25 in the first inning for an inoffensive side remark which nobody but the umpire and the Boston infielders heard. He was made a hero by the spectators, and his wonderful playing made them warm to him more and more as the game proceeded.

THE LAST SCENES

In the Report Stage of the Great Home Rule Bill.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—The strangers' galleries of the house of commons were crowded last evening by persons eager to witness the last scenes in the report stage of the home rule bill. The proceedings were tame.

Timothy Healy (anti-Parnellite) got the floor at about 10 o'clock and talked until 11, merely to prevent Mr. Balfour, the Unionist leader, from winding up the debate. William Johnston, an Ulster Loyalist, tried to cut Mr. Healy short, but without success.

The house became restless shortly before 11 and declined to listen longer to talk against time. Cries of "Divide" drowned Mr. Healy's voice during the last five minutes of his speech. At 11 o'clock the speaker began to put the 18 government amendments standing in the name of John Morley, chief secretary for Ireland. Only two of the 18 were challenged by the opposition. In each division the government's majority was 38.

When the last amendment was pronounced carried the Liberals and Irish burst out with loud and repeated cheers. The opposition remained silent.

The speaker announced the third reading of the home rule bill for next Wednesday, and the house adjourned.

Naples Riots Continue.

ROME, Aug. 26.—The striking cab drivers still riot in Naples. They have been fighting the police in several quarters of the city. The military and rioters had three encounters yesterday. More than 1000 persons were arrested. Many of the men who led in the anti-French agitation, started after the Aigues-Mortes massacre, are said to have joined the rioters.

Gloucester Schooner Damaged.

PORT HAWKESBURY, N. S., Aug. 26.—The schooner James G. Blaine of Gloucester, Mass., came in here with the loss of both anchors and sails split. The schooner Emma Proctor of this port reports that James Proctor, her captain, was washed overboard by an immense wave and drowned.

A Crazy Woman's Antics.

MT. VERNON, N. Y., Aug. 26.—Theresa Kletsch, 22 years old, a German domestic employed by Alfred Duncomb, a wealthy resident of this city, became suddenly insane and violently assaulted three members of the family. Physicians declared her hopelessly insane.

Murdered For Money.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Aug. 26.—J. P. McKerrow, one of the most prominent cattlemen of southwest Texas, was brutally murdered near his ranche by unknown parties. The object was robbery, as the pockets of the murdered man were rifled.

Mad Dog In Central Park.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—A mad dog made its appearance yesterday in the Central park menagerie and caused terrible excitement among the nurses and children that congregated there. The attendants killed the dog.

WORK IN CONGRESS.

Belief That Unconstitutional Repeal Will Carry the Day.

PRESSING COMMITTEE WORK

Will Occupy the Attention of Congress This Week.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—When the house of representatives next meets it will begin voting on the several propositions included within the order adopted 15 days ago for the consideration and disposition of the silver question. The vote will be taken first upon the proposition to provide free coinage of silver at a ratio of 16 to 1. This failing, other ratios up to 20 to 1 will be voted upon; then the house will be given an opportunity to say whether it will restore the Bland-Allison act of 1878 or not. All these are connected with the repeal of the silver purchasing clause of 1890. That is doomed in any event.

Finally assuming these having failed to secure a majority of the votes, the house will face the naked issue of unconditional repeal. It is generally conceded that all of the propositions relating to the coinage of silver will be defeated, and that unconditional repeal will be carried, only the detail of majorities is in doubt.

On Tuesday the report of the committee on rules, recommending the code for the government of the Fifty-third congress, will be taken up, and it is believed adopted without much delay. There is no intention manifest at this time to antagonize the committee's recommendations, and after explanation of the effect of the proposed changes by Mr. Catchings and probably some further observ ations by Messrs. Reed and Burrows, the minority of the committee, a vote is expected.

Recess or Not?

After the rules have been adopted the program in the house is uncertain. A recess for three days may be taken, which will give members and employes an opportunity to recover from the unusual and exhaustive strain of the past two weeks. Or the house may determine to continue in session that members may present the bills already prepared and waiting to be introduced. But whether at once or later in the week a bill day will be provided. A small avalanche is expected of measures which failed to secure favorable action in previous congresses, establishing at once calendars of considerable magnitude, and giving the new committees plenty of material for examination and report.

Some important results are probable from committee action during the week. The ways and means committee will meet Tuesday, at which time a course of procedure will probably be decided upon, including such matters as the approximate date when a tariff bill shall be reported, whether the committee will give hearings to interested persons or not, and other details relating to the work with which it is charged. Chairman Wilson is reported to have prepared a bill covering the subject of tariff revision, in a general way, which he will submit to the committee. There are also several bills on the subject ready for the committee's consideration, notably those of the New York Reform club, known as E. Ellery Anderson's, and of Edward Atkinson, the well-known political economist of Boston.

On the same day the committee on banking and currency will meet, with the expectation of concluding a report upon the bill of Representative Tom. L. Johnson, providing for the exchange of national bonds for currency at the demand of the holder. The committee, it is believed, will favorably report the bill with an amendment intended to protect the gold of the treasury from raids from those who receive currency for their bonds.

Some time in the course of the week the committee on appropriations will report bills, pursuant to the recommendation of Secretary Carlisle for an appropriation of $300,000 for continuing the re-coinage of fractional silver coin and an appropriation of $44,300 for distinctive paper for printing treasury notes. These matters must be provided for speedily, if there is to be no stoppage of the work.

The Senate's Plans.

In the senate the work will probably begin tamely, with the Mantle case in the foreground. It has been agreed that a vote shall be taken at 2 o'clock today upon the pending motion of Senator Vance to lay on the table Mr. Manderson's motion to reconsider the vote by which the senate declared that Mantle was not entitled to a seat in the body. There is some expectation that Sentor Morgan, who was absent when the last vote was taken, will be in his seat, and there is an intimation that there has been a change in the views of some of the senators who voted against Mr. Mantle's claim, but few of his friends are confident that the decision of the senate will be reversed.

Gorman will speak on the silver bill Tuesday. The national bank extension bill is likely to be taken up at the first opportunity and rushed as rapidly as possible. The Wilson bill is expected to reach the senate not later than Tuesday. It is within bounds of possibility that some senator may create a turmoil at some stage by endeavoring to call up the Peffer resolution directed at the New York banks, but this can only be done by a majority vote.

Didn't Get Much.

STILLWATER, Mont., Aug. 28.—A train on the Northern Pacific was held up by train robbers 14 miles west of here. There were five men in the gang, and they only secured $52 out of $6,000, which was in the express car, the messenger hiding the balance and other valuables. Passengers lost various small amounts.

STARVED TO DEATH.

A Sailor Refuses All Food Because of a Fancied Slight.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 28.—Antonio Bachetich died yesterday in a seaman's boarding house after having fasted 76 days. During that time nothing but water passed his lips. Just before he died he called for food, but it was too late.

Batchetich was a sailor and when in this city made his home with Lucas Bachich.

On Sunday, June 11, when he went to the breakfast table, there was neither knife, fork nor spoon at his plate. He felt himself insulted at this and left the table, refusing to eat and, despite the efforts of those interested in him, refusing to partake of any kind of food until shortly after midnight Sunday morning he surprised those at his bedside by asking for food, and a meal was quickly brought to him.

He took a little beef tea, but before he finished it fell back in the arms of an old shipmate, dead. He was a stalwart man, weighing over 199 pounds when he began his fast. Only his frame remained when he died.

OLD PENSION CLAIMS

Promise to Furnish Much Work For Commissioner Lochren's Clerks.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—It is stated at the pension office that since the passing of the act of March 27, 1890, claims for pensions under that act have been given an unfair preference in the matter of adjudication over claims under prior acts where disabilities of service are alleged. Thus, it is said, about 300,000 old claims have remained sidetracked for about four years. Some days ago a block of 2000 of these old cases was taken from the files, and an examination disclosed the fact that about 70 per cent of them were complete, and yet in consequence of the bureau being engaged in the adjudication of June 27, 1890, cases, no action had been taken.

With a view to correcting this injustice Commissioner Lochren had directed the chiefs of the several divisions to make a thorough search of the files of the old cases, and where they are found complete, to promptly forward them for allowance, and if found incomplete, to make the necessary calls for additional proof.

BUSINESS BRIGHTENING UP.

Comptroller Eckels Makes Statements of a Decidedly Cheerful Nature.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—Comptroller of the Currency Eckels, when asked what he thought of the financial situation in the country, said: "It is safe to say that the general public look upon the improvement of banking conditions as the best indication of returning confidence on the part of the people in the financial institutions of the country, and therefore a bare statement of a fact, so far as the national banks are concerned, will substantiate the statement that a better condition of affairs is rapidly being brought about.

"During the month of July 72 national banks suspended. During the month of August but 31 suspended. During the first week in August there were 13, during the second week seven, the third week eight, and during the past week but three. During the month of July nine banks resumed. During the month of August, thus far, 17 have resumed.

MORE TROUBLE BREWING.

Kansas Miners Do Not Want Negroes to Take Their Place.

WEIR CITY, Kan., Aug. 28.—The striking miners here have 250 Winchesters stored at two different points in the city, and are looking for a shipment of 100 more. The feeling seems to be growing more bitter against the negroes. Trouble between the miners and the blacklegs, as the white miners are termed, broke out afresh Saturday night. Walter P. James and Charles Francis, while returning from work, were stoned by strikers. A crowd of strikers gathered with guns on Main street waiting for colored miners, when a shotgun was accidentally discharged, wounding four men.

Cholera Figures.

ROME, Aug. 28.—There were eight deaths from cholera in Naples yesterday. The report that cholera had become epidemic here and that seven persons have died of it is erroneous.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—The Vienna correspondent of The Standard says that only 45 districts of Hungary and 12 districts of Gallicia are now infected with cholera.

ANTWERP, Aug. 28.—One new case of cholera and one death were reported here yesterday.

ROME, Aug. 28.—Nineteen cases of cholera and five deaths have been reported in Palermo.

To Prevent Fraud.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—Canadian collectors of customs have been directed to brand all butter and cheese in transit from the United States through Canada to Europe "product of the United States of America." The object of this action is to prevent false branding and misrepresentation of foreign butter and cheese as Canadian and to supply a safeguard against the substitution of Canadian butter and cheese, which increases the transit and the retention of the foreign produce in Canada without payment of duty.

Governor Will Try It Again.

BUENOS AYRES, Aug. 28.—The government has forbidden the newspapers to publish military or political news, and a rigorous censorship has been established. The governor of the province of Corrientes, who fled to Paraguay to escape from the vigorous revolutionists, is now returning with reinforcements to attack the revolutionary army.

And Now David Is Sorry.

MALDEN, Mass., Aug. 28.—David Robbing of the Malden district drew over $1000 from a Malden bank in order to be sure that he had it. The financial stringency scared him. He put $650 of this money in a bureau drawer with some silver spoons. Now both money and spoons are missing.

BUZZARD'S BAY, Mass., Aug. 28.—The president drove over to the Buzzard's Bay station last night with Dr. Bryant, who took the train for New York. The yacht Oneida has arrived. Inasmuch as the Oneida is here and the fact that Dr. Bryant has returned, it shows that the president and his family expect to leave here any day.

A FRIGHTFUL SCENE.

Fourteen Persons Killed In a Wreck on Long Island.

MANY SERIOUSLY INJURED.

Wreck on the Harlem Road Results in Five Deaths.

LONG ISLAND CITY, L. I., Aug. 28.—An accident that cost the lives of 14 people occurred shortly after midnight Sunday in the little village of Berlin, near Calvary cemetery, in the town of Newton. The Long Island railroad train that left Manhattan at 11:45 o'clock was overtaken by the train that left Rockaway beach 15 minutes earlier. In the frightful collision that ensued the two rear cars of the five that made up the Manhattan beach train were demolished and the middle car was overturned. Hardly one of the scores of passengers aboard these three cars escaped unhurt. Among the dead was Colonel E. A. Buck, 55 years, editor of The Spirit of the Times.

The accident happened a half an hour after midnight. It was over an hour before any news reached any outside point. It came by a messenger who walked into Long Island City.

The Manhattan Beach train had been standing in the block to allow of a train ahead getting a safe distance.

The Rockaway Beach train came dashing along behind, ran into the same block and crashed into the rear end of the Manhattan Beach train. Both were crowded with excursionists and both were the last trains from their respective resorts. The Rockaway train plunged in and plowed its way completely through the two rear cars of the Manhattan Beach train and partially wrecked the third.

Scenes of Misery.

Passengers in three cars were maimed and mangled horribly and their shrieks of terror and pain were awful. The dead and wounded were massed among the wreckage, besides upon and beyond the tracks. Everything was showered with the blood of the killed and wounded. When all the wounded had been found that could be, the relief train started with them for Long Island City.

They were met there by the only ambulance which St. John's hospital owns. Two were placed in it and hurried to the hospital, and the ambulance returned for more. Meanwhile express wagons, horse cars, coaches and vehicles of every sort were pressed into service to get the wounded to the hospital quickly. Seventeen of them were taken to the hospital, of whom two died upon the way there.

An eye witness of the accident says the Rockaway train was going at top speed. The killing of Colonel E. A. Buck, the editor of the The Spirit of the Times, is deeply regretted.

FIVE PERSONS KILLED

In a Collision Between Trains on the Harlem Railroad.

BREWSTERS, N. Y., Aug. 28.—A head and head collision occurred between trains No. 13 and No. 20, passenger trains between Ice Pond and Dykeman's, on the Harlem road. Five persons were killed.

Four persons were seriously injured and several others were slightly injured and many badly shaken up. Both engines are wrecks, and the accident blocked the main line for five hours.

The Pittsfield express is reported to have been running at a high rate of speed when the collision occurred. It was crowded with passengers, including the usual large complement of Saturday passengers for the Berkshire hills. A majority of those on the train were business men bound for fashionable resorts to spend Sunday with their families.

Physicians were hastily summoned to the scene, and the railroad men rendered every possible aid. Ambulances were ordered to meet the train carrying the wounded at the Grand Central depot.

The accident occurred on a curve on a deep cut, in sight of the New England road, whose tracks pass over those of the Harlem.

The wreck was peculiar in many respects. Both trains were going at a speed of 40 miles an hour, and when they came together it was with such force that the locomotives leaped 40 feet up one side of the bank and on to the telegraph wires, pulling them down.

The engines settled back on to the cars, and crushed them. Luckily the rear cars containing the passengers ran up against the mass and were not badly wrecked.

The accident was due to a wrong order sent out by the White Plains train dispatcher.

The conductors of both trains thought the orders were peculiar, and were consequently making all haste to gain the points they were ordered to. Each of the trains had three cars, and each car contained about 30 passengers. It is almost miraculous that more were not killed. The collision came without any warning.

A Rhode Island Victim.

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 28.—Among the unknown killed in the Long Island railroad disaster was one with a bunch of keys marked "J. J. Hyland, Westerly, R. I." No such person is yet known to have been in that town.

Insurance Company Not Satisfied.

TRENTON, Aug. 28.—Counsel for Mrs. Mattie Shann, who was recently tried for poisoning her son, and acquitted, has received notice to the effect that the Manhattan Life Insurance company refuses to pay the insurance on her son's life. There are two policies amounting together to $2000. The company says that the cause of death has not been satisfactorily established.

Big Guns Will Be There.

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 28.—Governor Matthews has received assurance from ex-President Harrison and Senator Voorhees that they would both be at the fair on Indiana day, Sept. 20.

Six Hundred Men Idle.

PITTSBURG, Aug. 28.—The Edgar Thompson steel works have closed down for repairs. About 600 men are laid off.

They Celebrated.

There was time of rejoicing among the Italian residents of Water street on Saturday evening. One of the Italian children had been christened and all the neighbors turned out to celebrate the event. Tables were constructed in the open air and loaded with viands around which all the members of the Italian colony gathered The celebration was kept up till a late hour.

Liquor Raid.

Liquor officer McGrath, assisted by Chief of Police Langley and officer Shackley, raided the premises of John Shatzel on Willard street this morning and seized one hundred gallons of hard cider.

—One of the largest hides ever tanned has just come from a San Francisco tannery. It is eight feet wide and 14 feet long, and weighs 700 pounds. It is one of a dozen or more walrus hides.

MONATIQUOT CLUB RACES.

Ex-Com. E. S. Hunt's Eulalie Takes the Silver Trophy.

Ex-Com. E. S. Hunt won his own cup Saturday, the handsome silver trophy he had offered for a general race of all boats in the Monatiquot yacht club, and scored another victory in his pretty jib and mainsail Eulalie, which won first prize in the Quincy open race last Saturday.

The conditions of the race were that all boats should start at the same gun and sail over the same course, allowances being figured as usual.

The little ones of the third class were obliged to compete with the big first-class boats, but on the other hand the big ones had a large allowance to overcome.

There was a light easterly wind as the boats ranged up for the starting line just off Fort point for the run to Channel rock buoy, with light sails ready to fill and spinnakers on deck.

Nearly all the little ones carried a jib or spinnaker, as there was no restriction to sails. The Eulalie was just on the line as the gun fired and started off with a good lead. The Opechee came next some distance behind, and the Beatrice, Gipsy, Posy, Mab, Aurisa and Don were bunched.

The Eulalie held the lead to the buoy; next came the Beatrice, which had made up a little on the two-minute handicap, and then came the Aurisa, making a great showing with her big spinnaker.

As the Aurisa rounded she fouled the buoy and Com. Faxon put her about and went around again just behind the Posy. The Eulalie was still at the head of the procession at Pig rocks, the Beatrice following with the others strung out.

The Opechee rounded third at wreck buoy, pushing in ahead of the Aurisa and Posy. The little Mab was doing good work in West gut, and with her ten minutes allowance was a winning boat.

The wind freshened on the beat from wreck buoy to Hull, and off Sheep island the Beatrice went to windward of the Eulalie and rounded the red buoy first.

The others were away behind and which should be the winner of the Hunt cup rested with these two boats. The Eulalie already had the allowance on the Beatrice, and on the run home held well up with Com. Cavanagh's prize winner and finished only 16 seconds behind.

Aside from the cup the usual club cash prize of $5 was offered in each class.

The winners were: first class, Beatrice, and third class, Mab. Judges, E. T. Jordan, Dana Smith, F. H. Cowing. Summary:

MANET BEACH.

Many News Items From This Popular Resort.

Sunday was an ideal beach day. A fact that was fully testified to by the large number of people that came down to the beach. Although it was exceptionally hot in Quincy, yet at the beach a cool east wind made it very comfortable.

Strange to say there were no band concerts and for the want of this weekly attraction, the place seemed rather desolate. All the sail and steam yachts and rowboats in the bay were in use and the owners made quite a little sum.

The usual serenity of the place was disturbed by the appearance of a woman in search of an officer. She said her name was Mrs. Tucker of Brockton, and she claimed that her husband was drunk and had horsewhipped her. She also said that a party of other Brockton people were encamped near the Willows and were selling liquor to her husband.

She told such a tale of cruelty that Officer Bissett and the LEDGER man went down to see what all the racket was about. Down near Capt. Dixon's cottage two or three parties were encamped. Mr. Tucker was found there also, and he said that his wife was crazy and had made trouble all day long.

He said that he had been obliged to leave her several times before. The other parties and his oldest boy also corroborated his story. The liquor that the parties had been drinking turned out to be root beer. The officer told the woman that she would have to get a warrant if she wanted her husband arrested.

The woman said she would do so and started to walk to Quincy to procure the necessary paper. She has not shown up yet and probably she went back to the camp and "made up" with her husband.

A number of young girls came out of the water yesterday and thinking themselves in need of more exercise tried their dexterity by doing some high kicking. One held a straw hat while the others kicked it or tried to. Many thought they were mermaids who had become tired of life under the ocean wave and had had sought the quiet of Houghs Neck to continue their deep sea revelries.

Raccoon Island presented a festive appearance on Sunday. It was the annual clamblake of the Brockton clam Eaters, and the manner in which the members devoured the luscious bivalves proved that they were what the title of their organization smplied. The house on the island was decorated with flags and streamers, while a large tent took the place of a dining hall.

The young men seemed to be enjoying themselves hugely and many an envious eye was directed towards the island all day long.

The committee in charge of the sports announced the programme in part to consist of band concert, Punch and Judy show, sailing party, from the Quincy Yacht Club House, skiff, swimming, tub, sack, foot and pleasure races. The fireworks to surpass any previous effort.

Polls close in the grand popularity contest today at 5 o'clock and the winner of the $100 lot will be announced in a few days.

Personal Gossip.

The start, course and finish of the Monatiquot Yacht Race on Saturday was easily discernable from the beach and a large crowd gathered on the green in front of Mears' to watch it.

Rev. Fr. Lockney, a Quincy boy, but who is now stationed in the northern part of Illinois, has been spending a few days with Mr. Thomas Elcock.

The following are registered at Pierce's hotel: Mrs. Arthur and daughter, Mr. Abenzeller, Mrs. Ellis Thayer, Mrs. Andrew Croak, Mr. Charles McCarty, Mr. and Mrs. Alton H. Mann of Stoughton; Mrs. Elbridge Ross, Stoughton; Miss Villa Ross, Mr. Owen West and Mr. Edward C. Pierce of Brockton.

Mr. F. C. Perry has arrived at Mr. Peterson's cottage. Mr. Perry has been sketching around Cape Ann and he has brought home some fine pictures. He has made a very fine sketch of Monday's storm along the North Shore.

Mr. Walter D. Packard, well known in Brockton musical circles, and other artists give sacred concerts at Pierce's every Sunday.

A very successful and well attended dance was held at Pierces' Saturday night. The hall was profusely decorated with wild flowers and presented a very pretty appearance. Lucas' Orchestra furnished the music. On illumination day there will be a dance at this place in the afternoon and evening.

Quincy Cycle Club.

The two Quincy men who entered the bicycle races at Natick last Saturday met with hard luck. Dunn had the lead in the mile handicaped with a good prospect of winning when he was run into from the rear which threw him against the fence cutting a deep gash in his leg and rendering him unconscious. He was taken from the track and after having his wounds dressed he came home.

Parsons the other Quincy man in the races had a lead in his class and was driving his wheel at a rapid pace. So intent was he however that he mistook the half-mile post for the finishing line and when this was passed he slowed up allowing the other contestants to pass and thus lost the race.

The club will attend the open house of the Union club of Dorchester tonight in a body leaving the club house at 7.15.

The moonlight run postponed from last week will be held this week Thursday evening starting at 7.30. If the evening is pleasant those who participate will enjoy a beautiful moonlight trip. All riders especially ladies are invited to participate.

The fact that the club will keep open house at the Houghs Neck illumination, Wednesday evening, is too well known to need any extended mention.

Funeral of Mrs. Ripley.

Funeral services over the remains, of Mrs. Rosanna B. Ripley were held Sunday afternoon from her late residence on Cross street, and were largely attended by her many friends and neighbors; also by the assistant engineers and a large delegation from the fire department.

The services were conducted by Rev. H. A. Philbrook and were very impressive.

After the services at the house the remains were escorted by the firemen to Hall cemetery for interment; the following members acting as pall bearers: Capt. P. S. Morris, Assistant Engineman, M. P. Barry, Assistant Engineer Arthur P. Merritt, Capt. D. J. Nyhan and Capt. Frank Burrell.

Among the floral tributes was a pillow from the central fire station; crescent from the Firemen's Relief Association and cross from the assistant engineers.

Ratio of Silver to Gold.

The present ratio of silver to gold in the coins of the United States was established sixty years ago. It is known as the ratio of 16 to 1. That is, there are sixteen times as many grains of silver in the silver dollar as there are grains of gold in the gold dollar. Sixteen gold dollars will balance one silver dollar in the scales, and a little more, for the exact weights of the two metals in the dollar coins are 412.5 grains of silver and 25.8 grains of gold. When this ratio was established, 412.5 grains of silver equalled in value almost exactly 25.8 grains of gold; twenty years ago this weight of silver was worth three cents more than the gold; today it is worth about sixty cents less. In order to bring about an equality of intrinsic value between the silver and gold dollar coins at the present rates, it would be neccessary to add 310 grains of silver to the silver dollar coin. This would make the ratio 28 to 1, and it would give us a dollar weighing more than an ounce and a half—a very awkward coin to carry in the pocket or anywhere else. Indeed, the difficulties involved in a change of ratio are so many and so great as to forbid its serious consideration.—Boston Commonwealth.

Marriage In Vacation Time.

A young man came in from the country the other day with a pretty girl. They came to get married, and they wanted to be married by a well known clergyman. That was a notion of the girl's. They took a cab to the house of the Rev. Dr. MacArthur at 358 West Fifty-seventh street. The house was closed. Then they drove to the house of Dr. W. H. P. Faunce of the Fifth Avenue Baptist church. It is at 2 West Forty-sixth street and was closed. Dr. John R. Paxton's residence is down the same street, across the way, at 51. They went there. It was closed. Next they tried 323 Madison avenue, where Dr. E. Walpole Warren lives. Blinds were down and doors locked tight. They next drove to 342 on the same avenue. David H. Greer, the famous rector of St. Bartholomew's, lives there when he is at home, but he is not at home. His house was boarded up tight.

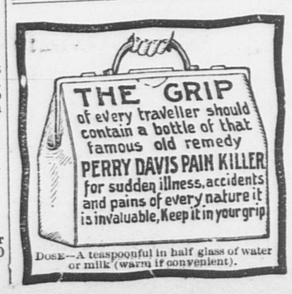

Then they tried Dr. Hall's beautiful residence at 712 Fifth avenue. They thanked heaven, for it was evidently inhabited. But the maid disappointed them by saying that Dr. Hall had gone to Europe for three weeks. Then the young man looked up 15 more well known clergymen in the directory and drove to each one of their houses. Every one, without exception, was out of town. Then the couple went home and were married by a justice of the peace. The young man thinks New York clergymen ought not to complain of lack of vacations.—New York Press.

Clairvoyance In Boston.

Clairvoyance is the midsummer madness in Boston. This view is not admitted. A Boston woman says that in hot weather the next thing to taking off the flesh and sitting in one's bones is to have dealings with the occult. Whatever phase may be put upon it, in a large circle of people in Boston whose doings are regarded as of consequence, each has his or her clairvoyant, and women exchange and recommend mediums as they do books or patterns. It is needless to say that although this new diversion is not discussed publicly the very highest view is taken of it. Under the shadow of Harvard and Professor James it has a scientific aspect.

A woman who would describe herself as earnest says that in her opinion the medium gets into communication with her higher self—not the medium who most likely lives up back stairs in a disheveled Mother Hubbard and does not necessarily have a higher self. This communion with the visitor's subconsciousness transcends all mind reading. These mediums are consulted in the gravest matters of business and affairs. In one case a rich man had died, and his will could not be found. A clairvoyant was consulted, who said he had gone into his grave with the will in his coat-tail pocket. The body was exhumed, and sure enough the man had his will with him.—New York Evening Sun.

The French photographer, M. Marey, has succeeded in photographing a dragon fly on the wing. The time of exposure was only 1-2500 of a second.

DOSE—A teaspoonful in half glass of water or milk (warm if convenient).

The longest horse car line in the world is in Argentina—50 miles.

IN THE ART GALLERY.

Place of Great Attraction at the Exposition.

PICTURES OF THE VIRGIN MARY.

The Painter Invariably Makes Her According to His Own Nationality—The Impressions of One Who Is Completing His Education in Art—Interesting Relics of Ancient Art from India.

WORLD'S FAIR, Aug. 25.—[Special.]—I have been very industrious lately, completing my education in art, and the first point I mastered—that is to say, got it down fine—was that art has at least one striking resemblance to literature of the newspaper sort. It is this: There is just one first-class way to do a thing, perhaps two or three so so ways, and then about a thousand bad ways. And the average beginner, he who is not a wonderful genius, does not know which is the bad way till he has tried it once or twice. People often say, "There is a right way and a wrong way to do anything." It's a great mistake. There may be but one right way, but there are very many wrong ways. And the more artistic a job might be the more wrong ways there are to do it.

I find also that the persons who go oftenest to the Art palace have their own definition of art. It does not mean painting or sculpture only. It means anything in which thought or a sense of beauty is fixed in a visible form, and so they class all sorts of things in gold, silver, bronze, leather, wood, glass, and even butter, tallow and lard, as works of art. There is a lard hog in one of the exhibits to which a friend called my attention as a curious work of art. Says I, "Do you call that art. To me it is almost repulsive." Says he, "That's the beauty of the hog—it is artistically ugly." I had not thought of that. In the same class I suppose belongs the ivory "Ganesa" in the Hindoo exhibit. It looks to me like a fat woman with an elephant's head on her, but they say it is art. But to return to the Art palace.

All the cultured ones I know say that this exhibit shows how modern painters are rapidly coming to care less about mere beauty than the expression of truth and that as this goes on painting is popularized. Sculpture moves much more slowly in the same direction. Pursuant to advice of a cultured friend I attempted to see and understand all the pictures of the Virgin, and when I got through with it the only really clear idea I had about them was that expressed once by Mark Twain—that the painter had invariably made her a Dutch, a French, an English or woman of some other people according to his own nationality, but not one had ever made her what she was—a Jewess. The question at once rose in my mind—Is it the same with the pictures of Christ? I examined many more carefully and found that several painters had given Him a really Jewish cast of face, somewhat idealized of course; but why this distinction between the Christ and the Virgin I cannot imagine. It is of course absurd to suppose that Mary looked like a stout, blonde Flemish woman, but she is so represented in several pictures here.

I note also that as there are many more wrong ways than right ways, so there are very few types of beauty and many of ugliness. Those who picture ugliness therefore have an immense advantage. I wonder if this is the reason why any schoolboy can draw a caricature of the teacher while not one in a hundred can make even a passable outline drawing of the girl he likes. They tell me that in the American section there is no really distinct type of female beauty and that many years will probably pass before we have one, but of my own knowledge I haven't the thing down that fine yet. In the British section these same cultured friends go into raptures over a picture by Frederick Leighton representing the daughters of Hesperus with the dragon, and say the female forms present the truly ideal beauty. The picture is indeed beautiful, but it is evident that the Hesperides are "quite English."

I have, as aforesaid, some very cultured friends in Chicago, and they all agree that a certain "Psyche" in the German section (the catalogue credits it to Paul Thumann) is absolutely free from any trace of a race or local type—that is, it presents the purely ideal woman. I am therefore using it for educational purposes and am beginning to flatter myself that I see what they mean. It is a delicately outlined blonde figure, with gossamer wings, leaning over the water to see the reflection therein, and every group of women who come near it break out in exclamations of delight. As to working one's nationality into a picture I think the French are more given to that than the English and Americans, especially in military scenes. So far as I have examined their great victories show in the pictures that they were victories, but in the scenes of 1870 there is nothing to show which side whipped. On second thought, however, I do not remember seeing in any of our capitols a picture of Americans running from British or Mexicans or Indians, though they certainly did it a few times. As to all the rest of the 5,000 and odd pictures in the Art palace, of course they have "tone" and "depth" and "finish" and "chiaro-oscuro" and all the other things pictures ought to have. And this is all I know (and considerable more) of high art at present.

The relics of ancient art interest me aside from any idea of beauty because they represent so much history, and in the Anthropological building is one very curious collection of articles discovered only two years ago. It is supposed to be the remains of a school of art which was founded in the extreme northwestern part of India during the short period the Greeks held that region. Perhaps it is only the result of an overflow of Greek ideas from Persia during the period that Alexander's successors ruled there. At any rate it shows an overlapping, so to speak, of Greek forms, faces and ideals on a Buddhist basis. To put it in other words the figures show Buddhist ceremonies and indicate that to have been the faith the artist meant to gratify, but he has either followed Greek models or was so far a Greek that he worked his nationality into the figures just as these Dutch painters have made the Virgin Mary a stout blonde.

The most complete group is on a small slab which Surgeon Captain Stoney of the British army found in 1891. There are thirteen figures of which eleven are entire. In the front is Buddha sitting cross-legged on a throne, over him a lotus leaf canopy. He is pouring oil on the head of a boy and the attendant priests are conducting the religious ceremonies. The action is Hindoo, but the faces are Greek. Another figure, unearthed by H. C. Thomson just after Surgeon Stoney's discovery had caused a general search, represents an orator. It is pure Greek throughout, face, form and costume and is so much like the famous statue of Demosthenes at Athens that some think it represents that orator. As the find was in the Peshawer district which Alexander conquered in 330 B. C., this is not entirely improbable, though from their political relations I cannot see why the conqueror should have had that orator commemorated there.

Buddhism is always to be spoken of with profound respect because it is the faith of one-third of the human race, but it certainly is not a very artistic faith. And looking on this odd combination of the art of one nation with the faith of another I am again impressed with the old, old problem: How did it happen that a faith so lightly held, if indeed it could be called a faith, as the mythology of the ancient Greeks, gave form to the most beautiful and most enduring of all developments of art? With a sort of rude humor the exhibitors have surrounded these beautiful and curious figures with the queerest array of unsightly gods in the whole building. There are gods of stone, wood, bone, shells and feathers, and some that look like sun-baked mud, from the south seas and Alaska, from the Maoris of New Zealand and the Gaboon in Africa. They are classed, however, as objects of superstition, not of art.

It requires no education in art to appreciate the big trees which are so numerous here. They appeal equally to the untaught and the most cultured and the section of the great Sequoia which stands in the rotunda of the Government building always has a great crowd about it, gazing in silent wonder. It is thirty feet in length, with a diameter at the base of twenty-six feet and a circumference of eighty-one and a half feet. The tree was 300 feet high and this section was cut from it at twenty feet from the ground. It is a curious fact in giant botany that on every part of that great mountain range, that is on the western slope, and at about the same elevation, big timber grows, from far down in California to far up in British Columbia.

THE BIG TREE IN GOVERNMENT BUILDING.

In the northern part of California I once journeyed seventy miles through a forest where, so far as I could see, no axe had ever been used. The trees ranged from one to ten feet in diameter, with a few much larger; they rose about 100 feet without a limb and their spreading tops were so thickly joined that for an hour's travel at a time one never found the sun's rays striking the earth. Far above the sighing of the wind was heard and the higher branches could be seen swaying before it, but down among the mammoth trunks there was a dead calm. Now vast strips of that wonderful region bear nothing but stumps, but the figures in the Washington building still claim 23,000,000 acres of unbroken forest for that state, on which are still standing the raw materials of 410,000,000,000 feet of sound inch lumber, worth as it stands $260,000,000. "And," adds one exhibitor with grim humor, "your goll derned congress can't demonetize that."

Mrs. Mary Miller, who owns a generous tract of this tall timber, selected the straightest and prettiest "stick" she could find on her land for a flagstaff for the Washington building. It is straight as an arrow and was 228 feet long, but in bringing it down to the railroad twenty-three feet was broken off, so, as they say, "our state has to put up with a little weed of a flagstaff only 205 feet high." More than one-fourth the entire population of the state depends on the lumber industries for labor and business, but as 1,000,000 acres of splendid coal lands are already located and opened enough to prove them, and there is much more, that interest must eventually be greater. The big trees of California are shown in many places and the whole Forestry building is itself an exhibit, being composed of every kind of logs and bark from every state in the Union. It illustrates the forestry wealth of the world in a general way and of the United States in complete detail.

It is observable that each day for special state, race or national exhibit increases in interest. Today is for the colored people, tomorrow for Missouri, the 30th for the grocers and the 31st for the Netherlands and the Ottoman empire, but no extensive programmes are made out. Sept. 1 is Nicaragua day and Sportsman's day. On the 4th comes the Welsh Eisteddfod which will be a wonderful affair, of course. The games of all nations and races excite universal interest and as such performances increase so the attendance increases.

J. B. PARKE.

One of the most magnificent views of the fair is from Lake Michigan at night. Steaming down from the city, the shore lights gleam and twinkle all the way and the fair itself is an illumined dream. The fireworks cast red lights on the enormous white buildings and the peristyle stands glowing against the lighted grand basin, with its surmounting statues outlined against the drifting smoke. Shouts of the crowds on shore float out across the iridescent waves, the crash of bombs re-echo doubly, stars shower about one and the smoke from rockets high in the air takes on odd, fantastic shapes.

The poets will celebrate Aug. 29 at the fair. Director of Works Burnham, Mr. Frank Millet and artists are at work preparing for the day. Mr. Henry Lee will spend his time at Jackson park supervising the artistic preparations and Mr. Duncan Harrison is now in New York closing up the arrangements for the appearance of some noted players. An open air production of "As You Like It" will be given Fulfillment.

No one fulfills the plan of his creation
Who cannot say
That he has led one soul from willful blindness
Into the day.

We may not stand on some high mountain summit
With wisdom crowned
And see a brother lie in human weakness
Low on the ground.

We cannot reach the blessed land of promise
By one swift flight,
But step by step, not halting in our weakness.
We reach the light.

If we but make a ladder of our failings
And round by round
Climb up, a helping hand outstretching,
Rest will be found.

Our welcome will be warmer at the ending
If it be known
That we have helped some struggling, fainting brother
To stand alone.

Result of a Sunday Row.

SOMERVILLE, Mass., Aug. 28.—Malone's block was the scene of a vicious conflict yesterday between Lawrence Kennedy and one Foley. Both live in the same building, and they got into an altercation which resulted in Kennedy's head receiving a blow from a teapot in the hands of Foley. The cut was four inches long and required several stitches. Foley is still at large.

A Speculation on Death.

When the typhoid fever epidemic was at its height, when cases were being reported daily and everybody expected that there would be many deaths from the disease, one local flower firm decided to make a speculation on death. It was figured out that there would be an unusual number of deaths and that this would cause a demand for an unusual number of floral pieces. In the manufacture of floral pieces moss is an absolute necessity, and the peculiar kind that is used comes from Oregon and Washington. The firm in question thought to make a speculation by ordering a quantity of this moss early and running a corner in it. The moss has arrived and has been placed in storage. But out of all the cases of typhoid fever the deaths have numbered less than 25, and there is one firm that has moss enough on hand for several years.—San Francisco Examiner.

The Largest Cargo of Hay.

When the British bark Kelverdale sails for Havre from Baltimore, she will carry the largest full cargo of hay yet shipped from this country to Europe. The only other full cargo of hay shipped previously was carried by the German ship Freiburg from New York to Havre, and consisted of 400 tons. The Baltimore Shipping company has chartered the Kelverdale to carry 600 tons. The company has also chartered the British steamship Sir William Armstrong to load 500 tons of hay for Havre.—Baltimore Sun.

Why Do They Employ Such Tricks?

Some of the New York dailies are trying to make a farce of journalism. One of them prints a couple of unnamed pictures, one of a society belle and the other of a factory girl, and asks its readers to guess from the portraits which is which. Another New York paper invites Christian people to send in their replies to the question, "Has God answered your prayers?" and to relate their experiences in this direction. The silly season is at its height in some of the New York newspaper offices.—Rochester Herald.

The Missouri's Current.

The current in the Missouri river is at times something remarkable. For a week past the river at its mouth has been a raging maelstrom, and so swift that several steamboats were tied up at the mouth waiting for it to subside. The government steamboat Stone tried several times to breast the terrible current, but each time was swept back into the Mississippi, and only succeeded in making the ascent at all when the Mississippi rose and checked the velocity of the Big Muddy.—Alton Sentinel.

A DOUBLE TRAGEDY.

Andrew Gibson Uses a Razor on Charles Connors' Throat.

LIVES BUT A FEW MINUTES.

Murderer Inflicts Fatal Injuries Upon Himself.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Aug. 28.—Andrew Gibson, aged 45, cut the throat of Charles Connors, aged 30, with a razor and afterward ran through the fields for 30 minutes slashing and tearing his own throat, until he inflicted wounds from which he died. The tragedy took place between 11:15 and 12:15 Saturday night, but Gibson did not die until 6 o'clock Sunday morning.

Just after 11 o'clock Connors was going toward his home, with a companion, when they heard cries of "murder" coming from a window in a four-story tenement house, 1 Healy street, in the eastern part of the city. Connors left his companion and ran up stairs toward the place from which the cries were coming.

At the head of the stairway he was met by Gibson, who was flourishing a razor. Before Connors could learn what was the difficulty, Gibson made a slash at his throat and cut a gash 8 1-4 inches in length. Connors ran down stairs and crossed the street and ran into John Doyle's restaurant, where he fell upon the floor and died in about 15 minutes without making any intelligible statement.

Acted Like a Crazy Man.

Meanwhile Gibson, clad only in his night shirt, had run into the street and crossed over into some lots near the baseball ground yelling like a maniac. He was flourishing a razor and at times drawing it across his throat. He was disarmed and taken to the city hospital. Gibson talked rationally and said he thought Connors was going to kill him.

Connors was unmarried and was the only support of his widowed mother. Gibson was married to the woman whose cries attracted Connors, and she says that her husband was all right Saturday, and that they went to bed about 9:30. He awoke and began moving about the room. She became frightened and ran to the window and called for help. Gibson was a drinking man, and last week was attended by a doctor for over indulgence.

IMPIOUS COLORED MEN.

Engage In a Small Riot With Some Police Officers.

BOSTON, Aug. 28.—A small-sized riot occurred in front of the colored people's church at the corner of Charles and Mt. Vernon streets about 9 o'clock last evening, and as a result a young colored man William Fitzgerald, is under arrest on the charge of profanity. Besides Fitzgerald's arrest, a large number of his comrades who were present departed in haste and with very painful heads.

For some time past the members of the church have been annoyed by a crowd of young colored men who would range themselves in front of the church edifice as the congregation were passing out and would enjoy themselves by ogling the female members and often passing insulting remarks about them.

Last evening Officer A'Hern was sent to the scene, and finding the crowd present as usual ordered them to move along. The fellows refused to go, and Fitzgerald, is is alleged, used profane and abusive language to the officer. A'Hern attempted to place the young man under arrest, when he was assaulted by the whole gang, who were using him pretty roughly when Sergeant Tighe came upon the scene, and the two officers, by the free use of their clubs, dispersed the mob.

A'Hern managed to keep his hold on his prisoner, who was finally landed in the station house. A'Hern sustained a cut on the head from a stick, and has a black eye this morning, but many of his assailants fared no better.

PLUCKY SALLIE FOSTER

Almost Loses Her Life In a Fight With a Burglar.

CLAREMONT, N. H., Aug. 28.—Miss Sallie Foster, a night nurse at the New Cottage hospital, took a lamp and started to enter the kitchen, but at the threshold encountered a burglar, knife in hand, creeping into the reception room. The man seized her by the apron, tearing it off during the scuffle that ensued.

Miss Foster showed great nerve, seizing the burglar by the throat and attempting to shove him into the kitchen. The man finally struck Miss Foster between the eyes with some instrument, and she fell unconscious. The man escaped through the window.

A butcher knife and an axe, which had been taken from a chopping block the night before, were found outside the house, the axe resting under the open window.

Miss Foster recognized the man as a tramp who called Friday night at the hospital, asking for money with which to buy food. On being told there was none in the house, as it was a hospital, he asked if the institution contained men, and was told that there was only one man in the institution.

The supposition is that the man thought there must be money in the house, and was creeping in to secrete himself until he had an opportunity to search, when he encountered Miss Foster. Miss Foster has a bad cut on the forehead, and her arm is badly bruised.

TROUBLE FOR DOCTORS

Grows Out of the Death of Unfortunate Maggie Schloss.

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 28.—The true story of the guilty physician who performed the operation on Maggie Schloss has been divulged. It involves two prominent local physicians, one a young and extremely popular practitioner, and the other one of the oldest and most eminently reputable in this state.

William Cash of Ansonia went with her to Dr. George E. Whitten, at his office in this city, early in August, and there he performed a criminal operation and received the sum of $125 from her. He refused to take further part in the affair, turning it over to Dr. J. Edward Lee of this city, who met Cash and Miss Schloss at the Elliott House Aug. 16 and completed the operation.

The hotel proprieter, learning of the affair, ordered them out of his house. Miss Schoss was obliged to depart, weak and exhausted. She went to the Dayton House, where she died Aug. 21.

Dr. Lee was placed under arrest and released on $10,000 bonds. Dr. Whitten has just been arrested. The case will be tried Sept. 6.

CASE OF HYDROPHOBIA

Which Resulted In the Death of a Young Malden Girl.

MALDEN, Mass., Aug. 28.—Gertrude Connolly, 8 years of age, died at the Malden hospital after suffering terribly since Saturday morning from spasms.

Six weeks ago, while walking on Pearl street, she was bitten about the face and neck by a large black dog, the owner of which is unknown. After the child had been bitten the animal was cornered by several men and driven into a doghouse in a neighboring yard, and Officer Sweeney shot the animal. The child's wounds were cauterized, and nothing serious was thought of the matter.

On Thursday the girl went into her father's store for a drink, and was offered a glass of tonic. She attempted to drink it, but could not, and went into spasms, from which she died yesterday.

LAUDANUM KILLED HER.

Rash Act of a Bridgeport Woman Who Was Crazed by Jealousy.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Aug. 28.—Ida Gildersleeve, aged 16 years, wife of James Gildersleeve, a carpenter, died yesterday from laudanum. Her husband gave her his week's wages Saturday night. Later his brother called, and the husband asked for half a dollar.

At first the wife refused to give it to him, but she finally became frenzied and threw the pocketbook at him, saying that if he preferred his brother to her, he might go. The men left the house and the woman followed. She borrowed money of a neighbor, purchased the laudanum, and, after her husband came home, took the drug.

The couple had been married six months. Mrs. Gildersleeve was extremely jealous.

A NEW NEWSPAPER

To Be Run In the Interest of Independence For Canada.

LEWISTON, Me., Aug. 28.—Lewiston is to have a new eight-page weekly newspaper, one-half printed in French. The first issue will appear Sept. 1. It will be edited by a Mr. Montigny, who has conducted a paper in Manchester, N. H., while the business department will be managed by Fred Maellette of this city.

Leaders of the Canadian independence movement have subscribed $1000 toward starting the paper. Its name will be Independence and will be recognized as the official organ of the Canadian independence movement for New England. The paper will also advocate high license.

Nearly 3000 subscribers have been secured in the New England manufacturing towns, where ex-Premier Mercier of Quebec recently lectured, and the projectors of the enterprise feel confident of success.

An Unknown Woman's Death.

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 28.—An unknown woman died in an apopleptic fit on board the steamer C. H. Northam on its way from New York to this city. She was about 22 years old, well dressed and prepossessing in appearance. She occupied a stateroom, where she was found dead by the purser. An article of clothing indicated that she lived on Third avenue, New York. The body is here awaiting identification.

Bay State Democratic Convention.

BOSTON, Aug. 28.—The Democratic state committee has named Congressman O'Neil as chairman of the coming convention. The state convention will be held in Music hall, Boston. It was voted to request Josiah Quincy to withdraw his resignation as chairman of the committee.

Diamond Tips.

Rusie has pitched in seven consecutive victories.

The Scranton (Pa.) club is after Dan Richardson.

The Louisvilles are getting dangerously near the Chicagos.

Pitcher Dwyer of the Cincinnatis is certainly doing superb work.

Ward leads in stolen bases, but Tom Brown is not far behind him.

The Empire Tobacco company's factory at Montreal was burned. Loss $40,000.

Anson says that the New Yorks are playing the best ball in the league, barring Boston.

Clark of the Brocktons is one of the most graceful fielders in the New England league and a good hitter.

Manager Manning has received many compliments for the excellent way he conducted the Savannah club this year.

Bumpus Jones has "jumped" the Providence club, and Dunning, late of the Brocktons, has been secured in his place.

The attendance at the Brooklyn games has been so meager that bicycle races were brought in Saturday in addition to the game.

The New Yorks had won 20 games out of 26 played up to and including Friday. In the same time the Bostons had won 26 out of 29.

The Pittsburgs seem to be the same old losers on the road, even with Glasscock in the ranks, if four straight defeats show anything.

Fred Clausen, secured by Chicago, was released by Louisville and joined the southern league, winning 18 out of 21 for the Macon club.

The Dovers will put their crack young pitcher Mercer against the Bostons at Dover next Friday. The Dovers have a very strong aggregation.

Hawley of the St. Louis struck out the Baltimores in one inning at Baltimore last Wednesday. It is not often that this is done by visiting pitchers.

Now we have it again from New York that even the champion Bostons could not beat them in their present form. The same claim was made after they had won three out of four in New York, but Boston took three straight at home easily enough.

FAMOUS CASE SETTLED.

Decision Concerning Mt. Washington and the Summit House.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Aug. 28.—Judge Putnam rendered a decision in the celebrated case of Coe & Pingree, trustees, against Walter Aiken, the Mt. Washington Railway company and the Concord and Montreal railroad, involving the title to Mt. Washington and the ownership of the Summit House.

The case was on trial here in the United States circuit court for two days. Judge Putnam decided in favor of the plaintiffs, holding that the defendants could not dispute the title to the summit of Mt. Washington held by the plaintiffs, and that they were entitled to a conveyance of the Summit House from the defendants.

He further ordered defendants to account to plaintiffs for the rents and profits of the Summit House received by them since 1889. The court will appoint a master to adjust the details of the decree.

FIGHT FOR REPEAL.

A Big Majority Recorded Against the Bland Amendments.

VOTE PLEASES CARLISLE.

The Secretary's Views on the Present Stringency.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—The practical outcome of the votes to be taken in the house was conceded on all hands to be the defeat of every proposition relating to the free coinage of silver at any ratio with gold and also of the resolution reviving the Bland-Allison act of 1878. This much was freely admitted by Representative Bland, the leader of the silver forces.

After the reading of the journal, Mr. Weaver of New York appeared at the bar of the house and was sworn in by the speaker. The resolution contained in the order of procedure on the silver question was reported by the clerk, providing for a vote first upon free coinage of silver at the present ratio of 16 to 1.

Representative Bailey of Texas asked if, in the event of all the amendments included in the order being defeated, it would be in order to propose an additional amendment germane to the subject?

Speaker Crisp replied that as at present advised he would answer no; that the order provides exhaustively all that the house may consider, but that when the time came to formally present the question the gentleman from Texas might be heard.

Representative McMillin of Tennessee desired to offer an amendment providing for the free coinage of the product of the silver mines of the United States, but Mr. Bland objected to even having it read, saying that such a proposition was not free coinage at all.

Progress of the Voting.

The first vote on the bill for the repeal of the silver purchasing clauses of the Sherman law was taken shortly after 12 o'clock yesterday afternoon, the point being the first amendment, which calls for free coinage at a ratio of 16 to 1. It was defeated by a majority of 225 nays to 123 yeas.

The vote on the second amendment, which proposes a ratio of 17 to 1, was defeated by a vote of 240 to 100.

The vote on the 18 to 1 ratio was still another bad defeat for the silver men, being 239 to 102 against its adoption.

There was a majority of 132 against the 19 to 1 proposition.

The vote on the 20 to 1 proposition was nays 222, yeas 119.

The Wilson bill was then passed by a vote of 240 to 109.

In one sense the voting in the house was uninteresting. When it was seen that the anti-silver men were in a strong majority upon the first vote taken the galleries relapsed into their usual buzz of conversation and on the floor the victors and vanquished alike retired to the cloak rooms to fight the great battle over again in a genial mood. The silver men felt chagrined at their overwhelming defeat, but they took their overthrow philosophically and found in their late opponents men who were too generous to say anything ungracious.

Better Than Carlisle Expected.

All the members of the administration took the greatest interest in the votes on the Wilson bill, Secretary Carlisle especially, in his office in the treasury, where the official announcement of the several votes were seen as soon as they were flashed across the wires. When the first vote was received, which showed that free coinage at the ratio of 16 to 1 was beaten by 102 majority, he said the majority was greater than he had anticipated, and that he would have been satisfied with 60 majority. At the conclusion of all the votes, Secretary Carlisle stated to a representative of the American Press that he was much gratified at the result and felt that it would do much to restore public confidence.

He expressed the hope "that the senate would take speedy action on the silver question." In the course of a conversation, Secretary Carlisle was asked if the present stringency was due to a lack of money. He refuted the idea, and among other things said:

"No greater mistake could be committed than to assume that the present financial embarrassment is caused by an actual scarcity of money in the country. The fact is that the amount of currency of all kinds in the country, outside of the United States treasury, on the 25th day of the present month was $58,452,350 greater than the amount outstanding on the first day of the month, and $70,294,783 more than the amount outstanding on the first day of September, 1892, when business was active and prosperous. There is money enough to transact all the legitimate business of the people, but the difficulty is that it has been withdrawn from circulation and hoarded. The true remedy is to restore confidence and credit, and thus put the money now in the country in circulation again."

The Day In the Senate.

The question of the right of the governor of a state to appoint a senator to fill a vacancy caused by the expiration of a regular term, (and not happening by resignation or otherwise) was decided by the senate in the negative. The final votes in the two cases from Montana and Washington declaring Mr. Mantle and Allen not entitled to seats were 32 to 29. There was no vote necessary to be taken in the third of these cases—that from Wyoming—Mr. Beckwith having resigned his appointment more than a month ago.

The remainder of the day's session was occupied in the consideration of the bill allowing national banks to increase their circulation up to the par value of the bonds deposited by them to secure circulation. The amendment which Mr. Cockrell had offered some time ago, to allow the redemption of the 25,000,000 2 per cent bonds, and payment for them in a new issue of legal tender notes, was rejected, 23 to 29. Another amendment was offered by Mr. Cockrell, and discussed at great length to allow the holders of any United States bonds to deposit them in the treasury, receive their face value in greenbacks and, on repaying the greenbacks, get back their bonds, with the interest, which had accrued on them while in the treasury, less 1 1-2 per cent. No action was taken. The house bill to repeal the Sherman act was laid before the senate and referred to the committee on finance, Mr. Voorhees, chairman of that committee, announcing that there would be prompt action by the committee. The senate adjourned at 5 p. m.

PEARY'S ACTIONS

Likely to Wreck the Expedition In Search of the North Pole.

ST. JOHNS, N. F., Aug. 29.—Further discouraging news concerning the Peary expedition comes from Labrador by the mail steamer. According to the last report, Peary was at Davis' inlet on Aug. 2, and on the fifth had reached Nain. There he tried again to purchase dogs, but failed, so Peary left for Okkak, but was unable to get dogs there either. Peary offered the Esquimanx 40 cents each for dogs, but as they are worth $5 each the Esquimaux would not sell. Then he announced his intention of going farther north to secure dogs, and he would depend on getting dogs at Disco, Greenland, as a last resort.

Dogs are now doubly necessary to Peary, as the burros all perished before Nain was reached, and consequently it is impossible for the expedition to accomplish anything without a far greater number of dogs than at first considered necessary. It is believed here that Peary's actions are suicidal, and that if he was determined to wreck the whole expedition he could not adopt better means. The steamer has been delayed a month behind her regular time, rendering problematical if she reaches her destination at all, and it is almost certain that she will be frozen up before the cargo and supplies are unloaded. The prospect is a very black one indeed.

SIX PERSONS DROWNED

By the Capsizing of a Pleasure Boat on Lake Champlain.

WHITEHALL, N. Y., Aug. 29.—George P. Witherbee of Port Henry, and six young companions, who were sailing in Witherbee's yacht, the Alpha, were capsized in Lake Champlain yesterday. Witherbee and five of the boys were drowned. Their names were: William Gildea, 13 years old; William Broadner, 14 years; Eddie Jubert, 13; and John Whitman, 12 years, all of Port Henry, and Albert Brush, 20 years, of Brooklyn, N. Y., who was a guest of Jubert. Joseph LaBarge, 11 years old, saved himself by swimming to the Vermont shore. The yacht wae a 24-footer, and was considered a strong one.

Witherbee was 22 years old and an all-around athlete. He was graduated from Cornell college in June and was elected captain of the 'varsity football team shortly before graduating. Witherbee died in a heroic effort to save young Brush's life. The yacht was raised, but none of the bodies of the victims had been found up to 9 o'clock last evening, when four were recovered.

FRANCE'S LATEST MOVE

Will Necessitate Some Figuring on the Part of Siam.

BANGKOK, Aug. 29.—It is learned that the Siame prime minister has gone to Bangpan for the purpose of consulting with the king on the hitch in the negotiations with the French government. It is believed that the demand of the French envoy for the dismissal of European officers from the Siamese government is directed against those concerned in the firing upon the French gunboats. The envoy has also insisted that exclusive concessions for all public works in the province of Battambang and Angkor and on the right bank of the Mekong river be given to the French.

Emma Wasn't There.

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—About 100 anarchists assembled in Henkle's hall, Hoboken, last night for the purpose of holding a mass meeting. The anarchists expected that Emma Goldman would be present to speak, but as there is a warrant for her arrest she did not appear. Three or four speeches were made by the anarchists. The speakers were not introduced by names, but as "the friend of the workingmen."

Murderous Egyptians Arrested.

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—The Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian church has received a letter from Secretary of State Gresham announcing the arrest in Turkey of the natives concerned in the assault upon Miss Melson, last June. The Turkish officials were spurred to action through the efforts of the United States minister at Constantinople.

All's Well That Ends Well.

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—The Times today says: General Hamilton and his wife have been reunited, and by the terms of a verbal agreement will live together in either this city or Washington. The general was very penitent, and when the reconciliation was brought about there was a touching scene.

Emperor William Presided.

COBURG, Aug. 29.—A grand banquet was given in the ducal palace yesterday afternoon. Emperor William occupied the center of the table. All the members of the royal family now here, with their suites, and the ministers of state were present.

Reduction on Union Pacific.

OMAHA, Aug. 29.—General Manager Dickinson of the Union Pacific, at a conference with switchmen, told them that on Sept. 1 there would probably be a general reduction of wages of at least 10 per cent. It is not thought that there will be a strike.

Looking After Wreckers.

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Aug. 29.—Within the past month two attempts have been made near Whitehouse to wreck a fast express train on the Central Railroad of New Jersey. A determined effort is being made to find out who the wreckers are.

FORTY LIVES LOST

And Much Property Destroyed by a Terrible Cyclone.

SOUTHERN TOWNS SUFFER.

Communication Cut Off by Prostration of Wires.

SAVANNAH, Aug. 29.—Forty lives were lost and millions of dollars worth of property destroyed in this neighborhood by a storm. Nine barks have been blown ashore.

The wires are almost useless, but meager details of great loss of life and property comes from Brunswick, further south along the coast. Trees have been wrecked and the indications are that a path marked by wind and rain has been made across this state and South Carolina to Charlotte, N. C., and from there towards the coast again to Petersburg, Va.

The wind began rising early yesterday afternoon and was soon blowing heavily. Houses were crushed and their occupants killed. Roofs were wrenched from their moldings and the loss to the stores by the rain which followed the wild rush of winds was very heavy.

Out on the water the elements battled until no one knows how badly shipping fared. The loss of life must be heavy for few craft could weather such a storm.

The people here and at Brunswick, had warning of the coming storm and took to flight. But for this the loss of life would have been terrible. Whole rows of houses are wrecked and everything in the path of the wind went down.

Awful Havoc at Kernersville.

KERNERSVILLE, N. C., Aug. 29.—A hurricane passed through this place from northeast to southwest. It lasted only five minutes, but left a path of ruin four miles wide. Three hundred buildings, mostly residences, were wrecked. The house of W. M. Phillips was swept off its foundations, carrying the family with it. Mr. Phillips' daughter was killed, but the rest of the family escaped with serious wounds.

No other deaths are reported, but 10 persons are severely hurt, and the list of the slightly injured is very long. After the hurricane had passed all the physicians of the city were called out and were soon busy among the ruins. Many had warning of the danger and took refuge in cellars and wells. One house was blown into a lake 500 yards away.

Hundreds are homeless. In the country orchards were swept out of existence, corn fields levelled and giant oaks snapped. The section is deluged.

Summer Resort Visited.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Aug. 29.—A hurricane at Eaglesmere, a beautiful summer resort on the crest of the Alleghenies, wrecked one cottage and blew down several barns. A few people were injured.

Reporter Weds a Gypsy.

CONEY ISLAND, Aug. 29.—There was another marriage celebrated, the second within a month, at the gypsy camp last night. Queen Olive was married to Edgar Mels. Mels is a reporter on a New York morning newspaper, and the first time he saw Olive was on July 30, when he came down to report the gypsy wedding. Olive is a pretty brunette of 26 years. She was educated at the Convent of the Sacred Heart in Cincinnati.

Cholera Returns.

LONDON, Aug. 29.—The cholera reports for the past 24 hours show one new case and two deaths in Rotterdam, five new cases and no deaths in Leerdam, one new case and no deaths in Delft, five new cases and no deaths in Naples and one new case and no deaths in Cassino. In Smyrna there were 58 new cases and 48 deaths reported from Aug. 24 to Aug. 27.

Viewed by Philadelphians.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 29.—The new liberty bell, which left New York yesterday en route to Chicago, arrived at the Broad street station of the Pennsylvania railroad last evening. It remained on exhibition until this morning, when it resumed its journey westward, stopping at all the principal places on the way out.

To Start Up Again.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—The following national banks, which recently suspended payment, their capital being unimpaired, have been permitted to resume business: The First National bank of Vernon, Tex.; the First National bank of San Marcos, Tex.; the First National bank of Lockhart, Tex.

Inherited Nothing but Debts.

LONDON, Aug. 29.—A dispatch from Coburg to The Standard says that the debts of the late Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotharc is estimated at 3,000,000 marks. In fact the Duke of Edinburgh has inherited nothing but debts from Duke Ernst.

Prompted by Jealousy.

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—Frank Howlock, 37, a barber, shot and probably fatally wounded his sweetheart, Mary Yakaski, aged 23. He then put a bullet into his own brain, killing himself instantly. Jealousy caused the crime.

The Long Island Disaster.

LONG ISLAND CITY, L. I., Aug. 29.—There have been no further deaths among those injured in the Long Island railroad disaster of Sunday morning. The investigation into the cause of the accident is practically closed.

Disobeyed the Russians.

VICTORIA, B. C., Aug. 29.—The sealer Ainoka has returned from Copper island with 1407 skns. She was passed by the Russians on the 23d of July and ordered to Yokohama but came home instead.

Norwegian Bark Wrecked.

LONDON, Aug. 29.—The Norwegian bark Toivo, Captain Eriksen, from Pensacola May 28 for Rio Janeiro, is ashore at Ponte Negro and will prove a total loss.

Worth a Million and a Half.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 29.—Samuel Baugh, of this city, a leading leather manufacturer, died last night, aged 87 years. He was worth $1,500,000.

A CARPET

is something more than a mere floor covering. It is capable of satisfying the artistic sense as well.

In a properly furnished room the carpet sets the pitch with which all other decorative effects should harmonize.

Our stock of Carpets and Oriental Rugs is altogether the most extensive in this part of the country, including, as it does, not only the products of all the standard mills, but many private and exclusive patterns which cannot be duplicated elsewhere.

TELEPHONE. 213-3 QUINCY.

THE ASSESSORS figures for 1893 were so satisfactory and so wide of the Advertiser's predictions last fall that it didn't even publish them. It did, however, comment on the rate being lower than last year, and added:

"The Advertiser has believed in a high valuation and a low rate, but since we have become a city the valuation and rate have both been high."

But facts show the rate to have been much lower. The average of the last five years of the town was $15.30 and would certainly have been increased had we remained a town, while for the five years of the city the average rate has been but $13.96 as the following figures show:

TOWN.		CITY.
In 1884,	$15.00	In 1889,	$10.80
" 1885,	13.60	" 1890,	13.60
" 1886,	15.40	" 1891,	13.60
" 1887,	15.80	" 1892,	16.00
" 1888,	16.70	" 1893,	15.80
Total,	$76.50	Total,	$69.80
Average,	15.30	Average,	13.96

The taxpayers have saved at least $6.70 per $1000 in the five years. At the same time they have seen many permanent improvements in the city, notably in the streets which were never in as good condition as now.

Further, the tax rate of Quincy was below the average of the cities of the State last year, and as Quincy is one of eight in the 24 thus far reported for 1893 to make a reduction, it is safe to say it will be considerable below the average this year.

The tax rate of Medford reported in the recent summary to be $10 this year, was an error, as it is $14.80, the same as last year. The lowest city rate reported is $12.80, and the highest $18.10. Only eight in twenty-four are less than Quincy.

IN THE VOTE on the 16 to 1 ratio in the National House on Monday, the Republican majority for sound money was 99 and the Democratic majority but 15. There were 99 free silver Democrats and only 13 free silver Republicans. The New England vote is easily classified. As Webb of the Journal says, there is no classification to make, except that every New England member of all parties on every vote, cast his vote for honest money. They all voted against every proposition for free coinage on whatever ratio, and against the Bland bill. They all voted for unconditional repeal.

THE YOUNG city of Medford has taken a long step forward in adopting a building ordinance. Plans for a general system of sewerage are fast being perfected.

Quincy Men Prominent.

There is little or no doubt now but Josiah Quincy will again be chairman of the Democratic State Committee this fall. Brooks Adams of Quincy has been elected a member of the committee at large. William B. Rice of this city is the choice for the responsible position of chairman of the committee on resolutions at the State convention Sept. 27.

All-American Line.

The popular Nickel Plate fast express trains, through sleeping cars from Boston and New York to Chicago, elegant dining cars, low rates, and polite attention, make this the most popular line between the East and West. For all information call on nearest ticket agent; or address F. J. Moore, General Agent, Buffalo, N. Y.

If you don't watch out you will miss the greatest opportunity of your life to visit the World's Fair at the lowest prevailing rates, via the popular route, the Nickel Plate. The shortest, cheapest, and best line between Buffalo and Chicago. Express trains palace sleeping cars, and superb dining cars. Lowest rates. Read the papers, call on nearest ticket agent for tickets, and take the popular line for Chicago. Address F. J. Moore, 23 Exchange street, Buffalo, N. Y., for map. pltf

—The assessors of Rockland have finished their labors and the valuation of the town is found to be $2,922,299. The gain in real estate since 1885 is only $84,426. The loss on personal estate is $261. Not a very good showing.

—After three trials for the murder of a San Francisco policeman, M. B. Curtis, the actor, has been pronounced "not guilty." His has been a remarkable experience, two juries disagreeing, and the prosecution persisting in its effort to secure a conviction. Curtis has spent $50,000 in defending himself in the three trials.

—Texas is reputed to have the only woman bank President in the United States. She is Mrs. Annie Moore, who is President of a national bank at Mount Pleasant, that State. She is described as well educated and having much business tact and experience.

—The Cape Ann Granite Company will pay a tax of $1020.50 in Gloucester this year, against $947 in 1892.

AT MANET BEACH.

Two Young Men Rescued from Drowning.

WATCHING FOR THE HURRICANE

Other News and Gossip Picked Up Along the Shore.

A case that almost had a tragic ending, occurred off the Yacht Club House Sunday night about ten o'clock. That evening two young men who refused to give their names, rowed over to the Neck from Racoon Island in a small dory. When near the flag float off the clubhouse, they endeavored to change positions in the boat, when the latter careened slightly.

The young men evidently thought that the boat was sinking and they jumped into the water and began to yell lustily for help. Charles Anderson, the janitor of the clubhouse, J. Stanley Mears and a physician heard the cries and each procured a boat and started to the rescue. Mr. Anderson reached the scene first and began to pull the men into his boat. The latter were not inclined to be rescued however for they protested that they were all right.

Force was stronger than persuasion however, and the young men were brought to shore none the worse for their wetting.

While being pulled into the boat, one of the young men lost a gold watch, chain and charm valued at $85 and it now lies in the mud somewhere around the flag float.

Nine or ten young men who are pretty well known, made a round of the beach Saturday night with the evident purpose of rifling the bath houses along the shore.

They were rather unsuccessful however, and at one bath-house they received quite a fright. Just outside the door of this house they saw a bathing suit and they were just about to pick it up, when the owner of the bath house stepped out of the building.

The young men were surprised at this unexpected apparition and they fled precipitiously into the night.

While Capt. Hunt was cruising about the bay Sunday on his steam yacht "Get," he discovered a disabled yacht with some men aboard. One side of the yacht was all stove in and she was leaking badly.

Captain Hunt passed the occupants a rope and towed them up to Lelois' ship yard on River street.

The Hull yacht race could be easily seen from this place Monday, and on Great Hill were many spectators.

"Bart" Derry of Bay View avenue will attend the reunion of the old 39th Regiment tomorrow, at Quincy.

Speculation is rife as to whether or not the great West India hurricane will reach this place. Several yachtsmen were out strengthening the moorings of their boats. Should any vessel be wrecked on these shores the crew will not perish without an effort being made to rescue them.

The life boat is in excellent condition and has as brave a crew as ever pulled an oar. A horse is always ready to pull the boat to any part of the beach. By the way would it not be a good idea for the crew to give an exhibition some day? It would be very interesting and would attract a large crowd to the beach.

The Eulalie and the Mab had an interesting race from Grape Island to Germantown after the Hull race on Monday. Although the Eulalie is a larger boat, yet the little Mab showed her heels to Mr. Hunt's pet and beat her in a manner that tickled Commodore Shaw in no small degree.

Professor Butler of Boston and Mr. and Mrs. George Monk of Quincy, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Batson at their pretty cottage on Bell street.

Mr. Joseph Woods, while playing foot ball on Racoon Island on Sunday, fell down and fractured his leg.

The following are the new arrivals at the Loretto: Mr. P. Daly, wife and family, Everett; Mr. George Wilson, Mrs. Goldi and son, Mr. Frank L. Hazleton and family, Roxbury; Miss Annie Brady, Miss Florence Kisick, Egleston Square.

Mr. A. V. Whittemore has returned to this popular hostlery.

Mr. Samuel J. McDonald of the Harvard Freshmen class has left the Loretto and returned home.

Mr. Charles Heath and Mr. Lester Heath of the Loretto have returned home to Vermont.

The Beatrice split her jib and mainsail in the Hull Yacht race on Monday, but for all that she came in with flying colors.

The Shoe City Wheelmen of Brockton will come down to the beach tomorrow evening and will be the guests of the Quincy Cycle Club. Mr. Leavitt of the latter club was down last night and hired a cottage on Bay View avenue where the Quincy club will entertain its friends.

The photographing establishment on Sea street, near Ferris, has been purchased by the proprietor of the restaurant on Temple street, Quincy.

Good prizes are offered in the open regatta of the South Boston Yacht club to be sailed Saturday Sept. 9.

Won by Mr. Dunham.

The popular conductor on the Manet street railway has won the $100 sea shore lot offered by the Manet Land Associates to the most popular resident of Houghs Neck, and we congratulate him. He has a vote of over 12,000 and a plurality of nearly 3,000 over his plucky rival, Mrs. J. M. Emery of 24 Popular street, Boston, who each year manages the Loretto house at Manet Beach.

If Mr. Dunham will please call at the DAILY LEDGER office tomorrow he will be furnished with the necessary credentials, and will then be at liberty to negotiate with the Manet Land Company for such a lot as he may desire.

The final summary is:

Arthur H. Dunham, Houghs Neck	12,740

District Engineer Frank C. Packard is making some improvements to his stable.

Those who carry umbrellas today seem to prefer to carry them closed rather than open.

The Quincy Cycle Club have secured a cottage on Bay View avenue, Houghs Neck, for illumination night.

The Sons of Veteran drum corps have been engaged by the employes of the Putnam nail works for Labor Day.

Wednesday will be a busy day at Quincy with the reunion of the old 39th regiment and the Houghs Neck illumination.

Mrs. George T. Magee, Mrs. Charles B. Tilton and Miss Irma Tilton left this morning for a two weeks sojourn at Winthrop, Maine.

The proceeds of the lawn party of Paul Revere Woman's Relief Corps on Thursday evening will be used to furnish Room 47 in the Soldiers' Home.

The basis of representation to the Democratic State convention will be the same as last year, and caucuses for the choice of all delegates must be held not later than Sept. 23.

The storm is doing much damage to the trees, many of the limbs of which have been blown off, and what fruit there was on the trees is mostly on the ground. Is the cyclone coming?

The fall term of the Greenleaf Private school commences Monday, Sept. 11, as will be noticed by advertisement in another column. This school ranks high as a preparatory for academies.

A number of Quincy wheelmen participated in the open house and illumination of the Union club, at Savin Hill, Monday evening. It was a grand good time and all enjoyed themselves to the utmost.

A special meeting of the City Council will probably be held Friday evening, the principal business relating to the water loan. Mayor Fairbanks has been busy since the award negotiating with the company.

Miss Ellenore Carroll and Mr. John W. Rose of this city are playing in "Paul Kauvar," which is at the Bowdoin Square Theatre for the week. The dramatic critic of the Boston Journal says that their work is worthy of mention.

An immense limb of the massive elm tree in front of the residence of Stedman Williams on Elm street was blown down by the heavy wind this morning, completely blocking the street. Commissioner Ewell and a gang of men are at work cutting it up and carting it away.

Mr. Moses N. Hubbard, who died at Wollaston on Monday, was one of Roxbury's oldest and best known citizens. He was a fireman most of his life, being for many years foreman of engine 12. He was also interested in real estate, and a prominent Knights of Pythias. The interment will be at Forest Hill on Wednesday.

—Insects do not breathe through the nose and mouth. Down the body run two main pipes. These pipes send out branches to right and left like a network, extending to the extremities of the body, even to the ends of the antenne and to the claws. Each main tube receives the external air through nine or ten spiracles or breathing holes, placed at intervals along the sides of the body. The spiracles are made water tight and dust-tight by a strong fringe of hair, which completely guards the entrance.

THE CIRCULAR TOWER.

This Design Combines Beauty of Outline With Economy of Space.

[Copyright, 1893, by American Press Association.]

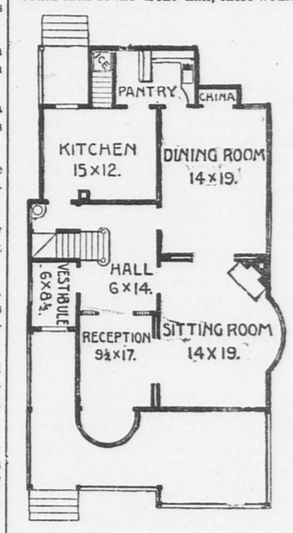

This is a house with a side entrance. At first thought going in at the side of the house or in any other way than through the direct front is objectionable. But there are many decided advantages when one comes to look into the question carefully. The door of this house faces to the front, but it is several feet back of the front line of the house. There are two rooms in front, and the entrance is back of them. If the entrance to the house were through the front room at the left, it is easily seen that one would be deprived of a very pleasant living room. It is plain enough that that room would be a mere passage. As it is, the passage and stairway are back of it, and the vestibule is at one side.

FRONT ELEVATION.

One enters the house and finds himself in a hall slightly removed from the vestibule, where he is centrally located. From this hall he goes into a little reception room, a sitting room or a dining room. One may radiate from this hall and go in any direction. There are no long passages to traverse, and hence the means of communication or circulation to the various parts of the house are readily at hand. The same idea applies to the second story. Arriving at the head of the stairway, the members of the family can distribute themselves in any direction to the various rooms or parts of the house without making any long circuits.

The rooms are utterly independent of one another, and the hall, because it is centrally located and surrounded by rooms, is short. It is one of the secrets of good planning to have a stairway land in the middle of the house in order to avoid long passages and halls. If this stairway had been placed in the room at the left, which would then be the front hall, there would have to be a long passage from the front to the rear, and the bedroom over the front hall would be a mere alcove. Now it is a bedroom—in fact, a front bedroom and one altogether well placed. This is another advantage of a side entrance.

The front of the room, which would otherwise be a hall, is shown as having a circular form. This gives a circular tower in front and develops a pleasing outline to the whole structure. The thought in connection with a tower of this kind is, of course, that it adds expense. On the other hand, if the tower were not here, there would be the necessity for a gable or other decorative detail, which would add almost if not quite as much to the cost of the structure as the tower itself. For a house of this plan something of this kind is almost demanded in order to develop the best results.

Again, there is no one who is not sensible to the æsthetic effect of these decorative details. It is certain that we all want convenient houses—houses which do away with waste room, waste labor in caring for them, waste carpet and other furnishings within them. Yet while this is true we want a house at the same time convenient, picturesque and interesting, not with an abundance of applied decoration, but that which is a part of the structure, and hence altogether substantial and lasting.

This house without plumbing, mantels, furnace or gas fixtures would cost about $3,200.

THE HULL RACE.

A Close and Exciting Contest Between the Magpie and Opechee.

A dozen flyers entered the Hull race Monday and of the ten to finish all but the Hagedorn took a prize. The first boats in their classes were the Beatrice, Exile, Magpie and Mab. The most exciting race was between the Magpie and Opechee, and the former finished but 25 seconds ahead, and time allowance brought the Aurisa within a minute of both of them.

The Mab not only had a walkover in her class, but by corrected time she outsailed all the boats of the fifth class. She wins the championship of her class.

A sail off is necessary in the fifth class, as the Magpie and Aurissa have each won two races. If on Sept. 13 or 14 it may go by default as Commodore Faxon may not be "at home."

TODAY'S COURT.

Mary Leary of Quincy, for assault on Margaret Middlemas, was fined $5.

John F. Kennedy of Randolph, for disturbing the peace, was placed on probation for one month.

William White of Milton, was arraigned for maliciously destroying a fence of George W. Bass, and was held in $200 for the grand jury.

The continued cases of Henry Allison, J. Mason Allison and Henry J. Carroll of Milton, for mutual assault, came up and each were fined $10.

The above parties were fined $15 each for disturbing the peace at Milton, on August 27.

Robert Hollis of Braintree for assault on Simon Levin was fined $15.

Louis Latinville of Braintree for keeping a liquor nuisance was found not guilty.

Pensions For Army Matrons.

Assistant Secretary of the Interior Reynolds has made an important pension decision. The question recently arose upon a communication from the commissioner of pensions as to whether women who had superintended the diet of sick and wounded soldiers were entitled to pensions under the provisions of the act commonly known as "the nurse act." Mr. Reynolds decided that they are, and the commissioner of pensions has been instructed to place the names of such nurses upon the rolls when they have furnished proof that they were employed directly by the surgeon general of the army, or that the person who employed them had proper authority, and that his authority was recognized by the war department.

The beneficiaries of this decision are mainly the women who were sent by the United States Christian commission to the hospitals for the purpose of superintending the special diet of the kitchens upon the request of the surgeon general. —Woman's Journal.

A Word About Sleeping Cars.

Now that there is an increased amount of travel in the sleeping cars on account of the World's fair, a few words on the subject of feminine selfishness or thoughtlessness are not out of place. A sleeping car contains one small dressing room for ladies, and for any one woman to occupy that room from half to three-quarters of an hour in the morning, while a long row of impatient women, bag in hand, stand outside, is certainly exceedingly thoughtless if not exceedingly selfish. It is true that it is difficult for a woman to arrange her hair in her berth and that it takes her longer to complete her toilet than it does a man. But it behooves the courteous traveler of the fair sex to shorten as much as possible the time devoted to her morning toilet, postponing some of its details until later in the day or until arriving at her destination.—New York Tribune.

Rapid Work by a Woman Publisher.

The editorial writer on current legal topics in the New York Tribune cites the work of Mrs. Myra Bradwell in publishing the Illinois session laws of 1893 as an example to be emulated. Mrs. Bradwell announced that within six days after the governor had signed the last bill passed by the legislature she would have ready for delivery a volume containing the session laws of 1893. She more than kept her promise, for in five days the volume was ready. The writer remarks that "the New York session laws of 1893 still remain unpublished." Mrs. Bradwell is editor of the Chicago Legal News, which is recognized as the best weekly law journal in the country. Particular attention is given by it to laws and decisions affecting the rights of women.

CARE OF AN INVALID

Partly Responsible For Andrew Gibson's Insanity.

EXPECTED TO BE MURDERED

Previous Actions of a Very Queer Character.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Aug. 29.—All developments in the murder of Charles H. Connor closed with the death of the insane murderer, Andrew Gibson. There was absolutely no rational cause for the murder. Gibson had been suffering from nervous prostration, which resulted in insanity. He had suffered from attacks of temporary insanity before. About a year ago he tried to drown himself, but was prevented from doing so. Again he is said to have chased his wife with a shotgun. The gun was not loaded, and he contented himself with snapping caps at her.

Saturday his mind gave way under the strain of nursing an invalid wife day and night and became insane. His mania took the form of expecting some one to come in and murder him, and when, in answer to Mrs. Gilson's cries for help, Charles H. Connor hurried up the stairs, he met the insane man on the landing, armed with a razor and prepared to defend himself from what he supposed to be the attack of an assassin. His

First Blow Reached Its Mark.

When he saw Connor fall under the fatal wound he partly realized what he had done, and, rushing out, he inflicted upon himself a wound, from which he died, after lingering six hours.

After being taken to the hospital the murderer was rational upon all points except the one of cause for the murder. In reply to questions upon this point his only answer was that "George killed Jim and Harriet Holden, and he was going to kill me." This he repeated over and over again as long as he was strong enough to talk. He had known Connor, he said, for seven years, but he did not know it was Connor whom he had killed.

Mrs. Gibson told readily what little she knew about the murder. Her husband's name, she said, was Andrew Gibson, and he was 46 years of age. He was born in Lancashire, Eng., and came to this country when a young man. He was a weaver and loom fixer, and in these employments he engaged here. After coming across he was married to a young woman of his own nationality, who afterward died. Mrs. Gibson said that she was his second wife, and she is his senior by between 10 and 15 years. She had been previously married, and has a married daughter nearly 30 years of age.

Mrs. Gibson Is an Invalid

and her illness has made her appear even older than she is. She is almost helpless and her husband has had the care of her. They had no children and Gibson had none by his first marriage. Gibson was naturally of a very nervous temperament, and a very little drink would greatly effect him. For some time before the tragedy he had not drank anything intoxicating.

In relation to the murder Mrs. Gibson said: "My husband worked as a loom-fixer in the Stofford mill. Three weeks ago he left his place to take care of me, for I was very weak and could do nothing for myself. He tended me night and day, and became completely worn out. He was a man of good habits, and when he was in his right mind never did anything out of the way. Three days ago he complained that he had a bad headache and went to see Dr. George S. Eddy, who found that he was suffering from nervous prostration. He had been acting rather queerly, and Saturday He Grew Worse.

"He went to bed after 10 o'clock, but did not remain quiet and got up in a few minutes to go to the door, where he said that someone was making a noise. At 11 o'clock he got up again and went to the door. Then he began to walk around the room, and I became frightened and went to the window and called out. I saw a man passing, and called to him to tell Johnnie to come over, for I wanted help. Johnnie is John Doyle, who keeps the saloon at the corner.

"I heard someone coming up the stairs, and when called for a light I lit the lamp. Andrew went out on the landing and I heard some one groan and fall. There was not much noise, and I was to go out and see what the groan was and what had become of Andrew.

Too Weak and Frightened

"I went out of the ward and saw some blood on the stairs, but I did not see anyone there. I did not see Connor at all and knew nothing about him till someone came here and told about his being killed. Andrew had on nothing but his shirt when he went out. I did not see him again."

Charles P. Connor was 33 years of age and married. He was born in this city and always lived here. He was a young man of good habits and well liked by all who knew him. His father, Dennis Connor, died several years ago, and since then Charles has been the sole support of his aged mother. He has been employed in different provision stores as a clerk, and after leaving his last he secured employment with James Keely as a teamster, driving a horse and cart at the city's stone crusher.

IN THE NICK OF TIME.

Crew of an Italian Vessel Rescued From a Watery Grave.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Aug. 29.—A crew of 11 sailors from the Italian bark Vicenzo Galatola, which was abandoned at sea off Hatteras, Aug. 24, while on a voyage from Charleston, for Hamburg, was brought to this port yesterday afternoon by the little whaling schooner Hattie E. Smith of Edgartown, Captain Zenas Bourne, which herself has suffered damage in two gales, which she encountered within the last 10 days.

On Aug. 24, about 9 o'clock, one of the lookouts discovered a bark with a distress signal flying and bearing down toward the craft he discovered a badly crippled bark with all her sails blown away, her foretop mast gone, she being very low in the water. Her crew made frantic signs to the whaler, and Mate Johnson, at the risk of his life and those of his crew, launched the only remaining boat and pulled in the still stormy sea near the sinking bark. One by one the men got upon the rail and cast themselves into the sea, and were all safely picked up by the whale boat, two trips being necessary to take the 11 men off.

Captain Bourne reports having been in company with schooners Alcyon, Golden City, Rising Sun and Sarah W. Hunt a day before the first gale and these vessels must surely have been caught in the storm. The Alcyon and George H. Phillips were nearly full of oil. Captain Bourne reports Aug. 3 having passed a two-masted schooner bottom up. Had no means of distinguishing her.

All Three Were drowned.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Aug. 29.—A triple drowning accident occurred in the Merrimac river yesterday afternoon. Edmond Bostaroche, aged 18, and Samuel and Alexon Bouhard, aged 18 and 17 years respectively, were swimming, when one was seized with cramps and the others went to his assistance. They were both seized in the grasp of the drowning boy and went down. The bodies were shortly after recovered.

Has Got His Prize.

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 29.—Julian Ingersoll Chamberlain, son of ex-Governor Chamberlain of South Carolina, has settled the bill for which the Townsend prize (which he won at a Yale prize speaking last year) was attached, and has been allowed to take away his prize. The prize amounts to $100 and was attached for debts incurred by young Chamberlain.

Youthful Thieves.

BOSTON, Aug. 29.—Three children were arrested yesterday on the charge of breaking and entering the dining saloon of Edward Putney, 150 Atlantic avenue, and the larceny of tobacco and cigars to the value of $10. They are Patrick Earle, William McClusky and Robert McClusky. The two former are but six years of age and the third is nine.

In a Pitiful Plight.

LEOMINSTER, Mass., Aug. 29.—George Wheelock, who roomed alone in Woods' block, had not been seen for days. The police burst in the door of his room and found him in a dying condition. Wheelock had a shock some three days ago. He has been unable to help himself and was without food and water. He was taken to the almshouse.

Snatched From Death,

BOSTON, Aug. 29.—Mary Rogers, 22 years of age, lodging at 223 Shawmut avenue, attempted to end her life by taking chloroform yesterday afternoon. Friends in the house succeeded in resuscitating her. No reason is given for her attempt to bring her life to an end.

Bell Telephone Thief Sentenced.

RICHFORD, Vt., Aug. 29.—Hilton, the absconder and eloper, who was captured at Denver and brought back to Sweetsburg for trial for stealing $550 from the Bell Telephone company, pleaded guilty at his trial and was sentenced to three years in the penitentiary.

Mill Movements.

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 29.—The two mills of the Quidnick Manufacturing company at Quidnick have closed down for a week. Some of the mills in Manville have resumed and others have been closed. The Slater and Torrail mills in Pawtucket started in yesterday.

Alleged Mail Robbers.

DOVER, N. H., Aug. 29.—George Holton, charged with breaking into the Rochester postoffice, and William Thompson, charged with breaking into the Mill Village postoffice, were taken from jail to the United States court at Littleton.

A Little Fellow's Fall.

BOSTON, Aug. 29.—Two-year-old Charlie Lyons was visiting the home of a friend on B street, South Boston, last evening, and fell from a third story window to the sidewalk, fracturing his skull. The little fellow died an hour later.

Body Unidentified.

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 29. — The young woman who died on the steamer C. H. Northam Saturday night has not been identified. She was a handsome, well-dressed young woman of 20, and evidently of good family.

The Autocrat's Birthday.

BEVERLY, Mass., Aug. 29.—Today, at his summer home among the trees and fields and rural lanes of Beverly Farms, Dr. Holmes is celebrating his 84th birthday. He is still in very good health.

Collian's Body Washed Ashore.

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 29.— The body of Driver William Collian, the only victim of the wreck at Wabon's Point Thursday, was washed ashore yesterday near the scene of the disaster.

Operatives' Wages Reduced.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Aug. 29. — The manufacturers yesterday decided to reduce wages from 10 to 15 per cent, the cut-down to go into effect the second Monday in September.

Report Confirmed.

BOSTON, Aug. 29.—The report that Hon. Josiah Quincy will resign from the office of assistant secretary of state and will conduct the campaign in Massachusetts is confirmed.

Brief Mention.

Anna Flannigan of Nashua, N. H., fell into the Nashua river and was drowned.

Scarlet fever is raging at South Eliot, Me., some 15 or 20 families being attacked.

William O'Brien, 9 years old, was drowned at Danielsonville, Conn., from a raft.

Walter Kellas, aged 13, was drowned while bathing in Turner's pond, Norwich, Conn.

The camp meeting services at the Methodist tabernacle, Cottage City, Mass., closed.

Rev. David Sprague of Amsterdam, N. Y., has been called to the rectorship of Grace (Episcopal) church of Amherst, Mass.

Charles DeLong, a member of the crew of the schooner Harry G. French, was washed overboard and drowned at Gloucester, Mass.

Thomas Chadwick of Rockport, Mass., who was indicted in the superior court for forgery and jumped his bail, after travelling all over the country, was arrested in Rockport.

Mary Rooney, a woman about 30 years old, fell into the river at Nashua, N. H. and was drowned. She is said to have been intoxicated.

The house of A. E. Melligan of Holbrook, Mass., was entered by burglars. Seventy dollars in cash and jewelry valued at $30 were taken.

At Skowhegan, Me., John Vigue was arrested for pocket peddling, found guilty and sent to the county jail for 30 days in default of the payment of a $50 fine.

At Worcester, Mass., Henry Cunningham and Lawrence Doherty were bound over in $500 to the grand jury on a charge of attempting highway robbery in Auburn, Me.

A Terrible Looking Pin.

A well known gentleman of Seattle the other day handed to a reporter a curious looking scarfpin, the head of it being of the size of a small marble, such as is used by boys. In color it was a peculiar reddish amber, and seemed to contain a strange lifelike heart, from which a drop of blood appeared ready to fall.

"A heart of fire bedreamed with haze."

"What is it?" asked the reporter.

"It is an eye taken from a mummy," was the reply.

"Where was it taken from?" was asked.

"I was at Arica, Peru, in 1882, and took it from a mummy myself," was the reply. "A number of young men and myself one day were out for sport and dug up a dozen mummies for the sake of seeing what they had been buried with. We found money, pieces of pottery, etc., but did not strike a gold mine. Nearly all the better class of mummies seemed to have these eyes in them, and I took this from one of them. I could not learn what it was. Some people in Peru contend that it is the natural eye preserved and hardened in some manner, while others think it a fish's eye. They do not bother their heads much about it down there, however. The fact that these eyes are found in mummies is sufficient for them. I have never heard of any tradition connected with them.

"I took the eye to a jewelry store in San Francisco and tried to get it polished, but could not, although half a dozen men worked on it. The powder arising from it while they were at work would make them deathly sick and also get in their eyes and blind them temporarily. You see that it has scaled off in places. I finally had it set in this pin as you see it."—Seattle Press-Times.

Where the Boston Hotels' Silver Goes.

The fad of collecting spoons for souvenirs has ramifications little dreamed of by those who toy curiously with the quaint little products of the silversmith's art as they sip out of dainty porcelain the fragrant brew from my lady's tea ball.

Harvard boys are faddist as well as their sisters and sweethearts, but they do not seek the uttermost ends of the earth for their treasures. The famous and hospitable hostelries of the neighboring Hub are where they carry on their depredations.

The more thoughtful and honest first make sure that the obliging waiter does not have to replace the missing article, and then they slyly slip a fork or a spoon into a pocket, and no matter what the check may amount to the spoony sophomore is happy, for he has added another to his collection with which to mystify his fair friends.

This accounts for one who at a little spread took tea from an Adams House spoon and salad from a fork bearing the word "Parker's."

If the student has been industrious, every individual of a party uses silver from a different hostelry.—Boston Herald.

Photographing In Colors.

Color photography has attracted much attention during the past year or 18 months, and the experiments in that line have been startlingly successful. Professors Lippmann and Vogel are the pioneers in this branch of the photographic art, and both are enthusiastic over recent results. Lippmann's investigations have proven that on a layer of albumen he could take brilliant photographs of the spectra, nor was it necessary to bring out the colors one at a time by a laborious application of specially prepared chemicals. On the contrary, they all came out at once, even red, and that, too, without the interposition of colored screens. In a letter to a society of photographers Lippmann says: "Announce the most wonderful discovery of the age. I have brought out colors more brilliant than the tints of the rainbow after an exposure of less than 30 seconds. Alas! I grieve to tell you that there are certain colors in the rainbow that I have not succeeded in chaining to my plate."—St. Louis Republic.

The Atlantic Ocean.

The area of the Atlantic is about 30,000,000 square miles, less than half the area of the Pacific and between one-sixth and one-seventh of the total surface area of the world. It would form a circle 6,180 miles in diameter, which is rather more than double the distance from Liverpool to New York.

Its depth is much better known than that of the Pacific and averages more than 2,000 fathoms, probably about 14,000 feet, or about 2¾ miles. The height of Mont Blanc is about three miles.

The cubic contents are therefore nearly 80,000,000 cubic miles, so that the Atlantic could be contained bodily in the Pacific nearly three times. The number of cubic feet is 117 followed by 17 ciphers, a number that would be ticked off by our million clocks in 870,000 years. Its weight is 325,000 billion tons, and the number of gallons in it is 78 trillions. A sphere to hold the Atlantic would have to be 533½ miles in diameter.—Longman's Magazine.

Entertaining the Butcher.

Little Mary is the daughter of a Presbyterian clergyman in a pretty village of western New York. One morning a corpulent butcher called at the parsonage with a roast of beef for dinner. Mary answered his knock at the kitchen door and proceeded to entertain him until her mother should arrive. The pastor's wife on her way down stairs overheard this conversation:

"This is a very lovely day, Mr. Meason."

"It is indeed."

"Do you like roast beef?"

"Yes."

"Do you eat it every day?"

"Not every day. Why?"

"Nothing, only your stomach seems to be larger than ours."—New York Times.

The Statistics Fiend.

While on our earthly pilgrimage the world has many woes for us;
We struggle on beneath our loads of trouble, care and pain,
But the latest tribulation is the man who always goes for us
With documentary evidence—statistics on the brain.

He'll tell within a fraction the exact amount of coffee drank
For thirteen generations back in both the hemispheres;
Whatever else you want to know he'll gladly bite you off a chunk
Of tabulated knowledge that's enough to start the tears.

He will tell how many gravestones are exported by the nation,
How many pairs of shoestrings and the quantity of rum,
And he'll figure in a jiffy the earth's total population
From the time it was created to the day of kingdom come.

Would you know how much tobacco is consumed in every minute,
How many yards of calico it takes to clothe the south?
Just ask the statistician; he will tell you he is "in it;"
He performs it with his pencil and proclaims it with his mouth.

He's a daisy with statistics, and if you'd like to try for
A plan of sizing up the man who figures with such vim,
Just set him down and count him one, add cipher after cipher,
And be sure to place the ciphers at the left hand side of him.

The time will come when men shall have sufficiently been goaded
(And the prayer of many a victim is that it may quickly come);
When there'll be an accidental case of "didn't know 'twas loaded,"
And the fiend will quit his figures in the middle of a sum.

—G. B. Torrey.

A Temperance Man's Awful Experience.

There was an utter collapse of a Springfield man visiting the World's fair recently. He went into one of the Chicago hotels and innocently called for a bottle of apollinaris water, only to be told in withering tones by the clerk, evidently a fresh importation from a blue ribbon district, that that was a strictly temperance house, and no intoxicating liquors were kept. And the depraved Massachusetts citizen felt that the best thing he could do was to come home and take the Keeley cure.—Springfield Graphic.

There were great rejoicings among the pupils of M. Benjamin Constant upon his election to a membership in the French academy. A reception was given him at one studio by the men there, and a triumphal arch of roses and laurels was erected by his girl pupils in his studio in the Passage des Panoramas.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 29.—It is rumored that the Reading railroad receivers have decided to pay the interest on the general mortgage 4s in October. The receivers have not taken formal action upon the subject.

Held In $7000 Bail.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 29.—A. B. Botsfield of Woodbury, N. J., who is alleged to have been conducting a bogus brokerage business in this city, was held in $7000 bail for a further hearing next week.

Storm Does $150,000 Damage.

GLOVERSVILLE, N. Y., Aug. 29.—A severe storm struck Mayfield, six miles north of here, and demolished and damaged buildings to the extent of $150,000.

A Horrible Crime.

MARSHALLTOWN, Ia., Aug. 28.—Annie Weiss of this city, while returning home from a visit to a friend, was assaulted by an unknown man, who cut her throat, nearly severing her head from her body. The community is searching for the assassin.

Much Damage by Electricity.

ROME, N. Y., Aug. 28.—This city was visited yesterday by a violent electric storm and a large amount of damage was done. A canal driver was struck on the head with a hailstone and severely wounded.

Will Manage Democrats.

BOSTON, Aug. 28.—The Post states that Hon. Josiah Quincy will unquestionably take the management of the Democratic campaign in Massachusetts this fall.

BY A NARROW MARGIN.

Boston Wins a Ten-Inning Game From the Spiders.

BOSTON, Aug. 29.—The champions won by the skin of their teeth, and it was poor fielding on the part of the Clevelands that gave them the victory. The Spiders took the lead in their half to the ninth inning, Ewing's long home run drive yielding three runs. Virtue had taken Young's place at the bat in this inning, so Hastings had to finish the game. Merritt took Bennett's place in Boston's half, and sent in the run that tied the score. Good fielding retired the visitors in quick order in the 10th, and then the Bostons made the winning run off a fumble by McCarr, a base on balls, a sacrifice and a wild throw to the plate by McKean.

CHICAGO'S UNEMPLOYED

Gather Together and Have a Little Racket With the Police.

CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—Four thousand men who are unemployed, who had gathered on the lake front yesterday afternoon to discuss Mayor Harrison's order to stop parades, surged out into State street. They were a disorganized mob and made no attempt to parade. But their numbers impeded traffic in the crowded streets, cable trains and carriages were stopped, as the men were packed too closely together for any vehicle to force its way through. The mob cheered as it advanced and brought out hundreds of spectators until the streets were packed with people.

A hundred men stopped in front of Siegel, Cooper & Co.'s store clamoring that they wanted bread. For a moment it looked as if they were going to dash into the store. While they hesitated the police were upon them. They grabbed the men by the coat collars and administered a series of vigorous kicks. The demonstration ended in inglorious defeat, the mob scattering before the charge of the police and disappearing down the side streets.

Fatal Oil Stove Explosion.

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—An oil stove exploded last evening in the rooms of Mrs. Celia Stein on the third floor of the five-story tenement house at 213 Broome street. The burning oil set fire to the furniture in the room and in trying to put out the flames Mrs. Stein and her 16-year-old daughter Rebecca were painfully burned. Mrs. Stein died at a late hour in horrible agony.

Should Have Been Done Long Ago.

HALIFAX, Aug. 29.—At the close of the inquest held on the 21 bodies recovered from the wreck of the steamer Dorcas and the barge Etta Stewart the coroner's jury recommended that the department of marine place bell buoys at all dangerous places outside Shut-in island, it being directly in the track of vessels and the scene of many wrecks.

What Energy Can Do.

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—The quarantine restrictions against Brunswick, Ga., and Port Tampa, Fla., established by Charleston, Savannah, Waycross, Ga., and Albany, Ga., have been removed. Through the energetic action of the health authorities the fever has been stamped out.

IN THE HEART OF THE ROSE.

Where lies the scent of the rose?
In the heart of it.
'Tis a secret the butterfly knows,
And a part of it
She whispered to me one June—
I shall not forget it soon.

There, where the petals meet,
In the heart of it,
Lies a chalice deep and sweet.
'Tis the part of it
Where the rose distills the dew
It gathers the warm night through.

I shall make of the rose a friend.
In the heart of it
A message I'll send, I'll send,
Or a part of it,
For the heart of the rose is small
And cannot contain it all.

She will pin the rose on her breast,
And the heart of it
Will whisper my love—has she guessed
Already a part of it?
Sweet rose, lie lightly above
The pure heart of my love.

—Meredith Rhys in Kate Field's Washington.

AFTER THE SUPPER.

Dating from a certain moment—the second bottle, I believe—I no more remember what happened to me. A curtain, like a misty cloud, descended upon my memory, similar to the between acts baize of fairy spectacles.

Nevertheless nothing is surer than something did happen to me; many things even. Everything proves it to me. My coat on the floor, my cravat as a nightcap and, above all else, if ever I doubted it, my haggard face, fatigued and pale.

Truly a fine business! At my age, eight and thirty years, to allow myself to be surprised by champagne like a schoolboy on a holiday! Stupidity's no name for it!

But what plagues me most is to guess what I did last night, particulars, you know, as to the events of the evening.

Question my servant?

Perish the thought of it! Expose myself to the blushing before a lackey! Besides he would only be able to formulate theories from the hour of my return and—and my behavior on reaching my bedroom.

I divine it, that behavior, 'tis enough. They pretend that with a single bone Cuvier was able to entirely reconstruct an antediluvian animal. It remains to me then only to find some analogous thing to as readily reconstruct my existence for the last 12 or 15 hours—a suggestion, a hint, one or two indications, more or less.

Where find them?

Ah-h, my pockets!

A childish habit of burying everything there clings to me still and will now perhaps serve me well. Behold the moment of rummaging, then, like the calprit that I am.

I tremble guiltily. What am I going to discover?

Gingerly I slip two fingers into the side pocket of my vest and draw out my portmonnaie.

Empty?

By Jove!

In seeking to pick up my overcoat my notebook falls, scattering upon the carpet a heap of papers.

The first of these papers that catches my eye is the slip of the Cafe Anglais.

The trump card of the night's misdemeanor.

Thanks to this bill I learn immediately that the misdemeanor occurred in:

"Salon 14." I could have sworn it.

'Tis always, some way, "salon 14" to which I gravitate.

The total? Eight hundred and twenty francs. Peste! I've not been stingy, it appears.

How many were they, I wonder? Who were they? My habitual friends, it is probable, but still—no?

An inspiration! This menu, in betraying their tastes, will also to me reveal their names. Let us try to decipher it.

Huitres Portugaises—These are the kind that Lucien prefers and that they import from Arrachon expressly for him.

Lucien was of the suppers, then, it is clear. So much for No. 1.

Potage a la puree de gibier—I greatly deceive myself, or that potage is one to which Maxime is specially partial. Maxime, then, for No. 2.

Filets de sole a la Joinville—Fernand, to a certainty; an Orleanist filet, pure and simple.

Canetons de Rouen a l'orange—No one but Polastron for that, an out and out Rouennais, he.

Salades de legumes a la Russe—'Tis useless to ask if Semenow was there.

Bombe a la Cardinal—From whom could this have come? Stay, Marcel! Who but Marcel is cousin to a cardinal?

Lucien, Maxime, Fernand, Polastron, Semenow, Marcel—Behold my table recomposed.

Women also were at that supper then? Beyond a doubt. These scattered photographs attest it. Female suppers out or supperesses, if I may call them so, have always a rage for distributing their portraits. Henriette of the Varieties in her costume of the Revue, her great English coal hoppers squeezed into tight French slippers. Quick, conceal thyself!

And Jeanne, the eternal, in powdered hair and leering over her shoulder at the risk of a wry neck.

The third—ah, the third, I do not know her. 'Tis strange!

Not a bad lot, either, the third. She's even pretty. Small head, low brow, tiny nose, a mite of a mouth. Nothing but eyes—superb eyes at that! Lashes like a fringe, and a genuine blond.

Deuce take it! No, I do not know her. The little yellow curls that dance about her brow look even in this photograph like a golden smoke.

Nearly a child, too—18 years perhaps, at farthest. Dressed modestly besides. A high neck robe, puritanical in cut, but which only the better develops that which it envelopes. Exquisite figure, slim and lithe as a bending willow.

Decidedly she is a very pretty little girl. And—and I see in her ears neither pearls nor diamonds, nor even on her fingers a single jewel. The reason possibly for her air of disdain.

Disdain, did I say? This child, who as yet knows nothing of life, yet seems already bored and wearied! Bah! women or girls, they are all alike.

Still, where did she come from? Who is it that I have had, unknown, to sit at my table? Maybe it was her debut—the opening of a great success that I already foresee and predict.

She sat beside me, of course. I talked with her, 'tis certain—all the madnesses probably that came to my head. She refused me, or left me. Behold the reason why, perhaps—that I made myself drunk.

But let us resume. There were then in salon 14 six men and three women. My personnel's complete. What happened then? I have the actors, but not yet the drama.

Let us continue the voyage in my pocket.

THE CARTES DE VISITE.

The devil!

Two cards, as I'm a sinner!

The first bearing the name and address:

R. DE FAYET-MORET,
Sous-Lieutenant—Infantry.

The second:

JULES BUHOT,
Captain 120th of the Line.

What is it that all this tells me? I've never known in all my senses as many militaires as this. There is under it of course a quarrel, a row, an altercation. These two cards, cold and glacial, have assuredly been exchanged for two of my own!

Behold the drama demanded: A duel—two duels perhaps.

But two duels with whom? Duels apropos of what? Whom have I offended? For it is I, it is I, surely, that am the offender—I, who know so well that I am truly unbearable when—when a little high up.

In this case what am I, provoked or provocator?

Now I think of it, it seems to me that my left cheek pains me a little and is bigger than the other—the scar of battle unquestionably.

Pooh! An illusion! What other nonsense will I get into my head? Stay! what is this written in the corner of the lieutenant's card, the Lieutenant R. de Fayet-Moret? "Ten o'clock at St. Maunde."

At St. Maunde! Zounds! an armed encounter; the hour of the rendezvous. Nothing could be clearer!

Quick, run! There is still time perhaps!

No, the hour has passed. 'Tis 11:30 now!

I am dishonored!

No one will believe me when I say that I slept too late and got up with a splitting headache.

I have no longer the strength to interrogate my pockets. Still, let us see.

Fine and hemstitched; an airy, cobwebby batiste. But it is not one of mine.

It bears in one of its corners, too, a baron's tortil.

What next? A handkerchief in my pocket that belongs to another! Behold me on the road to the galleys!

Ah, my head, my head!

And these flowers in my buttonhole—this wilted boutonniere. Tiny myosotis blossoms that have closed their blue eyes. The thread that holds them is half untied. A bouquet too modest and simple for me to have bought from a regular flower vender, to have stolen like the handkerchief or to have had bestowed upon me by demoiselles of the theatrical clique.

It was given to me, I know it. Just how it was given to me too. A continuation of the story of that unknown little blond. She gave me these myosotis blossoms, knowing that I was going to fight—that I was going to fight for her—in all probability.

Yes, that is it—it could be nothing else!

My apprehensions redoubled. Awhile ago I wished to know, now I fear to learn too much.

I hesitate to plunge too deep into the depths of my overcoat. Suppose, like the comedian Arnal, in the fair of the Rue de Lourvine, I draw out my hand full of soot or of blood!

What?

This overcoat—this overcoat is not mine!

No, mine was chestnut color, and this is the color of a Corinth raisin.

I have not, then, voyaged in my pockets. I have voyaged in the pockets of another.

But then, if this overcoat is not mine, no more is the duel mine!

Nor mine the bill of the Cafe Anglais!

Nor mine the photographs!

Nor mine the cards of the militaires!

Nor mine the wilted myosotis blossoms!

Nor mine the theft of the baron's handkerchief!

And the romance and friendship of the little blond?

Not mine, either!

Bah! what matters it? The address can still be found by means of the photograph.—From the French.

People Who Live Long.

Sir George Humphrey has investigated the life histories of centenarians in England with the view of ascertaining the causes and circumstances of longevity. As one reads the habits and life of these men and women who attained to the age of 100 years and more, one is struck by the fact that they were almost invariably lean people of spare habits and of great moderation in eating and drinking. Of 37, 3 took no animal food, 4 took very little, 20 a little, 10 a moderate amount and only one acknowledged taking much meat. With regard to alcohol the returns are much the same, and abstemiousness is found to be the rule of life of these centenarians.—London Hospital.

A PRETTY GIRL STAGE DRIVER.

She Takes Her Sick Father's Place and Runs a Difficult Route Bravely.

Butte county's most popular daughter today is Annie Morrison, whose father, Henry Morrison, is one of the most famous characters on the coast. Hen Morrison has driven the coach from Cherokee Flat down Morris ravine to Oroville for lo! these many years. He is a typical old time stage driver, hale, bluff, hearty and good natured, who could not live anywhere else but in the region in which he has spent the better portion of his life, the mountain region of northern California. To him Tin Cup ravine, Sherman ravine and all the dozens of defiles in the mountains are as familiar as Lotta's fountain is to the statues of Kearny street.

For years it has been his special mission in life to bring down the gold from the mountain recesses to Oroville. Few men could safely drive a coach over that road, but Hen Morrison had been there so long that it had never occurred to any one that he might meet with an accident or be called away. So a short time ago, when he was thrown from his coach and had his leg broken, there was distress in the community. "Who can fill his place?" was the main question. The many deeds of valor and kindness of the old stage driver, his many battles, by physical exertion and the aid of his ready gun, were recalled. There did not seem to be any one to succeed him.

But the stage went out the next morning just the same. When the horses had been hitched and all the minor details had been attended to, Miss Annie Morrison, the charming daughter of the unfortunate old driver, jumped into the box, took up the reins, cracked her whip, and drove away. Throughout her father's illness she drove the stage and did it as well as Old Hen ever did. Her independence and bravery commanded attention and forced respect.

Miss Morrison is only about 20 years old and is a refined and well educated young lady. She had made the trip with her father many a time, and had sometimes driven the horses. Why should she not do so during the convalescence of her father? With her to think was to act, and for nearly a month she manipulated the lines.

Major McLaughlin, when seen at the Palace last evening, said he knew Miss Morrison very well. "I am not surprised that she relieved her father," he said. "She is a noble and splendid girl and one of the handsomest in the state, a good, honest, healthy California girl. And I may add," he said in conclusion, "that she is as good as she is pretty."—San Francisco Chronicle.

The Health of Holland's Little Queen.

The good people of Holland, who are very fond of the little Queen Wilhelmina, are worried about her health. She is a nervously organized child, and even in spite of the devoted care of her mother, Queen Emma, she finds the strain of royal existence telling upon her. Queen Emma before her marriage to the late King William of Holland was a princess of Waldeck-Pyrmont, but she has become thoroughly and loyally Dutch in her feeling and is educating her little daughter with all regard for the traditions of the house of Orange.

The queen and queen regent spend most of their time at the castle of Loo, one of the royal residences. It lies in the midst of forests and heaths. There are Dutch flower gardens, walks, fountains and cascades about it. And there the young queen leads a very regular life, rising at 7 o'clock each morning and studying until noon. The afternoon is given up to driving her ponies, sailing her boat or busying herself with her pigeons. But even with such a regular and unexciting life as this it is far from likely that the little girl will become the queen of the Netherlands in fact as she is in name.

Women Legislators Needed.

The constantly recurring cases of cruel and abusive treatment of wives by brutal husbands should call attention of legislators to the need of special legislation for the protection of such wives. The daily papers report a case of fiendish cruelty which occurred in Connecticut—a case almost past belief. The poor wife is now dead and the man in jail. But there should have been a law like a shield for this woman in her lifetime. Surely women are needed to legislate for women!—Boston Woman's Journal.

Royalty Selling Trinkets.

The Princess of Wales, the Duchess of Edinburgh, the Duchess of Connaught, the Princess Christian and the Duchess of Fife were among the illustrious personages who acted as stall keepers and sold cigarettes, sunshades, fruit, flowers, etc., at the recent fair held in London to raise $125,000 for building an appropriate habitation for the United Service institution.

How to Save Laundry Bills.

The many girls who affect the shirt waist for hot weather wear should remember to buy those with loose collars and to purchase more than one of the latter. They soil so much quicker than the front and make a great laundry bill for very little using.

The estimate of the amount given by the late Senator Stanford to the Leland Stanford, Jr., university reaches $20,000,000. The buildings alone cost $1,000,000.

SEEKING A RELEASE.

William King Has Been Thirty Years In an Asylum.

RETIRED CHINA MERCHANT

Whose Fortune Is Estimated at Two Millions.

BOSTON, Aug. 30.—Friends of William H. King, the Newport millionaire, who has been an inmate of the McLean insane asylum for nearly 30 years, are making strong efforts to secure his release. To that end they are trying to get an order from the supreme court of Massachusetts to set aside a decree of the supreme court of Rhode Island under which the commitment was made. The latter court ordered Mr. King committed in 1866 to the asylum until further order of that court; and no other order has ever been issued.

Those who have applied to the Massachusetts court contend that the order of the Rhode Island court was invalid on several legal grounds, and if the release is not to be ordered they ask that at least the place of confinement

May Be Changed.

The proceeding is in the nature of a petition for a writ of habeas corpus and was heard by Judge Barker in the lobby. Only those interested were allowed to be present. Judge E. C. Bumpus and Lawyer Trask appear for the petitioner, who is E. A. W. Ross of Boston. The Massachusetts general hospital appears as a party interested, and is represented by Ex-Assistant Secretary of State W. F. Wharton. David King, a nephew of Mr. King, entered an appearance by his counsel, Shattuck & Munroe, who urged that the asylum should retain control of Mr. King. Later this appearance was withdrawn. Mr. King left the asylum Saturday and has since been at a Boston hotel in custody of the sheriff, awaiting a decision on his application for release permanently. The decision will rest probably

On Law Points Alone.

Mr. King is a retired China merchant who had when in active business amassed an immense fortune. He is a bachelor, and is now about 75 years of age. His fortune is estimated at $2,000,000. E. A. Webster Ross, who files the petition for his release, claims to be a niece of Mr. King. David King, who has been appointed guardian of Mr. King and manager of his estate, denies that Mrs. Ross is a niece. He opposes his uncle's release.

Mrs. Ross retaliates by asserting that David King is not a nephew of William H. King. She contends that the commitment was invalid because not in pursuance of an order of the court, but merely made upon a certificate of two physicians, who made oath that Mr. King was insane and a person dangerous to be at large.

Mrs. Ross alleges that her uncle's condition is such and his estate so large that he ought to be confined, if at all, in a private dwelling, with personal attendants. She avers that he is not a dangerous person.

An attempt will be made to have another guardian appointed to take charge of the estate, pending litigation.

The Decision.

Mr. King was remanded to the McLean insane asylum by Judge Barker, and to remain there in charge of Deputy Sheriff Seavey until otherwise ordered by the court. This ordered return of Mr. King was made conditional. The removal from the hotel, where Mr. King has been staying since last Saturday in the custody of the deputy sheriff, to the asylum is to take place if his condition is such as to allow the change back.

Everybody in the case is unwilling to talk about the case or the parties thereto. What could be learned was importuned by threads from those who were at the hearing.

The final determination of the case will probably be known in a few days. The court will have to examine into numerous legal authorities bearing upon the law questions in the case, but it has been the inviolable rule of the court to dispose of habeas corpus' cases as soon as can be with proper regard to justice, and the decision may be immediately forthcoming. These class of cases take precedence over other cases after they have been heard by the court.

The present case is probably not yet concluded, as counsel stated that all the necessary matters had not been presented to the court.

NO OPPOSITION.

Lowell, Sentenced to Prison For Life, Asks For a Pardon.

AUGUSTA, Me., Aug. 30.—The governor and council devoted the whole of their morning session to hearing the petition for the pardon of James M. Lowell of Lewiston, convicted in 1875 of murder in the first degree and sentenced to imprisonment for life.

James E. Moore, a Thomaston lawyer, appeared for Lowell, and presented a complete statement of the crime. Hon. Seth Carter of Lewiston, Hon. A. R. Savage of Auburn, ex-Senator N. S. Sleeper of Sabatis, Colonel A. B. Neeley of Lewiston, also appeared in behalf of the petitioners.

Lowell was convicted of the murder of his wife, whose body was not discovered until three years after death. It was thought until then that she had eloped.

Lowell's story is that they, while driving together, quarreled, having both been drinking. He struck or pushed her, so that she fell out of the buggy, breaking her neck.

If this is true, Lowell is only guilty of manslaughter, with a maximum sentence of 10 years, while he has been in prison 19.

There is no opposition to the pardon. Unusual interest is taken in the case, owing to the mystery that has always surrounded it. The council is now in executive session upon previous pardon hearings.

ABANDONED FARMS.

People Living Outside Massachusetts Want to Buy Them.

BOSTON, Aug. 30.—There is a growing demand for the abandoned farms in the state of Massachusetts, and the state board of agriculture is evidently of the opinion that the day is soon coming when there will be no such thing as an abandoned farm to be had. The catalogues now being distributed as they are asked for are incomplete in some particulars, and so the assessors in the different towns have been asked by the board to furnish information concerning farms that are unoccupied. The replies to this request are now coming in rapidly, and the board will soon be able to issue another catalogue which will be quite as complete as one can well be made.

A majority of the requests for information concerning the farms come from farmers in other states, who think that farming is far more profitable in Massachusetts. Numerous communications have come in from gentlemen in easy circumstances who would leave the bustle of the city for the quiet of country life. Under the head of "Causes for Abandonment of Farms" it is stated as follows:

There is a strange fascination in city life which has always existed and which leads many who are under its spell to prefer poverty and privation in the city to independence and comfort in the country; yet it must be admitted that the promise that leads to the abandonment of country life is frequently unfulfilled.

The movement from the country to the city has affected the labor market in two ways; it may lead to a dearth of agricultural labor in the depleted districts, and it may intensify the competition to which the city laborer is subjected, both as to employment and labor. The farms of New England have in the past nurtured strong and brave men, but it was not because of any favorable economic conditions. It is easily shown that the hardship and poverty of our farmers were in the past much greater than they are today.

GAVE THEMSELVES UP.

Canadian Pacific Officials Have Violated the Interstate Law.

BURLINGTON, Vt., Aug. 30.—W. C. Van Horne, president, and R. D. McNicoll general passenger agent of the Canadian railway of Montreal, against whom among others, the grand jury of the United States circuit court for the district of Washington, in session at Tacoma last month, found indictments for violation of the interstate law, appeared here before United States Commissioner Johnson at St. Albans, and gave bail in the sum of $1000 each for their appearance at Tacoma Nov. 16 next.

After learning through the papers that he and McNicoll had been indicted, President Van Horne asked the court to allow them to enter the states at the most accessible point to them, and there be arraigned and furnish surety to avoid possible embarrassment which might otherwise come from their being unexpectedly arrested. Accordingly, St. Albans was selected. Three others of the company were also indicted.

RIOTOUS CIRCUS MEN

Give Considerable Trouble to Officers In a Vermont Town.

HYDE PARK, Vt., Aug. 30.—Forepaugh's circus exhibited here yesterday afternoon. The attempts of Sheriff Martin of Montgomery to arrest one man met with resistance, and Sheriff Stevens of Lamoille county called a posse and assisted. A general fight ensued, in which the circus men used bludgeons, knives and pistols, but the officers succeeded in putting 15 men in jail. Officers Stevens, Town and Waite were severely handled, but pluckily held their ground and effected the arrest of most of the gang. All the property of the circus off the railroad track was attached. It is not certainly known or not whether Forepaugh was present personally, but the officers are in pursuit of one man who took an early leave last night. Collateral was deposited and the circus proceeded to Richmond today.

Ready For Distribution.

HARTFORD, Aug. 30.—The resolution passed by the last general assembly requesting the amnesty of all American citizens in English prisons, have been engrossed and bound in four volumes. One volume is to be sent each to Premier Gladstone, John Morely, M. P., chief secretary for Ireland; John Redmond, M P., and Justin McCarthy, M. P.

What Does Norton Say?

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 30.—Two New Haven people, Henry Hitchcock and George H. Stahl, have exploded the pirate story of Louis H. Norton, who was washed ashore at Atlantic City last week, by affirming that they saw him the night he disappeared, after the time he says he went down the sound with the pirates, on his way to the Union depot.

Fatal Elevator Accident.

WORCESTER, Mass., Aug. 30.—Auton Mayowski, a Russian Pole, was killed by a freight elevator at Graton & Knight's tannery. The elevator was above him, and he looked downward for it. The car was suddenly started down, and his neck was broken. He died instantly.

Wages to Be Reduced.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Aug. 30.—The manufacturers of this city have, after a consultation, decided to follow the action of the Fall River manufacturers, and after Sept. 10 will make an average reduction in wages of 10 per cent. This will take away the advance which has prevailed since July 1, 1892. It is said the spinners will strike.

After Thieves.

HARTFORD, Aug. 30.—Govenor Morris has made a requisition on Governor Flower of New York for the extradition of James F. Ferguson for the theft of a bicycle at Greenwich and Harry Hall, who is wanted for theft at Willimantic.

There seems to be no lack of openings for female medical practitioners in this country, for the Indian bureau announces 17 vacancies for women.

MANY ARE MISSING.

Extent of Life Lost by the Cyclone Not Yet Known.

HUNDRED REPORTED DEAL

At Port Royal, N. C., and Neighboring Towns.

SAVANNAH, Aug. 30.—The list of fatalities is gradually growing and it is impossible to tell to what extent it will grow. Several bodies of drowned persons have been picked up and search is now being made for others who are missing. A. C. Ulmer, assistant cashier of the Central Railroad bank, was drowned. Miller, his dairyman, has not been found. Other fatalities are as follows:

Tony Holmes, colored, crushed to death.

Four unknown negroes drowned near this city.

Lewis Gagnet, colored, ran into a live trolley wire.

A 6-year-old colored boy, drowned on Hutchinson island.

John Williams, Mary Butler and Sarah Green, drowned on a rice plantation south of the city.

Two unknown sailors were drowned at Tybee island.

Forty or 50 persons are reported missing, and it is supposed as nothing has been heard of them that their bodies will be found later. Twelve barks and barkentines, which were anchored at quarantine station, were blown high and dry on the marsh and some of them were carried by the storm across the marshes on an island two miles distant from the station. One of the vessels at Tybee was completely capsized, and three clubhouses on the island were blown entirely down, while others were flooded.

Loss of Life on the Water.

Savannah is almost shut off from telegraphic communication.

The tug Paulsen brought about 60 passengers from Tybee. They say that four negroes were drowned while clearing the railroad tracks. A sailor and the cabin boy on the schooner Harold, which is on her side on North beach, are drowned. It is reported that eight of the crew of a terrapin sloop, which went ashore on the south end, were drowned.

The Hotel Tybee is considerably damaged in front. Her verandas and bathhouses are gone.

The Knights of Pythias clubhouse was washed away.

Two of the cottages of the Cottage club are gone. The north end is practically demolished.

The water swept with tremendous force over this part of the island, railroad tracks being carried from 200 to 500 feet.

The Chatham clubhouse is badly damaged. The pavilions on the beach are gone; so is the switchback. A train is in the woods. The trains on all roads are either delayed or stopped entirely.

A STARTLING REPORT.

A Hundred Persons In Port Royal and Vicinity Were Killed.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Aug. 30.—A special to The Chronicle from Port Royal, S. C., brings the startling information that fully 100 lives have been lost at Port Royal, Beaufort and neighboring points by drowning during the storm.

Over 25 of these were seen by the correspondent, and his information regarding the others was received from reliable sources. Of the 100 persons killed and drowned only six were white, the others being negroes. The negroes were so frightened and terror stricken that many were killed and drowned by not leaving their cabins to seek places of safety.

Twenty persons were drowned on Paris island. No news has been received from St. Helena, four miles from Beaufort. It is believed fully 26 lives were lost between Port Royal and Seabrook, all negroes.

Every house in Beaufort and Port Royal was damaged to some extent, and a number of barges and crafts were wrecked and blown ashore.

The total losses are estimated in the neighborhood of $500,000.

Vessels In Distress.

WILMINGTON, N. C., Aug. 30.—A severe storm of wind and rain prevailed here, but caused no serious damage to life. At Southport the wind velocity was 73 miles an hour. The brigantine Wastrow (Ger.), Liverpool, for this port, with a cargo of salt, went to pieces on Caswell beach. The crew saved themselves by swimming ashore. An unknown three-masted schooner is also ashore leaking and showing signals of distress, on the same beach, two miles southwest of Southport. The lifesaving crew has gone to her assistance.

The three-masted schooner Three Sisters, with a cargo of lumber from Savannah for Philadelphia, was wrecked and abandoned off Cape Fear. Captain Isaac Simpson and Mate Johnson Heede were washed overboard and drowned. The vessel was left anchored in a leaking condition.

Charleston Fared Badly.

CHARLESTON, Aug. 30.—Charleston has again stood in the track of a cyclone which has shaken the old city to her foundations. The damage to property cannot be told and the loss of life is unknown. The cyclone swept up the coast and across Charleston. Early Saturday morning the dreaded signal was run up, and the city held its breath, hoping that the storm might pass by. It started Saturday night and continued until Monday morning, the wind increasing in speed. There was no longer a doubt that the dreaded cyclone was to descend upon the city. The velocity of the wind was estimated at 60 miles.

Favorite Material For Bathing Suits.

Mohair is the favorite material for bathing suits this summer. It is liked because it does not shrink, nor does it cling to the figure when wet, as flannel and less wiry fabrics are apt to do. Black suits are effective and especially popular. Navy blue suits are always liked, a few red suits are seen, but white is little used this year.—Harper's Bazar.

Wedding at Randolph.

There was a pretty wedding Tuesday evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert A. Howard of Randolph, there only daughter Miss Bertha W. Howard and Mr. Henry K. Rowe of Newton Centre, a son of the late Rev. Charles H. Rowe, being united in marriage by Rev. Louis S. Bowerman. The bride's gown was a white bengaline silk trimmed with lace. Miss Grace M. Rowe was maid of honor and Mr. T. Snowden Thomas of Newton Centre the best man. Mr. and Mrs. Rowe will reside at New London, Conn., Mr. Rowe being the professor of Latin and Greek at Colby academy.

A Sure Outcome.

With proper modesty Mr. Quincy denies that he has resigned his post in Washington, and says that he will not do so until after he confers with Mr. Cleveland. The resignation will be forthcoming about next week, and Mr. Quincy will devote himself to the hopeless task of making the republican majority in this State a small one. Then his nomination to the mayoralty will follow as a matter of course. No other gentleman will be able to show the scars of political battle so fresh—and so deep—as his. He will win that ambition, but the title "Mayor Quincy of Boston" does not compare with "Mr. Quincy of Quincy" in sonorousness.—Boston Advertiser.

THE CITY of Salem is the latest to report its tax rate. Last year it was $16, the same as Quincy. This year it will be $17.30 against $15.80 for our city. Salem's valuation is $26,905,776.

WITH TAXES at $20 per $1,000, North Attleboro ought to have a great many heavy taxpayers. Too heavy doubtless. A list of those paying over $200 is quite lengthy.

THE OLD 39th REGT.

The Guests Today of the D Company of Quincy.

BRIEF SKETCH OF REGIMENT.

About 150 Veterans in Attendance at This, the 27th Reunion.

The 27th annual reunion 39th Mass. Vol. Infantry was held in this city today. The regiment being the guests of Co. D.

This organization was formed in response to the call made in July, 1862, for 300,000 3 year men, and was composed of companies raised in Taunton, Dorchester, Quincy, Roxbury, Natick, Somerville, Woburn, Medford, South Danvers and Boston. They left the state on Sept. 6, 1862, and was the extreme left wing of the Potomac army, in the operations which resulted in the Battle of Antietam. Afterwards became a part of the 22d Corps and picketed the Potomac in the winter of 1862-3.

In July, 1863, after a tour of duty in Washington, the regiment became a part of the 1st Brig., 2d Div., 1st Corps, and was in all the operations of that corps until March, 1864, when by the reason of consolidation, it became a part of the 1st Brig. 2d Div., 5th Corps. With some slight changes it remained with the 5th Corps until mustered out in June, 1865.

The regiment was composed of Typical New England Men.

as then understood. There was very little of the city element in it. Recruited in towns there was to be found in its ranks many of the best of the bone and sinew of Massachusetts. Its Colonel was P. L. Davis of Cambridge, long closely connected with the Massachusetts militia before the war. Many a scholar of the fifties will remember "Greenleaf's arithmetic." This book was published by the firm of R. S. Davis & Co, of which firm Col. Davis was a partner. He was killed in the trenches in front of Petersburg, July, 1864.

Its Lieut. Col. once was Chas. L. Peirson, who was adjutant of the 20th Massachusetts volunteer and had been captured in October, '62, at Balls Bluff. He was a close friend of Col. Paul Revere of this town.

Its major was Henry M. Tremlett, a captain in the 20th Massachusett and promoted and assigned to this regiment. He was an excellent officer, losing his leg in the battle of Gavelly Run, Mich., 1865, dying June 6, 1865, from the wound, the very day on which the Regiment reached this State at the close of its service.

The regiment was an active participant and innumerable skirmishes. It was at Appomattox Court House in April, 1865. The advance skirmishers driving the rebel infantry from about the McLearn house, in which the surrender took place. It was in the grand review in May, 1865, marching up Pennsylvania avenue on that day with 90 officers and men. Up the same street where just two years before it had escorted President Lincoln with over 900 officers and men in line.

In 20 battles

During that time it had received over 500 recruits and the reader will see that battle and march and sickness had made great inroads in its ranks in the two years which had elapsed.

Quincy had a full company in this regiment. Its captain was Edward A. Spear, and no braver or purer patriot drew a sword in defence of his country. Captain George A. Barker was in its ranks, a modest soldier but a sterling one. Ever ready to do his duty and always doing it to the best of his ability.

Serg. Gavin, a dashing pugnacious soldier, ready for the fray and although a very young man, (only 16 years old at enlistment,) carried himself as one of much maturer years.

John McCarthy, long known to our citizens as a gallant soldier twice mustered in his service, still lives here.

Serg. Derry, an old Quincy name, Corp. J. T. French, and many others, are old Quincy people.

They are

To be Cogratulated

on having so beautiful a day for the reunion, and the delight of comradeship will be enhanced as the old, old stories are told and retold to each other.

The veterans began to arrive on the early morning trains and were met and welcomed by Co. D. The greater number however did not arrive until the 10 31 train, and then it was that the fun commenced.

The scene at the depot was one that recalled old times. It was an occasion when everybody knew everybody but had not seen them since the last reunion, and there was many a hearty shake of the hand and the air was filled with the salute "How are you?"

After the first greetings were over, the officers of the different companies could be heard shouting, in voices that had the old ring in it: Fall in Co. A.; fall in Co. K. and so on through the different companies which comprised the regiment. The line was soon formed and then came the order, "Forward march" and the veterans one hundred and fifty strong filed down the depot yard to the electric cars, three of which were quickly filled, and the start was made for the Pine Point House where the reunion is being held.

When the party arrived at the Pine Point House, each veteran's time until one o'clock was his own to do with it as he saw fit, and as they were out for a day's pleasure they soon scattered, some to go out sailing, others to wander along the shore and through Lovell's grove, while still others gathered in little groups on the hotel piazzas and talked over old battle scenes, when the rebel bullets fell thick and fast about their ears. Many laughable incidents were told which excited merriment, which was changed into sadness when one would tell of how some of the boys met their death far from home and loved ones dear.

Among those from Quincy in the party noticed were: Col. C. H. Porter, Capt. Edward A. Spear, Capt. Charles N. Hunt, Joseph T. French, Samuel DeForrest, P. H. Gavin, T. J. H. Thayer, James Mahoney, Luther Parrott, John McCarthy, Charles Huntress, William J. Young, Henry Curtis and H., G. O. Newcomb. There were also several former Quincy residents, among whom were Thaddeus Churchill, George Perciville, Thomas A'Hearn, Albert Parrott, Thurman Huntress and John Forbes, all of Boston, and Samuel Brown of Reading.

Dinner was served by Caterer Nash, after which a business meeting was held, followed by speeches and a general good time.

THE ILLUMINATION.

The Festivities at Houghs Neck Have Begun —A Blaze Tonight.

This is the gala day at Houghs Neck, and the seaside hamlet is favored with a delightful day for its annual illumination, and the moon will smile on the scene this evening. The electric cars have been crowded on every trip.

The festivities begun at one o'clock when there was a childrens festival in the car house. Between one and three o'clock many ladies and children were treated to a sail in the yachts. Punch and Judy shows were given hourly from 1.30 to 6.30 this evening.

At 2 o'clock a series of sports was inaugurated which will not be concluded until 5 or later. They include a

Tub race for boys,
Swimming race for boys,
Spud race,
Running race, 50 yards,
Skiff race,
Pleasure race, consisting of lady and gentleman in row boat,
Sack race,
Three-legged race,
Wheelbarrow race,
Bicycle race.

See the LEDGER tomorrow for prize winners.

Animal balloons were sent up at intervals during the afternoon from Great Hill and Bird street.

The cottages will be illuminated by 7.30 and promises to be very general. From 7.30 to 11 o'clock the City Band of Quincy will give a concert on the Plains, and there will be a display of fireworks.

A GHOST CAPTURED.

It Took an Officer and About Sixty Others to Do It—Brave Work.

The people who reside on Centre street, Quincy, received a genuine ghost scare Monday night.

It was in the vicinity of 9 o'clock when a man came rushing up to Officer Nicol who was on duty near the Quincy Adams depot, and informed him that he had seen a ghost running along Centre street, and that the women were afraid to go out, the man himself was pretty well frightened and could hardly talk straight.

Officer Nicol drew his paralizer and backed by a crowd of sixty or more men and boys headed for Centre street.

As they neared the stamping ground of his ghostship a halt was made. In a moment something was seen coming down the street. It was not walking or exactly running but came with a sort of ziz zag movement.

There it is cried one of the party and all held their breath while the guardian of the peace swallowed the lump that was rising in his throat and grasping his club in his hand he advanced upon the ghost which was now quite near. Contrary to the usual custom with ghosts, this one did not vanish with the approach of the crowd but remained standing apparantly waiting for them.

It was not many seconds before the ghost and the officer stood side by side and then it was that a laugh loud and long resounded through the air for the ghost proved to be a well known citizen of Ward Three who had encased himself in a light bag. It seems that he had entered for the sack race at Spy pond next Monday and was out that night training.

Special of the Council.

The call has been issued for a special meeting of the City Council on Friday evening at 7.45. There are three items in the call.

To draw three traverse jurors.

To receive and act upon the report of the Committee on Finance, on order 141, authorizing the city treasurer to issue notes at 4 1-2 per cent. instead of 4 per cent., to the amount of $30,000, as authorized under order 44.

To receive and act upon a communication from the Mayor, requesting authority to provide for the payment of the award and expenses in the water case.

TODAY'S COURT.

David Mead of Quincy, for drunkenness, was fined $5.

In the the case of intoxicating liquors in the possession of Stephen Kurser of Quincy, the court ordered four gallons of beer in 36 bottles forfeited, and eight gallons of wine, one keg and 51 empty bottles returned.

WORK OF THE STORM

One of the Worst Ever Experienced at Houghs Neck.

LIFE-BOAT PUTS OUT TWICE.

Lots of Damage in All Parts of the City to Trees and Fruit.

The storm in this city was unusually severe Tuesday and much damage was done. In the early morning the weather looked threatening and the wind was quite fresh. At about 8 o'clock it began to rain. This continued about an hour when the sun came out, but the wind continued to blow and to increase in fury.

The sun did not shine but a few moments when it commenced to rain and in this way it continued until afternoon, when it stopped raining and the sun came out, but the wind continued to blow hard until late into the night.

During some parts of the day the wind blew a gale, limbs were torn from trees and trees were uprooted, in some cases large trees were split and ruined.

Just before noon a large tree on Elm street was blown down and completely blocked the street until it was sawed up and removed by the city.

A large elm tree near the residence of W. G. A. Pattee on School street was split in half and about ruined.

Another tree on the property of Henry H. Faxon on the corner of Franklin and Water streets was split open.

There were also many others to numerous to mention.

The water department laid mains on Bigelow street last year and found it necessary to cut several large roots of an elm tree abutting the estate of Mr. Elisha Packard. This so weakened the support of the big tree that it swayed to and fro and lifted the earth on the weakened side, and but for prompt attention would have fallen onto Mr. Packard's house. It was guyed up for the night, and was cut down today much to the loss of the street, it being a beautiful shade tree.

Perhaps the most serious damage was to fruit trees, for what little fruit was left on the trees from the last storm was mostly blown off and in many cases the trees are as bare of fruit as in winter. Great damage was also done to the telephone lines, and last night not more than ten lines in the Quincy exchange were in working order.

At West Quincy the wheel of the large wind mill of John Cashman was blown off and struck the ground with a crash, smashing it into kindling wood.

A barrel of old LEDGER coupons was back of T. L. William's jewelry store, and during the afternoon the streets and yards in that vicinity were covered with votes.

Off Germantown the only boat to go adrift was the cat of Mr. F. D. Rideout which went ashore. The others rode out the storm in good shape.

AT WOLLASTON.

Trees Uprooted, Chimneys Blown Down, Boats Adrift in the Bay.

Wollaston suffered severely from the storm. Several large elm trees, including one on famous Elm avenue of the old Quincy estate, and one on Beale street were uprooted. Large quantities of fruit were destroyed.

One of the chimneys on the National Sailors' Home was blown over and crashed through the roof doing about $100 damage to the building.

The hurricane kicked up a lively sea in Quincy Bay. But for timely assistance from Wollaston several of the large boats moored off Quincy's wharf would have parted their mooring. Burkhardt's forty foot sloop Magnate parted her moorings and drifted on the rocks at Squantum. She pounded hard and is badly damaged.

J. N. Tewksbury, Jr.'s Gretchens; Barstow & Freeman's Starlight; and H. J. Smith's Addie, drifted half way over to Moon island.

AT HOUGH'S NECK.

Very Rough Weather for the Yachts—Life Boat in Service.

The West India hurricane struck here yesterday. Old sea dogs say that it was only the tail end, but, head or tail, it struck, and it struck hard too. A week ago Monday a severe storm raged along our shores, but the storm of Monday was a very tame affair compared to the storm of yesterday.

Early in the day the wind began to blow in from the south-east, and for once it looked as though the governments predictions would turn out as advertised. The wind increased every minute until by noon it shrieked and whistled with fiendish-like glee, driving the spray along like sheets of snow, tearing yachts and floats from their moorings, and doing lots of other damage.

If any yacht was out in that hurricane, then, God help her!

The inhabitants of Houghs Neck were nearly all down along the beach looking out for any unfortunate yacht that might part her moorings.

The trim yacht Adolph lies some distance off the club house and has a party aboard consisting of Mr. Henry Moebs, Joseph Moebs, Willie Moebs and Leonard Hurd. She came in from Scituate late Monday night, so Mr. Moebs and his party concluded to come ashore in the morning. Tuesday morning this was impossible on account of the enormous seas that would swamp the tender if they attempted to reach shore. Mr. Moebs was in a quandary. One of his boys had become violently ill and was throwing up blood. It was necessary that the little fellow should be brought on shore. Mr. Moebs raised a signal of distress. The crowd on the beach saw it.

WORK OF THE STORM.

"The lifeboat!" they cried, "Out with the lifeboat!"

After some persuasion the key of the lifeboat house was procured and the boat itself was run down to the water's edge. "Who will man the lifeboat?" was the cry. Instantly five men strode forward and stepped into the boat. They were Frank C. Perry, Charles Cavanagh, John Sullivan, Henry Hoey and a man who works for Stanley Mears.

Not a word was spoken. The boat shot forward, now rising on the wave, now sinking in the watery valley until lost from view, then rising again, buffeting the waves until after a desperate struggle with wind and waves it ranged along side of the Adolph. The occupants were taken off, and a second time the noble heroes in the lifeboat fought their way inch by inch, stroke by stroke, until at length the boat's keel grated on the sand and everybody landed safe and sound amid the cheers of an excited multitude that had gathered on the beach to watch the rescue.

Just at this time the Electra and the Don parted their moorings and went scudding away towards the ocean. Charles Hanson, janitor of the Yacht club house, and Rufus Billings jumped into a small boat and went after the two yachts. They caught the Electra in the West Gut and threw her big anchor overboard, which held her fast.

They then caught the Don and drew her up on Prince's Head. But to get back to the club house was another thing. To attempt to recross the West Gut in a small boat was sheer madness. The crowd who had been watching the efforts of the two young men saw that they could not get back again without assistance, and it was decided to launch the life-boat a second time.

Volunteers were again asked for and Frank C. Perry, James Murray, Joe Moebs, Frank Ryder, Charles Cavanagh and John Sullivan took their places in the boat. The sea in the West Gut was terribly rough and from the manner in which the lifeboat was tossed about, many never expected to see her safe on shore again.

Finally Princess Head was reached and taking Mr. Hanson and Mr. Billings aboard the lifeboat started on its return home. The seas dashed over her, wetting the crew to the skin, but every man bent to the oar and after almost superhuman efforts they reached the club house safely amid the cheers of hundreds of excited people who had watched the brave struggle with trembling hearts.

Mr. Joseph Baxter, a young man whose home is in Roxbury had a narrow escape from drowning in Morton's Cove. He saw some row boats drifting and foolishly swam out to the boats. Suddenly one of the boats overturned and young Baxter was thrown out into the water.

He was struggling in the water for a long time when he was seen by a young lady who gave the alarm. Frank C. Perry went to his rescue and brought him ashore Mr. Baxter was completely exhausted and he was put to bed in the "Loretto" cottage and eventually came around all right and started for home last night.

A catboat belonging to J. L. Harvey filled and capsized off the club house.

The large floats belonging to J. Stanley Mears and J. D. Taber broke their moorings and drifted for some distance.

A number of small dories and other small craft were sunk or driven ashore.

The large catamaran Florence, owned by Dr. Bodge of Newton, was driven ashore on the rocks at Nut island. She was badly damaged, and the owner thinks she will go to pieces.

A large yacht broke her moorings on the Weymouth shore and was driven out through the West Gut. She has not been seen since.

The tents along the shore near Bell street were rooted up and whisked away across the fields.

A yacht belonging to W. E. Wyman parted her moorings at Rock Island and drifted ashore near Mears'.

Along the South Shore.

The storm along the South Shore was the most severe since the September gale of 22 years ago says the Herald. To the farmers the loss on apples, pears, and other small fruits will be enormous.

The destruction to the shade and ornamental trees at Hingham and Cohasset was extensive. The electric light wires were broken, and telegraph and telephone wires were all down. Acres of corn grown especially for ensilage at Hingham and Scituate were levelled.

At Hull where the gale was felt the worst, the wind blew 40 miles an hour. Old mariners declared that they have never experienced so hard a southerly storm.

Thousands of dollars' damage was done to the boats of the Hull and Corinthian yacht clubs. The yachts were blown ashore and then tossed about by the surf like chips. The steamer Twilight discontinued her trips to Nantasket Beach, and several trips of the other boats were cancelled. The steam dredgers at Boston light were towed to the inner harbor early in the day.

Several carriages on the plains near Bayside were overturned by the wind. A lady named Whitely of Revere, while going to the station at Bayside, was blown across the beach and into the water. She was rescued by an unknown gentleman.

It is stated that San Francisco has supplanted Chicago as the champion divorce centre.

FOR LITTLE FOLKS.

New York's Free Playground.

At the corner of Fiftieth street and Eleventh avenue, New York city, is a large lot fenced in by high palings and rough walls. This is a free playground for the poor children of the neighborhood. It is in charge of four teachers and a janitor, who are paid by some generous citizen whose name is a secret. The teachers are young women of education, and they know how to amuse and train the urchins, and the best of order is always maintained.

There are swings, "teeter totters," wheelbarrows and other things with which the little ones amuse themselves. Beautiful white sand has been hauled from the seashore until it covers the greater part of the playground to the depth of three feet or more. The children have great fun on this imitation sea beach, and one of their games is racing with wheelbarrows. The elder children wheel the barrows, each one having a little tot for a passenger. They run the course and at the finish dump their little passengers into a heap of sand. This is jolly fun for all, as it gives excitement with exercise, and no one is ever hurt. The picture shows a little boy named Johnny dumping his passenger at the end of a race. Johnny has won this time. The teachers say he nearly always comes in first in the races.

What a Boy King Bought.

Not long ago there was terrible excitement at the royal court of Anam. The king, Thanh-Tai, who is now 14 years old, was missing. Etiquette requires that the Anamese king shall never leave the royal grounds. He is a kingly prisoner. And that the king should not only be absent from the palace, but that no one should know where he was constituted an event of such direful consequence that the whole court was in dismay.

But the young potentate was not hard to find. Though he was a king, he was a boy, and it is natural for a boy when he has some money in his pocket to want to go out and spend it.

That was exactly what the king of Anam had done. Entirely alone, he had started on a "shopping" expedition through the streets of Hue. Of course no one knew him, because he had never shown his face in public. He was simply a boy, like any other boy, and this was exactly what he wanted.

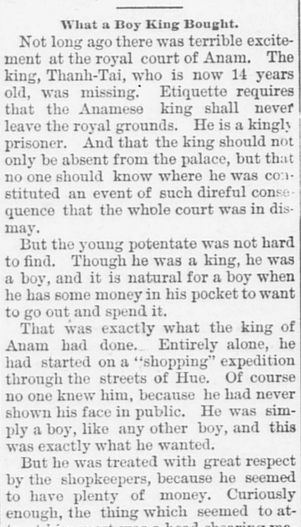

But he was treated with great respect by the shopkeepers, because he seemed to have plenty of money. Curiously enough, the thing which seemed to attract him most was a head shearing machine, or hair clipper, and when the frightened nobles of the court discovered him at last it was with this singular implement in his possession. No doubt he intended to amuse himself by shaving the heads of all his dependents. —Youth's Companion.

An Ambitious Journalist.

Brooklyn possesses one of the youngest editors in the world. She is a little 10-year-old girl who brings out every week The Pickwick Papers, written entirely by herself. It contains a department labeled "Jests," a unique advertising column, a fashion department, a society budget, a poet's corner and a story. There is a range of versatility in this which is denied to most geniuses.—New York Sun.

Watering the Flowers.

"Ah, there's rain," piped Robin Red,
Perched in his peach tree tower.
"Now, keep away," the posies said;
"This is a private shower."

The robin looked and looked again,
And then he thought a spell.
"Why, that's no more a real, true rain
Than looking down the well."

Steamer City of Savannah Believed to Have Met the Cyclone.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—A telegram received in this city from Savannah reports the probable loss of the steamship City of Savannah. The steamship Savannah left Boston on her trip to Savannah last Thursday.

She was due at her destination Sunday evening. The big cyclone that has devastated the South Atlantic coast raged fiercely Sunday afternoon and must have caught the steamship off the North Carolina shore.

She is now three days overdue, and the gravest fears are entertained for her safety.

At this season of the year there are very few passengers on the steamships running to Savannah, but the officers, crew and firemen number over 75 men.

The City of Savannah is an iron steamship of 2,294 tonnage, 254 feet long, 38.7 at beam, and 15.7 draught. She was up to a month ago employed on the New York line of the Savannah Steamship company and was sent to Boston at that time to take the place of the Gate City, that had been laid off for repairs.

FURTHER WARFARE

Promised by France Unless Siam Accedes to New Demands.

BANGKOK, Aug. 30.—The French government threatens to send back the French gunboats to the Menam before Bangkok in case its new demands be not granted immediately. The foreign residents of the city are indignant over France's persistence in ignoring the provisional agreement reached when Siam accepted the ultimatum. The absence of neutral warships is a source of general anxiety. The German cruiser Wolf will leave tomorrow. Then the French gunboat Lion will be the only warship before Bangkok.

LONDON, Aug. 30.—A Bangkok dispatch to The Times says that the French troops at Chantabon are making intrenchments and throwing up earthworks.

The Cholera.

ROME, Aug. 30.—Naples was declared free from cholera yesterday. One case of cholera and two deaths have been reported at Salerno, and three deaths at Cassino.

PARIS, Aug. 30.—A suspicious malady, believed to be cholera, has broken out in Nantes. Many persons are suffering.

BUDA-PESTH, Aug. 30.—During the last 24 hours 43 new cases of cholera and 78 deaths were reported in Hungary.

ROTTERDAM, Aug. 30.—One new case of cholera and two deaths were reported in this city yesterday. Isolated cases are reported elsewhere in The Netherlands.

Changes at Dartmouth.

CONCORD, N. H., Aug. 30.—At a meeting of the trustees of Dartmouth college William Patten was elected to the recently established chair of biology and Albert C Chehore was chosen assistant professor of physics. The department of rhetoric and oratory was divided, and Fred Parker Emery was elected assistant professor of rhetoric upon the Willard foundation.

Hotel Proprietor Skips.

OLD ORCHARD, Me., Aug. 30.—Proprietor Saunders of the Cleaves House has left town suddenly without warning to his help or owner of the hotel. Grocers and other creditors are anxiously inquiring as to his whereabouts. He recently came here from Fitchburg, Mass.

The Sheriff Got There First.

MIDDLESBORO, Ky., Aug. 30.—The mob of 100 men from Mingo, reinforced by 100 more, arrived here last night to lynch the men who fired into the Belt line train yesterday, but Sheriff Colson and Chief Conway had fled with the prisoners.

A Peculiar Accident.

MINEOLA, N. Y., Aug. 30.—Benjamin Smith, aged 36, while riding a bicycle on the Jericho turnpike, was blown from the bicycle under a market wagon. His neck was broken and he died a few minutes later.

Railroad Bridge Destroyed.

CARLISLE, Pa., Aug. 30.—A terrific storm passed over the Cumberland valley. The Philadelphia and Reading railroad bridge at Brandtsville was struck by lightning and totally burned.

Cast Up by the Deep.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Aug. 30.—The body of an unknown man was found near Rockafeller's dock, three miles north of here. The body had been in the water about eight days.

Marseilles' Big Blaze.

MARSEILLES, Aug. 30.—A wood yard, an oil mill and 15 residences were destroyed by fire in this city. Two hundred persons were made homeless. The loss is 2,000,000 francs.

Won by Domino.

SHEEPSHEAD BAY, L. I., Aug. 30.—The great Futurity race, worth about $55,000, was run yesterday afternoon. Domino won; Galilee, second; Dobbins, third.

Prices for northern and eastern beef cattle pr lb—Choice, 5½@6c; first quality, 5@5½c; second quality, 4½@4¾c; poorest grades of coarse oxen, cows, bulls, stags, etc., 1½@3c.

Northern and eastern beef cattle—There were no good cattle brought in from the New England states. Most of the offerings were old cows. Prices on all grades of cattle were off ¼ of a cent per pound. Cattle raisers and drovers say that it is of no use to bring their stock to the market, as the buying interests are short of money to pay for the stock.

Milch cows and springers—The quality of the stock was generally very good. Some very choice cows were seen on the market, for which fancy prices were obtained. Trade was rather dull, as speculators and jobbers were about the only ones looking at the stock.

Veal calves—The supply was lighter than one week ago. The quality of the offerings was fair. Values showed no material change from those quoted last week. Drovers claim that they will not bring any large quantities of stock to the market until the prospects of selling are much better than they have been for the past few weeks.

Sheep and lambs—All the western stock was shipped direct to a slaughter house. Only the New England arrivals were offered for sale on the market. A clearance was effected at values showing no change from those quoted last week.

Western beef cattle—The stock was all intended for export trade. Country slaughterers, however, bought several head of the lightest cattle The arrivals were consigned to the shipper and exporters.

Swine—The supply from the New England states was purchased by home slaughterers at dressed weight prices. Values were quoted from 5½@6½c pr lb.

GROWTH ON JAW BONE

The Affliction From Which President Cleveland Has Suffered.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—The published stories about President Cleveland's health while nobody is authorized to admit or deny them, create a good deal of comment here. It will be remembered that the public were warned in these dispatches weeks ago that Mr. Cleveland's ailment was much more serious than generally understood. This is doubtless the fact, whether the reports of the operation are accurate in details or not.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—The Advertiser this morning says that an operation on President Cleveland was performed by Drs. Bryant, Ferdinand Hasbrouck, the eminent dentist of this city, and a third surgeon who was called into the case because of his skill in the administration of nitros oxide gas, which was the anæsthetic given to render the president unconscious before the surgeons began to use their knives and saws.

Dr. Hasbrouck said that the president's disease is or was a growth in the bones of his left upper jaw, and the adjoining bones of the nose. The operation consisted in removing the diseased portions of the bone, and was performed on the morning of Saturday, July 1, while the president was aboard of Mr. Benedict's yacht, the Oneida.

Broken Down by Trouble.

DANBURY, Conn., Aug. 30.—Frederick A. Hull, president of the Log Mountain Coal, Coke and Timber company of Pineville, Ky., and member of the firm of F. A. Hull & Co. of this city, has made an assignment. His Kentucky property is valued at $1,000,000 and his Danbury interests are extensive. Mr. Hull is prostrated at his home in this city and is so broken down that he may not recover.

Cholera Alleged In Jersey City.

JERSEY CITY, Aug. 30.—A woman, said to be suffering from Asiatic cholera, was taken to the city hospital yesterday. The county health board absolutely refuse to give out any information until County Physician Converse is satisfied as to the nature of the disease. The woman is now in charge of the authorities.

Cut Off by a Storm.

MT. WASHINGTON, N. H., Aug. 30.—A severe storm prevailed on Mt. Washington yesterday. The wind was so high that no trains have reached the summit since Monday. The morning train arrived at the usual hour, but was unable to return

Accommodating Stools For Piazzas.

Piazza stools or seats for use upon the stoop show this season a new and serviceable form if nothing else. They are made of rush and cane, that best of summer materials, and have two long legs in front with two short ones at the back, so that they cover one step and rest firmly upon the next below. Besides their evident usefulness, they are attractive little trifles and are so light and easily moved as to become a valuable addition to either the city or the country home.

Welcome to a Woman Lawyer.

Miss Dora O. Sandoe, a young Georgia lady recently admitted to the bar, has made her first appearance in the trial of cases in the Georgia courts. With Mr. N. W. Dick she defended a young man charged with robbery. When court adjourned for the noon recess, the judge came down from the bench, and approaching Miss Sandoe took her by the hand and cordially welcomed her to the court.

Bathing Suits For Girls.

The bathing suits which the boys generally wear are admirably adapted to swimming, for there is no unnecessary weight to drag them down and no unnecessary fullness to hamper their freedom of motion. Those which girls usually wear are atrocious and increase the difficulty of learning about 50 per cent. Do away with all unnecessary material in the girls' suits as well as in the boys. Make them of lightweight jersey, with trousers just loose enough to allow free movement to the legs, and sew them to a petticoat waste with short sleeves. No tunic if you want the girl as graceful a swimmer as her brothers.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Report From New York.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Not for years has one storm so destructive followed another as the two just passed. Shipping men do not recollect any such tales of wreck and disaster at sea as have been brought into port during the past week, and now, before the tale of disaster wrought by one storm is ended, there comes a second storm more widespread in its fury and much more disastrous in its effect. So far no fatalities have been reported. Many houses were unroofed and smaller buildings suffered greatly.

In New England.

BOSTON, Aug. 30.—Seventy yachts are ashore at City Point. Reports from throughout New England do not indicate any heavy damages by the storm.

For Repeal.

NASHUA, N. H., Aug. 30.—The board of trade, at a meeting last night, passed resolutions calling for the repeal of the Sherman act, and sent a copy of the same to the New Hampshire senators in Washington.

ARGUMENT ON RULES

Between the Present and Past Speaker of the House.

CRITICISMS BY MR. REED

Lead Mr. Crisp Into the Arena of Debate.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—The feature of the house proceedings was the debut of Mr. Crisp as a speaker on the floor. He was led to leave his chair by some caustic criticisms made by Mr. Reed upon the proposed code of rules, and his appearance upon the arena of debate was warmly applauded.

Mr. Reed twitted the Democratic party upon their partial approval of the rules of the Fifty-first congress, but in a humorous vein, and contended that they had not gone far enough. He then, in a more serious manner, argued in favor of the rights of the majority, which rights had been firmly maintained in the Fifty-first congress. Now the house was in the habit of dodging measures instead of meeting them. He criticised the provision of the rules, which, he claimed vested the committee on rules with the authority which should be vested in the speaker.

Why not adopt a system of rules which would give control to the majority and take from the filibusterer his opportunity to stop the consideration of a measure. It was better to have a speaker exercise power in the full light of public opinion than to exercise it in the seclusion of the committee room.

Crisp's Argument.

Then, for the first time this session, the speaker took the floor, having called Mr Richardson (Dem., Tenn.) to the chair and replied to the criticisms of the gentleman from Maine. He said there were provisions in this code which were taken substantially from the rules of the Fifty-first congress. Neither himself nor any member of the committee on rules would refrain from reporting rules simply because they were part of the rules of the Fifty-first congress. Very much of those rules was to be commended, very much of those rules had been, by the country, absolutely condemned.

The gentleman from Maine (Reed) when he stood up before the country and spoke of the rules of the Fifty-first congress failed to speak of the practices adopted before the rules were adopted which were so odious to the country. The first action in the Fifty-first congress which was odious to the country was not an action under any rule, but it was the arbitrary high-handed action on the part of the speaker without authority of rules, without authority of anyone.

Reed Again.

Mr. Reed, in reply, said that it was unusual for the presiding officer of this body to leave his exalted position and to participate in the discussion on the floor. It was even a question whether he ought to do it at all. But of this action he made no question. The gentleman from Georgia alone was the judge of his action. If the gentleman did not believe that the other members of the committee on rules were adequate for the discussion, it was for him to decide when his powerful aid should be thrown into the balance.

He (Reed) regretted that the speaker had taken the floor, not only on general principles, but because he had introduced into the debate a certain amount of partisanship, thereby showing that though the rest of the house here survived the measures of the Fifty-first congress the present speaker had not. To what had been said about him, personally, he would not reply for he would not allow this debate to degenerate into a personal question.

The debate was continued by Springer (Dem., Ills.), Boatner (Dem., La.) and Hooker (Dem., Miss.), who contended that the membership on the committee on rules should be increased, Pickler (Rep., S. D.), who agreed with Hooker on this point, Cummings (Dem., N. Y.), Hepburn (Rep., Ia.) and Bryan (Dem., Neb.)

Then the subject was dropped, and Springer (Dem., Ills.) introduced a bill to provide for the coinage of the seigniorage silver in the treasury. Referred. The house then adjourned.

In the Senate.

The chairman of the finance committee was (as he had promised to be) "very prompt in reporting to the senate" the action of the committee on the house bill to repeal part of the Sherman law. As soon as the reading of Monday's journal was finished, Mr. Voorhees rose and reported back that bill with an amendment in the nature of a substitute. It was placed on the calendar and will be, according to the notice given by Mr. Voorhees, pressed for consideration to the exclusion of other business. The substitute, is word for word, the same bill that was reported by the finance committee two weeks ago.

The first speech against the substitute was made by Mr. Gordon (Dem., Ga.), who argued that it would delay indefinitely the repeal of the Sherman law, which he wanted to be immediate and unconditional.

Mr. Teller (Rep., Colo.) made a long argument to show that the Sherman law had not produced the existing financial stringency.

A resolution which Mr. Stewart had offered last Monday inquiring from the secretary of the treasury whether there would be a deficiency in the revenues of the government during the current year was, after a long discussion, referred to the finance committee.

His Old Pipe.

"Isn't that a rich color?" said a well known lawyer the other day as he held up a brier wood pipe of an almost ebon hue. Then he stroked it fondly with his hand and finally took to rubbing it with his coat sleeve. "It has taken me over a year to color that pipe, and I don't think you could buy it now at any price. I used to smoke cigars—I do now to some extent—but I prefer a pipe when reading or working over my papers. You see a cigar is always dropping ashes and mussing things up. Then the smoke gets in your eyes when leaning over. But a pipe—oh, there is nothing like it for real solid comfort. My wife says this old fellow is getting dreadfully strong, but she hasn't the heart to ask me to discard it for a new one. See the way that rich chocolate tint merges in the black—that velvety looking black—and then the gloss that seems to have grown up from beneath the surface.

"Strange how a man should become attached to such a thing. But, on the other hand, think of the nights this old pipe has stood by me when I worried my brain over legal tangles; when I grew cross and irritable, how its sweet perfume has quieted and soothed me. Friends might forsake me and fat fees vanish into thin air, but my old pipe was ever at hand with its comfort. What a sense of calm contentment settles over me when the work of the day is done and I sit down in the library at home, with my wife and little ones about and this old fellow filled to the brim and going! Why, man, the cares and worries of the day slip off and away with the curling smoke. Just look at that exquisite color!"—Brooklyn Eagle.

Rich Sap From Maple Trees.

The more uneven, rocky and ledgy the land and the drier the soil, except where cold springs abound, the better are the products of the maple. Trees standing in or near cold springs will discharge the most and the sweetest sap. I am acquainted with one tree standing by a spring, seven quarts of whose sap will make a pound of nice white sugar. The richness of this sap will be realized when it is remembered that it takes 16 quarts of average sap to make a pound. The black maple is the richest for sap of any variety. Our poorest sugar orchards give us about two pounds of sugar to the tree, while our best ones yield five and six pounds a tree. I have heard of a few extra orchards yielding 7, 8 and 10 pounds to the tree, and one extraordinary one that has yielded 16 pounds to a tree. The quantity of sugar that can be made from single trees in one season of six weeks at most will depend on many circumstances.

The more spouts put into a tree the more sap is obtained and the more sugar is made. From the tree already referred to as standing near a cold spring there were made 30½ pounds in one season with two spouts, which emptied into the same tub. They were set in holes bored 1½ inches deep with a three-eighths bit. Another tree I have known of yielded 30 pounds, and a third 28. Still another tree was tapped with 10 spouts, and 50 pounds of sugar were made, but it killed the tree.—Timothy Wheeler in Garden and Forest.

Stranded In Artistic Surroundings.

It is really amusing and sometimes pitiful to see how men suffer from the artistic mania of their wives. I know of a case where a husband was not allowed to touch any of the furniture in the drawing room for fear he would disturb the effect of color and outline. He wisely stipulated, however, that he should have his own chair in the room, which he was to be at liberty to do with as he liked.

Being a man of infinite jest he managed to evolve the most delightful and comic situations when visitors were present, explaining that it was his want of artistic feeling which made it necessary for him to carry his chair about with him. He asked that when his friends contemplated their surroundings from an artistic point of view they should kindly consider him and his chair out of the picture. Needless to say it was not very long before all restrictions were withdrawn and he was allowed to work what havoc he pleased in the drawing room as well as everywhere else in the house.—Boston Globe.

An Umbrella Is Good For a Shower.

A man was once advised to take shower baths for the general improvement of his health. A friend explained to him how to fit up one by the use of a cistern and colander, and he accordingly set to work and had the thing arranged. Subsequently he was met by the friend who had given him the advice and was asked how he enjoyed the bath.

"My dear fellow," said he, "it was capital. I liked it really well, and what do you think? I kept myself dry too."

"Whatever do you mean?" exclaimed his friend, in natural surprise. "However could you manage to take the shower and yet remain quite dry?"

"Why, you can't think for a moment I should be so stupid as to have a shower bath without an umbrella?" was the innocent reply.—London Tit-Bits.

In Mrs. Bismarck's House.

The Princess Bismarck conducts her house on the most delightful free and easy plan. Breakfast is served at all hours in the morning, each member of the family and each guest appearing only when ready. Dinner is supposed to be served at 3:30 o'clock, but it is generally 4 o'clock before the party is gathered around the board. Then they have coffee, and about 8 o'clock a promiscuous supper is served. — Philadelphia Press.

Why Will They Do It?

A Massachusetts minister pathetically said to a newspaper man the other day, "Why don't some of you reporters get up an article on 'Why women stand at the door (especially the screen door in fly time) for the last words after they have taken five minutes to half an hour indoors to say goodby?'" The poor man has suffered, as his wife admitted at the time, and spends half his leisure in summer fighting flies.

WOMAN'S WORLD.

WYOMING'S TRIBUTE TO HER WOMEN'S INFLUENCE AS VOTERS.

Women In the Trades Unions of Great Britain—French Girlhood—Mrs. Stowe During the Summer—Female Convicts In Georgia—Woman's Work In Brooklyn.

The exercise of suffrage by the women in Wyoming for the past 25 years seems to have borne good fruit, and an occasion of no little exultation to all advocates of woman's advancement is the adoption by the Wyoming legislature of a resolution reciting that the extension of the franchise to women has done great good in divers directions. This unanimous adoption by a body of men of the unqualified success of woman suffrage for the past quarter of a century is the strongest indorsement possible. And coming at this time, when the enemies of the franchise have been demanding a retraction of the privilege, it is an event of more than ordinary significance. If, as contended, the enfranchisement of its women has depopulated the jails of Wyoming, rid the state of poorhouses and largely aided in banishing crime, pauperism and vice, the logical deduction follows that woman suffrage would be a good thing for every state in the Union to adopt.

The resolution referred to is as follows; "Be it resolved by the legislature of Wyoming, That the possession and exercise of suffrage by the women in Wyoming for the past quarter of a century has wrought no harm and has done great good in many ways; that it has largely aided in banishing crime, pauperism and vice from this state, and that without any violent or oppressive legislation; that it has secured peaceful and orderly elections, good government and a remarkable degree of civilization and public order, and we point with pride to the fact that after nearly 25 years of woman suffrage not one county in Wyoming has a poorhouse, that our jails are almost empty and crime, except that by strangers in the state, almost unknown, and as the result of experience we urge every civilized community on the earth to enfranchise its women without delay."—New York Independent.

Women In Trades Unions.

It seems, according to Miss E. March Phillips in The Fortnightly Review, that the women employees in the Lancashire cotton mills are as well organized as the men. Indeed most of them belong to the same unions as the men and have equal rights and privileges in them. This fact, Miss Phillips thinks, had a great deal to do with the persistency with which the employees clung to their demands on the masters and the practical victory which they won at last. So large a proportion of these Lancashire cotton spinners are women and girls that a union without them would not be representative of the trade, and therefore not strong enough to enforce its demands for shorter hours or higher wages. In this Lancashire strike women were active leaders, and more active in collecting and distributing aid to the idle, and were the last to consent to ending the strike.

The rule seems general in England to admit women employed at the same trades to the same unions with the men. In the boot and shoe makers' unions about one-eighth of the members are women, in the gas workers and general laborers' unions more than half, while in the unions of cotton mill operatives the majority of the members are women. Miss Phillips says that in 10 trades unions of England and Scotland there are 76,062 men to 42,024 women. In all these unions women are among the paid officers and share all the responsibilities. Most of them insist that their women members shall receive the same wages for the same work as men. In addition to the unions where the women are on equal terms of membership, there are others composed entirely of women, but which are affiliated with the men's unions.

French Girlhood.

It is almost impossible to give foreigners an idea of the moral swaddling bands that constrain French youth and warp its spontaneous growth. A mother's one ambition is to launch her child suddenly into the wild vortex of life utterly ignorant of its dangers. The more ignorant she is found, the more perfect is considered her education. Her mamma's anxious vigilance has followed her day by day, from the hour of her birth, until she has triumphantly placed her darling as innocent as a newborn babe on her marriage day in the arms of a man the child scarcely knows by sight, and who is often a Paris libertine in its high bred phase. Is it surprising that such a bride should experience cruel disappointments and often end by seeking consolation in those forbidden attachments where heart-breaking remorse follows new and deeper disenchantments that end by shattering belief in all love and leave the young mother powerless in her turn to lead her child through the untrodden paths of nature's own simple laws of love?

Neither can a young man attempt to reform present customs and seek a wife of his own choice, for a gentleman is in honor bound never to court a girl without having previously asked her parents' permission, and as the slightest attention to a girl assumes immediately in France a serious character he must either ask this permission before knowing his bride or he must run the risk of being shot down by a chivalrous brother should he afterward decline marrying her within a few weeks' notice.—Marquise de San Carlos in North American Review.

Mrs. Stowe During the Summer.

The interior of Mrs. Stowe's home shows a series of pleasant, well appointed rooms, which aim at comfort rather than elegance or display. Her own sanctum has little of literary association, since almost all her writing was done before she took up her abode in it. But one associates the authoress with the premises all about the home rather than with its interior, for she is outdoors the day long, except when prevented by the weather or the untowardly season. Notably active of body for her years, she is ever on foot, and her bent, slight figure, with its white hair crowning the dark, wrinkled face, is a familiar sight to the Nook Farmites—Nook Farm being the name given to the Forest street neighborhood. She wanders in and out the paths and gathers consolation from sun and shade and wind. She has the freedom of the fields, and the birds and the flowers know her. The love she shows for all growing and lonesome things no doubt helps to keep her out under the sky and has preserved her in remarkable bodily vigor.

She is fond of slipping across the street to the home of her sister, Mrs. Hooker, and one of her delights is to hear music sung or played. It is a moving sight to notice the subduing effects of songs and hymns upon her restless activity. For 20 years and more such have been her surroundings, and a sweet environment it is for such a soul resting from its labors. Just now, in this peerless weather, one is sure to see her pacing under the big trees that long ago gave the street its name.—Hartford Courant.

Female Convicts In Georgia.

Equal rights in Georgia goes to the extent of farming out the women convicts of the penitentiaries as the men are farmed out, and without respect to color. The penitentiary, moreover, demands from the lessees as much for the women as for the men. The conditions under which this is done seem about as absolute a test of the value of men and women's work as the history of labor has furnished. The women do the same sort of work as the men. They dig, hoe, plow, quarry rocks, and last spring when one of the state canals had to be deepened women did the work. One of the employers of women convict labor is Captain Maddox, who has a plantation of 3,000 acres.

Captain Maddox employs only women and has agreed to take all women convicts off the hands of the state. These women are in gangs of 10 under the charge of a guard. They cultivate cotton, corn, wheat, oats, grass and run a mill. They work from sunrise to sunset. Each of the 63 convicts has a cot to herself and a change of clothes, and they seem to be better treated than at the penitentiary. They are not so well satisfied, however, that they do not try to escape, five having recently got away.—New York Evening Sun.

Women's Work In Brooklyn.

The Women's Health Protective association, organized lately in Brooklyn, is one greatly needed. This effort is simply to keep the streets clean. The women that belong to this association go about and ask their neighbors to be particularly careful about the ash barrels, a duty that demands no ordinary heroism. "The neighbors tell us that they will put anything they choose into their ash barrels, and that they wish other folks would attend to their own business." The women make complaints to the authorities where there is gross untidiness, and they are not put off by the official smile that rewards feminine protest. They fight against the throwing of fruit skins on the sidewalk.

They themselves use barrels, "of hard wood, varnished, of handsome appearance, with the initials of the association on the side," and they pay a fee so that these barrels can be furnished to all who cannot afford to buy them. The members promise to burn up waste paper, to hire men to act as inspectors in the streets, and they have issued a circular that is a Macedonian cry to men.—New York Letter.

A Courageous Teacher.

Miss Carrie Brewer is the name of an intrepid young lady who teaches school in Pine Flat, Fresno county. Having finished her week's labor in the schoolroom recently, she decided to attend a dance at Stanger, eight miles away. She built a raft to float in the flume there, intending to ride it to Hazelton's ranch. When ready to start, she discovered that the water had been drawn off. Some of the boys had learned of her intended trip and opened the water gate above, thereby perpetrating a mean trick. But Miss Brewer was not to be cheated out of a dance by such a sharp practice, so she started on foot toward Stanger, walking over the eight inch plank on the side of the flume. In the meantime the boys had repented of their action and turned the water into the flume again. After floating six miles the raft overtook the young lady, who jumped in and rode to Hazelton's ranch, where a Stanger gentleman with a team awaited her arrival, and she attended the dance that evening.—Rural Press.

To Keep Waist and Skirt Together.

A word to the girl whose skirt and waist are always parting company and showing a strip of white underclothing through. A remedy, if a belt is worn, is to fasten the outside belt to the waistband, letting the belt open a little to one side of the middle of the back. Another way suggested by a number of dressmakers is to loop the waist and skirt together at the back, fastening the belt in the usual way. The first suggestion is preferable, especially when skirt waists of every description are worn more than any other sort of waist and there isn't anything to fasten the skirt to.—Buffalo News.

PASSENGERS SAVED.

Steamer City of Savannah a Total Wreck on Hunting Island.

BRAVERY OF HER CAPTAIN

Saves Recording the Loss of Many Lives.

SAVANNAH, Aug. 31.—The City of Savannah of the Boston line is ashore on Hunting island, 30 miles from Beaufort. She is a total wreck and rapidly going to pieces. Her passengers were rescued by the City of Birmingham and brought to Savannah last night.

Hunting island is on the South Carolina coast, about 30 miles above Bluffton, and is about 12 miles long.

Before the rescue of the crew and passengers of the City of Savannah the Birmingham rescued the crew of the schooner Joseph Souther, from Darien to Boston, loaded with timber. There were seven men in all, and when taken off they had given up hope and expected to soon be at the bottom of the sea.

The Birmingham's Good Work.

They said the wreck was first sighted just as dark was coming on Tuesday night.

If it had been two or three hours later they might have passed by her.

The wreck was recognized by Captain Berg and signals of distress were fired. The Birmingham answered, and First Officer Johnson and a picked crew manned one of the lifeboats and started for the wreck, which was on shore about six miles off.

The captain of the Birmingham would have endeavored to have taken the crew and passengers off that night if there had been any immediate danger of the vessel going to pieces. When the first officer returned it was with news that the Savannah were all right till morning.

The Birmingham accordingly remained near her, ready to respond at once in the event of an emergency. None of the passengers slept Tuesday night. In the morning, at 5 o'clock, the first and second officers, with five of the crew, left the Birmingham with two lifeboats.

The sea was still running quite high, and it was a five hours' trip. It was after 9 o'clock in the morning when they returned with their precious load. They were utterly exhausted. They needed drink and food, and never were men so eager for water before.

The second trip took but 3 1-2 hours, and it was about 1 o'clock when all were aboard who had been found on the City of Savannah, and the Birmingham started on the home run to Savannah.

Captain Savage's Story.

Captain Savage of the wrecked Savannah was seen last night. "Well, I've lost my steamer," he said, "but I thank God that, as far as I know, no lives are lost. The gale was the most frightful I ever experienced. It struck the Savannah off Charleston, and I tried to head her out to sea, but the water was too much for me, though, and sea after sea shipped over the vessel, carrying away the pilot house and a portion of the saloon.

"Next the smokestack went, and then the waves poured in and put out the fires; then I was lost. For 12 hours, however, I managed to fight the elements, and then seeing that further effort was futile, I headed her for Hunting island and beached her as far up as possible. We signalled repeatedly for assistance, but none came, although several tugs passed along, and finally I called for volunteers to make the perilous trip to the lighthouse, six miles away, to get assistance.

"The crew of three sailors started out and they probably made Beaufort. It was Monday morning about 5 o'clock when I beached the Savannah, and in the afternoon the first and second officers fitted up the life rafts and took a woman and children and several of the crew toward Helena. I think they landed safely. After the life raft left the sea began to break the vessel and we all took to the rigging, from where we were rescued by the Birmingham's crew. If we had had to remain many hours longer in the rigging we would have been drowned.

The Captain's Bravery.

Captain Savage had but two lights left when he burned his fateful signal, which Captain Berry sighted. Captain Savage's bravery is spoken of in the most laudatory terms by the passengers of his wrecked vessel. They say they would have tossed themselves into the waves to end the agony had it not been for the bravery of the heroic master, who promised them sure rescue.

The experience of the Savannah's passengers was horrible and can never be told in fitting language. Rev. Mr. Hooper of Boston, one of the Savannah's passengers, lost his mind.

Pathetic Scenes.

The arrival of the Birmingham was a great scene. By 1 o'clock men, women and children had begun to gather on Exchange and other wharves as the noble steamer, bearing the flag of her ill-fated sister as well as her own, came slowly up the river. Great cheers broke out from every wharf, answering cheers came back from those on the steamer, and handkerchief were wildly waved. The Exchange dock was passed and the cheering was of undescribable joy.

The tension that had been on the minds of thousands found relief in one tumultuous cry of welcome. Tears coursed down the cheeks of hundreds of men. As the Birmingham proceeded up the river hundreds made their way to the wharf to give closer greetings to their friends. The wharf was crowded and cheers broke out again and again.

Many tried to climb up the ship's side as the passengers came down the gangplank. Friends and relatives greeted them from all sides. Husbands, wives, parents and children rushed into each other's arms. Never has a more touching spectacle been seen in the city of Savannah.

The City of Savannah was built by John Roach & Son, Chester, Pa., in 1877, and was valued at about $225,000.

She was an iron steamer of 2029.40 gross tonnage. Her length over all was 254 feet, breadth at beam 38.7 feet, depth 24.8. She drew 18 feet of water. She was ranked as a first-class passenger steamer and carried 175 passengers.

Many Vessels Suffered.

SAVANNAH, Aug. 31.—The following has just been received from Beaufort, S. C.: The shipping at Beaufort and Port Rort Royal suffered almost total destruction in Sunday's storm. The following vessels are either sunk or ashore: Clare McGilvray, Regame, Alma, Cumming, W. H. Sumner, tugs Patience, Jim, Weymouth, Kinkoro, Kent, Stone, Dove, Ida and Ivanho and steamer Pilot Boy. An unknown schooner is ashore and another bottom up in Port Royal sound.

Stories Were Exaggerated.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—Communication is opened with Columbia, S. C., and a telegram sent to the press representatives there asking as to the truth of the rumor that 100 lives had been lost at Port Royal. The following reply was received: Rumors probably untrue. Mail from Charlestown not in. Savannah papers, just in, give no new facts. There must have been considerable loss of life among the negroes all along the coast, but not half as large as reported.

Railroad Traffic Delayed.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Aug. 31.—The fearful storm of Sunday and Monday, accompanied by heavy rains, has delayed all railroad traffic. The South Carolina road, running from Augusta to Charleston, is the heaviest sufferer. Cloudbursts yesterday afternoon washed away three trestles between Branchville and this city. No loss of life is reported, but the damage to crops is very great.

Six Lives Sacrificed.

CHARLESTON, Aug. 31.—The cyclone is ended. The city has started to repair damages. A rough estimate places the losses at something over $1,000,000. There are no lights in the city, both gas and electricity have given out and there has been no railroad communication south. The total loss of life is six people.

A Missing Schooner.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Aug. 31.—Fears are entertained for the safety of the schooner Erastus Wyman which left Newport News for this port Aug. 27 Several vessels from the same place that left nearly a week later have arrived and this has made the consignees uneasy as to her safety.

The Old-Timers Are Safe.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—Apprehension for the U. S. S. Kearsarge and the old monitor Nantucket was removed by the receipt of a telegram from Commander Crowninshield, commanding the Kearsarge, stating that both vessels had arrived at Fortress Monroe, Va.

Weathered the Gale.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—The steamer Knickerbocker, from New Orleans, experienced terrific weather. Her port and starboard rails and bulwarks were carried away fore and aft, and she received other damage about her decks. Two men were washed overboard.

A Late Report From Maine.

WINTHROP, Me., Aug. 31.—The gale did great damage to crops in the western part of Maine. Field after field of corn was laid prosprate, and orchards and gardens are devastated. The loss to farmers will reach many thousands of dollars.

COULDN'T MAKE IT PAY.

Promoters of the Nicaragua Canal Are Deeply In Debt.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—In the United States circuit court Judge Benedict appointed Thomas D. Atkins of New York receiver for the Nicaragua Canal and Construction company on the application of Louis Chaple, one of the stockholders. Warner Miller, president, says that the company has no longer means to meet its obligations and that the failure was due to the inability to sell the securities of the company. The company was organized under the laws of the state of Colorado on June 10, 1887. Its authorized capital stock was $12,000,000, all of which is paid up.

Hard Times Disappearing.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—The following national banks have been permitted to open their doors to business: The First National bank of Dubuque, Ia.; the First National bank of Grand Junction, Colo., the American National bank of Omaha; the American National bank of Nashville; the First National bank of Mankato, Minn.; the National bank of Mankato; the Mankato National bank.

Unknown Boy Found Dead.

PATERSON, N. J., Aug. 31.—The body of an unknown boy about 12 was found in the Passaic river, clinging to the iron bars of the rack at the Johnson Wool Extracting company's mill, which operated by water power. The body must have hung there a week. There is no record of a lost boy in the city.

Chicago Rioters In Court.

CHICAGO, Aug. 31.—Joseph Wenzel and Michael Harovit, the men arrested for participating in the riot at the city hall were fined $100 each on the charge of disorderly conduct and held to the criminal court in bonds of $500 and $300 each on the charges of riot and assault.

Won't Stand the Reduction.

TRENTON, Aug. 31.—The carders and spinners in Wilson's woolen mills have struck on account of a reduction of 10 per cent in their wages, and the result is another stoppage of the mills. Work was resumed only day before yesterday after an idleness of a fortnight.

A Heavyweight.

HARTFORD CITY, Ind., Aug. 31.—The funeral of the largest women in this part of the state occurred yesterday near Montpelier. She weighed 435 pounds. Her coffin had to be taken through the window and required the strength of 14 men.

Work For Fifteen Hundred.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Aug. 31.—The Amory mills, employing 1500 hands, will resume business next Monday.

WON ONE EACH.

Anson's Colts and the Beaneaters Play Two Games at Boston.

BOSTON, Aug. 31.—Anson's colts broke even with the champions in two games, which, though close, lacked excitement. Quarles was given his first trial by the local team in the first game and was hit freely. James Manning of the Savannahs umpired the game, in the absence of Lynch, and he gave great satisfaction.

The Wages of Sin.

GLOVERSVILLE, N. Y., Aug. 31.—Charles Beach, when in the house of Charles Carpenter here, was surprised by the latter. Beach shot Carpenter in the jaw, but did not inflict a fatal injury. Beach escaped from the house and shot himself through the temple and through the heart. The affair was caused by the attentions of Beach to Mrs. Carpenter.

Powderly Heard From.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—T. V. Powderly has written an open letter to the president charging that the financial plank in the national platform last year was a plain, unequivocal declaration in favor of bi-metallism, "that it went even further and demanded that paper money should stand upon an equal footing with gold and silver."

Helping the Northern Pacific.

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 31.—Judge Jenkins in the United States circuit court granted the receivers of the Northern Pacific permission to issue $5,000,000 receiver's certificates for the purpose of redeeming stocks and bonds held as collateral to secure the company's floating indebtedness.

A Southern "Picnic."

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., Aug. 31.—A riot occurred at a picnic and dance at Grant district in which the Cow creek and Goose creek gangs took part. Fifty men were injured. Two men were cut and stabbed, it is believed fatally. A spectator had his skull crushed.

Sad Domestic Tragedy.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 31.—Nathan Friedlander killed his wife and then committed suicide at his home on Constance street One shot painfully wounded the baby. Friedlander had accused his wife of infidelity.

A Very Foolish Act.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Aug. 31.—Worth $150,000 and owning 500 acres of rich farm land, Mifflin O. Graves hung himself to a tree at Kleicknersville yesterday because the banks refused to renew several small notes on which he was security.

Sold at a Discount.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—The high-speed steam yacht Vamoose has been sold for William B. Hearst to a Mr. Davies of Brooklyn. The purchase price is said to have been under $20,000. The Vamoose cost much more than that.

A Murder Mystery.

MT. VERNON, N. Y., Aug. 31.—An unknown man was found dead near Dunwood's seminary in South Yonkers. Several stab wounds were found, any one of which would have proved fatal. Two arrests have been made.

Crooked Banking.

THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Has voted an emphatic majority for the repeal of the Sherman Act, but the people of Quincy have decided by a much greater majority that is the gem in its line in the city.

Hearn's New Drug Store

What a pretty store! How beautiful! How well laid out! Does it not light up beautifully at night? and other like expressions voice their verdict.

I thank you all for your kind words of praise, and feel grateful that my efforts to add an attraction to the city have been appreciated.

I am adding every day to my stock and will not stop until I am satisfied that I have a drug store that will compare favorably with any retail store in the state in my line.

I am giving my personal attention to the store, and can assure the people of Quincy that any prescription coming into my store will be filled with the utmost care and accuracy. I have had 14 years' experience in the business, almost five of which I have been in business for myself in West Quincy.

I feel gratified at the confidence imposed in me, judging by the share of patronage I have received thus far, and hope to merit more by strict attention to business and courtesy to all.

BROCKTON'S TAX rate is $19.70 per $1,000 and it is a wonder that any resident can find any comfort, but the Enterprise finds a grain. In its random notes it says, "It is better to live in Brockton with a tax rate of $19.70 than to reside in some of the smaller towns hereabouts where the public conveniences and comforts are not as great."

The rate last year was $18.80; in 1891 it was $17.50; in 1890, $15.20; in 1889, $15.70 and in 1888, $15.90. The increase over last year is just 90 cents on the thousand.

The total valuation of the city, including the assessed valuation of real-estate, personal property and resident bank stock, has jumped from $19,179,067 in 1892 to $20,931,236 in 1893, a gain of $1,752,169, one of the greatest increases in the history of the city.

The total tax levy is $430,929.34 made up as follows: State tax, $20,225.00; county tax, $25,046.43; city grant, including debt payment and interest, $380,160.65; overlayings $5,497.26.

WITH THIS issue the MANET BEACH DAILY LEDGER will be discontinued, although a specialty will be made of Houghs Neck news in the Quincy daily until the cottages are closed. Manet Beach is the only seaside resort on the New England coast, we believe, that has had a daily newspaper for the whole season. Started in May it has been issued every day through June, July, and August, and has entered nearly every cottage, and has been a welcome visitor we trust.

BRILLIANT SCENE.

Houghs Neck's Annual Illumination Last Eveinng.

10,000 PEOPLE AT THE SHORE.

The Cottages Illuminated, Result of Sports and Other Attractions.

The season of '93 at Houghs Neck was mustered out last night amid the glare of bonfires, the hissing of fireworks and the rear of cannon.

The last rocket has been fired, the candles have burnt into their sockets, illumination day is over and the beach season of 1893 is a thing of the past.

The residents of Houghs Neck could not have had a better day for their annual illumination. A bright sun shone from a cloudless sky, while a cool wind from the west sufficiently tempered the heat to make the day comfortable.

The crowds began to go down early in the day, and in the evening the people began to gather so thick and fast the street railway company were obliged to run eight cars an hour, which were all taxed to their utmost capacity.

The Decorations

at the beach were the handsomest and most extensive yet seen on such an occasion. The whole place was a mass of flags, shields, and bunting as far as the eye could see, while at night, myriads of colored fires, bombs, rockets, and Chinese lanterns lit up the place until it resembled a fairy scene.

The festivities began early in the day. At one o'clock the massive doors of the street railway building were thrown open and hundreds of children were treated to a bountiful collation of cake and ice cream.

The members of the Quincy Yacht club had tendered the use of their boats to the committee in charge of the illumination, and the ladies and children enjoyed a pleasant sail on the pretty waters of the bay.

The Sports Began

at 2 o'clock and were under the direction of T. Downey Jr., Henry Hoey, Charles Cavanagh, George Peterson and William Hudson.

The sports were witnessed by a large number of spectators. The following were the successful contestants:

Tub race for boys—Joseph Fitts, first; John Nolen, second.

Swimming race—Leonard Hird, first; M. J. O'Connell, second.

Spud race—Fred Lomasney, first; William Monahan, second.

Fifty-yard dash—Oscar Lomasney, first; Fred Lomasney second.

Skiff race—Joe Moebs and J. Costello first; Henry Moebs and J. Ray second.

Boat race—Miss Nora Horn and Mr. William Horn first; Miss Emma Dooley and Mr. Joseph Moebs second.

Sack race—Lloyd Hoey first; Adolph Moebs second.

Three-legged race—Adolph Moebs and J. McGrath first; Fred Lomasney and Frank Cronin second.

Wheelbarrow race,—Leonard Hird, first; Henry Moebs, second.

Hundred yard dash,—James Murray, first; M. J. O'Connell, second.

During the Afternoon

There were Punch and Judy shows for the amusement of the children. Animal balloons were also sent up and there was many a lively scramble to catch them as they descended to the earth.

As the shades of night began to fall, the crowds began to pour in by hundreds. All kinds of vehicles were utilized to bring the people down. Some came in the cars, others came on bicycles, others in carriages, some in hayracks, while many came in express wagons, and not a few by water.

The Quincy City Band which had been discoursing music all the afternoon on Mears' band stand, moved to the stand on the plains another one was stationed in the Pavilion, while yet another took its place in front of the cottage that bears the classical title of "Maggie Murphy's Home."

The Quincy Cycle Club

had their headquarters over Harvey's on Bay View avenue. They had as guests the various bicycle clubs of the cities and the towns around Quincy. The members of the Quincy club proved themselves royal entertainers and they were loudly cheered as the various clubs departed for their homes.

Chief of Police Langley and a large force of police were on hand and did good work in keeping order.

A large number of firemen were sent down from Quincy. They brought ladders and hand extinguishers with them, but fortunately their services were not needed.

Looking from the top of Great Hill a grand panorama of colored lights and lanterns spread away from the hill and along the bayside as far as the eye could see, then stretching across to Rock Island, and down Manet Beach to Great Hill making one great triangle of light, while from the top of the hill hundreds of skyrockets, Roman candles, bombs and lighted balloons were sent heavenward.

Many of the decoration were exceptionally fine. The LEDGER man made a trip through the various streets after dark to see the decorations. Among those notice were the following.

Sea Street.

The Post Office was lavishly draped with the national colors while at night Chinese lanterns heightened the effect.

Mr. Peterson's cottage and market was decorated with a large number of flags and lanterns.

Mr. Harvey's place was covered with four immense flags, while streamers extended to the ground. Lighted lanterns were ranged on all sides and made a very pretty picture.

Ferris, was decorated with flags, lanterns and streamers.

Capt. Joe Veader kept in style and his little cottage looked very pretty under the rays of various hued lanterns.

The Rockland House was also tastily dressed with the national colors and lanterns.

The Brockton Cafe shone resplendently with lanterns and bunting.

Mr. Taber's place was tastily decorated with the national colors.

The Manet Lunch Room was ablaze with lights as was also the Milton cottage.

The Leonard cottage was also decked out in gay attire.

Bay View Avenue.

The Dearing cottage was tastefully attired with flags, streamers and lanterns.

The Idlewild looked very pretty decked out with its gaily colored lanterns and bunting.

The Harbor Light was decorated with the American flag and those of all nations, shields and gilded stars, while at night many lanterns made a very pretty scene.

The other cottages along this street and Bay Side were the Mascot, Florence, Ocean View, Bayside, Grand View, Home, Bird's Eye View, Cedar Bluff, Echerolf, Montgomery, Heath, Perkins, Squire, Perkins, Glenbrook, Bellevue and Unqnity.

On Crosby Street.

The Loretto was especially noticeable as were the Bostonians and the Moondyne. Others were the Spot, Bijou, Creber, Dot, Little All Right, Mayflower and Jackson.

On Winthrop Street.

The noticeable ones were Camp Dedham, the Winthrop Cafe and the Moller.

On Great Hill.

Every cottage was decorated in such a manner that it would be hard to determine which looked the prettiest.

At Pierce's hotel everything was dressed with flags and bunting, while from the hotel to the dance hall a large arch of lanterns were extended.

One of the prettiest looking cottages along the shore was the Dedham cottage. The windows were decorated with red, white and blue curtains, which gave it a very effective appearance.

Other cottages that illuminated were: Ben Vento Cafania, Sunset, Barker, Little Cluick, River Road Camps, Perkins, Riverside, Lincoln, Bell, Magnolia, Elmsvale, Belmont, Cocasset, Maggie Murphy's Home, Webster, Lookout, Woodbine, Eventide, Ernenon, Wity-Cat, Nausett, Reed, Great Hill, Fancheon, Mount Pleasant, Ingleside, Glan Y. Don, Marjorie, Neversink, Pine Tree, Cymbeline, Webb, Relief, Little Jack, Bridgewater, Hillside, Alberta, Newton, Beatrice, Bijou and Doujou.

Accidents were Few.

Frank Leslie a member of the Pequot bicycle club of Dorchester had a narrow escape from a serious injury on the road to Houghs Neck. He was on his way down when he was run into by an approaching carriage. Leslie was knocked down and the horse stepped on him. The driver of the carriage did not stop to see what damage he had done but drove on, leaving Leslie unconscious in the street where he was found by other bicyclists who took care of him. It was found upon examination that the rider was quite badly bruised but fortunately no bones were broken.

By the Light of the Moon.

The Bayside cottage entertained the most guests.

All the Billings were not at the reunion in Boston or else they hastened afterward to the Fidelia cottage.

It is estimated that there were 400 passengers on the three cars from Quincy at 7 30.

There are over 100 cottages at Houghs Neck now.

Mr. J. B. Poore, of Braintree, did not lose anything at Houghs Neck, but he felt poorer when on his return he found himself homeless. He would probably have staid at home had he known there was to be an illumination there.

The street railway did a very large business on this line, carrying 5000 passengers. Eight cars were used and this large crowd was handled without an accident. It was nearly 2 o'clock this morning before the last car of the company was run into the car house.

There is a big rock on Sea street between Quincy Centre and the beach, and many of the bicyclists can tell you just where it is, as many of them found it.

Among the bicycle clubs represented were the Lovell Diamonds of Weymouth; Roxbury Wheelmen, Suffolks, Tigers, Press, Massachusetts and Union of Boston; Rovers and Ramblers of Hyde Park; Shoe City Wheelmen of Brockton; also clubs from Waltham, Natick, Franklin, Charlestown, Campello and many other places.

There was the largest crowd present that the beach has ever seen before in one day, probably over 10,000.

The fire department were stationed near the chemical house but fortunately their services were not needed.

Many hay wagon parties were seen at different points of the beach.

By actual count 46 carriages, 57 bicycles and five barges passed the Coddington school in 15 minutes about 8 P. M., all bound for the illumination.

Everybody kept open house and entertained all their friends.

The question has been asked, what benefit do the cottagers derive from these annual illuminations.

MANET BEACH.

The catamoran "Florence," which was driven ashore on Nut island by the storm of Tuesday, was dragged from her perilous position Wednesday by Captain Hunt's steam yacht "Get." The "Get" was in charge of First Mate McKay, and a large hawser was fastened to the Florence. At a given signal, Engineer Richardson reversed his lever and threw the throttle wide open. The Get leaped backwards with a bound, and slowly but surely she drew the Florence into deep water.

Dr. Rodge, the owner of the catamaran, feels highly pleased at getting her off so easily, as he expected she would go to pieces on the rocks where she lay.

VETERANS IN OFFICE.

The Reunion of the Old 39th Yesterday —They Eat, Talk and Transact Business.

The veterans comprising part of the surviving members of the 39th Massachusetts Volunteers, who held their twenty-seventh annual reunion Wednesday, in this city, sat down to a tempting banquet at the Pine Point house, such as Caterer Nash so well knows how to serve. For an hour the battle scarred heroes took solid comfort.

Dinner over Col. C. H. Porter, the president, called the meeting to order and after a few introductory remarks of welcome, he called upon a number of the well known orators of the regiment, who kept the party in good humor by the laughable tales they told of amusing incidents that had happened in the sixties.

The post prandial exercises did not end until nearly 3 o'clock when order was called and the business meeting was held at which it was voted to hold the next annual reunion with Co. B at Roxbury.

The secretary reported that during the past year nine members of the association had passed away.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

President,—Lieut. J. M. Swain of Roxbury.

Vice-president,—Lieut. O. P. Ricker of Roxbury.

Secretary,—Col. C. H. Porter of Quincy.

Treasurer,—W. L. Hicks of Roxbury.

Companies' secretaries: A,—C. G. Brett; B,—Frank Somerby; C,—J. H. Whitney; D.—P. H. Gavin; E,—J. E. Fuller; F,—Daniel Hall; G,—Alpheus Thomas; H,—E. Bradshaw; I,—F. E. Travis; and K,—A. B. Barrett.

After the election of officers a vote of thanks was extended to Co. D and the meeting adjourned.

The Regiment's Historian.

A member of Co. D, 39th regiment, says the article in Wednesday's LEDGER of the regiment should have mentioned Col. C. H. Porter, whom he says was as brave a soldier as ever enlisted. That he was always in the thickest of the fight, caring nothing more about the leaden bullets than as though they were of paper. In regard to the 39th regiment he was authority. The same gentleman also furnishes us with the following record as a soldier of Col. Porter:

August 14, 1862, he was commissioned as second lieutenant of Co. D; Jan. 25, 1862, he was commissioned as first lieutenant of Company A (color company); Aug. 6, 1865, he was promoted as captain of Company A; June 2, 1865, he was recommissioned as captain and was subsequently commissioned by the Governor of Massachusetts as lieutenant-colonel for meritorious conduct in the field, and holds that commission at the present time.

House Destroyed at Braintree.

Messrs. J. B. Poore and family and John Rogers of Washington street took in the illumination at Houghs Neck last evening and also witnessed a fire at Braintree. They returned to find themselves homeless and every article of furniture and clothing destroyed. The house was owned by Mr. Charles W. Hollis who is at the World's Fair. The fire was discovered about 8.30 o'clock at which time the whole house was ablaze and the firemen were powerless to save it on their arrival. The loss on house and contents was $4000, and all losers carried an insurance.

WEYMOUTH.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Weymouth Historical society held Wednesday evening, the President, John J. Loud, read a paper prepared by Rev. Oliver Huckel on "Joshua Bates of London." The subject of the sketch was a native of Weymouth.

FAXON—MORRISON.

Two Old Families of Quincy and Braintree United by Marriage.

A brilliant wedding occurred Wednesday evening in the First Congregational church at Braintree, which was very tastefully decorated for the occasion. There was a background of white trimmed with hop vine, white hydrangeas, palms, etc.

The contracting couple are well known society people; the bride, Miss Lizzie Curtis Morrison, being a charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Elmer Morrison, a leading family of Braintree, and Mr. Henry Munroe Faxon, the son of the millionaire temperance apostle of Quincy.

Rev. A. A. Ellsworth, the pastor officiated at the ceremony which occurred at 7 30 P. M. A pleasing innovation was that of the four groomsmen and four pretty bridemaids marching down the broad aisle and meeting the bride at the entrance.

The bride leaned upon the arm of her father and was escorted by a maid of honor, Miss Mary Helen Wales of Braintree. At the altar they were met by the groom and his best man, Mr. Harry L. Rice of Quincy.

Prof. Wrigley of Quincy presided at the organ, and Lohengrin's march was played when the bridal party entered, and Mendelssohn march pealed forth at the close.

The bride's gown was a white satin, cut en traine, trimmed with Duchess lace and white rose buds.

The bridemaids were Miss Antionette Kimball Holbrook, Miss Miriam Blagden Lane and Miss Julie Isabelle Arnold of Braintree, and Miss Alice Frances Dole of Roxbury. There gowns were of white Swiss dotted muslin trimmed with pink ribbon, and they carried bouquets of white astors tied with pink ribbons.

The ushers were Mr. Charles H. Porter, Jr., of Quincy; Mr. Charles A. Price, of Wollaston; Mr. Fred B. Rice, of Quincy; Mr. George J. Richards of Weymouth; Mr. T. Percy Harrison, of Braintree; Mr. Ernest de Wolfe Wales, of Braintree; and Mr. Willis Howard Butler, of New York.

Following the ceremony at the church, a reception was given at the home of the bride's parents on Middle street. The house was prettily decorated with pink and white hydrangea astors, etc. Mr. and Mrs. Faxon were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Morrison, Mr. Henry H. Faxon and Miss Annie Faxon.

Mr. and Mrs. Faxon, on the return from their bridal tour, will reside on Washington street, Quincy.

A STRIKE IMPENDING.

Fall River Men Think They Are Treated Unfairly.

NEW BEDFORD IS UNEASY.

May Follow the Example Set by Sister City.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Aug. 31.—In an interview, Secretary Howard of the Spinners' association said: "The members of the executive committee used very strong language in discussing the proposed cut-down Tuesday night. They said they could not understand why such reduction should be thought of when only a month or six weeks ago the published reports showed great earnings in the mills last quarter. They ask why it is that the Fall River manufacturers are the first to talk of reducing wages and the last to increase them.

In viewing the situation they found that half their men are idle and without wages. They are not receiving a cent of support, and if a strike results they will go under pay from the funds of the union. The idle men will come forward and vote to strike in order to receive some benefits. In conclusion the committeemen say that, in the wisdom of the association, it is decided to add their recommendation and strike, and they will give every assistance possible to carry the strike out to a successful end. Manufacturers say they will have to reduce wages if they continue to run their mills, and failing in that they will have to shut them up.

A special meeting will be called for next Tuesday night to take action.

How New Bedford Feels.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Aug. 31.—The operatives of the city show a disposition to resist the cutdown of 10 per cent in wages, which the manufacturers have notified them will go into effect Sept. 10. This city has always followed the lead of Fall River in the wage question, whether it was in an advance or reduction, and the present action of the mills is no exception to the rule. At the present time it is impossible to tell whether New Bedford or Fall River will be chosen by the spinners for their battleground, but it seems likely that the resistance will be made in the latter city and that the operatives in this city will remain at work and contribute toward the support of their idle brethren. It is possible that a strike may occur in both cities simultaneously.

VERMONT'S NEW BISHOP.

Rev. A. C. A. Hall of the Cowley Fathers Is Chosen to Fill the Place.

REV. ARTHUR C. A. HALL.

BURLINGTON, Vt., Aug. 31.—By a concurrent vote of the clerical and lay delegates to the Protestant Episcopal convention of the Vermont diocese, Rev. Arthur Cranshay Alliston Hall, D. D., of Oxford, Eng., was elected to succeed the late Rt. Rev. William Henley August Bissell as bishop of the diocese. Eight candidates were in the field.

A NEW GUARDIAN

Appointed For William H. King, the Insane Millionaire.

BOSTON, Aug. 31.—In the supreme court Hon. John D. Long was appointed as temporary guardian of William H. King, the insane Newport (R. I.) millionaire, with authority to investigate his case and report whether or not Mr. King's place of confinement is to be changed, and make any other recommendations proper in the case.

The court held that the order of commitment made by the Rhode Island supreme court 27 years ago was a valid one. This overrules the objection now made by Mrs. E. A. Webster Ross, a niece of Mr. King, that it was not a lawful order. Her contention was that the certificates of two practicing physicians that her uncle was dangerously insane and should be put in an asylum was the only evidence to warrant the commitment and was not sufficient.

Deputy Sheriff Seavey is relieved of the custody of Mr. King, who is to remain at the McLean asylum until ex-Governor Long shall have concluded what is best for his comfort, after the investigation. The disposition of the petition for a writ of habeas corpus is to be held in abeyance until the report of the special matter is announced.

CAT BITE CAUSED DEATH.

A Brockton Man Suffered In Agony For Five Years.

BROCKTON, Mass., Aug. 31.—Nearly five years ago John W. Stebbins was bitten by a cat and Tuesday, after intense suffering, he died from blood poisoning, occasioned by the wound. Soon after sustaining the injury Mr. Stebbins' hand and wrist began to trouble him. Despite all that medical aid could do the muscles appeared to contract and slowly the hand was drawn out of shape.

At t... hand would trouble him but slig... it he has never been entirely fr... the effects of the bite. Recently the ... ber grew worse, and the result of the last attack was blood poisoning, which resulted in death. Mr. Stebbins was well known throughout this section.

NEW AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE.

Dedicated With Appropriate Ceremonies at New Durham, N. H.

DURHAM, N. H., Aug. 31.—The new buildings of the New Hampshire Agricultural college in this place were dedicated yesterday, and Rev. Charles S. Murkland was inaugurated as president of the college. There was a large gathering present of friends of the institution and farmers with their families from this and surrounding towns.

The exercises of dedication began with music, followed by introductory remarks by ex-Governor Prescott, president of the board of trustees. At the close of the ex-governor's remarks prayer was offered by President Tucker of Dartmouth college, and the orchestra rendered another selection.

The building committee then reported. The report contained the following statistics: Main building, 168x93, three stories and basement, cost about $70,000; science building, 92x70, three stories, cost $20,000; workshop, 106x42, two stories with one wing, 31x42, and another 100x40; Nesmith hall, 32x54, two stories and basement, wing for laboratory, 32x36, cost $13,000; barn, 100x50, wing 70x40, three stories and 11-foot basement.

Took Unwise Steps.

LOWELL, Mass., Aug. 31.—John F. Kimball, president and director of the Appleton National bank, has resigned both positions. This step has been taken because of financial difficulties brought about by unwise endorsements in personal affairs. Mr. Kimball has been called upon to make good certain notes and others are to be presented for redemption. An examination shows nothing to reflect discredit upon Mr. Kimball.

Buzzard's Bay Left Behind.

BUZZARD'S BAY, Mass., Aug. 31.—President Cleveland left Gray Gables on E. C. Benedict's yacht Oneida at 1:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Cleveland, Baby Ruth and the nurse accompanied him. They proceeded directly to New York, where the Oneida is expected to arrive today. The president will then start at once for Washington. The retinue of servants will leave here this afternoon.

Charged With Fraud.

COTTAGE CITY, Mass., Aug. 31.—Frank E. Lewis of New York was arrested here charged with obtaining money under false pretenses. Checks and drafts, amounting to about $500, have been returned from New York, marked "no account" or "not authorized." Lewis says he will settle. He claims to be on the staff of the New York Evening Post.

For Municipal Relief.

MERIDEN, Conn., Aug. 31.—This city has followed the example set by New Haven and last night the mayor and city clerk issued notes in sums of $100 and upwards to the amount of $30,000, bonding the city to pay 5 per cent interest on them, redeeming them by Jan. 31, 1894. Other Connecticut cities are expected to follow suit and issue similar notes.

Reward For Firebugs.

DEDHAM, Mass., Aug. 31.—The Dedham selectmen have offered a reward of $200 for the arrest and conviction of the party or parties who set fire to the barn of Charles A. Walley. This reward offer will also apply to all subsequent fires that are set wilfully and maliciously during the next six months.

True Generosity.

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 31.—Andrew Esinhart, the Waterbury philanthropist, is proprietor of a hotel and he is giving free dinners to all persons of the city who are unable to find work. Of the numerous unemployed people of Waterbury about 50 daily avail themselves of the generous offer.

Captain and Crew Escaped.

BAR HARBOR, Me., Aug. 31.—Schooner J. A. Hines, Captain Johnson, from Boston, unloading stone at the breakwater, broke from her anchorage and was dashed to pieces on Burnt Porcupine island. The captain and crew of five escaped in a small boat and landed at Sorrento.

Tanneries Will Not Shut Down.

DEDHAM, Mass., Aug. 31.—The report comes that the large tanneries of Lyman Smith Sons and Winslow Bros. at Norwood are to continue running as usual and will not shut down because of the stringency in the money market, as was previously announced.

Bank of New England to Resume.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Aug. 31.—At a meeting of the directors of the suspended Bank of New England, a report was made that the assets were sufficient to pay depositors and stockholders in full and have a surplus. The bank will resume in a few weeks.

Ex-Councilman Held For Trial.

LOWELL, Mass., Aug. 31.—P. J. Smith, an ex-councilman of this city, who is charged with the larceny of $4500 worth of wool from George C. Moore of North Chelmsford, was held in $6000 bail for trial.

SHERMAN'S VIEWS.

Talks to the Senate on the Financial Situation.

THE CAUSES WERE MANY.

Conditions Responsible for the Trouble Outlined.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—After the routine morning business, the bill for the repeal of the Sherman act was taken up, and Mr. Sherman (Rep, O.) proceeded to address the senate.

He said that if the repeal of the purchasing clauses of the act of July, 1890, were the only reason for the extraordinary session, it would seem to him insufficient. It was, however, justified by the existing financial stringency.

On one thing, he said, congress and the people agreed, and that was that both gold and silver should be continued in use as money. Monometallism pure and simple had never gained a foothold in the United States. If senators wanted cheap money and an advance in prices, free coinage of silver was the way to do it; but they should not call it bimetallism.

Mr. Sherman then proceeded to discuss the history of the act that bears his name. He was not in favor of the free coinage of silver and regarded it as but another name for the monometallism of silver, and was only in favor of the purchase of silver for the purposes of coining. The conferees of the two houses agreed upon their two differences, and in that agreement secured the repeal of the Bland-Allison act. Mr. Sherman reminded senators that when they criticised the law that was misnamed after him, they should remember that this law now on the statute books was far better than either the house bill or that passed by the senate.

England a Big Creditor.

The president had, Mr. Sherman said, set forth the decline in the value of silver, but had failed to give the causes of that decline. If he had taken a broader view of the causes of that decline he could have explained it all. It was due, Mr. Sherman said, to the fact that we were called upon to pay our debts, debts payable in gold. England was the great creditor country, and we should neither be ashamed of nor hate her. We are her children and partake much of the characteristics of the parent stock.

England's losses in the Argentine Republic had to be made good, and she returned our securities and demanded the gold needed to save her own institutions from going down. For the first time also in a number of years the balance of trade was against us and we had to make the difference good.

After discussing other matters contributing to the present condition, Mr. Sherman declared that an erroneous impression had been created when it was claimed that the Sherman law was the cause of the trouble, and this he said with all due deference to Mr. Cleveland. Still the fact was that congress must deal with a situation and not a measure. He believed in "giving the devil his due," and was ready to stand by the law, not as a measure in which he took any special pride, for he was compelled to yield in order to prevent disastrous legislation.

Not a Convert.

But without this law, what would the country have done in 1891 and 1892 had it been called upon then to meet the difficulties now staggering us? He was not a new convert to the repeal of the law, and a year ago he had introduced a bill to suspend the operations of the law. It was worded almost exactly like that of Mr. Voorhees. Why did not the Democratic senators then see the dangers they now see and come to the help of the Republicans when they sought to suspend the law. Not a Democratic vote was had then, and Democrats must answer why.

This was a currency famine, not the fear that the money of the country was not good, and the people should not be deceived as to the reasons for the repeal. Mr. Sherman did not believe the repeal of the law would in any considerable degree relieve the country from the existing stagnation. Its repeal would ease the money market from the dreaded fear of the free coinage of silver. The law was denounced by the Democratic party as a miserable makeshift. It was a makeshift, and a good one, intended to prevent the evils growing out of the free coinage of silver.

Concerning the Future.

The Democratic party was now charged with a grave responsibility, and Mr. Sherman warned them that if they attempted to alter the existing tariff laws they would plunge the country into deeper distress than now exists.

Taking it for granted that the Sherman law would be repealed, what of the future? Mr. Sherman, while not the adviser of the Democratic party, said he was entitled to give his opinion as an American citizen. First of all, we must preserve intact the purity of our money. It might be necessary to issue our securities to secure gold to maintain the purity, the only way by which we can summarily secure gold.

The balance of trade may be against us again next year, and if such a condition should arise the secretary of the treasury ought to have the authority to make the deficit good. All parties have heretofore given the secretaries this authority. This exportation of American products ought to be encouraged by legislation. The surplus in the treasury, if there was one—and Mr. Sherman supposed there was, for Democratic senators said so—should be coined and used for all legal purposes.

Mr. Sherman said he did not believe in buying silver from our own people and making a profit out of the proceeding. If it was a profit, it was an intrigue, if not a profit, it was a fraud. He believed it a fraud. Mr. Sherman then began a discussion on the various coinage laws of the United States with special reference to the act of 1874, which had, he said, been the subject of so much misrepresentation and falsehood in this debate. He denied Mr. Voorhees' statement that that act (the act of 1874) was a stealthy demonetization.

Talked on Rules.

The session of the house was devoid of interest. The proposed code of rules was debated pro and con, both under the hour rule and the five minute rule, but the passage at arms between Speaker Crisp and ex-Speaker Reed seemed to be regarded not only as the opening of the fight, but as the culmination of it, and little attention was paid to the speeches. Without disposing of the rules the house adjourned.

THREE ON A BENCH.

The Boy Had a Future, the Crook a Past; the Vagrant Had Nothing.

It was 3 o'clock in the morning. The electric lights were still blazing in the silence of Madison square. A number of shabby figures slumbered or moved about on the seats beneath the trees of the park. On a bench beside the little fountain sat a group that arrested my attention. Three figures were reclining here with their heads and shoulders almost touching one another. One was but little more than a boy. A bundle done up in a calico handkerchief was in his hand. His sunburned face and his sturdy shoulders gave evidence that he was from the country—probably a farmhand who had trudged in to try his luck in the city. His boots were covered with red clay. He was leaning against a thin figure clad in somewhat shabby garments.

This man possessed a dark and sinister countenance. He was restless, and his hands, which were thin and white, twitched nervously in his sleep. His lips moved spasmodically. His was an evil conscience. There was plainly a shady side to his past life. Here were deceit and honesty side by side. Next to the dark man slumbered a very old and decrepit one. He was clad in a linen duster. A battered gray hat sat on his head, and his toes were peeping out from the tips of his worn shoes. The face of this old fellow was seamed with deep and careworn wrinkles. His hair and beard were snowy white. He was possessed of a palsy that made him tremble constantly as he lay dozing. It was youth, manhood and old age—typical of life.

These three reclined here in a stolen sleep. A park policeman came gliding along from the distance through the twilight of the trees. He crept along like a gray ghost on the lookout for those weary souls who were transgressing the law by surreptitious slumber. His eye lighted with satisfaction as he beheld the three figures on the bench. "You see that seedy fellow in the middle?" he whispered. "That's Tony McElroy, who cracked three safes over in Jersey City last summer. I spotted him at once by his mug. He just come out of the pen last Tuesday."

The officer seized the crook by the collar and shook him till his teeth rattled. The noise awakened the boy, who grasped the situation at once. Seizing his bundle he skurried like a rabbit across the grass toward Twenty-third street. Once feeling himself safe he stretched his limbs and began to whistle cheerfully. The crook arose and stood in sullen silence a few moments until the policeman pushed him on. He thrust his hands into his pockets, humped up his shoulders and shambled up the avenue. The old vagrant tottered to his feet. He was dazed, and it took him quite awhile to collect his senses. He shuffled across the square with bowed head. He scanned the buildings and the streets about him with a hopeless, helpless glance that was pathetic to see. Then he, too, vanished in the gray of breaking dawn.

The boy had a life of hope before him, the crook had a past behind him, but the old vagrant had neither past nor future. —New York Recorder.

A Legend About Lacemaking.

Lacemaking is by no means so old an industry as most persons suppose. There is no proof that it existed previously to the fifteenth century, and the oldest known painting in which it appears is a portrait of a lady in the academy at Venice, painted by Caspaccio, who died about 1523. The legend concerning the origin of the art is as follows: A young fisherman of the Adriatic was betrothed to a young and beautiful girl of one of the isles of the lagoon. Industrious as she was beautiful, the girl made a new net for her lover, who took it with him on board his boat. The first time he cast it into the sea he dragged therefrom an exquisite petrified wrack grass which he hastened to present to his fiancee. But war breaking out the fisherman was pressed into the service of the Venetian navy. The poor girl wept at the departure of her lover and contemplated his last gift to her. But while absorbed in following the intricate tracery of the wrack grass she began to twist and plait the threads weighted with small beads which hung around her net. Little by little she wrought an imitation of the petrification, and thus was created the bobbin lace.—Washington Star.

The Shillelah.

The shillelah is not a mere stick picked up for a few pence or cut casually out of the common hedge. Like the Arab mare, its grows to maturity under the fostering care of its owner.

The shillelah, like the poet, is born, not made. Like the poet, too, it is a choice plant, and its growth is slow. Among 10,000 blackthorn shoots, perhaps not more than one is destined to become famous, but one of the 10,000 appears of singular fitness. As soon as discovered it is marked and dedicated for future service. Everything that might hinder its development is removed, and any offshoot of the main stem is skillfully cut off. With constant care it grows thick and strong upon a bulbous root that can be shaped into a handle.—McClure's Magazine.

A Forcible Way of Putting It.

A nautical term comes with a kind of a shock in art criticism, but there was a certain pertinency in the remark of the good mayor of Gloucester, Mass., who said, speaking of the picture of a predecessor in his office, that it was a pretty good likeness, but with a man of his style of features a profile view would never be as effective as though it were taken a little more "head on."—New York Times.

A New Message.

It was not without meaning that the hilts of some swords were put into the metal of the Columbian Liberty bell, which is to ring in the victories of peace and international brotherhood. "A new commandment I give unto you, that ye love one another," is the inscription around its rim.—Philadelphia Ledger.

CLEVER SHOOTING.

RESULT OF TWO SHOTS LEARNED AFTER TWENTY-NINE YEARS.

An Incident In the Practice Work of a Southern Field Day—How Colonel Richardson Came to Know That He Had Done Some Damage to His Enemies.

When the Washington artillery was at Morgan City, there were many striking incidents that sprang out of the ceremonies of dedicating Fort Star and of practicing with the solid shot. The whole day the war and its memories were kept before the people, but it was not a reawakening in which the bloody shirt had any play, but more of a thoughtful retrospection, in which the recalling of battles was not with bitterness, but with an impartial sadness. Among the happenings of the day none was more singular and noteworthy than one which occurred to Colonel Richardson, the commander of the battalion.

It was during the time when the batteries were firing shell at the two targets, which looked like tiny handkerchiefs on the water, they were so far away. A good shot was fired, and the spectators were applauding the excellent marksmanship, and the colonel stepped up to the gun to commend the gunner, when without cause or without knowing why the memory of a similar shot which had been fired 29 years ago almost to the very day flashed into his mind when he had stepped up to a gunner and complimented him in much the same style.

It was when he was at Fort Malone at the siege of Petersburg, which was known as Fort "Damnation," when the shot 29 years before had been fired, and the Fourth of July was almost the anniversary of the very day. Instead of white targets for a mark it had been the tops of two Sibley tents which peeped over the ramparts of Fort "Hell," just opposite Fort "Damnation." They were the tents of the Federal officers. He knew that from a deserter who had informed him, also that the officers of the whole command held a daily consultation there, and that he could tell the time from the fact that they hitched their horses around the tents.

Colonel Richardson was then a captain in the Washington artillery, and he conceived the idea of scoring a point on the Federals by firing on the tents just at the time of the daily consultation. He selected the best gunner in his command and told him what he wanted him to do, and that was to load and prepare the guns for a special shot which he was going to direct them to make the ensuing day. The young captain was sure that he had gunners he could depend upon, and to make his triumph complete he asked General Malone to be present when the shots were to be fired.

It was noon the next day when the horses of the Federal officers were seen collected around the two tents. The gunners were told to train their guns upon them and to be certain to make their shots tell. Those two shots were made the center of the interest of those in Fort "Damnation" for that day, for the word was passed around that the destruction of the officers' tents was to be attempted.

After a deal of preliminary arrangements the two shots were fired, and the tops of the two Sibley tents disappeared like cardhouses in a gale of wind. The success of the shots was the signal for cheering on the part of the Confederates. General Malone complimented the accuracy of the artillerymen, and it was then that the captain stepped to the gunner and expressed his approbation in much the same way that he used to the one that had made the good shot at Morgan City. But there had always been a tinge of dissatisfaction about that shot at the Federal tents, and that was that he had never ascertained whether any one had been hurt in the tents, and for the 29 intervening years that one thought had pervaded the whole incident.

With these thoughts in his mind Colonel Richardson turned away from the gunner at Morgan City, and at that moment one of Morgan City's prominent citizens, Mr. Gray, stepped to the colonel's side and said:

"Isn't this Colonel Richardson?"

"Yes."

"Well, I have been wanting to meet you for many years, ever since I heard you had been in Fort 'Damnation' at the same time that I was in Fort 'Hell.'"

"Yes?" said the colonel, "and when were you in Fort 'Hell?'"

"In July, 1864. In fact, just 29 years ago today," answered Mr. Gray.

The colonel instantly thought of those two shots and wondered if his curiosity was to be satisfied. "Do you remember a day while you were opposite me in Fort 'Hell' when the tents of the officers were taken down by two shots which were almost simultaneous?"

The stranger did not reply for a full minute. A shadow seemed to fall over him, his eyes grew dark, and he stepped back and surveyed the colonel from head to foot. Then he broke out feelingly: "D——n you! I shall never forget those shots. They swept away the flower of my corps. My first lieutenant was killed, and the leg of my second lieutenant was shot off, and five others were killed. And did you fire that shot?"

The deep feeling of the man was evident, but a moment later he said, "Well, colonel, you are now teaching your young soldiers to serve the flag for which my officers laid down their lives."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

The Pumps of the Egyptian.

A representative piece of mechanism occurs frequently on the sculptures of early Egypt. It has the appearance of and is generally believed to be that of a portable pump. The hydraulic screw is also attributed to this people, but their main reliance seems always to have been the Shadoof, seen everywhere along the banks of the Nile, an invention so simple and so well adapted to their needs that it remains today substantially the same as it has through all the centuries since history began.

The same may be said regarding the chain pump in China, an invention the origin of which antedates the Christian era. This simple machine, which seems never to have been improved upon, is in such common use that every agricultural laborer is in possession of one. Where irrigation is conducted on a larger scale the chain pump is made proportionately larger and moved by a very simple tread wheel, and still larger ones are operated by yoking a buffalo or other animal to a suitable driving machine.

The application of steam to raising water is of uncertain origin. Long before the Christian era certain applications of fire to vessels containing water, by which effects were produced calculated to astonish ignorant worshipers, were practiced by the priests of Egypt, Greece and Rome, but their knowledge seems never to have been turned into any channel of secular usefulness.—Engineering Magazine.

We Owe the Hat to Asia.

We owe the hat to Asia, for it was in that country that the art of felting wool was first known, and from the most remote periods the art was carried on by the orientals. In India, China, Burmah and Siam hats are made of straw, of rattan, of bamboo, of pith, of the leaf of the Tallport palm and of a large variety of grasses. The Japanese made their hats of paper. The modern hat can be traced back to the petasurs worn by the ancient Romans when on a journey, and hats with brims were also used by the earlier Greeks.

It was not until after the Roman conquest that the use of hats began in England. A "hatte of biever," about the middle of the twelfth century, was worn by one of the nobles of the land. Fra sort describes hats and plumes which were worn at Edward's court in 1340, when the Garter order was instituted. The merchant in Chaucer's "Canterbury Tales" had "on his head a Flaunderish beaver hat," and from that period onward there is frequent mention of "felt hattes."—Washington Star.

No Law Against Removing a Dead Body.

"Where in the world," asked the lawyer who volunteered information without a retaining fee, "did people—especially people in the country—get the idea that one cannot touch or remove a body until the coroner has arrived? That is almost a general belief in the country, and there never was a more ridiculous and absurd piece of nonsense than this. I have seen a body lie in everybody's way because the people thereabout thought that it was unlawful to touch it. This foolish tradition amounts almost to a superstition, and you may be sure no coroner takes the trouble to enlighten stupid ignorance upon the subject. The coroner is only too willing to aggrandize his influence and power, and therefore rather encourages than discourages this silly superstition."—New York Tribune.

Bending the Knee to Foreigners.

A clever New York woman of assured social position frankly admitted to a horrified Frenchman of rank that nothing of a lower grade than the imperial or republican head of a great nation, in his representative capacity, could win from her a bend of the knee. The princelets, male and female, were but everyday folk in her eyes, quite without social "divinity," and to them she refused to make obeisance. The lady's distinction is self respecting and truly American, and as a rule of conduct it is commended as an antidote for the indiscriminate courtesy craze.—Vogue.

THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Has voted an emphatic majority for the repeal of the Sherman Act, but the people of Quincy have decided by a much greater majority that is the gem in its line in the city.

Hearn's New Drug Store

What a pretty store! How beautiful! How well laid out! Does it not light up beautifully at night? and other like expressions voice their verdict.

I thank you all for your kind words of praise, and feel grateful that my efforts to add an attraction to the city have been appreciated.

I am adding every day to my stock and will not stop until I am satisfied that I have a drug store that will compare favorably with any retail store in the state in my line.

I am giving my personal attention to the store, and can assure the people of Quincy that any prescription coming into my store will be filled with the utmost care and accuracy. I have had 14 years' experience in the business, almost five of which I have been in business for myself in West Quincy.

I feel gratified at the confidence imposed in me, judging by the share of patronage I have received thus far, and hope to merit more by strict attention to business and courtesy to all.

September Magazines.

Henry M. Stanley contributes to McClure's for September one of the remarkable stories he collected in Africa. In an interesting introduction Mr. Stanley tells how this and other folk tales were related by the natives about the camp fire at night during his journeys in Africa.

Current Literature for September is bright fresh and full of interesting matter from the newspaper and periodical press of the world. It is thoroughly up-to-date in its departments and from its pages one can keep well posted as to the best current thought at home and abroad, on all topics. In thirty pages it gives a tour through the World's Fair. "Told over the Wine and Walnuts," is a new department of choice after-dinner stories and it would be a dull reader or listener who would not enjoy their wit and cleverness.

We have heard it said that "there is an end to all good things," but when we look through "Table Talk" and find that each month it improves and grows more practical, we are compelled to say this is the exception that proves the rule. The September number is now before us and the practical common-sense manner in which all the departments are conducted, makes it a true helper to the housekeeper.

The September Californian in its artistic cover is attractive, and is also a very entertaining number. The Southern Ute Indians are described and richly illustrated. Shark Fishing, a paper on the Californian Naval Battalion, and an article on the Pacific Coast Women's Press Association are a few of the leading features.

Billings Family Reunion.

The Billings family, which held its first annual reunion in this city nine years ago, met Wednesday at the American House, Boston, sixty or more being present, including Jennie M. and Catharine W. Billings of Quincy. Charles Billings, the historian, stated that he was able to trace a relationship for the whole family with Queen Victoria, who is a direct descendant of Hermann Billing, duke of Saxony. Edward B. Billings of Lynn will be president the ensuing year, and G. M. Billings of Milford, secretary and treasurer.

For the Championship.

The Mellen Bray & Co.'s base ball club and the Wollaston Foundry club will play a game of base ball, Labor day, at Merrymount Park at 9.30 A. M., for the trade championship of Wards Five and Six. The former hold the championship and the Foundry's will try hard to wrest it from them. The batteries will be Cunniff and McMasters for the Mellen Bray's and McKenna and Mahoney for the Foundry's.

An object of much curiosity observed in a music store window at Lynn, Mass., is an ancient Egypt lyre, believed to be more than 3000 years old.

THE WOODWARD.

Contract Let for the New Female Institute.

A SIX-ROOM WOODEN BUILDING.

A Brief Description—The Work Being Pushed Rapidly by Contractor Moxon.

Work on the foundation of the new Woodward school is progressing rapidly and as there have been many inquiries in regard to the building, the following brief description is given:

The plans were made by E. G. Thayer and the contract has been let to Stephen O. Moxon.

The building, which will be of wood, will face northerly with a frontage on Greenleaf street of 81 feet 6 inches, and a depth on Hancock street of 77 feet. The entrance to be from grade.

The foundation is to be of Quincy granite and the basement will be concreted. In the basement, which will be 9 feet in the clear, will be located the heating, ventilating and sanitary appliance, also space for play rooms.

The ground and second floors will be finished 12 feet in the clear with three class rooms 25 x 28 on each floor and two additional rooms 13 x 13 on the ground floor for the use of the teachers.

There will also be a clothes closet on each floor for use of the pupils and a long corridor extends the entire length of the building from which two doors lead into each class room.

Two landings also lead from the second floor.

The floors of the rooms are to be of hard pine, and the inside finish will be of first quality kiln dried white spruce, sheathed up four feet from the floor. There will also be blackboards of slate in each of the class rooms, rooms to be lighted by four windows.

The attic will be left unfinished, but will be lighted by dormers, and these will located the trussses for the roof support.

The building will be piped for gas and each room will be connected by electric bells and speaking tubes with the masters room.

It is understood that the cost of the building is about $10,000. It will be completed so that the school can be opened before the time limit in the will expires.

WEYMOUTH.

The Prohibitionists have elected these delegates to the conventions: Wilmot Cleverly, George W. Dyer, James L. Wilde, Gilbert Hunt, James I. Sears, David P. Lincoln, Jacob F. Dizer, George A. Beedem, S. A. R Pratt, Benjamin B. Sylvester, Leonard W. Cain, George H. Cunningham, William H. Farrar, Nathan Pratt.

MILTON.

P. A. Andrews and family have returned from their visit to Leominister.

The alarm from Box 67 at 8.40 Tuesday night was for a fire in a house on the Dustin estate. When the department arrived, (which was remarkably quick) the flames had made good progress. The men went to work with a will and after a hard battle the fire was got under control and extinguished. The cause of the fire is not known, as when discovered it was one mass of flames, but it is supposed to have originated in the kitchen. The loss will be about $1000.

Lawn Party.

The grounds of Mrs. J. H. Webb, on Washington street, were brilliantly illuminated with Japanese lanterns Thursday evening, the occasion being a lawn party held under the anspices of Paul Revere W. R. C., the proceeds to be used in furnishing room 47 at the Soldiers' Home in Chelsea. A large party attended and a goodly sum will be realized.

During the early part of the evening there was a brief entertainment consisting of singing by a male quartette, harmonica solos and selections from the drum corps.

Following the entertainment there was dancing on a raised platform which had been located on the lawn.

Ice cream, cake, pop corn and lemonade was on sale during the evening.

Y. M. C. Association.

The regular afternoon meeting will be held in the parlor, Sunday, at 3.30 o'clock. All men are invited.

The basket ball team will practice at the Park, Saturday, at 3 P. M. On Labor day the team will play the Brockton team at 10 A. M. It is desired that all the team and substitutes be at the Park Saturday to receive instructions for the game to be played Monday at Brockton.

He has lectured at New Orleans, La., Cincinnati, O., Winnipeg, Manitoba and other points, and has engagements in Helena, Mont., Seattle, Wash., Portland, Ore., Salt Lake City, Denver, Fostoria, O., etc. He will return home about Oct. 1.

MANET BEACH.

The Benefit Derived From the Annual Illumination Day.

Thursday was "clearing up" day at this place. Most of the people did not go to bed till the early hours of Thursday and, as a consequence, it was very late in the day when some of them awoke.

Most of the decorations were allowed to remain up all day Thursday which gave the place a very pretty appearance.

"What benefit is derived from Illumination day?" said a resident to the LEDGER man on Thursday.

Why we derive a great many benefits. First of all it makes the outside people better acquainted with our seashore resort, our fellow citizens and our hospitalities. Every year there are new cottages erected, and almost invariably on Illumination day the owners invite some out of town friends to visit them, and these in turn become so infatuated with the place that they are induced to hire a cottage for the next season.

Then Houghs Neck offers many advantages for the overworked clerks and business men who require absolute quite.

The people in Quincy and the neighboring cities and towns do not know what the residents of Houghs Neck are capable of doing until they come down on Illumination day.

"The residents receive no outside help on these occasions; everything is done by popular subscription, and considering the number of people here residing I think that the success of Illumination day reflects great credit on them.

Captain Charles Hunt of the steam yacht "Get" is confined to his home by sickness.

Mr. Charles Adams, the genial clerk at Dobles', has returned to his home in East Milton.

When to Return to the City.

Dr. Powell writing to the Ladies' Home Journal on "Children at the Seashore," says: "Let me impress this upon mothers: Do not, unless it is necessary, return too early to the city, as the little ones are apt to feel the change of the hot weather, which we usually have in September has not yet passed. Where it is possible, the first of October is early enough to return, and it should be borne in mind even after that how necessary the fresh air is to children, and let them be taken to the squares for at least two hours in the morning and afternoon, so that they may not too greatly miss the pleasant freedom they have enjoyed during the summer. Children who have been so fortunate as to spend the heated season at the shore are less liable to cold and disease in winter than are those less fortunately circumstanced."

North Weymouth.

Many inquiries are made in regard to the progress of the Park Commissioners and Hon. Charles Francis Adams in regard to the monument to be erected at Wessagusset, to commemorate the first settlement on Massachusetts bay and the first and decisive battle between Miles Standish's little army and the Indians.

We understand that there is difficulty in procuring a desirable site, the parties owning the lots of land most suitable for the purpose not desiring to sell. Mr. Adams is ready and anxious to go ahead with his part of the agreement as soon as the site that the town voted to buy is provided.

There are several sites that are acceptable to Mr. Adams, all within a short distance of the spot where the little settlement was located and it is to be hoped that some one of the owners will be willing to sell to the town for a reasonable price for the sake of aiding the public spirited and generous enterprise of Mr. Adams.

That the presence of the monument in the centre of a well-kept little park will add to the value of the surrounding land is not to be doubted and it may prove a short-sighted policy if the owners of the land in the vicinity allow the enterprise to fail for want of a liberal spirit in dealing with such a matter, or force the acceptance of a site at a more distant point from the actual place of the landing.

It is to be hoped that the difficulties in the way of the purchase of the desired land will soon be overcome and that a monument of ample proportions and beautiful design, will be erected where it will be a prominent object upon the Weymouth shore to be visited by the thousands who are interested in such historic spots and marks. —Weymouth Gazette.

Tramps Clubbed Into Submission.

ASHLAND, Mass., Sept. 1.—Twenty-five tramps took possession of a freight train at this place and rode as far as South Framingham, where the train was met by a squad of officers who had been telephoned for, and after a lively tussle, during which clubs were freely used, the gang was placed under arrest.

THE VERGE OF DEATH

There was great excitement at Newell's ranch.

Miss Rose Newell was coming out from the east to visit her father, and the employees of the ranch, with three exceptions, were on the tiptoe of expectancy.

Those three exceptions were old Barton and his wife and James Lyall, or Deacon Jim, as he was more commonly called.

The morning of the day on which Miss Rose was to arrive the cowboys, with the exception of Deacon Jim, spent two hours or more in making preparations for the event.

Deacon Jim alone appeared in his ordinary everyday clothing.

"Why don't you fix up, deacon," some one asked, "and do the honors of the occasion?"

"I don't propose to make a fool of myself," Jim replied, "by parading before Miss Newell like a circus clown. I'm not so anxious to show off what little clothing I own, and I guess she's seen better many a time.

"Humph! Have you fellows got an idea that Miss Newell is going to take any notice of you? It's hardly likely she's going to come out here and get dazzled by such common cow punchers with a lot of gaudy trappings. I ain't fool enough to make a spectacle of myself and give Miss Newell a chance to laugh at me, you bet!"

When the carriage bearing Miss Rose arrived at the ranch, the cowboys, with the exception of the deacon, stood about the door, each one "with his best foot forward," anxious to be seen by the young lady and hopeful of making an impression on her heart.

That night when Jim came in from the plains they gathered about him, intent on singing the praises of Rose's loveliness.

"I tell you, deacon," Anson said, "you just ought to seen her; I never saw a woman so beautiful in all my life."

"I don't doubt her beauty," the deacon replied, "but what good would it have done me to have seen her? She's not going to care anything for us."

"Maybe you know about that," said Anson, "and maybe you don't. If you had seen her smile when she saw us, you might think differently from what you do now."

"Yes, and she was looking right smart at me when she smiled!" cried Ab Johnson. "I noticed that."

"Humph!" said Anson. "She was looking as straight at me as she could look."

"She wasn't!" exclaimed Ab angrily.

"Hold on now," said Jim. "It isn't worth while for you to fight over that. I can easily believe that she'd 'a' smiled, whichever one of you she was looking at, when she saw the clothes you had on. It was enough to make her smile, I'm sure."

Ab and Anson muttered something, then went away, and the subject was dropped.

From that time on they viewed each other as rivals and were never on good terms again.

A month passed.

Miss Newell proved a very sensible young lady, and though she had grown up under the influences of the highest refinement she adapted herself readily to her new surroundings.

She treated her father's employees with the kindest consideration, laughing and chatting with them with perfect freedom, little suspecting what stress they placed upon every word and every ripple of laughter that fell from her lips.

Anson and Ab both grew more sanguine and hopeful as the days went by, and each in his own heart came to feel assured that he was winning his way into Rose's love.

Deacon Jim had continued on from the first in the even tenor of his way.

He never thrust himself forward at all—never made any effort to gain admission to Rose's society, but if anything rather seemed to avoid her.

A change had come over the deacon too. Always serious, he had become almost melancholy.

He liked to mope about alone or sit for hours gazing thoughtfully into space.

He was in love, though he tried hard to conceal the fact from himself, and for all the world would not have admitted it to any one else.

One morning when the men were preparing to begin the work of the day a dispute arose between Anson and Ab, and as it grew warmer and more bitter the former said:

"When I become a partner on this ranch, you'll go, Ab Johnson, as sure as shooting. I won't have you here."

"When you get to be a partner!" sneered Ab. "When I get to be a partner, you'll go, and don't you forget it."

"You a partner!" Anson said mockingly. "Why, Rose Newell wouldn't have you if you were the last man on earth!"

"My notion is you'll both see that you are making fools of yourselves," old Barton observed. "Miss Rose will never have either of you. If I had to name anybody on this ranch that she was most likely to marry, I'd say it was Deacon Jim."

There was a universal roar of laughter at that last remark, and every one seemed to think it a good joke.

"Why," said Anson, "the deacon don't stand a ghost of a show. He ain't shined around her a bit, and they never take any notice of each other, scarcely. You're off, Barton—away off. Jim ain't in that all."

That day Rose rode with her father across the country, and late in the afternoon was returning alone to the ranch.

When within two miles of her destination, she was aroused from a drowsy reverie by a rushing, surging noise that came suddenly up from behind her like the onsweep of a great storm.

She listened an instant, glanced back, then uttered a cry full of terror.

A little distance away she saw a great herd of cattle in full stampede, sweeping down upon her in one mighty, irresistible mass.

On over the level prairie the horse sped, and on, on, in the rear came the surging sea of horns.

One mile was thus run and part of another, and the girl, bending low over the horse's neck, urged the animal to a still greater speed, while a hope of escape came to her heart.

But at that instant the horse stumbled and fell to its knees, and she was thrown forward to the ground.

The horse recovered its footing and sped away.

She arose, looked about her in a da of wonder, saw the herd almost upo her, and in a hopeless despair attempte to run, but with a cry of pain she sank down helpless.

She had sustained a sprain and could not support her weight.

She heard the cattle as they swept up nearer and nearer over the hard, dry sod.

Another minute would bring them upon her.

She shuddered and covered her face with her hands.

Then she felt a pair of strong arms about her.

She was lifted up and set upon a horse's back.

A man sprang quickly in front of her to the saddle, and planting his spurs in the animal's side, swept away at full speed.

There were a few minutes of uncertainty, a few minutes fraught with terror, alternating with hope and despair.

Then it was over, and amid a wild shout from the assembled cowsboys the horse halted at the ranch while the herd swept by but a few yards away.

It was Deacon Jim who had saved Miss Newell's life, and everybody agreed that he had performed a brave deed.

Even Anson and Ab admitted that.

Jim, however, considered his act of very little consequence except for the result, and he did not like to hear it mentioned.

The next morning Miss Rose sent for Jim, and blushing and trembling he went to her room.

She was lying on a couch looking more beautiful than he had ever seen her before.

She thanked him profusely for her rescue, and showed not only by language but by her looks how truly grateful she was.

How the deacon ever came to say it no one could surmise, and even he could never account for such boldness and audacity.

"Miss Newell," he said, "to do you a service is a glorious reward of itself. To save your life, believe me, is a privilege worth living for."

Then, blushing at his own temerity, he arose to leave the room, but she held out her hand to check him.

Soon it became noised about that the deacon and Miss Newell were to be married in a few days and that the deacon was to become a half owner of the ranch.

This information was not pleasant to Anson and Ab, but bitter as it was they had to swallow it.

"I can tell you how it came about," said old Barton. "She's a girl of sense, and it is not what a man says or the way he looks that takes with her, but it's the way he does. Jim won her by his actions, which appealed to her heart, while you chaps tried to win her by your dress. If it's clothes a girl wants to marry, she can beat taking you fellows all hollow by going to a clothing store and buying a suit."

"Blamed if I don't believe she could!" said Anson.—Boston Globe.

Slavery In Siam.

Slavery in Siam has been abolished in name, but it can never be abolished in fact, for the slaves have no means of supporting themselves outside their masters' houses. Every member of the Siamese upper classes can fetter his servants or throw them into prison without any kind of trial or permission being necessary. One morning I went to call upon one of the ablest and most enlightened of the ministers, a man who has been to Europe, and who once actually got into serious trouble for trying to inaugurate a sort of woman's rights movement in Siam. I made my way by mistake into a part of his grounds where visitors were not expected, and I found a slave fastened down to the ground in an ingenious kind of pillory in which he could not move hand or foot, while another slave tortured him with severe strokes of a bamboo rod at the word of a member of the family in order to force him to confess to some misdeed.—Contemporary Review.

Curious Marriage Presents.

One New Jersey clergyman received for a marriage fee in a monogramed envelope a bridge toll ticket of the value of 2 cents. Another got something neatly wrapped in paper. He took it to a grocer, told him that it was a wedding fee, that he had not opened it and did not know what it was, but would give it to him, "sight unseen," for a watermelon. The grocer agreed, the dominie seized his melon, and the grocer found in the paper a silver 3 cent piece. One groom, as he passed out with his bride, threw into a workbasket an old pair of gloves, saying to the minister's wife that she might have them. The minister's wife looked at them with scorn and contempt. A few days later, however, wishing to do some gardening, she thought the despised old gloves might be useful after all. She attempted to put them on and found a difficulty. In every one of the 10 fingers there was a $5 bill.—Trenton True American.

ANSE MADE A KICK.

It Was the Principal Feature of the Boston-Chicago Game.

BOSTON, Sept. 1.—Jack Stivetts inaugurated his return to the diamond by pitching a great game. Three of the Chicagos' hits were in the last inning. The colts were completely outclassed; and the only incident of especial interest was an Ansonian kick that delayed the game. He objected to Duffy's light "1492" bat in the first inning on the ground that it was not hard wood. Flynn, Anson's old pitcher, was umpire and he refused to allow the claim. The Boston directors, however, took the bat out of the game and, Anson having carried his point, the contest proceeded.

Keeping an Eye on France.

LONDON, Sept. 1.—The government was asked in the house of commons whether it has information that France intended to annex the New Hebrides. Sir Edward Grey said that France would not annex the New Hebrides without violating her convention with Great Britain concerning them, and the foreign office had heard nothing to justify the report of such intention on the part of France.

A DREAM.

I dreamt that over the water world
The winter winds were sighing,
And into the orioles' empty nests
The flakes of snow were flying.
The vines along the garden wall
With crystal ice were gleaming,
And in the garden dull and bare
The summer flowers were dreaming.
The snow lay deep over withered grass,
The skies were cold and gray,
And slowly the dreary night came on
To end the weary day.

I woke. High up in the orchard boughs
A hundred birds were singing,
And in the birch trees' pleasant shade
The orioles' nests were swinging.
Along the river, tall and green,
I saw the rushes growing,
And daisy petals white as snow
Among the grasses showing.
The flowers held the sunshine bright,
The breezes were at play,
And swiftly the dreamy night came on
To end the happy day.

Red Is the Rage.

Spanish effects and also Italian mixtures are on the special list of fashions this summer In the latter style of dress red, of course, prevails. Red of every shade, red triumphant, absolute and insolent, will flourish in tones and semi tones all the summer and autumn seasons through. There will be no abatement in the popularity of this striking torrid color, no matter what blood boiling degree the thermometer reaches. This particular hue appears to have some inexplicable affinity with the advanced and somewhat erratic tastes of the times. Nine out of ten women delight in red, and 98 out of 100 men detest it.—New York Post.

The New Walking Stick For Women.

If you have not seen the new walking stick, you will do so before long. The stick has the appearance of an umbrella rolled extremely tight and slender to a degree. The handle in ebony or light walnut, with a gold band, is convenient to hold. Nothing indeed could be smarter. Many women who love walking with a support forego the pleasure because of the mannish look of the ordinary stick. The mock umbrella changes all this. It has, moreover, the advantage of being as light as a feather

Grandma's High Shell Comb.

Another of grandmamma's old fashioned ornaments is in great demand among her grandchildren since empire gowns and hair parted in the middle and combed down over the ears came in style. That's her high shell comb. Those who have no grandmamma to apply to can of course purchase one, as everything used at that epoch is now shown.

The Latest Kind of a Walk.

Another new fad is the heavy step. This is done by lifting each foot in a solemn kind of way and putting it down as if it weighed a ton. A series of these steps may be termed an individual funeral procession. It isn't a fast kind of walk, but it may be depended upon as a means to get there.—Exchange.

Mrs. Susan T. Kimball of Boston, the donor of the Morton hospital building at Taunton, has given $1,000 in memory of her recently deceased son toward a new ward. Her total gift to the institution is now about $30,000.

THE GREAT CYCLONE

Appears to Be Much Worse Than First Reported.

PORT ROYAL IS IN RUINS.

Loss of Life on Islands May Reach Five Hundred.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Sept. 1.—A special to The Chronicle from Beaufort, S. C., says: Over 300 dead bodies have been found on islands about Beaufort and Port Royal. Over $2,000,000 of property has been wrecked, near the same points.

Both are the direct result of severe storms, which swept along the Atlantic coast Sunday night. Everyone of the 15 or 20 islands lying around Port Royal and Beaufort are in mourning. The undergrowth and shrubbery are revealing dead bodies every time an investigation is made.

Those who are at all posted about the country and the people in the storm-visited section are confident in their predictions that the death roll will run as high as 500.

Receiver Averill of the Port Royal and Augusta road wires The Chronicle that the loss of life on Sea islands, S. C., far exceeds anything yet reported and will not fall far short of 600. Great destitution exists among the 7000 remaining inhabitants, and urgent appeal is made for aid in the shape of provisions.

Report From Columbia.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Sept. 1.—Accounts continue to come in of Sunday's storm.

From Bischoff's place on the Edisto river to Jacksonboro two negroes floated the shoal district on the top of their shanty, and reported that all the negroes on the place in the lowlands had been drowned, in all about 100 men and women and children. They related a terrible experience and state that all of the dwellings are totally destroyed and the place is in abject desolation.

Port Royal is practically in ruins. Its water front is destroyed and great damage has been done to its buildings. Thirty odd negroes were found dead on the beach and the number is expected to be largely increased before the death roll is finally closed.

The missing steamship Seminole, about which so much anxiety was felt, steamed into the harbor yesterday with scarcely a scratch on her. She and her passengers had very narrow escapes from the storm, which swept the coast.

Crew Suffered Greatly.

WILMINGTON, N. C., Sept. 1.—The three-masted schooner Enchantress of New York is ashore 25 miles south of Cape Fear. The crew were three days without food or water. The mate was washed overboard and the captain injured.

FALL RIVER EXCITED.

Banks Want a Prominent Broker to Explain Certain Matters.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Sept. 1.—A big sensation was caused here last night by the publication of the following article in an extra edition of The Evening News:

Several of our banks, which have discounted notes secured by bills of lading for Cotton Broker Welcome H. Hathaway, who for a score of years has been one of the largest factors in this city, have failed to find the cotton represented by many of the bills of lading. Investigation into the affair is now in progress.

The amount involved by the several banks is $107,000. How much collateral behind these bills is good is yet to be ascertained, but it is feared that the amount will prove to be very small.

Five banks are concerned, about as follows: First National bank, $25,000; B. M. C. Durfee Trust company, $25,000; Massasoit National bank, $24,000; Union National bank, $19,000; Pocasset National bank, $14,000.

Hathaway refuses positively to make any statement. An examination into Hathaway's affairs began some weeks ago.

Two Children Killed by Electrics.

BOSTON, Sept. 1.—Angeline Capen, less than 2 years old, was instantly killed at the corner of Dudley and Clarence streets yesterday.

Charles Faulkner, 3 years of age, was crushed to death under the wheels of an electric car yesterday afternoon at Charlestown. The motormen in both cases are blameless.

Collier Rattlesnake Overdue.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 1.—Great apprehension is felt for the safety of the Reading company's steam collier Rattlesnake, which sailed from New Bedford, Mass., on Saturday for this port, with the barge Gilberton in tow. The Rattlesnake is the oldest vessel of the fleet and sailed from here 10 days ago on her 800th voyage.

Mrs. Fiske's Loss.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—Mrs. C. P Fiske, a wealthy widow of Boston, was robbed of diamonds worth $4000 and a letter of credit for £20,000 sterling on the steamship Campania. The robbery was committed on board within 24 hours of the time the vessel arrived at New York. There is no clue to the thieves.

General Strike Probable.

LOUISVILLE, Sept. 1.—From the present outlook the prospect for a general strike on the Louisville and Nashville railroad system is very good, unless something is done within the next few hours to prevent the carrying out of the program that at present seems to be fully determined upon.

Probably a Case of Suicide.

LONG BRANCH, Sept. 1.—The body of Eben Howland, who disappeared mysteriously on Sunday last, was found yesterday on a farm about five miles from Long Branch. He is believed to have committed suicide.

'Longshoremen's Strike Ended.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—The strike among the 'longshoremen is at an end. The men relinquished the struggle without gaining a point and applied for work at the various piers at the reduced rates.

By Way of Queenstown.

LONDON, Sept. 1.—The government has completed an agreement with the Irish steamship and railway companies to continue sending the American mails via Queenstown.

Nancy Beat Directum.

FLEETWOOD PARK, Sept. 1.—Nancy Hanks failed to lower her own record but beat Directum's 2:09 3-4. Nancy Hanks did the mile in 2:06 3-4.

MIKE GLEASON'S DEATH.

One of Sullivan's First Backers Passes Away in an Asylum.

BOSTON, Sept. 1.—Mike Gleason died yesterday at the South Boston institution for the insane, which he re-entered about two months ago. Gleason was one of the best known characters in sporting circles in the east for 20 years. His reputation as a square man and popular sporting man was known all over the country.

MICHAEL GLEASON.

He was born in Ireland, March 15, 1847, and came to this country when very young. In his early days he was in the shoemaking business. One of his first business ventures in Boston was as proprietor of a saloon at 105 Court street. He was one of the first to discern the merits of John L. Sullivan.

Gleason was a Grand Army veteran, and enlisted from Milford. He served with the Fifteenth Massachusetts under General Devens, and also with the First cavalry. He was a member of John A. Andrew post, No. 15. The remains will be buried from his old family home in Milford today.

"JUDICIAL ANARCHY."

Two Judges Slighted by an Associate In a Chicago Court.

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—A sensational scene was enacted in court when Judges Goggin, Dunne and Brentano attempted to decide whether the injunction should stand restraining the World's fair directors from closing the exposition gates on Sunday. It was understood beforehand that the judicial trio was divided as to the course to be pursued, Judges Dunne and Brentano holding that the injunction should be dissolved, while Judge Goggin held exactly the contrary. Judge Goggin is the one before whom the motion to dissolve was made.

Judges Brentano and Dunne were invited by him to sit en banc, the three to hear the case jointly, in view of the importance of the issues at stake. Before either of his colleagues could announce their views in opposition, when court opened Judge Goggin promptly forestalled them with an unprecedented move. He notified the clerk to enter an order to continue the case for 60 days.

Judge Dunne, to whom the reading of the majority opinion had been entrusted, insisted on his right to be heard. He read the opinion, and Judge Goggin renewed his attempt to grant a continuance. Ex-Judge Moran, representing the exposition company, addressed the court, referring to the attempted continuance as "judicial anarchy." Judges Brentano and Dunne induced Judge Goggin to leave the bench, and a private conference was held by the three judges.

After the conference Judges Brentano and Dunne returned to the bench and announced that Judge Goggin no longer desired them to sit with him. They thereupon retired, apparently with considerable suppressed feeling, leaving Judge Goggin alone. Judge Goggin then entered an order overruling the motion to dissolve and refused ex-Judge Moran's request to set a date for hearing a motion to vacate that order.

Will Please Veterans.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—Commissioner Lochrens has issued an order modifying the practice of the pension office as to suspensions of pensions. The most important change is that which directs that hereafter there will be no suspensions except in cases where the record shows on its face that the soldier was not entitled to any pension whatever.

This Is Encouraging.

DENVER, Sept. 1.—The State National bank, the last but one of the city's six suspended banks, opened its doors again yesterday. The Commercial National will resume in a few days. Of the score of national banks in Colorado which were compelled to close their doors a few weeks ago all have resumed save three.

Salisbury Carried His Point.

LONDON, Sept. 1.—Lord Salisbury appeared in the house of lords yesterday for the first time since his recent illness. He spoke against the betterment clauses which had been inserted in the London improvements bill. The amendments containing the clauses were then rejected by a vote of 50 to 27.

Emma Goldman Arrested.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 1.—A meeting of unemployed people was held at Buffalo hall last night. Emma Goldman was to have addressed the meeting, but as she was entering the hall she was arrested on the charge of inciting riot in New York city.

More Dynamite at Madrid.

MADRID, Sept. 1.—A petard was exploded in the barracks of the civic guard last evening. No damage was done. Two men, supposed to be the authors of the explosion, were pursued and arrested.

Seven Hundred Men Idle.

READING, Pa., Sept. 1.—On account of dull trade, the tube works of the Reading Iron company closed down today indefinitely, throwing 700 men out of work.

Rates Go Up.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1.—The large life insurance companies, which have their head offices in this city, have decided to advance the rate of interest on bond and mortgage loans to 6 per cent.

New York Village Badly Burned.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Sept. 1.—The business portion of the village of Maryland was totally destroyed by fire. Loss $18,000.

CHEAP FRAME HOUSE.

A Neat Cottage That Is Convenient and Commodious—Cost, $1,650.

[Copyright, 1893, by American Press Association.]

In the neat little cottage shown by the accompanying perspective view and floor plans, built in a purely western style of architecture, we have a good solution of the common question in this newer portion of our country, of the maximum of house and accommodation for the minimum of money. The man who builds a cheap cottage generally wants convenience of arrangement and accessibility as much as he who builds more pretentiously. In order to have these something must be sacrificed, generally something in the size and the quality of materials used in the construction.

PERSPECTIVE VIEW.

In the house here shown we have attained a convenient and fairly roomy arrangement of nine principal rooms. The house is designed to face the east, thus placing the sitting room and bedroom on the most desirable side of the house. The sitting or living room is of fair size and entered from the front porch direct. The projecting window in this room is furnished with three drawers under the shelf. The parlor, also entered direct from the porch, is connected with the sitting room by sliding doors 5 feet wide. The lower sash of the large 2-sashed window in this room is fitted with plate glass 48 by 44. The dining room is accessible from the sitting room or from the outside on the side porch.

The first floor bedroom, a requisite with almost every one in the west, is conveniently located, is of fair size and furnished with closet room. The kitchen is small, but is intended simply for cooking. The lobby, opening from the bedroom and dining room, is an especially desirable convenience, furnishing as it does passage from these rooms to the pantry or kitchen, and from which stairs lead down to the cellar. In the present instance the cellar is only under the dining room, though if this be insufficient, or if one be desirous of heating by furnace, the space under the whole house could be excavated, or if expense saving is the leading question one might excavate under the kitchen and bedroom, under the latter being the best location for the furnace.

On the second floor we have four chambers of fair size. In the present case no provision has been made for the bathroom, but if this be desired the small chamber over the lower bedroom might be divided, furnishing in one part a dressing room and fitting the other portion as bathroom at an expense of from $50 to $100.

The construction of the house is good using for the first tier of timbers 6 by 8 sills with 2 by 8 joists; second tier joists, 2 by 10; ceiling joists, 2 by 6; studding and rafters, 2 by 4. The outside walls are sheathed outside with shiplap sheathing and building paper and covered with pine half inch siding. The inside of the outside walls and each side of the interior walls are finished with three coats plastering.

SECOND STORY.

The outside of the house is painted three coats. The inside is finished natural on the first floor and painted three coats on the second floor. The house is contracted at Carthage, Ills., as described for $1,650 complete, with a possible addition of about $175 for furnace heating. E. A. PAYNE.

English Architecture.

The designers of the best examples of domestic architecture in this country undoubtedly were inspired by the works of our English cousins, notably may be mentioned the three periods of old colonial architecture, which shows in its details a decided classic feeling. Later there appeared another style, with open timber roof, half timbered and plaster work on the exterior, which leans toward Gothic work—although not strictly classified as such—and it is generally known as the English cottage style, which, when properly adapted to the necessities of our climate, has much to recommend it. It is true that it lacks the delicacy and refinement of classic architecture, but always to erect buildings in one particular style would become monotonous. And this English cottage architecture by its very contrast is pleasing and effective. Its high pitched roofs, bold projections, open timber roofs, half timbered and plaster work and coarse details are characteristic features which afford almost unlimited opportunities for variety in design.

HE NEEDS FRIENDS.

Moody Merrill Located at a Summer Resort.

GREATLY IN NEED OF REST.

Bowed Down by Intense Mental Suffering.

BOSTON, Sept. 2.—The Post this morning publishes the following story, which, it claims, is the only direct interview that has been had with Moody Merrill since his departure from this city:

After a long, stern chase, Moody Merrill has been unearthed and interviewed by The Post.

This discovery of the once eminent Boston lawyer and magnate is in no sense the result of accident, but the outcome of well-laid plans, which, under the circumstances, could hardly fail of bearing fruit.

It was one thing to find the man; it was another to induce him to talk. Mr Merrill was susceptible to argument and consented to an interview, which, while broken and disconnected, is none the less interesting.

Where He Is Located.

About 10 miles from Montreal, along the reaches of the Riviere-des-Prairies, among a region of churches, cabins, mansions and hotel resorts, bordered by Mt. Royal's western brow, lies Sault aux Recollects. It is the very heart of the river country, reached by train over the Canadian Pacific railway, or otherwise along one of the finest turnpikes to be found in the world.

A supurb of Canada's commercial metropolis, presenting the most magnificent cyclorama of dotted plains and misty distances.

It was here a Post reporter yesterday discovered the Hon. Moody Merrill. He was seated in the garden which surrounds one of the best known hostelries in Sault aux Recollects, attired in a dark gray suit and chip straw hat. The big, blond moustache was still his most prominent facial adornment.

To say that he was surprised but half expresses his apparent feeling.

Merrill Has Changed.

Moody Merrill has changed materially since he was a familiar figure along Beacon hill and Pemberton square. His face and his eyes show anxiety and gloom. He is deeply troubled over his affairs in Boston. He is a sick man. If he is not suffering from hypochondria he certainly looks it. Twice during the interview he felt of his pulse and asked if he looked sick. His conversation was interrupted at times by a sudden change of subject.

He feels that he has been more sinned against than sinning and that he is entitled to a sympathy which should go down to the depth of his mental suffering and ally itself with his sorrow.

He wants friends, and if they are not forthcoming within a short time unquestionably Moody Merrill will be a fit subject for Verdun or the Longue Pointe asylum.

After a desultory conversation upon general matters, covering about every thing except those personal to himself, Mr. Merrill said, in answer to the query as to why he had left Boston as he did and where he had been since:

"Why I left Boston is, I presume you imagine, a matter of history, and you are asking me the question solely to give me an opportunity to explain my position. That I am not ready to do at the present time. But the time is not far distant when I shall speak.

"I needed rest and time to think—to collect myself. I had no idea of combining business with pleasure."

Mr. Merrill here stopped and remarked: "If you quote me at all, it must be done correctly. I have been imposed upon so long by those who assumed to be friendly that it is a wonder I stood it so long as I did."

Not in Disguise.

"Are you passing under your own name, Mr. Merrill?"

"I am not aware that I am sailing under false colors.

"I am perfectly frank to say that if I were I would not very likely be seen as I have been about Montreal.

"I have not removed from my present headquarters, except for a day or two, since June 1. I am letting matters take their own course. It was not my fault I came away."

Being pressed for an explanation of the concluding sentence, Mr. Merrill said, seeming to weigh each word as he uttered it. "I am not well."

If a spider had accidentally dropped down Hon. Moody Merrill's back at this time it would not have caused more of a start or shiver. "I needed a rest, and when they found I was absent from Boston, trouble began. It's all for the best, though, I can see that."

"Will you return to Boston soon?"

Mr. Merrill's face paled noticeably as he remarked: "I like Boston. I presume I shall return there. When, I cannot say. You see I read the papers."

With this he took from a hip pocket a Journal of Aug. 28.

He Has Been Bled.

Of politics in any sense he refused to speak, his declination bringing an expression of disgust.

It is plain that Moody Merrill, to use a slang expression, has been "worked" by the Tom, Dick and Harry of Massachusetts politics, and for the last time, if appearances count for anything, even should he return to active life in Boston.

"I am not sufficiently a philosopher to endure pain, consequently I cannot stand without flinching the leeches who have surrounded me," said Mr. Merrill, as he indicated that the interview was closed.

From the beginning to the end of the interview Mr. Merrill evinced a nervousness which it is hard to understand in any man who has so long been in the public eye.

Whether his interests in Boston are represented by counsel, or looked after by his son or brother, as well as to the truth or falsity of the allegations which have been made against him through the courts and public press, Mr. Merrill refused to say one word.

THE HATHAWAY FAILURE.

Business Men Surprised That His Methods Were So Long Undetected.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Sept. 2.—Broker Hathaway had been doing business with the Metacomet and Second National banks, but they became suspicious of his actions some time ago and suspended dealings with him. Now that the story of his transactions is out, it surprises business circles that they could have been carried on so long undetected. Bankers are in a very much disturbed frame of mind.

The two banks in the city that are reported to have some form of legal protection are the B. M. C. Durfee and the First National. They hold warehouse receipts for $11,000 and $19,000 respectively. The authorities have not yet been able to find the cotton that was supposed to be stored, and if this fact is proven Hathaway will be amenable to the laws of the state.

His assets are about $40,000. By advice of his counsel neither Mr. Hathaway nor his bookkeeper will talk yet. The outcome of the affair will probably be a revision of the present method of conducting the cotton business.

CHIEF JUSTICE OF SAMOA.

The High Office Tendered a Citizen of the Green Mountain State.

ST. JOHNSBURY, Vt., Sept. 2.—Hon. Harry C. Ide of this place has been tendered the position of chief justice of Samoa. This office is one filled by consent of three treaty powers—Germany, England and America—and carries with it great responsibility and demands much legal ability on the part of the incumbent. Mr. Ide's appointment came by the recommendation of Germany during President Harrison's administration, and was recently taken up again by the present administration.

The appointee was at one time United States land commissioner at Samoa and his acquaintance with the people and customs there, together with his recognized ability as a lawyer, would serve him to excellent advantage in the important position offered him.

He Never Came Back.

LYNN, Mass., Sept. 2.—Richard F. Cook, secretary of the Lynn Cycle company, started for Boston last Wednesday forenoon, and he said before going that he would be back by noontime. He has gone to join the army of missing men. Yesterday the company assigned to A. O. Very of Boston. This means not only the downfall of an unlucky cycle company, but the abandonment of the project nearly completed of having the best gymnasium in this city.

Endeavorers Adjourn.

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 2.—At the closing session of the Maine Christian Endeavor meeting there were addresses by Rev. G. D. Lindsay, Mrs. L. M. N. Stevens and General Neal Dow on temperance; Rev. J. S. Williamson spoke on social problems; Rev. W. S. Ayres spoke on Bible work, and Rev. F. E. Clark conducted a question box. Officers were elected. It was voted to hold the next annual convention in Lewiston.

For the Benefit of the Poor.

WINCHESTER, Mass., Sept. 2.—The town of Winchester is soon to come into possession of the income of an estate valued at from $50,000 to $75,000, this income to be applied to the support of the poor. This comes through the will of the late Asa Fletcher, who died about 10 years ago, leaving a will, by the terms of which his wife was to have the use of the estate during her life. Mrs. Fletcher died on Wednesday.

Broke Her Shaft.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Sept. 2.—The steamer City of Springfield of the Hartford line broke her shaft when just above Middle Haddam. The break was caused by a flaw in the engine. The tug Smith was called, and the Springfield was towed to a dock. It will require three weeks to repair her.

Seventh Connecticut Reunion.

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 2.—The annual reunion of the Seventh Connecticut Volunteer regiment was held at Stony Creek. About 65 members were present. After the banquet addresses were made by John I. Hutchison and Senator Joseph E. Hawley.

A Reduction of Time.

BOSTON, Sept. 2.—The Boston and Maine railroad company has issued a notice ordering eight hours to constitute a day's work in the shops of their entire system, except in the Salem and Lawrence shops, where the old time will be continued.

To Run on Half Time.

DOVER, N. H., Sept. 2.—Notice was posted at the Sawyer woolen mills that the works, which have been stopped since Aug. 12, will start up on Sept. 3 and will run three days a week.

Grand Master Billings Dead.

PLYMOUTH, N. H., Sept. 2.—William C. Billings, grand master of the grand lodge, I. O. O. F., of New Hampshire, died here, aged 41, of diphtheria.

CHESTER'S HORROR.

Ten More Injured Taken to the Springfield Hospital.

CAUSE OF THE DISASTER

Continues to Remain a Matter of Conjecture.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Sept. 2.—Ten injured persons from the Chester wreck on the Boston and Albany railroad were brought to the Springfield hospital yesterday.

They are: Winthrop Wade of Boston, a lawyer; Wesley Porter, Jr., of Chicago, a Wagner car porter, Ralph Deforest of Boston, cook on the dining car; Murray Graves of Boston, cook on the dining car; Lewis Buchanan of Boston, a porter; Sumner Cummings and wife of Worcester, Mrs. E. B. Adams of Holyoke, M. F. Leeck of Boulder, Colo.

Almost all those injured have broken hips or legs, except Porter and Deforest, who are severely scalded.

During the night the search for bodies at the Chester wreck was prosecuted without success, and the slow work of removing the debris was carried on by a gang of section hands. Before daybreak scores of persons were assembled at the scene of the catastrophe, and by noon this number was increased by thousands.

Houses Made Into Hospitals.

Early in the forenoon the dismantled engine was lifted from its bed of sand to the rails and pushed down the side tracks several hundreds of yards. It was stripped bare, like so many of the victims of the wreck, and its usefulness is impaired.

The passengers on the incoming trains were transferred in carriages along the Huntington road to the opposite side of the stream, and no attempt was made to follow schedule time. Nearly every house along the Huntington road was converted into a hospital and many of the victims also found refuge at Wright's hotel. Some 10 or a dozen of the slightly injured patients were permitted to depart for home early in the day.

The injuries to Walter T. Hawkins, the city solicitor of Pittsfield, were found to be more serious than was thought at first. His wife arrived and took charge of him. Besides the gashes in his forehead and lip, one wing of his nose is split open.

Ralph de Forrest of Boston, the cook who was so badly scalded, is failing rapidly, and it is feared his injuries will prove fatal.

Superintendent Gallup of the Boston and Albany railroad was seen by a reporter, but he said that he could not give much additional information to what had already been given. The railroad men have been kept at work continually on the temporary structure of trestle work, and it is expected to have the trains running over it by this afternoon, or at the latest Sunday.

Cause Unknown.

As to the cause of the wreck Mr. Gallup said that he was at a loss to know where to lay the blame. The civil engineer of the road had been working on the matter, but as yet he has been unable to find any cause why the bridge should go down. He said that the company would bear the expense of caring for the injured at the hospital.

Trains from the east were running on time yesterday as far as the wreck, but were from one to two hours late on passing it. The trains from the west were less fortunate, and the train due in this city at 7:30 did not arrive until 9:40, while the other trains were correspondingly late. The mail for places west of Chester was sent around through Greenfield, or south, to New Haven and then up the Housatonic division of the New York and Hartford road.

Statements Are Guarded.

Much interest has been aroused in this city as to the cause of the accident. The question is being freely discussed in railroad circles and by the general public. Was the engine too heavy? Did it leave the track and so cause the bridge to give way? Where was the weak spot in the bridge? Was the train going too fast when it struck the bridge?

These and similar questions the public would like to have answered, but all inquiries on these points are met by guarded statements from experts on bridge building, who say they will wait for an investigation.

Trust Funds Got Mixed.

SALEM, Mass., Sept. 2.—Samuel Porter, a real estate and insurance agent in Beverly, was before the district court here charged with embezzling $2500 belonging to the estate of the late Benjamin Preston. He was held in $3000 for the higher court. Porter is 70 years of age. The trouble came from mixing up trust funds with his own funds.

Life Saving Stations Reopened.

LONG BRANCH, Sept. 2.—The 40 odd life saving stations that lie on the Jersey coast from Sandy Hook to Cape May, which have been closed since June 1 by order of the government, were reopened yesterday. Each station has a captain and seven men.

Another Cutdown.

DOVER, N. H., Sept. 2.—The Cocheco Mills company announced that on Wednesday next, when the mills start up, a cut down of from 10 to 15 per cent will take effect. It is understood that the mule spinners will not accept the reduction.

Tinkering on the Navahoe.

LONDON, Sept. 2.—The Prince of Wales' cutter Brittannia has gone to Southampton, where she will receive a new boom preparatory to the races for the Victoria cup. The Navahoe is still in dock refitting.

Died In Church Sheds.

REDBANK, N. J., Sept. 2.—Welsh Pettzer, a German, was found hanging in the corner of the church sheds here. The suicide had come from New York on Tuesday to work for a farmer.
